of the redeemed praising God evermore, singing "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain."

3. Love is the all important thing. Christ did not catechise Peter as to his faith and hope. There was something much more important just then. There is a religion of fear, there is a religion of faith in doctrines. The only true religion is based on Jesus Christ, the atoning sacrifice. While love is important to Christ it is far more important to us.

Second.—Consider several inferences we draw from Peter's answer. "Thou knowest I love thee." Peter had the conscious experience of a love for Christ. What are the proofs that love for Christ is in the heart.

1. We have a deep feeling of bitterness when we have come short of love. Not that we have sinned, not that we have disgraced the church, nothing so low as that. Our bitter feeling arises from the fact, that we have wounded a heart that loves us. Judas had remorse, and went out and strangled himself out of the world. That is not the way love acts, but the way fear and wounded pride act. Peter had not strength to commit suicide; he was too broken down.

2. True love will not allow us to commit the same sin twice over. He hates, abhors, the sin which caused him so much bitterness.

3. True love brings the sinner back to Christ. A mere formal disciple, when his sin is pointed out, flies into a rage and is off, "I don't want anything to do with those people." Peter, after the denial, as quickly as he heard that it was Jesus on the sea-shore, plunged into [illegible] quickly to get to [illegible]. The loving boy, when [illegible] runs from the [illegible] of his mother, [illegible] has most [illegible] religion without the [illegible] there is [illegible] apostle [illegible] What I [illegible] troops of friends! Nothing [illegible] its place.

By loving Christ we place ourselves where he can do us the most [illegible] We have to put ourselves to[illegible] friends, where we can see [illegible] their face. Christ is never [illegible] lovely, never so hopeful, as when [illegible]—Metropolitan Pulpit.

civilized communities for the uncivilized when they wish to insult their neighbors to say to the unfortunate object of their hate, "I do not know you," or "I have not the pleasure of your acquaintance;" deliberately telling that which is not true, and adding the crime of falsehood to that of hate, both crimes of surpassing magnitude in New Testament morals, and both unworthy of a Christian man, much more a minister. Thus was Bishop Haven ignored by some who could not well forget his marked personal characteristics, having once seen and conversed with him.

This must be the last of these acts of willful ignorance, another of which came under my own eye, that of ignoring and neglecting Bishop Janes on the occasion of his attending the funeral service of Rev. Dr. Wm. A. Smith in the city of Richmond, Va., during the month of March, 1870. Our Virginia Conference was then in session in that city. Dr. Smith had been one of Bishop Janes' early friends; his house in New York city had been open to the Southern delegates of 1844; Dr. E. S. Janes, the able and popular Bible Agent, though not a member of that eventful conference was a favorite of Dr. Smith and others of the South, and when they left us they took this outside man and made him Bishop. He was the legacy to us of the retiring chiefs. We loved and honored him none the less, though never a member of a General Conference, and imposed on us by a Southern vote. His friend, Dr. Smith had fell, he adjourned his conference proceedings to secure the needed time, went to the church where the funeral service was conducted by Bishop Doggett and others, but there he was ignored and neglected, though the officiating ministers were informed of his presence; that holy man was deliberately snubbed by men unworthy to undo his shoe latchets. And now comes this second and really worse case. For one I will not submit to this thing in our Protestant Churches without an appeal to the morals of the New Testament for a speedy [illegible]. I will now venture the opinion that this will be the last of that class of cases.

J. MITCHELL.

Atlanta, July 5th, 1878.

Here and There.

Seven years ago, in company with a brother clergyman and several laymen, I left Shelbyville, Tenn., on a trip through Bedford, Marshall and Williamson counties, for the purpose of encouraging our scattered membership and extending our church work. Our services were held in private houses, the churches being closed against our kind of Methodists. Our appointments stood for 11 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m., and were generally four miles apart. Saturday night found us at father Smithson's; a very interesting meeting was held in his sitting-room. Sabbath morning, at 11 a.m., the congregation numbered about fourteen souls. At this point our church had the most bitter opposition to contend against. Our people, numbering about half a dozen, were looked upon with contempt and had little or no society. Their faith was in God, and through Him they expected to save souls and build up a church.

After an absence of seven years I was permitted to visit the above neighborhood. What a great change had taken place. Our people had succeeded in erecting a neat frame church; the membership had increased to sixty-five; every Sabbath an interesting Sabbath-school is conducted; class and prayer-meetings are regularly held, and a [illegible] school is taught by our [illegible]. Our mission was to [illegible] the closing of a five months [illegible] of this school. We found at [illegible] thousand people gathered, [illegible] the number were the [illegible] of the community [illegible] of the adjoining neighbor[illegible] we were invited [illegible] a table four hun[illegible] twenty feet long, filled [illegible] of this life" [illegible] supplied [illegible] have made [illegible] W. Hous[illegible] during the day several Democratic candidates seeking the suffrage of our people—thus recognizing us and our labors.

Saturday and Sunday was the quarterly meeting occasion. Large congregations assembled to hear the preaching of God's Word by our ministry. Over half a hundred partook of the sacrament, among the number ten ministers of the gospel, representing the Cumberland Presbyterian and the M. E. Churches. At 7 p.m. a most excellent love feast was held.

The next point visited was Rover, Tenn. Here a substantial frame church had also been erected and the several church services regularly held, and numbers had united with the Society. From Rover we went to Shelbyville, my first charge in the South. Here we found the brethren preparing for the celebration of the 4th. Connected with this charge is a camp-ground containing fifty acres; a substantial, well-seated shelter has been erected, size 100x60 feet. It is the best thing of the kind I have ever seen.

Books for Public Schools.

Mr. R. Q. Adams, of Holly Springs, Miss., writes that the following list of text books was recently adopted by a convention of the teachers of Marshall county, for the use of that county. The convention was composed principally of teachers connected with Shaw University, either as faculty or students:

1. Speller, Swinton's.
2. Reader, McGuffey's.
3. Grammar, Harvey's.
4. Mathematics, Robinson's.
5. History, Anderson's.
6. Geography, Swinton's.
7. Book-keeping, Bryant & Stratton's.
8. Natural Philosophy, Wells.
9. Chemistry, Steele's.
10. Rhetoric, Hepburn's.
11. Moral Science, Wayland's.
12. Mental Science, Wayland's.
13. Logic, McCosh.

Family Prayers.

We are far from thinking that the good old custom of having family prayers is being dropped from Christian households. It is a custom held in honor wherever there is real Christian life, and it is the one thing which, more than all other, knits together the loose threads of a home and unites its various members before God. The short religious service in which parents, children and friends daily join in praise and prayer, is at once an acknowledgment of dependence on the heavenly Father and a renewal of consecration to his work in the world. The Bible is read, the hymn is sung, the petition is offered, and unless all has been done as a mere formality and without hearty assent, those who have gathered at the family altar leave it helped, soothed, strengthened, and armored as they were not before they met there. The sick and the absent are remembered. The tempted and the tried are commended to God, and, as the Israelites in the desert were attended by the pillar and the cloud, so in life's wilderness the family who inquire of the Lord are constantly overshadowed by his presence and love.

There are many reasons which are allowed to interfere with and thrust aside the privileges of family prayer in homes where father and mother mean to have it daily. Breakfast is late, the children have a distance to go to school, the claims of business are pressing, the baby is fretful, neighbors call at untimely hours, and there are unforseen interruptions. Perhaps the family is boarding, and its hours and movements are to some degree dependent upon those of other people. Or a family is composed of fragments—uncles, aunts, connections, who have been assembled under the same roof, but who are not amenable to any special authority, and it is difficult to secure a place where those who desire to worship can do so undisturbed. This is not a mere fanciful difficulty. There are those who feel that they have no right to take the common sitting-room of the house for a religious rite, and it seems to them an unfit thing to go to their own private apartments with those who are [illegible] or who are constrained to [illegible] an act of worship. It [illegible] among the [illegible] night [illegible] as openly as they will [illegible] In other cases hus[illegible] [illegible] the other to engage in family prayer. The delicate withholdings and the unconquerable reticences upon these themes which have to do with the inner life of the soul, are not unfrequently most potential, as they effect those whose relations are the most intimate and tender.

Whatever comes in the way of a plain duty ought, however, to be set aside. If there be any among our readers who recognize the need there is in their house to have a daily open worship of God, let them begin it at once. They must find the time, choose the place, and appoint the way. The actual time spent in worship may be a few minutes only. A brief service which cannot tire the youngest child, if held unvaryingly as the sun, in the morning when the day begins, and in the evening when its active labors close, is far more useful and edifying than a long one which fatigues attention. The monotonous prayer which some memories recall, wherein the different themes were arranged like milestones, so that the boys knew that "the Jews" would bring them to the turn nearest to the end, did little good. If a religious ceremonial is regarded with indifference or endured with disgust, it is very likely to beget either hardness or hypocrisy in those who are compelled to assist at it by their presence. It is possible to have a daily worship which shall be earnest, vivifying, tender and reverential, and yet a weariness to nobody. Only let the one who conducts it mean toward the Father the sweet obedience of the grateful child, and maintain the attitude of one who goes about earthly affairs with a soul looking beyond and above them to the rest that remaineth in heaven. It is not every one who is able to pray in the hearing of others with ease. The timid tongue falters, and the thoughts struggle in vain for utterance. But who is there who cannot read a Psalm, or a chapter, or cluster of verses, and, kneeling, repeat in accents of tender trust the Lord's prayer? When we think of it, that includes everything.—Christian at Work.

Neptune, the most remote of the planets in the solar system, is about 1,000,000,000 miles from the sun.

It is supposed that Mercury has mountains higher than the Himalayas, and volcanoes in a state of activity.

Out of all the myriad lights in the heavens, the Earth is only visible to the Moon, Mars, Mercury and Venus.

At certain favorable times Jupiter might see us with the aid of a telescope, but it would be only a small spot slowly crossing the solar face.

The earth is seven hundred and forty-six times smaller than Saturn, whose mean distance from us is over 91,000,000 miles.

Uranus can never see us at all, as it is about 1,753,000,000 from the sun.

Mercury can not be seen with the naked eye, as it is immersed in the rays of the Sun.

The temperature in Mercury is supposed to be seven times hotter than our torrid zone; therefore, if it is inhabited it must be a people very differently constituted from ourselves.

Fontenelle says the heat to which the inhabitants of Mercury are accustomed is so great that the climate of central Africa would freeze them through.

It is believed that Venus has an atmosphere much like ours, and mountain peaks five or six times higher than Teneriffe, their sides bright with flowers and birds of brilliant plumage.

The moon never leaves our globe, therefore it is called our satellite. Though to us it appears larger than the stars, it is really smaller than any of them, but is much nearer to us.

Astronomers have calculated that the mountains and extinct volcanoes in the moon are higher than any on our earth.

The moon has no atmosphere, according to careful and accurate observers, and its climate must therefore be very strange, passing suddenly from a heat equal to our torrid zone to a cold greater than the Esquimaux feels.

If there were any one on the moon to see it, the earth would appear to them as a magnificent ball. The planets and sun would move behind it in brilliant succession.

The planet Mars much resembles the earth in atmospheric phenomena and polar cold. It is supposed to be surrounded by a dense atmosphere.

Our globe appears to Mars as the morning and evening star.

Thoughts on Going to Sleep.

Thou makest darkness and it is night. (Ps. civ; 20.)

The day is thine, the night also is thine. (Ps. lxxiv: 16.)

The darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike to thee. (Ps. cxxxix: 12.)

He that keepeth thee will not slumber. Behold, He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. (Ps. cxxi: 3, 4.)

When thou liest down thou shalt not be afraid; yea, thou shalt lie down, and thy sleep shall be sweet. (Prov. iii: 24.)

I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep; for thou, Lord, only, makest me dwell in safety. (Ps. iv: 18.)

He giveth His beloved sleep. (Ps. cxxvii: 2.)

At evening time it shall be light. (Zec. xiv: 7.)

And there shall be no night there. (Rev. xxi: 25.)

Thoughts on Waking.

I laid me down and slept; I awaked; for the Lord sustained me. (Ps. iii: 5.)

When I awake, I am still with thee. (Ps. cxxxix: 18.)

My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up. (Ps. v: 3.)

Cause me to hear thy loving kindness in the morning. (Ps. cxliii: 8.)

Be thou their arm every morning. (Isa. xxxiii: 2.)

I will sing aloud of their mercy in the morning. (Ps. lxix: 16.)

It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed * * * They are new every morning. (Lam. iii: 22, 23.)

The day is thine * * * thou hast prepared the light and the sun. (Ps. lxxiv: 16.)

Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun. (Eccl. xi: 7.)

Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us. (Ps. iv: 6.)

Make thy face to shine upon thy servant. (Ps. xxxi: 16.)

Be thou in the fear of the Lord all the day long. (Prov. xxiii: 17.)

Unto you that fear my name shall the son of righteousness arise (Mal. iv: 2.)

And the city had no need of the sun, for the glory of God did lighten it. (Rev. xxi: 23.)

I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness. (Ps. xvii: 15.)

Transfigured Sorrow.

You may not know how it is supposed the pearl is formed. A grain of sand or some foreign substance, getting entrance within the shell of an oyster, hurts its sensitive body, which having no power to expel the cause of pain, covers it with a secretion, and by degrees rounds off all sharp angles, molds it into a sphere, and finishes it with a polished surface. Thus it accepts the inevitable presence as part of its life, and when it dies yields up, shaped and perfected, a perfect gem, lovely with the tints of the skies, a jewel whose worth is far beyond the pain that gave it existance.

God often introduces into human lives some element of discomfort, unrest, or suffering, a thorn in the flesh that cannot be plucked out, a burden that must be borne, a daily cross not to be laid down. Some souls thus dealt with chafe against the trial; they contend with it till their sensibilities are larcerated by its cruel edges, and their hearts become morbid and bitter. They make its presence one long, perpetual pain and poison. Others, recognizing the trial as Heaven-sent, and therefore not to be escaped, accept it, not with joy, indeed, but with meekness; and though it press hard and sharply, they wear it with a sweet patience that day by day enables them to carry it more easily. It even becomes the source of an inward development, the growth of a grace which at the last proves to be the crowning, adorning attribute of their character—the especial quality which, rounded out to perfect symmetry, reflects the beauty of heaven.—Christian Weekly.

Gen. John B. Gordon has purchased 6,400 acres of land in Worth county, Ga., for a sheep farm.

The Early Abolitionists.

It seems a little remarkable that such a large number of the original and life-long Abolitionists are still alive. Among those prominent in the anti-slavery cause are William Lloyd Garrison, rightly called the Father of American Abolitionism, aged 73; Wendell Phillips, 66; Ralph Waldo Emerson, 75; Lydia Maria Child, 76, (she wrote an Appeal in Behalf of that Class of Americans called Africans, one of the first distinctively anti-slavery books published in the country,) George B. Cheever, 71; Arad Gilbert, 76; Lucretia Mott, 85; Sidney Howard Gay, 62: Henry W. Longfellow, 71; Henry Ward Beecher, 65; A. Bronson Alcott, 79; Oliver Johnson, 69; John G. Whittier, 70; Henry W. Bellows, 64; Frederick Douglass, 61; Elizabeth Cady Stanton, 62; George Ripley, 76; Cassius M. Clay, 68; Harriet Beecher Stowe, 66; William Henry Furness, 76; Calvin E. Stowe, 76; James Freeman Clark, 68; James Russell Lowell, 59; Edward Everett Hale, 62; Park Godwin, 62; and dozens of others who might be mentioned, between the ages of 60 and 85. One reason, no doubt, of the longevity of the early Abolitionists is that they have entertained moral ideas, and these spring from moral conduct, which includes temperance in living and general conformation to hygienic law. A very small number of those who were distinguished pro-slavery advocates, are now living. Among the few that remain are Jefferson Davis and Robert Toombs.—Buffalo Advocate.

What virtuous king relief in trouble found? Hezekiah.

Who for impiety in chains was bound? Manasseh.

Who humbled not himself as did his sire? Amon.

Who purged the land from heathen rites by fire? Josiah.

What three were carried captive far away? Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin.

And who fell last under Chaldean sway? Zedekiah.

A Touching Incident.

Not many years since, certain miners, working far underground, came upon the body of a poor fellow who had perished in the suffocating pit forty years before. Some chemical agent to which the body had been subjected—an agent prepared in the laboratory of nature—had effectually arrested the progress of decay. They brought it up to the surface, and, for a while, till thoroughly exposed to the atmosphere, it lay—the image of a fine, sturdy young man. No convulsions had passed over his face in death—the features were tranquil; the hair black as jet. No one recognized the face; a generation had grown up since the miner went down into the pit for the last time. But a tottering old woman who hurried from her cottage on hearing the news, came up, and she knew again the face which through all these long years she had not forgotten. The miner was to have been her husband on the day after that on which he had died. There were no dry eyes when the gray-haired old pilgrim cast herself upon the youthful corpse and poured into the deaf ear many words of endearment unused for forty years. It was a touching contrast—the one so old, this other so young. They had both been young these long years ago, but time had gone on with the living and stood still with the dead.—Christian Neighbor.

Dr. James C. Ayer, the celebrated patent medicine proprietor, died at Lowell, Mass., on the 3rd inst., of softening of the brain, aged about sixty. His estate is probably worth from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Since the beginning of the year the value of domestic exports from New York alone has been $152,185,266. This is $34,000,000 more than the same period last year, and $103,000,000 more than the same period in 1876.

A man in Vermont died after suffering from dyspepsia for fifteen years. A post-mortem revealed thirteen cherry-stones imbedded in the lining coats of the stomach. The walls of the stomach which, in their healthy state, are as thin as the blade of a knife, were an inch thick.

Ancient quarries of soap-stone have been discovered in Amelia county, Virginia, fifty miles south of Richmond. They bear the marks of having been worked by the aboriginal inhabitants of the continent. A great many specimens of pots and vessels made of it have been found and sent to the Smithsonian Institution. Further investigations are being made, under the direction of Professor Spencer F. Baird.

The San Antonio authorities are taking steps toward the identification of the graves of the heroes of the Alamo. The Galveston News says: "Col. King will also attempt to save what remains of the ashes of the heroes of the Alamo. In 1837, a year after the massacre, Capt. Juan Seguin had the charred and mutilated relics gathered together and placed in a large box, the names of the victims being inscribed on the inside of the lid. The box was interred at a triangular piece of land a few hundred yards from the Alamo. Col. King is sanguine of discovering this very box, which will be guarded from further neglect and desecration.

The Berlin Conference has closed. [illegible] peace for Europe. In this result all truly wise people will rejoice. The settlement of the dispute between the United States and England over the Alabama claims by arbitration a few years since was a great event, but this Berlin settlement is a much greater event. The former involved the interests of but two governments, and they on different continents; and the points of dispute related chiefly to matters of fact, which once proven, the remedy was practically settled by well established international laws. Not so in the Berlin Conference. All Europe was interested, and the accumulated complications of what has for generations been known as "The Eastern Question," all came to the front. Russia had just sacrificed two splendid armies of men and $300,000,000 of money to conquer Turkey, and had at Stefano dictated her own terms by which she was to gain vast territory and a large indemnity in money. This victory, if held by Russia, would go very far toward giving her what she has long been wanting, a foothold on the Bosphorus. When Russia went to Berlin she submitted all the fruits of her victory to the decision of counsellors. England had vast interests to look after. So had Austria and Germany, and Greece and France, while poor Turkey had her all in the balance. For such a Conference to meet and deliberate and settle upon a treaty that insures peace to Europe is indeed the greatest event of the age.

The results of the Berlin Conference are a triumph for Christianity. Turkey, the champion of Mohammedanism is practically driven from Europe. Her best European provinces are parcelled out to Christian nations or made independent with Christian rulers. Cyprus, the island gem of the Mediterranean, goes to Christian England. This island under Venitian rule had 1,000,000 people on it, but now it has less than one-fourth that number because of Turkish rule. Besides England will soon begin the building of a railroad in the valley of the Euphrates. [illegible] public opinion con- [illegible] and your Church and people. You reviler, accuser, traducer, [illegible] up and do him honor, for the sake of the Church that sent him down here to disintegrate and absorb."

1. According to this paper Bishop Haven was not introduced because to do so would be to publicly recognized as a "reviler, accuser, traducer." Such remarks concerning a Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in these days of professed fraternity, are a sad commentary upon the real sentiments of those who make them. A few years ago it was Bishops Janes and Ames and Simpson that were revilers and accusers and traducers of the Church South. There is not a Southern Methodist paper that has not at sometime since the war ridiculed and slandered these men. Bishop Janes is now in glory, and wears a brighter crown, because of the persecution for righteousness sake received in these Southern States. The point in former years was about establishing our work in the South. Now the point is about maintaining and enlarging that work. If Bishop Ames lived in New Orleans or Atlanta and was superintending our Southern work he would to-day be treated and slandered as is Bishop Haven. We are now glad that Bishop Haven was not introduced at Atlanta to the Southern General Conference. At first we considered the matter of but slight importance, but in view of what has been said by the Southern Methodist press, we have now come to regard the affair of very great importance. Bishop Haven needs no endorsement from the Southern Methodist Church. His ability, his character and his genius rank him so much above his Southern traducers that he can well afford to look down upon them with pity.

2. The Western Methodist tells the whole truth. The last few words tell all—"the Church that sent him down here to disintegrate and absorb." It is not Bishop Haven, but the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South. No word or act of the Southern General Conference could by any means be interpreted as giving any countenance to our southern work while words and acts were not wanting which indicated a determination not to recognize that work. "Home rule," which is now the cry of Southern politicians is also the war cry of Southern Methodist leaders. In the one case it means the destruction of every organization and influence which can interfere with the propagation and maintenance of "Confederate" ideas in the South; and in the other it means either the driving out or controlling of all Methodistic influences in the South not inspired and directed by distinctively Southern notions. For this reason we thought that our delegates in Atlanta ought in plain words to have mentioned our Southern work. Herein lies the whole question of "fraternity." If we, as a Church, were not in the South, fraternity would long since have been settled not only formally, but in fact. But we are in good cheer. God has done too much in this Southern country the past few years to forsake it now. The people of all communions and beliefs are getting nearer to each other year by year and the inexorable law of the survival of the fittest is doing its work.

The Republicans of Alabama have decided to make no nomination for State offices. They are thoroughly convinced and upon the best of evidence, that were they to take part in the election their votes would not be counted and they would simply give a tacit acknowledgment [illegible] the fairness of a contest which they know to be fraudulent and corrupt. While taking this course, however, they do not for a moment falter in their fidelity to the principles of Republicanism, nor relinquish the belief that now as in 1872 and 1874, they have a majority of the legal voters of the State. They submit simply to force and fraud which they know they cannot hope to overcome. In doing so they issue an address which is most touching in its simplicity, earnestness, [illegible] truth. They declare that their [illegible] is one of poverty against [illegible] and hereditary timidity and [illegible] against courage and ag- [illegible]. Yet, having the truth [illegible] on their side, they are [illegible] that they will triumph [illegible]

The exhibition appears to look more lovely every day. It is losing its very new looks; the alleys are free from pebbles of the type that must have slain Goliath; there are seats everywhere, and the restaurants are springing up like mushrooms. Since its recent opening, the pavilion devoted to the exhibits of the Minister of Public Instruction is much visited; the solar reflector is the object of special curiosity. While on educational matters, let the visitor not neglect the exhibits of Russia in this respect. In the model of a class there is a seat with a movable back, which permits the pupil to "stretch himself" without disturbing his work, or that quietness so difficult to obtain in childhood. There is also a small instrument which demonstrates if substances be permeable or impermeable to air—an India rubber tube, with the end placed against a morsel of brick, concrete or wood grain ways; all is in a glass of water; the latter will become agitated, when the air, slightly blown passes through the resisting medium. A. M. Nedata, of Finland, explains by a series of pictorial tables, the work of digestion by the stomach: under-done beefsteaks and under-cooked eggs, according to him, ought to be avoided. Pounded raw meat, at present so much in request, makes frightful ravages with the stomach, yet he recommends that as a "precaution against cholera." The effects of vodki, the popular brandy, produces the same burning effects on the stomach, as the air of mines, yet prisoners are condemned to the silver and mercury mines of Siberia though the pain of death be abolished. The vodki is the most fruitful source of indirect revenue, on a par in this respect with tobacco in France. There are many interesting cardboard anatomical models, of animals, insects, etc. Thus an infant can take assunder and replace the body and internal organs of a bee, a flea, a beetle, etc. Similarly with the human head, the model opens in two; the jaw bone can be taken assunder, the teeth "extracted," their system of connecting nerves examined. There are wax preparations to illustrate the development of a frog, and the transformation of a silk worm. The botanical plates are superb, and have been purchased by the French government. There are also twenty-two types of the various subjects of the Russian empire, most faithfully executed and clad. The Poles complain that they are not represented.

The Sweedish ethnographical section in the Trocadero is most attractive, from the number and variety of its wooden models of the peasantry, taken, as they have been, dressed, from life. The figures are so arranged as to represent scenes of ordinary occurences; the "setting out for church," is an actuality; every room in the house is presented to view, with its furniture, and a young lady giving the last touches to her head-dress, is charming. These exhibits will rank among the popular successes.

A Colored Man on Liberia.

The New Orleans Times gives editorially the following synopsis of the views of a leading colored man on Liberia. Coming from one competent to judge and who speaks from what he has seen, these views are valuable. We quote as follows:

The Rev. Mr. Timaner, of the African Protestant Episcopal Church, in Washington, is a remarkable man. He is the grandson of an African prince, and as a thinker and writer he is one of the ablest, as he is one of the most unassuming men of his race. He had lived in Liberia twenty years and understands the country perhaps as well as any one in America, and has given his views at length. He says it is the very culmination of insanity for the negroes of the South to think of going to Liberia, and the reasons he gives are very clear and intelligent. "It is cruel and wicked," he said "to delude the colored man in to breaking up all his old associations, and going to a wild region, where disease and death await them, and where many who preceded them have relapsed into paganism."

On being asked how the colony at Liberia was progressing, he said: "Of from 17,000 to 20,000 colonists who have been carried thither by the Colonization Society you can't find 10,000 of them and their descendants to-day. Large numbers of them were of mixed blood. Mulattoes who go to Africa die like rotten sheep; the few children they have rarely reach maturity, and the blacks of unmixed blood fare but little better."

The reasons he gave for the failure of the colony, which was [illegible] very interest- [illegible] needed in Liberia were [illegible] slaves, enervated by the [illegible] of the institution of slavery, inferior, in fact, in mental, moral and physical stamina to their pagan [illegible]. Nine-tenths of all sent from the country were grossly ignorant, totally illiterate and without moral or religious culture. It was a mass of mingled ignorance and immortality. The forced labor to which they had been accustomed was suddenly exchanged for entire liberty. They were turned loose on the coast utterly unprepared for voluntary industry. There they are, such as survive, hatless, shoeless, shirtless—every man a voter—surrounded by hungry colored demagogues, with an election every two years, and kept in a constant worry and ferment about politics. The rain falls six months in the year. Then when the hot sun pours down on the soaked soil for the other six months the air becomes filled with miasma from the decayed vegetation and the malarial fever sets in like a pestilence. The heat it is true does not reach so high a degree as it does here, but it is more continuous and enfeebling, as it is relieved by no sudden change of temperature and has no compensation in the tonic of a winter."

This is not an agreeable picture and yet there is no doubt of its correctness.

When asked what he thought of the expedition to sail the latter part of the present month, and in which there are twelve families from this city, his answer was not encouraging:

"It must come to grief. It is a terrible responsibility that the promoters of it undertake. It is like a slaughter of innocents. There are a good many of my race in this country that could be spared with advantage, if not to themselves, to those they left behind. I see a Mr. Turner, of North Carolina, says there are something like a thousand negroes in the penitentiary of that State. It might be well to send these outcasts and criminals to Africa and take the chance of their destruction or survival. Penal colonies have been the basis of good results for civilization, as witness Australia and some parts of America two hundred years ago. But to keep the worthless and unthrifty blacks at home and hunt up and send away the industrious who have little homesteads and have made savings, is a great wrong."

The system of farming there is not like it is here. No plows are used. The tropical vegetation is too luxuriant, and it has to be burned off before the ground is planted, and kept down, while the crop is growing, with hoes. Dr. Timaner says there are no animals to plow with, if it could be done. The native horses from the interior, a small and scrubby stock at best, sicken and die when taken to the sea coast. There are some bullocks in use, but they are small, and most of the hauling and carrying is done by human strength.

Cotton and sugar can be grown in Liberia. The first grows about ten feet high, and lasts ten years. The fibre is coarser than that of cotton grown in the South. Sugar-cane rattoons for ten years, and grows to be twenty feet high, but is of slow growth, and is choked out by weeds, which grow very rapidly, and soon overshadow the young plant. Of the moral and religious condition of the Liberian, the reverend gentleman's description is not encouraging:

"When one native has become a Christian," he observes, "two immigrants have become pagans. There seems to be an almost invincible tendency to fall back into heathenism. I know of instances where colonists have gone into the Congo region, embraced fetichism and discarded clothing and all other incidents of Christian civilization."

These statements it will be remembered, came from an intelligent, educated man who is a pure African and knows what he is talking about. It is known that agents have been quietly at work in this city and many parishes of the State, dilating upon the beauties and benefits of Liberia, and the desirability of a government which is administered by the colored people themselves. Mr. Timaner has something of importance to say about this:

"A very bad government was fastened on Liberia. It is a pure Democracy there, or mighty near it. They need to be put under a provincial government. The tyranny of the mob is fully exemplified there. Ex-slaves make the worst tyrants in the world. During the last five years they have had two conflicts with the natives in consequence of trying to domineer over them. They were badly worsted, too, and they must eventually be swept into the ocean unless they are curbed by a protectorate."

What is really needed in Liberia, he believes, is a strong paternal government, and he thinks the colony will not prosper until it has something more stable than that at existing [illegible]

Wm. Taylor in South America.

We publish the following from the Pittsburgh Advocate, as it gives in few words an account of the great work inaugurated by Wm. Taylor in South America. Mr. Taylor's missionary labors in California, Africa and India are familiar to the church. We quote:

The days of great deeds are not past. I suppose the history of missions does not show a more marvelous work accomplished than that by Wm. Taylor during the past winter. He, with his brother, A. Taylor, left New York in October. In the few hours stop he made at Aspinwall, he so far set on foot measures to open a school there, that he expects soon to be called on for a teacher. Likewise at Panama and Guayaquil, he is looking for persons to fill those places. His real work, however, commenced when he got to Callao. Here he remained two months preaching, receiving suggestions as to the plan he should pursue. He got a Scotchman converted, but it so disturbed his congregation which he had gathered by overcoming the stolid indifference they have for all religious interests, that he saw he must go a little slow, or he would frighten all larger game. At last he started out and in less than seventy days accomplished the marvelous work of opening eleven places for missionary work, extending for 2,000 miles along the western coast, from Callao to Concepcion; places which not only agreed to give adequate support but to forward money in advance to pay the passage of persons going there. A month since he returned to New York to secure persons needed to fill these places. The following persons have responded to his call, and he has appointed them as follows: A. P. Stowell, with his wife and Miss Cora Benson, of Boston, go to Tacna. Mr. Stowell has just graduated from Boston University. G. S. Chilcoat, who graduated this year at the Ohio Wesleyan University, goes to Mollendo. J. W. Collier, who graduated last year in Boston University, goes to Iquque. J. W. Higgins, a member of the same class with Mr. Collier, goes to Coquimbo. S. C. Smith, a graduate of Baldwin University, and also of Boston, who expects to take a wife with him, goes to Copiapo. A. T. Jeffrey, who took his college course at Iowa Wesleyan University, and his theological at Boston goes to Antologasta. Ina H. S Fetra, a graduate of the Ohio Wesleyan and also of the Boston University, goes to Valparaiso. E. Chilcoat, who with his brother graduated at the Ohio Wesleyan this year, goes to Talcahuana. W. A. Wright, a graduate of Mt. Union, goes to Concepcion. Accompanying him as associate teachers are Misses Sarah E. Longley and Selia H. Waterhouse, graduates of the Maine Wesleyan College. Miss Waterhouse is a graduate of music and Miss Longley of the Art Academy of Boston. Other places are expected to be filled in the fall. Mr. Taylor used whatever plan was available. Where he could place a man to preach he did so. Where they would not support a preacher, he sends a man to teach and preach both. When even this was impracticable, he sent teachers, binding them to teach no creed, but by the power of Christly life and private influence to secure a recommendation for that religion which it is his aim to establish as soon as the way shall open. Tacna and Concepcion are places of this kind, and it is very necessary that persons addressing letters to Messrs. Stowell and Wright should recognize them only as teachers, leaving off the Rev., as this would prove a great barrier to them.

This entire party, excepting Mr. Smith, who will wait till July 31st, left New York, June 30th, and expect to commence their work about August 1st.

The work is undertaken in the missionary spirit, and although in some cases it was necessary to give a different name than missionary, yet the entire work is undertaken with the thought of lifting a continent nearer the throne and redeeming people who ought to be our special charge and whose resources may greatly aid in the onward march of truth and Christ. Rev. A. Taylor is stationed in Callao, where he is working away to do a grand work for God and the world.

The Suez Canal is eighty-six miles long from sea to sea, varying in width from 190 to 328 feet, with a depth of 26 feet, and a width at bottom of 72 feet. The saving of distance, by this route, as compared with that around the Cape to Bombay, 4,840 miles from England; 5,940 from Marseilles; from St. Petersburg, 4,840; and from New York, 3,600 miles.

There will be a big eclipse of the sun on the 29th of this month.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. J. B. Barnes, G[illegible], Tex.: "I am just home from one of my appointments at which there were three conversions and three accessions to the church. All the prospects on this work are encouraging. At this place in last few months our congregations have doubled in size."

Rev. Walter Ripetoe, Marshall Texas: "I have received fifteen persons this year in full connection and thirty on probation—have baptised twelve. This is a new work, and we are endeavoring to build two new churches, each 30x40. We have got the lumber for both. Times are hard, but the prospects for crops are good and the people are much encouraged."

Rev. I. Hayward, Baton Rouge, La.: "Our recent quarterly services were largely attended and full of spiritual interest. Our Presiding Elder, Rev. J. Gould, was in attendance. The pastor's report showed the church to be in good condition and a steady increase of members. The benevolent collections were good. The Sunday-school had largely increased in numbers since last quarterly conference."

Rev. James Pickett, Lebanon, Tenn.: "Our Church at this time is in good condition in both spiritual and temporal interests. Our collections are all well advanced. Of the $25.00 assessed for missions we now have $17.00, and will have the remainder of this as well as all our other assessments by end of conference year. There has been a great revival of temperance interests here in Lebanon, and our church has shared largely in it. Father Slay has labored as much in the ministry this year as his health would permit. He is at this time quite feeble. May this aged herald of the Cross long be spared to the church."

Rev. S. Gates, Presiding Elder of Austin District, Texas: "On June 30th, we were called to the joyful work of dedicating to the service of the Almighty God our new church at Seguin. We were aided in the service by the pastor, Rev. John Wright, and by Rev. Larkin Carper, from San Antonio. Heretofore our people at this place have had no house for public worship or for the use of the Sunday-school. It was with grateful hearts they came up to the service, and the Lord met with and blessed them. The Church Extension Society aided in this good work to the amount of $150.00. From Seguin we went to Oakland and held the quarterly services on work of Rev. P. Johnson. Many were prevented from coming to the meeting by the high waters, but those who did come found the Lord ready to bless them. Five persons united with the church and many weeping penitents presented themselves at the altar for prayers. The meetings will be continued. Our white friends of the Church South, are holding a Campmeeting at this place in which there have been some twenty coversions. From here I go to dedicate our new church at Lockhart. Our people at that place have been struggling for the past ten years to build up a church. Now they have a membership of thirty-five and a new house of worship ready to dedicate to the Lord with thanksgiving. We expect to spend two days at the campmeeting at LaGrange, July 21 and 22, and then three days, July 26, 27 and 28, at the campmeeting at Columbus."

General News Items.

Lieut. Flipper, the only colored graduate of West Point, is to be appointed military instructor of the colored branch of the Agricultural and Military college of Texas.

Secretary Sherman says he has not decided to announce the resumption of specie payments in advance of the first of January next, the time fixed by law. He says, however, resumption may come before that time by natural causes, or when the premium on specie shall disappear. We are now approaching that point. It is the duty of the Government to employ all legitimate means to produce such a result. Coin balance in the Treasury is about $200,000,000 and steadily increasing. As there is no idea the balance will fall below the present figure, this, with the present low premium in gold, forms a basis of general anticipation that resumption will occur before the 1st of January.

In a reply to an address from the Central Committee of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society, in the Diocese of Ferns, Ireland, Cardinal Manning says: "I thank God with you for the advance which has been made in these last years in rousing public opinion to the great national disgrace and national [illegible] of intemperance. It is touching classes untouched before—I mean women of every condition and children of tender age. I am thankful also to know that the great medical faculty is pronouncing a decisive verdict to the effect that alcohol is not necessary for food, and hardly ever necessary for medicine. With this we have a pledge of the future. A new generation is rising which will have never learned the taste, and, therefore, will be little tempted by the use of stimulants."

London, July 11.—England is to pay Turkey annually [illegible] pounds sterling for the occupation of the Island of Cyprus. The present estimated revenue from the island is 120,000 pounds.

Council Bluffs, Ia., July 12.—Forty tramps were captured on Thursday and placed in jail. They were tried, one at a time, under the vagrant act, and are now being worked on the streets with the thermometer indicating 95 degrees in the shade. All tramps will be similarly treated who try to make the city their headquarters.

Berlin, July 13.—The peace congress closed its labors to-day. The closing speech was made by Prince Bismarck, who was warmly congratulated by his confreres upon the excellent judgement and impartial decisions in presiding over the deliberations of the tribunal. In accepting the offered thanks Prince Bismarck expressed his sincere hope that a lasting peace would result from the Berlin treaty.

London, July 13.—The treaty of Berlin, the text of which is published to-day, forbids the election of any members of the reigning dynasties or great powers as Prince of Bulgaria. The stipulation is made that if the Russian or Turkish members of the commission, appointed by the congress to provide for the provisional organization of Bulgaria, shall disagree with the majority of the commission, then a fresh conference shall be held at Constantinople, which conference shall decide the point of difference.

Washington, July 12—The books of the Treasury show that up to July 1, and since the passage of the silver bill, there has been coined at the different mints $8,600,000. It is understood to be the intention of the Secretary of the Treasury to pay out this silver in meeting the current obligations of the government. It will be scattered all over the country in as equal proportion as possible, in order to bring it into more general circulation. It is understood also that fractional silver coin will be furnished in much larger quantities than heretofore to banks on demand. It is thought that this policy will entirely destroy the remaining premium on gold as against greenbacks.

Washington, July 12.—The superintendent of the New Orleans Mint, who has received his commission, is giving attention to the deed to be made by the city of New Orleans to the government for the ground on which the mint is located. The coiner, Dr. Bonzano, has been in Philadelphia for the past two weeks to ascertain what articles and fixtures will be needed. He leaves New York to-morrow for New Orleans. The bonds of the melter, refiner and assayer have been received at the Treasury Department and have been examined by the solicitor of the treasury and found to be satisfactory. Their commissions will be sent them to New Orleans without delay. It is expected that by the twentieth instant the preliminary organization will be completed and that in about ten days thereafter it is probable that the purchase of Mexican dollars at that mint will be commenced for coinage into standard silver dollars. It is not probable that regular coinage operations will be commenced before October.

Saints cannot now be created by the Church of Rome unless the person to be canonized has been dead fifty years, a circumstance which perhaps, is not without its compensation to the relatives of the late Pope, inasmuch as saintship was attended with such heavy fees that one of the descendants of Charles Borromeo is alleged to have said to his family, after paying all the expenses of canonization: "Be always good Christians, my dear children, but never saints; one other saint in our family and we are ruined."

Rev. Edwin A[illegible], pastor of our church at M[illegible], W. Va., recently received into membership twenty-four persons whom the United Brethren had excluded from being Odd Fellows.

The Scriptures Read (16-19).—[illegible] returned to the little village of Nazareth, "where he had been brought up," he came back famous. He "returned in the power of the Spirit"—not in his own power be it noticed—"and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about." He had taught in other synagogues, and had been "glorified" by all of them. He had turned the water into wine, and had healed the nobleman's son at Capernaum, and these facts had traveled faster and farther than his preaching. When he came back the village was all astir, and, upon the Sabbath, the synagogue was [illegible] a congregation eager to [illegible] he would preach in it, [illegible] what he would have to [illegible] and before he pronounced a verdict in saying; "Verily I say unto you, no prophet is accepted in his own country."

The Scriptures Fulfilled (23 30).—Just as the multitude gave Paul audience unto the word, "for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles," so they listened unto Jesus in the Synagogue in Nazareth until "they heard these things," and then they were equally filled with wrath. They were angry with him for bringing up those instances where God had favored the Gentiles rather than the Jews—all the more angry that they were true. They were inflamed at his intimation that, like those prophets, he should disregard all local claims, and go to those who should exhibit the requisite faith. He did not say that he would do no miracles for them, but that they had no exclusive claim to him, and that even Gentiles might be the recipients of his mercy. But he did imply that a believing Gentile would sooner receive the favor of God than an unbelieving Jew, and that was enough to awaken all their animosity. It was this acknowledgement of the Gentiles which changed the cry of the Jews from "Hosanna"! to "Crucify him"!

They "rose up"—in the Synagogue—disregarding the day and the place, and thrust him out of the city, and would have cast him headlong down the precipice, on the brow of which their city was built, but he "passing through the midst of them, went his way." People are divided in their minds whether his escape was miraculous—the Savior making himself invisible—or whether by [illegible] a natural majesty of demeanor he overawed the boorish crowd that sought his life. In regard to this, it is to be [illegible] that the Scriptures themselves do not claim that there was anything [illegible] about it, and if [illegible] we have no right to do [illegible]

WOMAN.

By an immense practice, extending through a period of years, having within that time treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and agreeable medicine that meets the indications presented by that class of diseases with positive certainty and exactness.

To designate this natural specific compound, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon my own personal observation. As a close observer, I have, while witnessing its positive results in the few special diseases incident to the separate organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly and in harmony with the laws which govern the female system, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician. Nay, even more, so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. If a beneficial effect is not experienced by the time two-thirds of the contents of the bottle are used, I will, on return of the bottle, two-thirds of the medicine having been taken according to directions, and the case being one for which I recommend it, promptly refund the money paid for it. Had I not the most perfect confidence in its virtues, I could not offer it as I do under these conditions; but having witnessed its truly miraculous cures in thousands of cases, I feel warranted and perfectly safe in risking both my reputation and my money on its merits.

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhœa, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing Down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, Female Weakness, and very many other chronic diseases incident to woman not mentioned here. In all affections of this nature, my Favorite Prescription works cures—the marvel of the world. This medicine I do not extol as a cure-all, but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS

Or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated, Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Billious Granules. THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC, or Multum in Parvo Physic.

The novelty of modern Medical, Chemical, and Pharmaceutical Science. No use of any longer taking the large, repulsive, and nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each little Purgative Pellet represents, in a most concentrated form, as much cathartic power as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in drug-shops. From their wonderful cathartic power, in comparison to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect; but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized and modified, one by the others, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly operating, cathartic.

$500 Reward is hereby offered by the proprietor of these Pellets, to any chemist who, upon analysis, will find in them any calomel or other forms of mercury, mineral poison, or injurious drug.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad taste in the mouth, Billious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, High-colored Urine, Unsociability and Gloomy Forebodings, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of my Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, I wish to say that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. Recollect that for all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction to all who use them.

They are sold by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

COURSE OF STUDY FOR Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, §5 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

1.—Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. First Year.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

To be Read.—Scripture History—Old Testament.—Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. Second Year.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

To be Read.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. Third Year.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

To be Read.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. 1. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. Fourth Year.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

To be Read.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. Harris, Secretary.

TESTIMONIALS.

The N. Y. Times says: "Waters' Orchestrion Chime Organ" is a beautiful little instrument, simply perfect. The Chime of two and one-half octave bells and the artistic effects capable of being produced by the player are singularly fine.

The tone is full, clear and resonant, and a very interesting effect is produced with the chime of bell.—Christian Union.

The Waters' Pianos are well known among the very best. We are enabled to speak of these instruments with confidence from personal knowledge.—N. Y. Evangelist.

We can speak of the merits of the Waters' Pianos from personal knowledge, as being of the very best quality.—Christian Intelligencer.

New Church Record.

We can now sell the "Record" at a price much less than we have ever been able to do. It is a large quarto, containing about 180 pages, divided into seven sections, namely:

Record of Pastors.
Record of Classes.
Record of Official Members.
Alphabetical Record of Full Members.
Record of Probationers.
Record of Baptisms.
Record of Marriages.

We are confident that this record will meet the demand long felt, namely, a cheap book, suitable for every of our churches. Price, $[illegible]

Herbert A. Clark, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

This University, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and [illegible] and the surroundings [illegible] attractive [illegible] The buildings consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory, with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The Class-Leader.

His Work, and How to Do It.
With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.
BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,
Author of "Garden of Sorrows."

12mo. $1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who means business. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class leader in the church, because it is just such a book as, by its illustrations and suggestions, will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

[illegible] from the verge of death's [illegible] hour, [illegible] bright landscape all bloom- [illegible] to beckon her ever, [illegible] pinions—she longed to [illegible]

ance as light makes manifest darkness. No man has the sense of ignorance until knowledge begins.

This cry, "Help Thou mine unbelief," reveals faith. Faith alone cries and strives against unbelief. Not understanding this, many Christians suffer needless alarm. Some dare not say, "Lord I believe," but pray with all earnestness, "Help Thou mine unbelief." Be of cheer. The work of the divine Spirit must, at least, have begun in your heart." There is a difference between the consciousness of faith and the act of faith. "No man's salvation depends on his believing that he believes; but it does depends on his seeing and receiving Jesus Christ as his Savior. More emphasis should be placed on the "Lord" and not so much on the "I."

This cry must be more than a desire to be delivered from the cold negations of intellectual unbelief. It must be a personal matter between the soul and the Savior. The man must yearn for help against his unbelief as towards Christ.

Faith is the life-long foe of unbelief. This real battle of the soul is a perpetual conflict. Growth cannot be, save through opposition. So it is in nature. Faith is not a mere leaning and resting of the soul on "the everlasting arms." It is the fighting force of the soul. It gives no truce or quarter. It is the foe of sense. True faith has to battle against the usurpation of reason. The Trinity, the incarnation, the redemption, are inexplicable to reason and sense. Both use the telescope, or the microscope, to add to the reach of their investigations, and yet are unwilling to accept the higher and more needful help of faith. Faith battles against the ingrained tendencies of the soul to evil. Paul cries out, "The things I would not, those do I." Unbelief magnifies these inward foes, both as to their might and their multitude, while faith opens the eyes of the soul, to behold how the mountains roundabout are "full of the horses and chariots of fire," and to see that [illegible] with us are more than [illegible] against [illegible] But the greatest [illegible] of the soul is self. Self would reign, and not serve. There are outward enemies of faith. The atmosphere is saturated with evil influences, silent, swift gravitations away from God and heaven. What urgent need that we pray, "Lord increase our faith."

We must match our cry with effort, or we do not pray. We should [illegible] our spirits for the mighty [illegible] not against flesh and blood, [illegible] all the conspiring forces [illegible] and sin. [illegible] God help us to make the [illegible] the text the honest utterance of our souls—"Lord, I believe, [illegible] mine unbelief."—Metro[illegible]

Fraternity.

[illegible] for the cultivation of Methodist fraternity [illegible] rules the hour. [illegible] Father, we [illegible] of a true [illegible] Christ [illegible] with all [illegible] however, be a [illegible] We lost it [illegible] placed [illegible] to [illegible] any other enterprise of the denomination.

Our Church is established in the South as it is in every other part of the country, and there by God's help we mean to stay. We not only have a mission there, we have a right to stay there and work there. The North is open to all. If all do not enter, it certainly is not because the way is barred or access denied.

Our work in behalf of the colored people is providentially appointed. We purpose to prosecute it as diligently as we may, and no true follower of Christ will hinder us. Christianity and patriotism compel us to do our utmost. The question of color and caste do not enter here, and are not recognized. "God hath made of one blood all nations of men." These are Christ's poor and they are our brethren. That is all we know or desire to know.

Our bishops, agents, editors, and secretaries are all to be equally trusted and respected. They are our representatives wherever they may be located. This may be the appropriate place to say that Bishop Haven, who seems to be specially identified with our Southern work, needs no defense at our hands. We have heard of no act connected with his administration of our affairs in the South which we do not most cordially indorse and approve. His eulogy over the murdered heroes of the Chisholm family has created responsive sympathies and convictions in all our hearts. A million and a half of approving hands and hearts are a sufficient "wall of defense" around Bishop Haven and his fellow-laborers. If fraternity does not include these men and these interests in its embrace, it includes none of us and nothing of us. We open our arms to receive all. We are one—one in heart, one in purpose. In this oneness we are received or not at all.

If one goes out from us into this Southland, and his eyes are "holden" that he does not see all these interests, charge not the blindness to any others of us. If in moments of "supreme gush" representative men in any instances have gone astray, they will recover from their error—never fear. We may be surprised and chagrined when now and then some good brother or some official, traveling or abiding in the South, fails to see the true Church in the little faithful flock which represents freedom and education and manhood for all, and fails to cast in his lot with that flock. And when we see such a procedure we can but exclaim, "For shame!"

But these are only spots in our unity, and flecks in our charity. We know all our fold. We claim all our factors. We maintain all our interests. And these do not—not one of them, in any place—antagonize fraternity. They are in perfect accord with it and promotive of it. We open all our hearts and extend all our hands to our Southern brethren. We might criticise, cavil, and condemn as they do. But we will not. We have not the time nor the inclination. Give us like measure. Let this true, all-comprehensive fraternity prevail, now and everywhere.—Western Christian Advocate.

Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C.

Dr. Rust, in the Western, gives an interesting account of the Commencement week at Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C.:

Gen. Wade Hampton, Governor of South Carolina, the State Superintendent of Education, Dr. [illegible], Bishop Haven, Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, Dr. Webster, Rev. M. Dunton, Dutton, Cardoza, Buckley, Hon. Mr. Elliott, and other eminent men on the platform.

The agricultural college of South [illegible] the State has been connected with the Claflin University for the past few [illegible] fact may be at[illegible] of Governor [illegible] followed with a pleasant reference to his residence in Georgia, and to the relations of his State Georgia to South Carolina. He spoke of the deep interest of our church in the South, and her efforts for the education and salvation of all the people. The remarks of the Bishop were full of deep solemnity and were listened to with almost breathless silence.

The orations and essays by the students were impressive and gave promise of able preachers and orators in the future. Noble sentiments in behalf of freedom and humanity thrilled the hearts of those present, and the grand old flag waved in triumph, as one of the speakers in words of beauty and tenderness described its magic power.

If Claflin University can be sustained and aid extended to the needy students that throng its halls, it will become a mighty power for God and Methodism, and millions of this poor people shall be assisted in their efforts to become good citizens of the State and useful members of Christ's church.

For the Freedwomen.

Dr. Edwards, of the Northwestern Advocate, Chicago, quotes our late editorial on Freedwomen, prefacing with the following timely remarks:

At three or four separated points of time we have heard of movements to carry the delivering gospel of both worlds into the homes of Southern freedmen. These people have public teaching from the pulpit and very many of their children are in schools, but a special want remains.

The unit of civilization is the home. Slavery buried a dagger into the bosom of this idea. The very colored man who was brought from the wilds of Africa had [illegible] of a home there than he had [illegible] he reached captivity and slavery in a "Christian" country. The slave trade was finally declared [illegible] but when a slave-ship slipped into a Southern port the poor [illegible] found that there was some American questions tougher than Calvin's. Even when the pulpit defended slavery poor Africans wandered in a quandary when he saw his home instincts trampled upon, and even his membership in the church did not give him clearer vision on the subject. We wonder that the entire race did not become infidel and a hater of a church that permitted and indorsed such outrage.

The freedman is an American fact which must be treated on its merits. No white man is more of a fact than is Africanus. If the latter has a home, he has wife and children to whom the white women of the land have a mission. The straggling thoughts, of which we made note at the opening of this article, deserve continued and continual stirring. If the freedman's home can be regenerated in certain social respects, the real enfranchisement of that people will be near to its consummation.

Mamie.

"I'll stand here and watch, doctor, to see that you go straight." So spake a child of five years to a gentleman at my gate in the city of New Orleans in 1871. He had called to see me about the dwelling of a sick man who had sent for him. Being away, my little niece met him, anticipated his inquiry by directing him thus: "Go straight ahead, [illegible] street, turn [illegible] gate, then [illegible] the second door."

Astonished at her words and manner, after looking at her tiny form and baby face a moment, he moved slowly away as directed. Strange and powerful feelings were stirred in his mind by her last words first above quoted—"I'll watch you go straight," he repeated over and over [illegible] he would always go straight; [illegible] know to his sorrow. Most excellent in his profession, he was [illegible] in appetite. Often the [illegible] allured him from the right way.

"Will she watch me? I wish she would; I might go straight all the [illegible]" he murmured, [illegible] angel as you to watch me all the time, I would always go straight.'

"Instantly on my coming home she told me this, word for word. Her command of language was wonderful, as was her exact perception of facts. "But, Uncle Lucious, what did the doctor mean, and why did he almost cry?"

The answer given to her question was a brief summary of the following facts: "He had been a member of the Presbyterian church, yet was frequently intoxicated, and sometimes almost a maniac, and on the verge of suicide. One day pistol in hand (or pocket), he left home determined to die, met a minister of one of our German churches, whom he addressed and told his purposes. Unable to address him in good English, he brought the doctor to my gate; within they knelt with us in prayer. That night he came forward to the altar for prayer after a full confession of his sins publicly. Afterward he joined the church, but always rejoiced with joy and trembling lest his enemy should conquer him at last."

Thus he stood when Mamie first met him at our gate. She stands now among the little ones with the Heavenly Father. What good angel watches him now I cannot tell. Perhaps it is Mamie.—Rev. L. C. Matlack, D. D., in S. S. Worker.

Conference of Switzerland and Germany.

Rev. L. Nippert writes from Zurich, Switzerland, under date of June 24:—"Last Thursday the Conference of Germany and Switzerland closed its twenty-third annual session at Basle, after looking very minutely into the different interests of our work in these lands. We had the pleasure to look back on a prosperous year, and the minutes show an increase of 500 members. Although the Conference found itself very much embarrassed for want of the necessary means to carry on and extend our mission, yet we have faith in God and the church, and look forward with the expectation that we shall be able to plant the standard of Methodism all over Germany and Switzerland. The session was a most pleasant and profitable one. Public services were largely attended. Bishop Bowman was among us in the spirit of his Master, and captivated the hearts of the preachers and people. On Sunday the Bishop preached to about 1,000 persons in the Music Hall; the congregation were edified and deeply affected by the sermon. Regarding our Bishops, we feel pretty much like the child who answered to the question whom it loved most, father or mother? 'I love them both most!' We thank God for the Methodist Episcopal Church."

"Come and See."

Wiser counsel than this would be impossible to conceive! If Philip had reproved Nathaniel's unbelief, he might have driven him back for many a day, and given offense. If he had reasoned with him, he might have failed to convince him, or might have confirmed him in his doubts. But by inviting him to probe the matter for himself, he showed his entire confidence in the truth of his own assertion, and his willingness to have it tested and proved. And the result shows the wisdom of Philip's words. Nathaniel owed his early acquaintance with Christ to that frank invitation, "Come and see."

If we call ourselves true Christians, let us never be afraid to deal with people about their souls as Philip dealt with Nathaniel. Let us invite them boldly to make proof of our religion. Let us tell them confidently that they cannot know its real value until they have tried it. Let us assure them that vital Christianity courts every possible inquiry. It has no secrets. It has nothing to conceal. Its faith and practice are spoken against just because they are not known. Its enemies speak evil of things with which they are not acquainted. They understand neither what they say nor whereof they affirm. Philip's mode of dealing, we may be sure, is one principal way to do good. Few are ever moved by reasoning and argument. Still fewer are frightened into repentance. The man who does most good to souls is often the simple believer who says to his friends, "I have found a Savior; come and see him."—Ryle.

It Don't Pay.

It don't pay to have fifty working men poor and ragged in order to have one saloon-keeper dress in broadcloth, and flush be of money.

It don't pay to have these fifty workingmen live on bone-soup and half-rations, in order that the saloon-keeper may flourish on roast turkey and champagne.

It don't pay to have the mothers and children of twenty families dressed in rags, and starved into the semblance of emaciated scarecrows and living in hovels, in order that the saloon-keeper's wife may dress in satin, and her children grow fat and hearty, and live in a bay-window parlor.

It don't pay to have one citizen in the county jail because another citizen sold him liquor.

It don't pay to have ten smart, active, and intelligent boys transformed into hoodlums and thieves, to enable one man to lead an easy life by selling them liquor.

It don't pay to have one thousand homes blasted, ruined, defiled, and turned into hells of disorder and misery, in order that one wholesale liquor dealer may amass a large fortune.

It don't pay to keep six thousand men in the penitentiaries and hospitals, and one thousand in the lunatic asylum, at the expense of the honest, industrious tax-payers, in order that a few rich capitalists may grow richer by the manufacture of whisky.

It never pays to do wrong; your sin will find you out. Whether others find it out or not, the sin knows where you are, and will always keep you posted of the fact. It don't pay.

A saloon-keeper sold a drinking man one pint of new rum, making fifteen cents clear profit. The man under the influence of that pint of rum, killed his son-in-law; his apprehension, confinement in jail, execution, etc., cost the county more than one thousand dollars, which temperance men had to earn by the sweat of their brows. It don't pay.

The loss sustained by society, morally and financially, the sorrow and suffering, the misery and destitution produced and augmented, and what is infinitely a greater consideration than all else, the destruction of soul and body, the inevitable result of using or trafficking in intoxicating liquors, these all attest the truthfulness of the verdict, it don't pay.

An Elephant's Revenge.

Elephants have so much sympathy with depraved human nature as to think with Byron, "Sweet is revenge." An anecdote of an elephant's revenge, translated from the French, is published in the Christian Union.

Upon one of the plantations was an English overseer named Bennett, an exceedingly cross and disagreeable man who was employed by the master because of his great capability in directing affairs. Upon the plantation was an elephant named Dourga, that Bennett greatly disliked, and upon whom he often played mean tricks.

His employer, after reproving him several times for his unkindness to the animal, warned him that if he carried his tricks too far, Dourga would pay him back with interest. Finally the time came when Dourga's patience was tried beyond endurance.

He was in the habit of receiving every morning from his driver a huge corn-cake covered with molasses, of which he was very fond. One morning, as this cake was being carried to him on a bamboo hurdle, Bennett, who was passing with a pot full of red pimento, threw it upon the cake, and then stopped to watch and mimic the grimaces made by the elephant when he swallowed it.

The result was easy to see. The poor animal, his mouth on fire, passed the day in a marsh trying to calm the thirst that was devouring him, and to appease the inflamation produced by the fiery dose he had swallowed.

When evening came, the hour when Bennett brought the coolies from work, the elephant pounced upon him, picked him up with his trunk and pitched him headlong in a large reservoir or pond of water, which was thirty or forty feet deep.

Bennett, who knew how to swim, quickly swam to the edge. Dourga allowed him to climb up the bank, when he picked him up again as if he had been a wisp of straw, and threw him back in the water.

This was repeated as many times as Bennett attempted to escape, until he was compelled to remain in the water, keeping his head up as well as he could.

The affair would have ended with sure drowning for Bennett if one of the coolies had not come to his rescue and forced Dourga away.

The poor elephant never forgot the injury done him, and rarely allowed an opportunity to escape to still further revenge himself upon the overseer.

Sometimes he would throw a paw full of sand slap in Bennett's face; again it would be a spout of water thrown over him; at another time he would be pitched into a cactus bush from which he would scarcely get out alive, so horribly scratched would he be.

It was impossible to correct Dourga and make him behave. The upshot of the whole affair was that Bennett was obliged to leave the plantation, which was not large enough for him and Dourga, together, and his employer valued the elephant more than he did his overseer.

Fun with a Spider.

Spiders in many respects are just like other animals, one can be tamed and petted and taught a great many lessons which they will learn as readily as a dog or cat. But you must take the trouble to study their ways and get on the good side of them.

One day I had been reading in a book how spiders managed to get their webs across streams and roads and from the top of one tall tree to another. I went out and caught a large garden spider, one of those blue-gray sprawling fellows, and fixed him up for my experiment.

I took a stick about eighteen inches in length and fasted a piece of iron to one end of it so that the stick would stand up on that end of itself. Then I put this stick in the center of a large tub half full of water, and placed the spider on top of the stick. I wanted to see if he could get to the "land," which was the edge of the tub, without any help. He ran down first one side of the stick and then the other. Each time he would stop when he touched the water, and shaking his feet as a cat does, he would run up again. At last he came to the conclusion that he was entirely surrounded by water—on an island in fact. After remaining perfectly quiet for a long time, during which I have no doubt he was arranging his plans, he began running around the top of the stick and throwing out great coils of web with his hind feet. In a few minutes, little strings of web were floating away in the slight breeze that was blowing. After a little, one of these threads touched the edge of the tub and stuck fast, as all spider-webs will. This was just what Mr. Spider was looking for, and the next minute he took hold of this web and gave it a jerk as a sailor does a rope, when he wishes to see how strong it is, or make it fast.

Having satisfied himself that it was fast at the other end, he gathered it in till it was tight and straight, and then ran on it quickly to the shore; a rescued castaway, saved by his own ingenuity. Spiders are not fools, if they are ugly, and he who made all things has a thought and care for all. The earth is full of the knowledge of God.—Congregationalist.

Things God Freely Gives Us.

The Lord loves to give good things to his children. He has given his only begotten Son to redeem us. He has given his Holy Spirit to sanctify us. He has given his sacred Scriptures to instruct us. He has given all things necessary to a goodly life. He gave us grace in Christ, before the world began; he sent us his gracious promises by Christ; and he has promised to give us every good and perfect gift through Christ. We may look around on creation, and we may look into the world of grace, and say, "All things are ours. Whether Paul, or Apollos, Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are ours, and we are Christ's, and Christ is God's." We had no claim upon God for one single good thing, but in the infinite riches of his sovereign grace he has freely given us all things. All things to use; nothing to abuse. All things that we can turn to a good account now, and everything that he has promised or provided we shall possess in fullness by-and-by.

A remarkable statement occurs in a report by one of the Government naturalists on the injurious insects of the West, namely: that in the United States the loss of agricultural products through the ravages of insects amounts to probably "more than $200,000,000 each year, and that from one-quarter to one-half this sum might be saved be preventive measures."

Asheville (N. C.) Citizen: Our special correspondent on the spot telegraphs us that, for the past few days, Bald mountain has been in a high state of excitement and uproar. Two days ago some parties visited the side which has split, and discovered the opening to be wider, and on looking close, saw the entrance to a large and unfathomable cave. It is now a settled fact that the whole mountain is hollow. Parties are organizing for a thorough exploration. Visitors are flocking daily to witness the extraordinary phenomenon.

During the twelve months ending June 30, 1878, issue of ordinary postage stamps by the Postoffice Department amounted to $19,468,618 as against $18,181,676 the preceding year. Issues of newspaper stamps increased from $1,000,005 to $1,093,845, the issue of stamped envelopes and wrappers from $4,616,932 to $4,905,774, and the issue of postal cards from about 170,000,000 to 290,063,000. Total amount of increase in issues for sale to the public was $1,975,169, or [illegible] per cent. as compared with the previous year.

[illegible] South [illegible] District [illegible] includes [illegible] appointments, which have twenty-two preaching places. Eight of the sixteen appointments and eleven of the churches are in this city. Our remaining seven churches in this city are in the North New Orleans District. We have just completed the second quarterly visitation of our District, and in justice to the pastors and their work we make the following notes:

Ames Church, New Orleans, Rev. J. H. McCarty, D.D., pastor, holds its own in the midst of the hard times financially. Many of its supporters have lost their positions and are without employment. A debt of $5,000 burdens the church. The pastor is laboring well and efficiently, and plans now in course of execution promise success. A series of Murphy Temperance meetings have been held lately on Sunday evenings, which have been largely attended and productive of much good. The Sunday-school, under the Superintendency of Mr. Shute, is one of the very best in the city. New Orleans is a Roman Catholic city, and the difficulties met in building Protestant churches are very great. Ames makes an excellent showing when compared with the average Protestant churches of the city. The present membership is 125.

First Street, New Orleans, Rev. Henry Green, pastor, is a church of 394 members and over 100 probationers, is self-sustaining, and has a church property worth $8,200 and no debts. Money is now being raised to build a parsonage. The choir has lately bought a splendid organ, and with the new Hymnal gives music that is in every way creditable. The Sunday-school is large and well organized under the direction of Brother Campbell. The pastor is one of our old men, and by his success proves that old men are not only good for counsel, but also for war.

Sixth Street, New Orleans, Rev. Wm. Smith, pastor. This congregation has had a hard struggle for years, but under the leadership of Brother Henry Green last year made a good beginning toward buying property. It is expected that some purchase will be made. Bro. Lewis, a local elder, co-operates heartily with Bro. Smith. There is [illegible] Sunday-school, and a membership of 108.

A Commercial Convention.

A committee of forty leading merchants and citizens, representing the Chamber of Commerce, Cotton Exchange, and the city of New Orleans, met on the 17th inst. and resolved to call a great national and international council and river convention, to assemble in this city on the 19th of November next. Representatives are to be invited from all the cities and towns interested in the extension and development of the export trade of the country, the establishment of steamship lines, improvement of navigation of the Mississippi River and its tributaries, and the construction of a Southern Pacific Railway. The South American States and Mexico will be invited to send delegates. General Cyrus Bussey, President of the Chamber of Commerce, was elected President of the permanent committee, with A. H. May and Duncan F. Kenn, Vice Presidents. Numerous sub-committees were appointed to make suitable arrangements for the meeting of the convention.

Certainly one Fool yet Lives.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate, Southern Methodist, of July 10th, publishes a "theological" article, from J. M. Wright, which closes as follows:

The white race alone are the descendants of Adam and Eve. The Scriptures teach clearly this history. All the prophets confirm this view, and that the white race will be ultimately saved in the resurrection; and why, because they worship God and trust in Him for eternal life.

The black and yellow races are, as races, idolatrous, don't worship and trust in God as the white races do, consequently they all cannot be saved in the last day; while, therefore, universal salvation is free to the whole white race for what they do, it is not free to the black and yellow races, because they refuse God, and put their trust in idols and the spirits of departed friends and heroes for eternal life, instead of a trust in God; and from this arises the whole missionary system with the white races, and their many good works to save idolaters and prevent its influence among their own people.

I am perfectly confounded at the proceedings of our last General Conference. A great ecumenical conference for all Methodists—Negroes, Chinese, Indians, etc., etc. This is one of the greatest errors the Church ever made; it is sure to end in another revolution. The Bible so teaches. Another item of its proceedings: "There never has been any difference between the Northern M. E., and the Southern M. E. Churches only in name." In the name of God, were the South M. E. spies for the North M. E. during the war? All abolitionists working together. Poor local preachers—nothing good for them—a chance to be a licentiate for life.

I am done; never will return to the Church any more; I can never be an abolitionist; the Word of God forbids that I should be.

Lord Beaconsfield's Triumph.

We spoke last week of the results of the Berlin Conference in which England gained through Lord Beaconsfield's diplomacy a great victory. We spoke simply of the fact of the victory but not of the tricks resorted to to gain it. The Nation thus describes the duplicity of Beaconsfield:

"As we pointed out last week, the cause of this controversy, which was put forward after Lord Derby's retirement from the Cabinet, was the attempt of Russia to settle the fate of Turkey, or, indeed, to regulate her relations with Turkey and the condition of the Christian population, separate and apart from the other signatories of the treaty of Paris. The working of the [illegible] San Stefano was, in fact, pronounced objectionable mainly [illegible] it was a violation of the public law of Europe and made the [illegible] of one Power over Turkey paramount, to the exclusion of the proper and legitimate influence of the others. It seems scarcely [illegible] but is nevertheless true, [illegible] Lord Beaconsfield, [illegible] neither shame nor [illegible] point was to be [illegible] Lord Salisbury, while [illegible] of preaching this [illegible] the 30th of May [illegible] with Russia, [illegible] of [illegible] of England [illegible] So that Lord Beaconsfield actually appeared at the Congress as the defender of the 'public law of Europe' with two secret treaties in his pocket, by one of which he conspired with Russia to deprive Turkey of her territory in Europe, and by the other of which he conspired with Turkey to withdraw her completely from the influence of every power but England. What is worse still, his followers, who were cast down by the discovery of his trick, have produced the second as an atonement for it, and chuckle over it as his last and greatest card. We do not think it any exaggeration to say that tortuous and dark as the ways of despotic diplomacy are said to be, nothing can be produced from them within the present century quite equal in duplicity to this performance of the representatives of a constitutional government acting under responsibility to a Parliament and under the criticisms of a free press."

The July number of the Methodist Quarterly Review has just reached us. The contents are as follows: The Doctrines and Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, by Chancellor E. O. Haven; Mysticism, by Prof. J. R. Latimer; Schleimann's Trojan Researches, by Professor H. D. Baird; Case and his Contemporaries, by Rev. Edw. Barrass; Egyptian Chronology, II, by Professor James Strong; Bible Wines, by Professor F. D. Hemenway; Tyerman's Life of Whitfield, by Rev. J. I. Boswell; and The "Atonement" of the Early Church No Price Paid to Satan, by Prof. H. C. Sheldon. There are also thirty-one pages devoted to "synopsis of the Quarterlies;" Foreign Religious Intelligence; Foreign Literary Intelligence, and the quarterly Book Table. The heat of Summer does not seem to decrease the vigor of Dr. Whedon's pages. The number is not surpassed by past issues.

The recent heat wave which passed over the Northwestern States and portions of Canada was of unprecedented intensity. From all parts of that vast territory come accounts of prostrations and deaths from the great heat. St. Louis and Chicago suffered most. In the former city one hundred and 45 deaths from this cause were reported in one week, and some two thousand persons under medical treatment. The thermometer ranged from 95 at midnight to 105 at midday in the shade, and from 35 to 40 degrees hotter in the sun. Business was suspended, the street cars in many instances were stopped by the horses falling dead in the streets. All nationalities seemed to suffer alike except the Chinese—no Chinaman was reported as overcome with the heat. But a great percentage of the victims were dissipated persons—drunkards, and the habitual users of beer and strong drinks.

The Methodist Advocate says: Bishop Haven has a stronger hold upon the white people of Georgia and the South than ever before. He has recently made several trips to the country and preached to white congregations in Georgia, Tennessee, and North Carolina. On all of these occasions he has made numerous acquaintances and friends. The people have been delighted with his administrations and personal acquaintance. The studied effort of the General Conference to prevent him from having access to the people is operating quite differently from from what they expected. All will see before long that hatred and opposition to him have their origin in fear of his influence. In appealing directly to the people, regardless of the leaders, he finds cordial welcome and ample backing.

The Central of July 17, says: "Bishop Simpson and family were in St. Louis two days of last week, guests of Benj. Horton, Esq. They left on Friday morning expecting to spend Sunday at Emporia, and thence via Pueblo to Denver Colorado. It was the Bishop's first thought to visit New Mexico before the session of the Colorado Conference, but the visit is postponed till he returns from the Nevada Conference. His conferences in the West are Colorado, at Golden, August 7; Utah, at Ogden, Aug. 22; Southern California, at San Buena Ventura, Sep. 5; Nevada, at Truckee, Sept. 19.

The New Orleans Democrat thinks the opposition to the Democratic party in this State is coming to be very formidable. It thinks the only hope of that party continuing in power is a living, absorbing question, such for example, as the election of delegates to a convention to frame a new constitution. The [illegible] believes [illegible] Legislature [illegible] and [illegible] the control of the State. [illegible] Democratic State Convention meets soon in Baton Rouge and no doubt the question of a constitutional convention will be a chief question.

The New York Advocate of July 11, says: "Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent returned from his European visit on Friday last. During his absence of eight weeks he did much sight-seeing in England, France, Belgium, Germany, and Switzerland, but omitted his proposed visit to Rome because of the heat of the season, which made it unsafe to hold in midsummer the proposed Sunday-school Congress. Dr. Vincent held, however, a Methodist Episcopal Sunday-school Congress (the eighth of the series which he has held) in the city of Basle, Switzerland, Bishop Bowman presiding."

A correspondent of the Methodist referring to the illness of Bishop Ames says: "The Bishop is emaciated, and his sufferings are very acute. He is kept very quiet. Two weeks ago he assisted at a church service near Baltimore, and from that time he has been steadily growing weaker. His brethren and friends have extended to him evidences of their profound sympathy, and his recovery was invoked publicly in the prayers of the pastors on Sunday, July 7."

In regard to the New Hymnal with Tunes, Zion's Herald says: "The important thing to be done, is, at once to organize a series of praise meetings under a proper leader, to learn its tunes and to become familiar with the hymns. The authorized book will never take the place of others unless some such effectual and reasonable step is taken. Good singing will not come by accident."

The eclipse of the sun on the 29th inst. will be total from Irkoutsk, Siberia, through the western part of the British possessions, Denver, Colorado, and northern and eastern Texas, entering the Gulf of Mexico to disappear a little southeast of San Domingo. The exhibition will be visible as a partial eclipse over all the United States, Mexico and British America that afternoon.

There have been many examples of the saying of the Apostle, "Love never faileth," said Rev. Daniel De Vinnie in a recent address in New York. "I am now eighty-seven years old, and my memory fails me in many things, but I love God as intensely as I ever did."

Dr. Revels, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Richmond, Indiana, who was stricken with paralysis of the brain some time since, is lying very low, and his friends have not much hope of his recovery.

General News Items.

Washington, July 18.—The superintendent of the mounted recruiting service has been ordered to forward to Fort Garland, Colorado, for assignment to the Ninth Cavalry all available colored recruits.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 21.—Secretary Schurz having been informed that the Mormons have sold arms and ammunition to the Indians in Idaho, ascertained that the co-operative stores at Logan, Ogden and other northern stations have been supplying the Bannock Indians.

Galveston, July 20.—A News special from Round Rock says: A squad of Lieut. Reynold's men, State troops, captured Sam Bass, about seven miles from here, this morning. Bass was badly wounded.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 19.—The Republican Convention in the First District, which met at Monticello yesterday, nominated S. B. Conover, the present Senator, for Congress on the third ballot. Resolutions indorsing Hayes' Southern policy and Conover's course in the Senate were adopted.

Washington, July 18.—Such arrangements have been made by the Treasury Department that the standard silver dollar may now be had at any sub-treasury or depository in the United States for greenbacks. This is even the case in New York, Baltimore and other points where such disposition of the dollar had been stopped, owing to the fact that customs duty was paid in them to avoid the gold premium.

Brooklyn, July 20.—The reported cases of yellow fever from the receiving ship Vermont are admitted by the Board of Health to have been genuine. No new cases were reported since Monday until late last evening when two more of the men belonging to the Vermont were taken sick with the malady. Of the six cases already reported three have proved fatal, and the remaining patients are convalescent and, it is believed will recover.

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—At 4.10 p.m. to-day a cyclone struck the southern part of this city, known as [illegible] Albany, carrying destruction before it. The damage to houses in the vicinity was alarming, two of them being blown down. [illegible] were [illegible] but [illegible] narrow escapes occurred. The cyclone came from the south, passing over [illegible] a quarter of a mile, and lasted about one minute and a half. The damage is estimated at $1,000,000.

London, July 20.—Hot weather prevails here and on the Continent. The heat is very severe in Paris, and in some parts of the Exposition building the heat is unendurable.

Washington, July 19.—Information has been received at the Treasury Department, through the Department of State, that the Japanese trade dollar of 420 grains, fineness 9.10, has been made a legal tender throughout Japan, and the charge for coining the same at the Imperial mint has been reduced from 1½ to 1 per cent. This establishes the double or bi-metalic standard in the Japanese Empire, on the relative valuation of 16 28 100 to 1. The tendency of this will, as long as the price of silver remains below 58 pence, be to increase the circulation of silver to the exclusion of gold. It will also open a new market for the silver produced on the Pacific coast.

Washington, July 21.—The transportation of specie from one point to another under the near approach to specie resumption, becomes a question for consideration. Heretofore express companies have been relied upon, but their charges, while perhaps not extravagant, have necessarily aggregated large sums. On Saturday morning Secretary Sherman notified the Postmaster General that he proposed to avail himself of the facilities of the postal system and send his coin by mail as third class matter, postage on which is one cent per ounce, packages being limited to four pounds. This would make the cost of four pounds of gold (about $1000) sixty-four cents, where the expressage would be from $5 to $10. Of course any number of four pound packages could be made up. The Postoffice Department would prefer to have coin sent, as it sends its own stationery, envelopes and postal cards, in registered packages, but this would, without any actual increase of expense, make it appear much greater as letter postage.

The colored Baptists of Kentucky are making an effort to establish in Louisville an institution for the education of colored Baptist preachers. The colored Baptists of Alabama have also bought the Selma Fair Grounds, on which they intend to establish a Theological Institute for the education of colored Baptist ministers.

A "mass-meeting of Christians at Philadelphia and vicinity," held last week, Bishop Simpson presiding, passed resolutions calling on the Mayor to enforce the law of 1794, which binds individuals, societies and corporations to abstain from worldly business upon the first day of the week, and imposes a penalty upon any person who shall "do or perform any worldly employment or business whatsoever on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, works of necessity and charity only excepted."

Among the legacies bequeathed by Mrs. Mary A. Lapsley, of New Albany, Ind., are the following: Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, $20,000; Board of Foreign Missions of United States of America, $10,000; American Bible Society, $10,000; Trustees of General Assembly of Presbyterian church of the United States, in trust for the Ministerial Relief Fund, $10,000; Board of Foreign Missions in trust for Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, $5,000; Trustees of Hanover College at South Hanover, Indiana, $20,000; American Tract Society, $4,000; President and Fellows of Yale College for Silliman's Fellowship, $5,000. From Our Mission Rooms.

The first session of the Foo Chow Annual Conference of the M. E. Church was held at Foo Chow, December 20-25, 1877. This Conference sets up for itself with 776 probationers, 1,235 members and $50,000 worth of property. It [illegible] its crutches as good only for five years, expressing its "opinion" that nearly all the circuits in the older work ought to be able to fully support their own preachers in five years from this time. It provides parliamentary aid to secure this end by (1) recommending that missionary money be not paid to the preacher but to the stewards as supplemental to whatever they can do, and to be administered by the stewards; and (2) by laying down the "rule" that the amount appropriated to any circuit should gradually diminish from year to year and [illegible] entirely within a limited period.

The new conference puts itself right on the subject of the opium curse, the abolishment of which the Chinese think would be better than the establishment of 10,000 hospitals and preaching halls. We note several things that any previous reports of the Conference failed to impress us with. There were one American and two Chinese Secretaries of the Conference, and the thoroughly indigenous character of the work is shown by the fact that the whole five districts are manned by Chinese presiding elders. It was decided to print in the Annual Register the obituaries of those of our preachers and their wives who have died and left a good testimony. "I should not die happy away from my post," is amongst the latest utterance of Ling Ching Ting, a member of the Indiana Conference, who died at Teng-tiong in the Fookeen Province, China, May 19, 1877, and whose memoir is given in these "Minutes." He was ordained by Bishop Kingsley in 1859. On hearing of the Bishop's death, he wept like a child. He endured "trials of cruel mockings and scourgings; yea moreover of bonds and imprisonments." Six students are reported as having been received into the theological school. A committee of seven boys, representing the Ching Sing Tong Sunday-school with the cards of all the scholars, was announced as desirous of waiting on the Bishop with their salutation and were introduced to him in conference, and the Bishop addressed them very fittingly.

The next conference is to meet in Tiengang Tong, Foochow, Oct. 10, 1878. A committee was appointed to form an anti-opium society, and sent their salutations to the anti-opium secretary at Canton and to the Anglo-Oriental Society for the suppression of the opium trade, which demands (1) that the British Government of India shall not encourage and promote the opium trade; (2) that all coercion shall be withdrawn from China, and thus the government of China shall be left absolutely free to prohibit the entrance of opium altogether, or to lay upon it what taxes it pleases. In these propositions and purposes the Foochow Conference wished at its first session to pledge its sympathy, support and practical co-operation.

Pittsburgh Female College Commencement.

This ably managed and successful Ladies School, under the Presidency of Rev. Dr. I. C. Pershing, closed the year under the most prosperous circumstances. Commencement week was a joyous week, and from beginning to the end was a triumph.

Opening with a rigid examination of nearly four days, the interest was greatly enhanced by the contests for prizes. The higher classes, besides the seniors, were generally examined by experts and professionals, who had no personal interests to subserve. Among the chief contests was the "Mrs. Bishop Simpson" prize, in Mathematics. Then the "Holmes Latin" prize, and one for proficiency in analogy.

The chief public entertainments in the evenings, as usual, were crowded with the best people in the city in and out of the church. The opening was the Music Contest, a feature of Commencement week for many years. The contest was for the "Thomas McKee" prize, a superb golden medal. Next in importance was the reading contest, with some the feast, because of the exquisite music which is interwoven with the readings. This was the "Mrs. Margaret Davidson" prize, a silver cup. There were ten contestants, and the judges were so puzzled, that after awarding the cup to Miss Helen R. Pershing, the youngest daughter of Dr. Pershing, they had to duplicate the prize for another—Miss Butcher. We name in this connection the Annual Address, by Mrs. Mattie M. C. Brown, on "Character Building." She was an old graduate of the College, and was for years an editor, and now a popular lecturer. Rev. Dr. C. E. Felton, pastor of Christ Church, delivered the Baccalaureate sermon, in fine style.

Commencement week hinged for excellence on the graduating performances. The class was larger than usual (10) and a very promising one, namely: Sallie W. Wilson, Ella Canfield, Conie Baird, Annie E. Amos, Mary E. Murray, Sadie Poppino, Laura Reddick, Annie Poppino, Sadie M. Wilkinson, Mary G. Unger. The address to the graduates by Rev. Dr. S. F. Scovel, a Presbyterian pastor, was in fine taste and abounded with practical sense.

For many years this College has occupied a high place. Graduation has been made difficult, and for this reason of the large number that start towards the goal, some fail to reach the standard. If students could smuggle through no doubt the graduating classes would be larger.

The musical education, secured through the Conservatory of Music, in connection with the College, is unsurpassed and has scarcely a rival. With a large and able faculty, well trained and experienced, pupils enjoy special advantages. For the purpose of enjoying greater results the College instruction is divided into eight departments, with special teachers for each.

The expensive and spacious buildings of the most approved modern finish, elegantly furnished and equipped, no doubt has something to do with its prosperity. The room and table comforts are all that one could desire, and no better evidence of the fact than that there was no complaint last year. The location, healthfulness of the city, and and its accessibility renders it a desirable place.

The ample provision for the ornamental branches and French and German, in connection with the more solid branches, is all that could be desired.

Fall sessions begins September 4th. Write to Rev. Dr. I. C. Pershing, Pittsburgh, Pa., for particulars.

A Southern Educational Convention.

We are glad to announce that there will be a Convention of the Educators of the Southern States held at Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 6, 7, and 8, 1878. The purpose is to organize a Southern Educational Association. The programme includes the discussion of many important topics by well known educators. The invitation to attend is as follows:

Prof. H. D. Wyatt, Superintendent of the City Schools, Chattanooga, writes, that hotels will entertain at reduced rates, and that arrangements will be made for the accommodation of a large delegation.

All persons, east, west, north and south, who are in favor of a broad system of free schools, and who are opposed to ignorance and crime, are urgently called upon to summon every effort within their power to make this the largest and most important educational gathering that ever assembled in the South."

"We must educate or we must perish."

Germany and Switzerland Conference.

Bishop Bowman writes from Basle, Switzerland, June 20th: "The Germany and Switzerland Conference has just closed a harmonious and pleasant session in this place, and as many of your readers are interested in the preachers, I herewith send the appointments for the next year. The brethren, with one or two exceptions, were all at Basle in good health. One only (brother Huegel) had died. The last year has been apparently a good one. There has been an increase of four hundred and forty in the membership. Several new preaching-places have been taken up, and many more could be if they had the men and the money needed to send them. There have been nine new chapels built and four parsonages. There has been a slight falling off in the missionary, tract, and Sunday-school collections; in all other respects advances have been made. The people are poor at best, and are now suffering with the general depression in business. Many cases were mentioned where families for months had no money in their houses. The preachers cannot afford to keep horses, and hence these large circuits have to be traveled by them on foot. When asked how far apart their appointments are, they generally answer, "So many hour's walk." They also meet with great opposition from the State Churches. In some places their lives are in danger. Just a few weeks before Conference one young brother was thrown into a well, and left for dead, by a band of ruffians, but was saved by some friends. And yet with all this discouragement, the members of the Conference were cheerful and happy, and went to their work with strong faith and hope. Our work in these regions is full in all departments of Church life, and if we had done nothing more than stir up the dead Churches to greater activity and zeal, we should be amply repaid for all labor and money expended."

Eight preachers were received on trial. Two were admitted into full connection. Five preachers were ordained deacons, and seven were ordained elders. None were returned [illegible] superannuated. One located. One had died during the year. The official returns give the following summaries:

[illegible] (1: 3)—Christ was a [illegible]. "The people [illegible] hear the Word of God." He was unpopular only with the scribes and Pharisees. Almost always the common people heard him gladly." The multitude more eager to hear the preacher than careful of his comfort, pressed him to the very verge of the shore. Seeing the empty fishing smacks, [illegible] which [illegible] inside of a convenient [illegible] could not be crowded, was one that could not be passed by. [illegible]. The boat was Simon's. [illegible] "Fear not, from hence [illegible] shalt catch men." It was an assurance not only that, sinful as he was, he would be tolerated, but also that he would be employed in Christ's service. He had felt too sinful to have Jesus stay with him—Jesus did not consider him too far beneath his notice to make him a helper in his work. He was not only to be saved himself, but, also, was to help others. He set before him no life of indolence. He had come upon them as busy men. Had they been idlers he never would have called them. When God wanted Moses he was tending the flock of his father-in-law; when he wanted Gideon he found him threshing wheat by a winepress; he took David from following the sheep; when Elisha was called he was in the field behind twelve yoke of oxen. It would have been contrary to all his previous acts if he had taken his disciples from the ranks of those who have nothing to do. Lazy men now are the very last ones to be touched by a revival. [illegible] having found them busy, he [illegible] to keep them so. He exalted their calling instead of taking away their occupation. Fishers of men hereafter—instead of catchers of fish.

A New Church at Mason, Texas.

ments of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal, and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

*The 12mo size may be delayed a few days.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

COURSE OF STUDY FOR Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, § 6 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I.—Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. FIRST YEAR.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—Old Testament.—Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. 1. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.
2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.
3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

A young man was in the employ of a large commission firm in New York City during the late Civil War.

The firm sent the young man to negotiate with a certain party for a large lot of damaged beans. The beans were purchased, delivered, and spread out upon the floor of the building occupied by the firm.

Men were employed to turn them over and over, to sprinkle them with a solution of soda, so as to improve their appearance and render them more salable. A large lot of the first quality of beans was then purchased; some of the good beans were first put into the barrels, then the barrels were nearly filled with the poor ones; after this the good ones again put on the top, and the barrels headed up for sale.

The employer marked the barrels, "Beans—A I." The clerk, seeing this, said:

"Do you think, sir, that it is right to mark those beans 'A 1'?"

The employer retorted, sharply: "Are you the head of this firm?"

The clerk said no more. The barreling and heading went on. When all was ready, the beans (many hundreds of barrels) were put on the market for sale. Specimens of the best quality were shown in the office to buyers.

At length a shrewd purchaser came in (no man so sharp in business but he will often meet his equal) examined the sample in the office, inquired the price and then wished to see the stock in bulk. The clerk was ordered to go with the buyer to the upper loft and show him the stock.

An open barrel was shown, apparently of the same quality of the sample. The buyer then said to the clerk:

"Young man, the samples of beans shown me are of the first quality, and it is impossible to purchase such beans anywhere in the market for the price at which you offer them; there is something wrong here. Tell me, are these beans the same quality throughout the entire barrel as they appear on top?"

The clerk now found himself in a strange position. He thought:

"Shall I lie for my employer as he undoubtedly means I shall, or shall [illegible] the truth, come what will?"

He decided on the truth and said: "[illegible] sir, they are not."

"[illegible]" said the customer, "I do [illegible] want them," and he left.

[illegible] clerk entered the office. The employer said to him:

"[illegible] you sell that man those [illegible]?"

[illegible] said: "No, sir."

"[illegible] not?"

"[illegible] sir, the man asked me if [illegible] were of the same quality [illegible] the entire barrel as they [illegible] top. I told him they [illegible]. He then said, 'I do not [illegible],' and left."

Send for Circular. The Tube, with full directions, postpaid. Sent on receipt of $3.50, or call at his residence, Passaic, N. J.

The Rev. N. N. BEERS, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y., writes:

It is now nearly thirty years since I commenced the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's can possibly be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

The Rev. B. M. ADAMS, of the N. Y. East M. E. Conference, says:

I thank the Lord that I ever saw you. The Inhaling Tube I obtained of you almost twenty years ago has been a wonderful blessing to me, and I am glad, through my recommendation, to many. I think Schureman Halsted's life was lengthened years by it. His chest enlarged, although he was over fifty years old when he commenced using it and he led the Lord's battles with a shout long after the doctors told him he must stop. Many other dear friends of mine have had their lives lengthened by its use.

From Rev. J. H. VINCENT, D.D., of the Sunday-school Publications of the Church.

I have used your Tube at times for several years, and have unbounded faith in its philosophy. may2'78-tf

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks [illegible] one who means business. He is [illegible] critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader [illegible] the rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. You will begin it without finishing it, and [illegible] will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

[illegible] is a book that we would be glad to [illegible] go into the hands of every class-leader [illegible], because it is just such a book [illegible] its illustrations and suggestions will [illegible] very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

DOCTOR PIERCE'S

THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD.

In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above directed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

INVALIDS' HOTEL.

The very large number of invalid people who daily visit Buffalo, from every quarter of the United States and Canada, that they may consult Dr. R. V. PIERCE, and the widely celebrated Faculty of Specialists in Medicine and Surgery associated with him, rendered it necessary that the founder of this institution should provide a place on a grand and commodious scale for their entertainment and comfort.

ADVANTAGES OFFERED.—The Invalids' Hotel is more complete in its appointments than any similar institution in the world. The building is located in one of the most healthful and desirable portions of the City of Buffalo, and commands a fine view of Lake Erie, Niagara River, and the surrounding country, being situated in the midst of an extensive system of beautiful parks. The Hotel is furnished with a patent safety passenger elevator, to convey patients to and from the different floors, is provided with all kinds of approved baths, and has also connected with it a well-appointed gymnasium and bowling alley to afford proper amount of exercise.

CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms, whether requiring medical, surgical, or mechanical treatment, come within the province of our several specialties.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are the facilities of this infirmary of a superior order as regards the remedial means and appliances for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females. The employment, in moderation, of tonic, chemical, electro-thermal, and other approved baths, is in many cases an invaluable auxiliary to the remedial means to which we resort in such cases. Dry frictions to the surface, general shampooing, Swedish movements, and light calisthenic exercises, to enliven and equalize the circulation of the blood in the system, relieve congested parts, improve digestion, and strengthen the muscles, produce important beneficial results in all cases to which these means are applicable. No experimenting is resorted to in the treatment. The most approved medicines are carefully employed, and the judicious regulation of the diet, to suit the condition of the patient, the thorough ventilation of the sleeping apartment, the cheering influence of music, social intercourse, innocent games for amusement, and all those agencies which tend to arouse the mind of the patient from despondency, and thus promote recovery, are not neglected.

NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty, by which the greatest skill is attained and the most happy results secured.

LUNG DISEASES.—This division of the practice in the Invalids' Hotel is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases are very largely treated in this department, and with results which have been highly gratifying to both physician and patients.

EYE AND EAR.—Special attention is given to the delicate operations on the eye and ear, a distinguished [illegible] being under engagement to conduct [illegible] practice.

HELP! FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S

ELECTRIC BELTS

AND BANDS,

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions—Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory; have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia, or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle-aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S

are doing this same thing. We select two illustrations:

(a.) A young man says to another, "Let us go to a certain place. Will you go if I will?" "Yes." And so another decides what is your duty. You put your welfare in his hands. So you go to the prayer meeting, to the theater, the ball-room, to heaven or to hell. You are calling another man to take your soul in his own hands. He that is wise, is wise for himself; he that sins, alone must bear it. Young man, young woman, when you surrender your own conscience you are partaker in the guilt. The plea, If it had not been for another I should never have done so, will not avail. God required that you be wise for yourself.

(b.) The second illustration is this: when Jesus is presented to them they depend upon another's decision: "If my wife will make a profession I will." One waits for the other. "You don't expect one to leave his wife behind?" say they. True, one may honestly rest in this self-deception; but, alas! that will not save him. Follow Christ is the command. Young men and young women, sitting besides those who do not rise for prayer, you, for yourselves, follow Christ. Alone you must die, and alone you must give an account to God.

the Place de la Concorde enforced admiration, so lavishly was it lit up. The Place Vendome was also very brilliant, and the Opera and other public buildings were most effectively illuminated.

A curiously built locomotive attached to the Pullman Palace car, and placed outside the Champ de Mars building in the Western avenue, is the object of a good deal of attention on the part of the public. This engine belongs to the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, and forms a part of the exhibit made by that Company, with a view of opening up a European market for American anthracite coal and by relieving the overstocked home supplies, alleviate the long continued depression and suffering in the coal trade and its kindred interests. This endeavor to find a trade with Europe is watched with interest throughout the whole coal region and eastern Pennsylvania. Not only the destinies of the Reading Railroad Company promise to be effected by it, but every operator, miner, laborer, manufacturer and general trader in the region, if the enterprise succeeds, will see his way out of the present stagnation, which causes so much suffering in that part of the country. Some idea may be formed of the far reaching extent to which the prosperity of eastern Pennsylvania may be effected by this undertaking when it is known that the Reading Railroad and the Coal and Iron Company together have 23,000 employees, thus making, at a fair estimate, 100,000 people dependent upon them.

In presence of a large and brilliant assembly of the scientific and fashionable Society of Paris, Mr. Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, was on Friday evening last presented with a grand gold medal of the French Geographical Society. The ceremony took place in the Amphitheater of the Sorbonne. On his entrance to the hall Mr. Stanley was received with loud cheers.

After M. William Auber had read [illegible] the Society, the President presented the grand gold medal to Mr. Stanley in recognition of the services rendered by him to science and humanity. In doing so the President, who spoke in good English, said it was a duty of which he was proud to be commissioned by the Geographical Society to deliver to Mr. Stanley their gold medal, the highest award of their Association. In returning thanks Mr. Stanley expressed a hope that we would soon see the time when Central Africa would be as well known as Senegal or Algeria. LOUIS.

Sunday-School Work.

BY REV. J. B. FORD.

I have just closed a six weeks' campaign in Middle and West Tennessee, and a busier six weeks I never before put through. I traveled about five hundred miles by private conveyances over some of the roughest roads to be found in the State. I attended five institutes, two conventions, and lectured and preached at nine other points. I averaged two hours' talk per day. Under the superintendence of Brothers Rippetoe and Chandler, our Sunday-school work is destined to make rapid progress. They both recognize the Sunday-school as one of the very important departments of church work. I was surprised at [illegible] little done by the Church South in this department. For thirty [illegible] they had exclusive control of these sections, and yet the people know but little, and in many places nothing, about Sunday-school work. [illegible] doing all these [illegible] paying more at- [illegible] "peculiar institution" [illegible] education of the [illegible] Church [illegible] to neg- [illegible] for [illegible] of [illegible] traveling and local preachers, exhorters, Sunday-school superintendent and teachers in a given section of the district to attend said meeting of the Society. Each meeting could be conducted as a convention or institute, and would be found to be of great value to the general work of the district. I will take pleasure in attending as many of the sessions as I possibly can. Union District Sunday-school Conventions or union Sunday-schools will not accomplish all we want to accomplish. We need and must have denominational schools at all of our preaching places. While giving special attention to the Sunday-school work we need not neglect any others in the districts just traversed over. I found every other department of the church alive and pressing on with fine prospects of complete triumph. We are still on the "winning side." Let us, therefore, press with vigor on.

An Unjust Accusation.

A few weeks ago, while in Switzerland, I was greatly surprised by reading an editorial on our Southern work from the Northwestern Christian Advocate, in which the following passage occurs:

We as a Church are here, and we mean to stay, notwithstanding the asserted declaration by Dr. J. H. Vincent, who, during the recent International Sunday-School Convention at Atlanta, seemed to be quite convinced by Southern opinion that we have no right to be in the South. * * * While all are proud of the impression made by Dr. Vincent, they will never forget the more-than half slights put upon our brethren here.

Since my return to America I have read from an editorial in the Southwestern Advocate a statement to the effect that Dr. Vincent has asserted that "the M. E. Church has no business in the South." Dr. Fuller, in an editorial in the Atlanta Advocate, says:

But when Dr. Vincent assumed that as a Church we have no [illegible] in the South, he did that which was very unwise and [illegible] to [illegible] to what was said to our presiding elder, this remark was made to a lady who in social standing and moral worth is the equal of Dr. Vincent, etc.

I desire hereby emphatically to deny the charge involved in the above statements. I have too much love for the M. E. Church, too much confidence in her work in the South, too profound an admiration for many of her ministers there, to be guilty of any such wholesale declaration as are here charged upon me.

I went to Atlanta to attend the International State Convention. Concerning my incidental services there for my own Church, Dr. Fuller, in the editorial above referred to, says:

Dr. Vincent lectured here for the Marietta street M. E. Church, and gave $160 (proceeds) toward the liquidation of the debt of that society. Further, he made no engagement to preach or render other service outside of the International Convention, or of the M. E. Church, without voluntarily consulting the editor of this paper, who advised him to accept the invitation from the First Church in the morning and Trinity at night. * * If there is blame at this point it falls upon us, not upon him. He also held a meeting of from twenty to thirty of the ministers of our Church for consultation in reference to their Sunday-schools. We wish to give full credit for all he did in behalf of the M. E. Church while here, and now record that we hope he will again visit the South.

After this recognition of my services in Atlanta, Dr. Fuller proceeds to quote a remark made, as he says, by me to the Presiding Elder of the Atlanta District, to the effect that as a Church "we have no business in the South."

Half truths are more damaging than downright falsehoods. Concerning the perversion and publication of the fragment of private conversation I have the following to say:

1. In view of certain astounding facts concerning our white church in Atlanta, which were given to me in answer to several questions, I asked privately in a little circle, [illegible] the use of this [illegible] overheard [illegible] It was not [illegible] he at once [illegible] be a good [illegible] papers. I call at- [illegible] of Dr. Vincent's conversation, and the question is not for publication. I protest against any such use of it. It would unfairly represent me and my position on this subject, and I shall feel very much wounded to have it made public." He persisted in asserting that it would be useful to answer that question, as there were other people who asked it, and to give my name in connection with it would call the attention of the people to it.

4. Three times I protested against the publication of a private remark. Believing the Presiding Elder to be a gentleman, I dismissed the subject from my mind. Nor did I recall the conversation until the severe editorial of Dr. Edwards' was clipped from the Northwestern and forwarded to me in Europe. The statement of Dr. Fuller concerning the "Presiding Elder" makes it all clear."

5. I never did say, nor do I for a moment think, that there was no use for the M. E. Church in the South; but, surprised at the statement referred to concerning a particular church, I did ask a question.

6. The Northwestern says that I was convinced by Southern opinion that there was no need, etc. I here declare that although I mingled with Southern Methodists in Nashville and Atlanta, I heard no discourteous remark made concerning the M. E. Church by any of them. I was delighted at the genuine fraternal spirit which in private conversation they manifested.

7. Concerning the "half slights" put upon our brethren in the South by myself, and the "social" slights to which the Southwestern Advocate alludes, I am, of course, utterly in the dark. I am not conscious of having said a word or performing an action worthy of the slightest disapproval.

In conclusion, I regret exceedingly the use made of my name by any paper against the interests of our work in the South; but I leave it to every candid reader to decide who is responsible for this, I [illegible] who have made public [illegible] after my frequent and fervent request that it should be kept private, seeing that the remark reported out of its connection would do damage to myself, and also to the Church.

J. H. VINCENT.

New York, July, 1878.

Our Educational Interests in Liberia.

Rev. R. J. Kellogg, writing from Monrovia under date of June 5, and also on June 14, giving an account of the re-opening of the Monrovia Seminary under himself as principal. He left New York April 12, and arrived in Monrovia, via England, May 25, and on May 28 issued a circular announcing the proposed opening of the Seminary. The circular was heartily endorsed with the signatures of Mr. Gardner, President of the Republic of Liberia, James S. Payne, ex-President, and prominent names in the Methodist Church of the country.

The school was opened June 10, when fifty-six pupils were enrolled. The number increasing by June 14 to ninety-one with numerous other applicants waiting to be students. Several of these students are from villages a few miles from Monrovia, who board in the city for the purpose of attending the school.

This is a very favorable beginning, even to those who were most sanguine concerning the prospects for renewing this enterprise. It is still more encouraging that with three exceptions all these pupils are paying their tuition fees and purchasing their books. "Pay as you go" Brother Kellogg says is the motto. There are five departments in the school—Primary, Intermediate, Higher English Scientific and Classical, Musical and Theological.

Brother Kellogg had heard from Brothers Bovard and Osgood as late as June 12.

To Presiding Elders.

Brothers—We are anxious to increase the number and efficiency of our Sunday-schools. Your position gives you an opportunity of doing very much in this work. Will you [illegible] inquire of each pastor [illegible] the instructions in Discip- [illegible] 158, ¶251, has been carried out. I suggest that you or- [illegible] district into a Sunday [illegible] Society, and hold [illegible] sessions each year at [illegible] points, request- [illegible] and local preach- [illegible] Sunday-school superintendents and teachers in a given section to attend. Our districts are far too large to be reached by one or even two sessions. Each meeting could be conducted as an institute or convention. I suggest that some time during the session you give a model Sunday-school exercise, by organizing the institute into a Sunday-school.

The people need instruction upon how to conduct, as well as the importance of the Sunday-school. Have with you specimens of our Sunday-school literature and explain their use and value. Such an organization will give you an opportunity of increasing the much needed interest in this department of church work. You can hold these in connection with a quarterly meeting by beginning on Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

To make our church permanently strong, we must increase the number and efficiency of our Sunday-schools. Union Sunday-schools will not answer. We must have schools of our own, supplied with our own literature.

Now, brother, if possible, give increased attention to this very important department of work.

Our Liquor Bill.

Professor Henry A. Ward, of Rochester, N. Y., having been applied to by a member of the British Parliament for the statistics of the liquor traffic in this country, in turn applied to the Secretary of Interior, who directed the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to furnish the information. The inquiry produced the following letter:

WASHINGTON, June 24, 1878.

SIR—Your letter of the 15th inst., to the honorable the Secretary of the Interior, asking for some statistics in regard to the liquor traffic in the United States for a member of the English Parliament, was referred to this office on the 18th inst. In reply I have the honor to state that the only information I can give you on the subject is derived from returns to the Treasury Department of the quantities of domestic spirits and malt liquors on which tax has been paid, and imported liquors that have been withdrawn for consumption. The returns for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, are as follows:

Spirits distilled from whatever materials, gallons	57,459,989
Ale, beer, lager beer, and porter barrels	9,902,353
Imported spirits of all kinds, gallons	1,386,670
Imported wines in casks and bottles, gallons	5,723,469

The following is a statement of the amounts of special license taxes paid to the government by dealers in liquors during the same year:

Retail dealers in spirituous liquors, $25 each	$3,840,469
Wholesale dealers in spirituous liquors, $100 each	449,729
Retail dealers in malt liquors exclusively, $20 each	147,801
Wholesale dealers in malt liquors exclusively, $50 each	42,001

Thus it appears that there were upward of 166,000 liquor-dealers in the country that year.

From the above, and other data, the Hon. Edward Young, Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, estimates the amount of money annually expended in the United States for liquors by consumers to be nearly $596,000,000. Respectfully, GREEN B. BAUM, Commissioner.

After reading the above, which gives the truth, well may the Central Christian Advocate say:

There is one fact staring us in the face that we cannot escape. We are spending $700,000,000 a year for intoxicating drinks. From every city and village in the country comes up the cry of "Hard Times;" we meet hundreds of anxious looking men on the streets, out of work and under the pressure of actual want; hungry women and children are hiding away in tenement houses, and yet there is no perceptible diminution of this expenditure that is impoverishing the country. Saloons and the "beer-rooms" of corner groceries are more regularly and liberally patronized than any other places of business. There is but one reason for nine-tenths of the poverty that is constantly appealing to us. The prohibition of the traffic in spirituous liquors—liquors drank in the dram-shop—would enrich the country more certainly than the harvests we are now reaping. In truth, as it is, the harvests are wasted in ministering to a depraved appetite that is ruining body and soul, nursing crime and disease. And yet Christian men vote for liquor sellers and drunkards.

After the Battle in Bulgaria.

Our people will wish to know just now what Brother Flocken found in that country on his return to it, after a pretty thorough investigation of the reports. Bro. Dimitry Ivanoff has been all the while at Rustchuck. The effects of our missionaries were stored in a cellar, but when the Russians entered the proprietor of the house rented it to the Austrian Consul General lest it should be taken for a hospital by the Russian army, and thus the furniture and books had to be removed from the cellar to other quarters, and were much injured. Bro. Ivanoff held religious meetings without interruption at any time. Brother Gabriel Elieff remained all the while at Rustchuck, but he and his family have suffered great privations and want.

Brother Flocken found it difficult to get quarters because all the houses were occupied by Russian officials or as restaurants and drinking saloons.

At Loftcha seven of our members and preachers were killed and we have only three or four members left. At Plevna Brother Jordaky Zwetkoff and family were locked up during all the seige. "They suffered beyond description and were reduced to such a degree that they were only recently able to undertake their journey to Sistof where their friends reside."

Brother Todor A. Nicolef fled from Widin to Sistof when the bombardment commenced, and he will remain there. Brother Stefan Getschoff, who has had charge of Orchaula, was obliged to flee to Samakoff for a short time, but soon returned to his post. Bro. Ivan Christoff, who had received constant opposition and persecution from his wife in his religious life, had died happily at the last, exhorting his wife to repent and believe.

Brother Flocken preached at Sistof to about twenty hearers, and held Sunday-school. He says the Russians are spending a fabulous amount of money, and that there has been literally no government, every one being allowed to do as they pleased.

"The people seem to be greatly surprised at the treatment received at the hands of the Russians. Efforts were made in various places to prejudice the Russian officials against the Bulgarians, but no attention was paid to it and all were left to do as they pleased." The war had of course had a demoralizing effect, as all wars have, and the moral and religious tone of the people lowered.

Perhaps the most important statement made in the correspondence of the Superintendent was that the Bulgarian teachers have left the schools to prepare for official positions in the new administration, and the schools are closed.

The Slavic Committee at Moscow had promised to establish two high schools and as many lower grade as were required, but nothing has been done as yet and our mission has now a rare opportunity in the educational direction.

The Alligators and the Ox.

The Tallahassee Floridian says: "That the alligator should attack an ox will be surprising news even to those who are thoroughly familiar with the habits of the fresh water monster. The Floridian has been furnished by an eye-witness with the interesting details of the strange encounter last week at Cake Jackson. The ox went into the lake to drink, and was attacked by the alligator, whose mouth closed on the foreleg of the animal, crushing the bone. The ox started immediately out of the water dragging the alligator. Enraged with pain, the poor animal reared and plunged wildly, endeavoring to horn his antagonist. Meanwhile the edge of the lake was black with the snouts of alligators which had smelled the blood that ran from the ox when first struck in the water. Four or five of the monsters crawled out, and, with wide open mouths, started for the attack. Meanwhile the ox loosened the hold of his antagonist, and smarting under the wound, went in with infuriated ardor to the assault of the reinforced assailant. He caught one of the alligators on his horns and threw him high in the air, the clumsy thing falling heavily to the ground, where it lay stunned. Another was tossed far into the lake. But the gallant ox was, by a false maneuver, again in the water, in which element his activity was impeded, [illegible] by his [illegible] one of which caught him by the nose and pulled his head under water, he soon fell a victim by drowning."

An electric light in Chicago, on the roof of a building at the corner of Center and Howard streets, when directed upon the proof room in the Tribune Building, exactly half a mile distant, was so powerful, although unsteady, that matter in solid nonpareil and agate, the smallest size of type used in the paper, could be read with ease.

A company has been formed to utilize the power of Niagara Falls by using it to compress air. The compressed air will be conducted in pipes to the city of Buffalo and used as a substitute for steam power in water-works and manufactories. A similar use of water power was made in boring the Mont Cenis Tunnel, the air compressed by water power driving the drills and at the same time furnishing pure air to the workmen at the headings on either side.

A farmer named John Daniels, who resides in Hunt county, Texas, celebrated the 4th of July by grubbing an old stump out of his field. While so engaged his pick struck something hard, which proved to be an old iron pot containing four hundred and twenty-six dollars in silver. On removing the silver he found at the bottom of the pot fifteen twenty dollar gold pieces. An old silver goblet, with the following engraved thereon: "To John Myrick, from his mother," was found on top of the money. During the war a family named Myrick did live in that neighborhood, but where they went or what became of them nobody seems to know.

First German Church, New Orleans, Rev. Dr. Braun, pastor. This church is steadily growing in all respects; membership sixty, church property nine thousand dollars, including a new two thousand dollar parsonage. The Sunday-school numbers twenty-seven officers and teachers, and in point of organization and efficiency is one of the best. There have been several conversions and accessions since conference; the remaining parsonage debt is being paid, a Church Extension loan is being returned, and the congregations are larger than ever before.

Third German Church, New Orleans. Dr. Braun has, also, this church in charge and during the past six months has been assisted by Rev. J. Ueber, a local elder. Brother Matthai, of the Central German Conference, it is expected, will be transferred September 1st to assist Dr. Braun. This church enjoyed a gracious revival early in the year, and among the converts were seven Roman Catholics. The present membership is over sixty; property, four thousand dollars; good Sunday-school with fifteen officers and teachers and sixty scholars; the remaining debt on property is being provided for, and in all respects there is a steady growth.

St. John's and St. Charles Churches, Rev. E. P. Royal, pastor. St. Charles Church is located at Hahnville, a new village on the Mississippi river thirty miles above New Orleans. The membership is small, and the people mostly poor. The church building is a good one, but is burdened with debt. St. John's Church has a new church building located sixteen miles further up the river, and is an enterprising, growing congregation.

White Hall and Ashland, Rev. Prince King, pastor. Over three hundred members and good church property with a well organized Sunday-school. There are two preaching places and at a third point ground is being purchased preparatory to the erection of another church. These points are on or near the Mississippi River, in the parish of St. James.

Donaldsonville Church, Rev. Pierre Landry, pastor. Donaldsonville is on the Mississippi River, seventy-five miles above the city of New Orleans, and is a thriving town. Our church has a fine property, worth forty-five hundred dollars; membership one hundred and sixty-five; Sunday-school only moderate; congregations very large. Through the enterprise and efficiency of the pastor the church has been greatly improved in every respect since conference when he took charge. Three new preaching places have been established in as many different directions from the town. At one a large Sunday-school has been organized, and it is expected that ground will be bought at two of these points and the erection of churches begun before the next conference.

This brief survey of the South New Orleans District mentions only a few of the principal points of interest, and does not do justice to the enterprise and faithfulness of the several pastors and their official brethren. Financially the times are hard every where, and several of the pastors receive but scanty support, but everywhere in the District there is a cheerful, hopeful feeling. We feel confident that in the matter of benevolent collections there will be a good advance over last year.

Dr. Vincent's Reply.

We publish on first page Dr. J. H. Vincent's statement concerning his late visit to Atlanta, Ga. That our position may be fully understood we quote all we said in our editorial concerning Marietta street Church and Dr. Vincent in Atlanta. We said in our issue of June 6:

Methodist Union in Ireland.

The Primitive and Wesleyan Methodists of Ireland have united and are now one body. The London Methodist Recorder rejoices in the union. That paper says:

The divisions of Methodism have been its bane and its blot; who does not hope and pray that old animosities and controversies may be oblivionised, and that a spirit of reconciliation and reunion may preside over the counsels and policy of the Methodism of the future? In Canada and in Ireland Methodist union is a fact; when will it be so in England and in America? Can we do better than follow in the path which our Canadian and Irish friends have taken? To begin with, why should there not be at once fraternal recognition and intercourse between the different Methodist communities to prepare the way for united action? We should like to see the convocation of a Pan-Methodist synod, in which all the branches of the Methodist family should be represented. We have Pan-Presbyterians and Pan-Anglican synods; why not a congress and a confederation of universal Methodism?

The Negro Race Not Dying Out.

A South Carolina planter writes to the Charleston News and Courier to dispute the statement that the negro race is dying out. The mortality among colored people is greater in cities than before the war, but he denies that it is greater in the country. He has kept a record book of births and deaths of negroes on his plantation all his life, and he finds that the annual decennial increase before the war was 25 per cent., and that since the war, for the period between 1868 and 1878, it has been 21 per cent.—a difference too slight to be worthy of notice. From his own experience and that of other planters in South Carolina and Georgia with whom he has conversed, he is of the opinion "that negroes in the South are not dying out as some persons imagine, and the next census will show considerable increase."

Rev. John Potts, of Toronto, Canada, related the following in the Atlanta Sunday-school convention: In the Province of New Brunswick, Ex-Gov. Wilmot has been for years a Sunday-school superintendent. When he was elevated to the governorship of his province, the officers and teachers of his Sunday-school approached him with an address of congratulation, and an earnest hope that his exalted position would not sever him from the school. The governor thanked them for their address and said, "If my acceptance of the governorship from the queen would require me to resign my position as your superintendent, I would decline the governorship and cling to the Sunday-school."

The Bloomington, Ill., Leader says: "Miss Rankin, of this city, has recently received a legacy of $5,000 from the estate of the late Mrs. C. M. Street, New Haven, Conn., which she appropriates to mission work in Mexico, her former field of missionary labor."

The Wesleyan Christian Advocate, of Macon, Ga., takes on the quarto form and comes to hand filled with good reading. Dr. Haygood is editor, and John W. Burke is assistant editor. We like the spirit of the editorials.

A Chinese Tract Society, organized on the principles of the American Tract Society, has been formed at Shanghai. Its Board of Managers is to be half of foreign missionaries and half of native Christians.

Marshall District Conference.

The Marshall District Conference, of the Texas Annual Conference, convened at Paris, Texas, July 11, 1878. The Conference assembled at 9 A. M. Devotional exercises were conducted by the Presiding Elder Rev. F. C. Moore. The Conference then proceeded to business, the Presiding Elder in the chair. The roll was called and the following members of the Conference were found to be present: F. C. Moore, W. W. [illegible], George Harris, C. H. Hen[illegible], J. R. Price, Elijah Wells, B. [illegible], [illegible] Pratt, Anderson Wil[illegible], [illegible], S. S. Wright, C. P. [illegible], Andrew [illegible], W. H. Good[illegible] [illegible]itchell, Reuben Rivell, Tay[illegible], William Loggins, Wi[illegible], W. H. Davis. The Conference adopted its time of session from 9 A. M. to 12, and from 2 P. M. to 4.30. The preachers then reported their several works. Most of them were able to give favorable accounts. Reports from exhorters, stewards, class-leaders and sunday-school superintendents showed that good work was being accomplished. The usual committees were appointed. Prominence was given to the cause of education, and the Conference was urged to take immediate steps, by the Presiding Elder's assistance, to raise the amount asked of this District by the last Annual Conference for the purpose of erecting new buildings for Wiley University. The causes of Church, Literature, Sunday-Schools and Temperance received a good share of attention. Addresses were delivered by different members of the Conference. In these addresses the cause of the Sunday-School was specially urged. Throughout the session harmony prevailed. Good order was characteristic of all the business meetings. The Conference was well entertained by the brethren and citizens of Paris, for which kindness and hospitality the Conference passed a resolution of thanks. A vote of thanks to the Presiding Elder was also passed for his wise administration throughout the Conference sessions. Religious services were held every evening, and were all, including Sabbath services, spiritual and impressive. The Conference adjourned Monday, 15, and all left the place with the praise of the city and people of Paris on their lips.

F. C. MOORE, Presiding Elder.
J. R. PRICE, Secretary.

Foreign Letter.

The Annual Methodist Conferences are being held, the Methodist New Connexion Assembly and the Primitive Methodist met simultaneously—the former at Ashton, under Tyne, and the latter at Manchester. The numerical strength of both of these denominations has been increased. That of the New Connexion by nearly 1,000 and of the other by almost 2,000.

The New Connexion is the first and oldest secession from the parent body, and in every subsequent agitation aided the seceders. A more paternal and pacific spirit prevails now, and brotherly intercourse is frequent and cordial. The Rev. John Ogden was elected President. It has a half dozen of D.D.'s among its ministers and some of these are distinguished as theological scholars and authors.

The Primitive body is thrice as large although younger by a quarter of a century. The Rev. Henry Phillips was elected President. It has one Theological Institute (college) and is establishing another. It has a Ladies' College in London, which is prospering. It has only two D.D.'s among its 1,200 ministers, and these are brothers.

Each of the denominations has a Book Concern, and the periodicals issued by these have a prosperous patronage.

The two Wesleyan bodies in Ireland have agreed to unite. This union was consummated in Dublin at their respective Conferences which have just closed. Henceforth, therefore, there will be a united Methodism in the Emerald Isle. In this instance union will be really strength and success and the day that effected the union was verily a glorious day for Irish Methodism.

For the first time laymen will meet in the English Wesleyan Conference, to be held in a few weeks in Bradford. Of the 240 there are five members of Parliament; five Mayors of towns, and thirty-nine county borough Magistrates. Methodism has become a people in a social as well as every other sense. Its voice is heard in the legislature and its influence felt on all questions of public national importance. This is progress, verily, in an old aristocratic country like England, where the castes arising out of an established church is still felt.

July 16, 1878. BENTLEY.

From Meridian, Miss.

Rev. M. Adams, Presiding Elder of the Meridian, Miss., District, writes that there is to be a grand educational meeting, August 17, in Meridian, in the interests of Meridian Academy. We regret that we cannot accept his urgent invitation to be present and deliver one of the addresses. Rev. Dr. Bedwell, pastor of the Meridian Presbyterian Church and Dr. Jones, President of the Methodist College in that city are to speak.

Bro. Adams also states that his District camp-meeting will begin August 16. The camp ground is [illegible] Meridian and a large attendance [illegible]. The [illegible] Academy will be [illegible] on the 7th of August.

There was a reunion of the "Twelfth" and "Nineteenth" regiments of Texas Confederate soldiers, at Waxahachie, Texas, July 4th. John S. C. Baird, of Rockdale, Texas, in the Galveston Christian Advocate, gives a letter on the occasion. The following is an extract. If such sentiments prevailed at all Confederate reunions in the South the more we have of them the better. Mr. Baird says:

But this reunion of the Twelfth and Nineteenth Texas Cavalry is not a mere sentimentalism, confined to the members of the two regiments of men who desire once more to see each other's faces, but seems rather to be born of a spirit of reunion that just now burns in the breast of every brave, true-hearted American citizen—a spirit that forgives the injuries and forgets the passions and prejudices of the past; a spirit that would not only stretch forth the arm of brotherly love to "shake hands across the bloody chasm," but would fill the chasm up and strew garlands of rare flowers over the new earth in token of our restored confidence and plighted faith. This is a very strange year. Our country has never had such cause for rejoicing since the British Lion gathered up his munitions of war and left the Goddess of Liberty in undisputed possession of the new born nation of the "Great West." Reunions, hand-shakings and festivals of all kinds. The iron horse is actually fatigued drawing the tremendous excursion trains between the two sections of our nation. All this is having the effect to destroy the spirit of strife and strengthen the bonds of union. Some have said that our great Methodism drove the entering wedge that finally divided the Union. Be that true or false, it is a question I do not propose to discuss now; but if the muttering thunders of the war cloud were first heard in the General Conference of 1844, surely the General Conference of 1878 has waved the olive branch of peace.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. W. A. Primus, Stoney Point, La., sends an interesting account of a Sunday-school exhibition of the scholars on his work, but our space will not admit of details of such exercises.

Rev. E. P. Royal, of St. Charles, La., reports a union meeting held at Hahnville, La., July 7th. A large audience attended. Revs. Stephen Priestly and A. Moore, of New Orleans, were present and rendered good service. $22.00 were raised.

"Rev. D. Moore, Brooksville, Miss.: "Our new church is a frame building, 55x40 feet in dimensions. The dedication sermon was preached by our presiding elder, Rev. M. Adams. There were ten accessions to the church on the occasion."

Rev. Joseph Hardin, Beaumont, Texas: "The funeral services of Mary Renfro, one of our deceased members, in which we were assisted by Rev. J. E. Shackleford, were blessed of the Lord in sending conviction to the hearts of many of the people present. The altar was filled with penitents inquiring what they should do to be saved. Six united with the church."

Rev. E. Graves, Meadville, Miss.: "The Lord has been very gracious to us on this work. Recently the revival influence has been abroad among the people at every appointment. Here there have been seven conversions and six accessions to the church. Our Sunday-schools are largely attended. At this place a comfortable parsonage has been recently completed."

Rev. E. E. Cooper, Fayette, Texas: "The Lord is blessing us with a gracious revival. There have been several conversions and the altar is crowded at every meeting with seekers of all ages, from twelve to eighty years. We labor under many disadvantages. We have no house of worship, but for the present our white friends have kindly let us have the use of theirs, for which we are greatly obliged to them. May the Lord direct us to the good of souls and his glory."

Rev. Jas. Hayward, Franklin, La.: "An old debt of two hundred dollars has been hanging over our church, which was very annoying to us. Recently we have undertaken the work of getting this troublesome debt out of the way by paying it off, and up to this time have reduced it to forty dollars. And spiritually our church is prospering. The number of communicants at our last celebration of the Lord's Supper was unusually large. After the service in the church we went with a few of the members to offer the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of our once crucified but now risen and ascended Lord to some of the sick and afflicted at their homes. The Spirit was poured out upon us all as we communed together."

Rev. A. M. Gregory, Waco, Texas: "Our church is prosperous and our people more and more united. At our recent love feast every Christian heart present seemed to be made happy in the love of God. Our Sunday-school is growing and prospering. Our superintendent, [illegible] Bro. B. [illegible] of the best in the State. Our camp-meeting at this place will commence the second Sunday in August. All Christian workers are invited to attend, and especially we desire the attendance of some of our able ministers from neighboring works."

General Religious Items.

The Christian at Work says that the Baptist ministers of Philadelphia have decided that women may preach if they have the necessary gifts, graces, education and other accomplishments.

The "Baptist Year-book" for 1878 gives the following figures: Associations 1,048, churches, 23,908, ordained ministers, 14,586, additions by baptisms, 102,292, by letter, 35,486; total membership, 2,024,224.

The Hebrew Council, which was in session at Milwaukee last week, instructed its executive board to expend from $1,500 to $2,000 for the purpose of employing agents to organize Sabbath-schools, and to solicit aid for the union.

The Episcopal Church Congress will meet on Wednesday, Oct. 16, 1878, in Pike's Opera House, Cincinnati, at 9 o'clock A. M. A devotional service will be held on Tuesday evening, 15, and the Communion Service only will be celebrated early on Wednesday Morning.

The Union Methodist Church, of Philadelphia, has celebrated its Seventy-seventh anniversary. It has had 40 pastors, among whom are two who became Bishops, and many who were prominent in the Church. The church has been the mother of six others, and now has the oldest Methodist member in the country in the person of Miss Sarah Morton, who joined on probation of 1803.

The most remarkable results of evangelistic work among the Jews are found in Sweden. Great multitudes attended the public services of the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, of England, and Mr. Adler at Gottenberg, the chief seaport of Sweden. Upon the Sabbath, 4,000 people, many of them Jews, filled a large Lutheran church. Drawing room meetings are also held with great success.

A recent Cuba decree provides that an ex-slave of Cuba may be elected deputy to the Cortes, when he has been six years a freedman. Colored men are electors, this provision extending to ex-slaves who have been free three years. This is progress. In 1868, when the rebellion broke out, the slaves in Cuba formed about one-fourth of the population.

San Francisco, July 27.—Volunteers to fight against the Indians, with the exception of Perry's company, are being dismissed. The war is considered over, though there may be one fight more before the Indians reach their reservations.

New York, July 24.—There are said to be two or three cases of genuine leprosy in the Charity Hospital on Blackwell's Island. One of the isolated sufferers is an ex-member of the volunteer fire department.

Charleston, July 25.—The emigrant bark Azor, which left this port on last Easter Sunday for Monrovia, with 350 exodists, arrived here yesterday, having made the return trip from Monrovia in thirty-six days. She brought a special correspondent and sixteen colored passengers, who are returning from the promised land and are bound for Mississippi, from which State they emigrated some years ago.

Washington, July 28.—Cohen, the ring-leader of the strikes in this city, was arrested at a late hour last night and held for trial to-morrow on the charge of inciting a riot. The authorities have taken every precaution deemed necessary to prevent any serious disturbance. The police force have been armed with Springfield rifles in addition to revolvers, and marines, numbering over 100 effective men, are held in readiness to assist the police in case of any further attempt being made to interfere with the laborers who are willing to work at the prices offered.

From a summary of over two hundred reports, received by a leading commission firm from points in Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota during the past three weeks, the damage to the wheat crop by late storms and excessive heat averages 17 per cent. in Wisconsin, 27 per cent in Iowa, and 27 per cent in Minnesota.

The proposition of the United States to hold a monetary conference to settle the question of the relations of gold and silver has been accepted by France, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, Holland, Austria, Russia and England. Germany may also take part in its discussions, but this is not certain. The sessions will probably begin at Paris on the 10th prox.

The report on the progress and condition of the growing [illegible] crop for the [illegible] up by the [illegible] dicates a [illegible] generally expected, and yet its conclusions seem to be borne out by the facts that are presented. There were heavy and general rains early in the month which caused many fields to get badly "in the grass;" some of these were abandoned and in others more or less damage was done. Louisiana, North Carolina and Arkansas appear to have suffered most from the bad weather but even in those States a period of clear, dry weather would repair most of the injury that has been done.

The season down to the 1st of June was most favorable to the planting and early growth of cotton, and the bad weather since that date has not been sufficient to impair the prospects of one of the largest if not the largest crop, that has ever been grown in the United States. The estimates which were then adopted, almost uniformly, of a yield of from five to five and a quarter million bales have not been seriously shaken, and receive renewed credit from the exceptionally good weather which has prevailed at the South for the past week or more. The largest crops heretofore have been the following: 1859-60, 4,861,000 bales; 1870-71, 4,347,000 bales; 1875-6, 4,632,000 bales; 1876-7, 4,474,000 bales, and that of the current season, now near its close, which may be set down at 4,700,000 bales, or the largest since the war.

There would be reason to apprehend an excessive supply from the estimated increased yield for the coming crop year but for the fact that the growth in other countries has diminished. We have nearly a monopoly of the staple. Besides, in spite of the dull times, the consumption of cotton has been maintained, and that of American cotton has increased. The receipts of cotton at the American ports since the first of September last have been 286,000 bales in excess of the corresponding period last season, and yet the visible supply of American cotton is 220,000 bales less than one year ago, showing an excess in the consumption for a little more than ten months of more than 400,000 bales. The visible supplies of cotton of all growth in the markets of the world, as last made up, were 585,500 bales less than one year ago and [illegible] bales less than two years ago. The deficiency is an important one, at [illegible] but is relieved somewhat by the fact that the growing crop is a week or ten days earlier than last year, and that the facilities for moving cotton have materially increased of late years. By means of these, should the exigency arise, the supplies of new cotton may be greatly increased in September, and even in August.

Of course a large yield of cotton from the growing crop is by no means assured as yet; danger will not be wholly past till near the 1st of November. Renewed rains would be disastrous and an early frost a great calamity. The doctrine of chances is, in truth, against a great yield after two large crops. Still, as we find it, the situation promises a large yield and that it will be wanted at good prices. With that let us be content.—World.

Hold of Papa's Hand.

The patter of little feet on my office floor, and a glad voice exclaiming: "Papa, I've come to 'scort you home!" made known to me the presence of my little six-year-old darling, who often came at that hour "to take me home," as she said. Soon we were going hand in hand on the homeward way.

"Now, papa, let's play I was a poor little blind girl; and you must let me hold your hand tight, and you lead me along, and tell me where to stop and how to go."

So the merry blue eyes were shut tight, and we began. "Now step up, now down," and so on, till we had safely arrived, and the darling was nestling in my arms, saying, "Wasn't it nice, papa? I never peeked once!"

"But," said mamma, "didn't you feel afraid you'd fall, dear?"

With a look of trusting love came the answer: "O, no, mamma! I had a tight hold on papa's hand, and I knew he would take me safely over the hard places."

August 11, 1878.—THE CENTURION'S FAITH.

SCRIPTURE—Luke 7:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"According to your faith be it unto you."—Matt. 9:29.

TOPIC—Faith.

Condensed from National S. S. [illegible]

The Request of Faith (1-5).—This gem of a miracle has—as it should have—a beautiful [illegible] between the Sermon [illegible] and the raising of [illegible] widow of Nain. It has [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible] Sunday-School Map.

M. A. Coudy, 2938 Thomas St., St. Louis, Mo., has published another International Sunday-School Map of Palestine, of the time of Christ. This map is 40x60. Illustrates the International S. S. Lessons, carefully prepared from the best authorities and latest surveys. Large type, easily read at a distance, tables of distances, length of rivers, height of mountains, etc., a system of concentric circles by which any place can be readily found.

And by distinguished marks showing the following:

All places mentioned in the New Testament, the location of which are known; those mentioned in N. T., the location of which are conjectural. Those not mentioned in N. T., but in existence at the time of Christ; the locations of which are known, also, those conjectural. Where exact location is doubtful, so designated. Admitted to be the largest, cheapest and best [illegible] Map published for the money [illegible] of [illegible]

No. 2. Canvas paper, [illegible]

No. 3. On fine white [illegible] colored.

The August number of the Golden Hours opens with the charming typical picture, "Our Daily Bread," [illegible] the beauty, peace and [illegible]

[illegible] made by their passage. Only one change of cars which is made at Columbus [illegible] is taken in the [illegible] at that place at 5 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagara Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

[illegible] delay. In view of these facts, and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions, it [illegible] that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal, and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

*The 12mo size may be delayed a few days.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

Rev. Hiram R. Revels, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

George B. Vashon, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

Henry H. Baker, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

Herbert A. Clark, Tutor in the English Language and Literature

This University, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

New Orleans University,

Cor. Camp and Race Streets.

This Institution, under the patronage of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, gives instruction in the following departments:

Collegiate,
Preparatory,
Theological,
Medical, and

The First Term of next year opens Monday, September 9, 1878.

The expense of Board, Room Rent, and Washing, in the Institution, will not exceed Ten Dollars per Month of four weeks.

An incidental fee of One Dollar per month is charged all students, except those in Theological Department.

The buildings of the Institution are located on Coliseum Square, in a most healthful and pleasant part of the city.

The instruction is thorough in all the Departments.

The Medical Department gives a good opportunity for the study of Medicine under competent and practical physicians. The expense per term of five months, beginning October 1, 1878, will be $65.00. This amount pays for matriculation, attendance upon all lectures, dissecting room privileges, and clinical practice in the New Orleans Charity Hospital.

COURSE OF STUDY FOR Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, §5 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I.—Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. First Year.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

To be Read.—Scripture History—Old Testament.—Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. Second Year.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

To be Read.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Rurter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. Third Year.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

To be Read.—Wesley's Sermons—Vol. I. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. Fourth Year.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

To be Read.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. Harris, Secretary.

MY NEIGHBORS.

I sit by my window at early eve,
Rocking my baby to sleep;
While the twilight shadows with sunset beams
Are playing at bide and peep.
And, crooning a time-worn slumber-song
Dreamily o'er and o'er,
I watch my neighbors who live near by,
As I've watched them often before.

My neighbors live in the old elm tree,
Whose branches, many and strong,
At morning and night have nodded to me
Full many a summer long.
The sunbeams fall from the golden sky,
And merrily play and shine
The live-long day on the little pair
Who have builded their home near mine.

We are very happy, my neighbors and I—
Intimate friends are we;
I sing them a song of my own, sometimes,
And they merrily sing to me.
And now, as I sit by the window here,
My neighbor is on her nest,
And both of us watch with tender love
Our little ones in their rest.

She folds her wings with a warble low
Over her babies three;
And my arms are clasping my baby girl
And holding her close to me.
And the twilight shadows are falling fast
Over the mountain side;
And the breeze which has rustled the elm-tree leaves,
Grows still with the even-tide.

To Girls.

Never marry a man who has only his love for you to recommend him. It is very fascinating, but it does not make the man. If he is not otherwise what he should be, you will never be happy. The most perfect man who did not love you should never be your husband. But though marriage without love is terrible, love only will not do. If the man is dishonorable to other men, or given to any vice, the time will come when you will either loathe him or sink to his level. It is hard to remember, amid kisses and praises, that there is any thing else to be done or thought of but love-making; but the days of life are many and the husband must be a [illegible] be trusted—a companion, a friend, as well as a lover. Many a girl has married a man whom she knew to be anything but good because he loved her so. The Tallest Couple in the World.

Capt. Martin Van Buren Bates was born in Whitesburg, Letcher county, Ky., November 9, 1846. He is seven feet eleven and one-half inches in height, and weighs 418 pounds. His father was about six feet tall and his mother was a lady of ordinary stature. In 1849 Miss Anna H. Swan was born in Colchester county, Nova Scotia. She was as tall as her mother when six years of age, but she continued to shoot upward until to-day she is exactly the same height as her husband—seven feet eleven and one-half inches—her weight being 413 pounds. These two were married in London some years ago, and on returning from their bridal tour, found an order from the Queen awaiting them, requiring them to present themselves at Buckingham Palace. They had previously appeared before the Prince of Wales, and the members of the Masonic Lodge of which he is a member, and it is probable that he had aroused his mother's curiosity by his description of them. She made them both bridal gifts. The Captain received a massive gold striking watch, the case weighing nine ounces and the entire watch over a pound, while with the immense neck-chain the whole weighed over three pounds. The bride was presented with an immense diamond cluster ring, containing seven white jewels. Both the lady and the gentleman are perfectly proportioned, every member corresponding and aiding to produce a symmetrical but colossal figure. Mrs. Bates requires for an evening dress eighty yards of material.

"I Shew You a Mystery."

An employer, to requite some special service, gave to his servant a silver goblet. The man was exceedingly careful of his present, valuing it very highly. One day by accident, the cup fell into a vessel filled with aqua fortis; but the man supposing it to be only water, and having something of importance to do just then for his master, left it to his return. A fellow servant coming into the same room when the cup was nearly dissolved, and glancing at the aqua fortis, asked what had been thrown into the vessel. The owner of the cup entering answered that his cup fell accidently into the water; whereupon he was informed that it was not common water, but aqua fortis, and that his cup was almost dissolved. Rushing to the vessel he saw the last remnant of his cup gradually disappearing, and yet the liquid was as clear as if nothing had been dissolved in it. As the last vestige of the cup vanished from his sight the poor fellow bitterly bewailed his loss, despairing of ever seeing any portion of it again. Pitying his helpless grief, his fellow servant told him that his master could restore it all to him again. But this impossibility only served to aggravate his feelings, and he broke out: "Why talk thus? Do you not know the cup is utterly dissolved, not a particle to be seen? How, then, can my master, or any man alive reproduce the silver? It cannot be. I give it up for lost." All the reiteration of his fellow-servant to the contrary was in vain.

While they were thus debating the employer came in and was told all the circumstances. Turning to the man who had lost the cup, he said: "What you so positively pronounced to be impossible you shall see me do with little trouble. Bring me [illegible] pour it into the vessel containing the aqua fortis. Now look, for the silver will presently fall to the bottom of the vessel in a white power." The owner of the cup saw the precipitation of the silver; the aqua fortis was drained off, the powder was taken up, melted, reduced to one solid piece, and then by the silversmith refashioned into a cup of the same shape as before.

There are men like the servant spoken of, who deem that to be impossible which nevertheless can be accomplished; and there are others [illegible] say, with Job, "If a man die, shall he live again?" who declare [illegible] it is "incredible that God should [illegible] the dead." Inhaling Tube!
AND COMMON AIR WILL CURE
CONSUMPTION IN ITS EARLY STAGES.

Send for Circular. The Tube, with full directions, postpaid. Sent on receipt of $3.50, or call at his residence, Passaic, N. J.

The Rev. N. N. BEERS, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y., writes:

It is now nearly thirty years since I commenced the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's can possibly be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

The Rev. B. M. ADAMS, of the N. Y. East M. E. Conference, says:

I thank the Lord that I ever saw you. The Inhaling Tube I obtained of you almost twenty years ago has been a wonderful blessing to me, and I am glad, through my recommendation, to many. I think Schureman Halsted's life was lengthened years by it. His chest enlarged, although he was over fifty years old when he commenced using it and he led the Lord's battles with a shout long after the doctors told him he must stop. Many other dear friends of mine have had their lives lengthened by its use.

From Rev. J. H. VINCENT, D.D., of the Sunday-school Publications of the Church.

I have used your Tube at times for several years, and have unbounded faith in its philosophy. may7'78-tf

The Class-Leader.
His Work, and How to Do It.
With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.
BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,
12mo.....................$1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who means business. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

CURES DISEASES OF THE THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD.

In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above directed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

INVALIDS' HOTEL.

The very large number of invalid people who daily visit Buffalo, from every quarter of the United States and Canada, that they may consult Dr. R. V. PIERCE, and the widely celebrated Faculty of Specialists in Medicine and Surgery associated with him, rendered it necessary that the founder of this institution should provide a place on a grand and commodious scale for their entertainment and comfort.

ADVANTAGES OFFERED.—The Invalids' Hotel is more complete in its appointments than any similar institution in the world. The building is located in one of the most healthful and desirable portions of the City of Buffalo, and commands a fine view of Lake Erie, Niagara River, and the surrounding country, being situated in the midst of an extensive system of beautiful parks. The Hotel is furnished with a patent safety passenger elevator, to convey patients to and from the different floors, is provided with all kinds of approved baths, and has also connected with it a well-appointed gymnasium and bowling alley to afford proper means of exercise.

CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms, whether requiring medical, surgical, or mechanical, treatment, come within the province of our several specialties.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are the facilities of this Infirmary of a superior order as regards the remedial means and appliances for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females. The employment, in moderation, of tonic, chemical, electro-thermal, and other approved baths, is in many cases an invaluable auxiliary to the remedial means to which we resort in such cases. Dry friction to the surface, general shampooing, Swedish movements, and light calisthenic exercises, to enliven and equalize the circulation of the blood in the system, relieve congested parts, improve digestion, and strengthen the muscles, produce important beneficial results in all cases to which these means are applicable. No experimenting is resorted to in the treatment. The most approved medicines are carefully employed, and the judicious regulation of the diet, to suit the condition of the patient, the thorough ventilation of the sleeping apartment, the cheering influence of music, social intercourse, innocent games for amusement, and all those agencies which tend to arouse the mind of the patient from despondency, and thus promote recovery, are not neglected.

NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty, by which the greatest skill is attained and the most happy results secured.

LUNG DISEASES.—This division of the practice in the Invalids' Hotel is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases are very largely treated in this department, and with results which have been highly gratifying to both physician and patients.

EYE AND EAR.—Special attention is given to the delicate operations on the eye and ear, a distinguished oculist and aurist being under engagement to conduct this branch of the practice.

Invalids arriving in the city and desiring to consult us, should come directly to the Hotel. It is easily accessible by carriage, omnibus, or street cars. MILLER'S Omnibus Agents, on all incoming trains, can be relied upon to deliver passengers and baggage with security and dispatch.

are generally preceded by a moisture, like perspiration, distressing itching, particularly at night, when undressing, or in bed after getting warm, frequently females are sorely afflicted, proving very distressing. Cases of long standing are permanently cured by simply applying

SWAYNE'S OINTMENT.

READ THESE TESTIMONIALS.

U. S. Marshal's office, Harrisburg, Va.

Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth st., Philadelphia—Gentlemen, I have suffered for twenty years from that terrible disease itching piles, had consulted many physicians and used numerous applications and medicines, but found no permanent relief until I procured your All-healing Ointment. After using one box in the space of three weeks' time, I found myself entirely cured, and for the last four months have not even felt a symptom of the disease. I also used the Ointment on a spot of dry tetter on my head, which had annoyed me for five years, and found the same happy result, a perfect cure in a short time. I deem it my duty to give you this well merited testimonial of so great a medicine. You may publish this if you are fit. Very respectfully,

WM. F. GROVE.

SKIN DISEASES.

Swayne's All-healing Ointment is also a specific for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barber's Itch, Blotches, all Scaly, Crusty, Cutaneous Eruptions. Perfectly safe and harmless, even on the most tender infant. Price 50 cents, 3 boxes for $1 25. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price. ☞ Sold by all leading druggists. Prepared only by seldom, if ever fails to cure a cough. Even when the lungs have become much disordered, with night sweats, burning fever pains and oppression, it has effected wonderful cures.

A Remarkable Cure.

Dr. Swayne—Dear Sir—I feel it to be due to you and suffering humanity to give the following testimony respecting the wonderful curative powers of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla and Tar Pills. I was afflicted with a violent cough, pains in the side and breast, night sweats, sore throat, my bowels were costive, appetite nearly gone, and my stomach so very weak that my physician was at a loss to know what to do for me, as everything in the shape of medicine was rejected; spit at different times a pint of blood. I remained for months in this awful condition, and gave up all hopes of ever recovering. At this time you recommended the use of your syrup and pills, which immediately began to soothe, comfort and allay the violence of the cough, strengthened and healed my lungs: in short it has made a perfect cure of me, and I am now able to pursue my daily labor. Any person doubting the truth of the above statement will please call on or address me at the factory. EDWARD H. HAMSON, Engineer of Geo. Sweeney's Pottery, Ridge road below Wallace, Phila.

PHYSICIANS RECOMMEND IT

Dr. Thos. J. B. Rhoads, Boyertown, Berks co., Pa., writes, "Your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, I esteem very highly; have been selling and recommending it to my patients for many years, and it always proves efficacious. It has made some remarkable cures in this section, and I consider it the best remedy with which I am acquainted."

Price, $1. Six bottles for $5. Describe symptoms in all communications, and address letters to DR. SWAYNE & SON, 330 North Sixth street, Philadelphia. No charge will be made for advice. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine generally.

TESTIMONIALS.

The N. Y. Times says: "Waters' Orchestrion Chime Organ" is a beautiful little instrument, simply perfect. The Chime of two and one-half octave bells and the artistic effects capable of being produced by the player are singularly fine.

The tone is full, clear and resonant, and a very interesting effect is produced with the chime of bell.—Christian Union.

The Waters' Pianos are well known among the very best. We are enabled to speak of these instruments with confidence from personal knowledge.—N. Y. Evangelist.

We can speak of the merits of the Waters' Pianos from personal knowledge, as being of the very best quality.—Christian Intelligencer.

NOT FAR.

Not far, not far from the Kingdom,
Yet in the shadow of sin,
How many are coming and going,
How few are entering in!

Not far from the golden gateway,
Where voices whisper and wait;
Fearing to enter in boldly,
So lingering still at the gate;

Catching the strain of the music
Floating so sweetly along,
Knowing the song they are singing,
Yet joining not in the song.

Seeing the warmth and the beauty,
The infinite love and the light;
Yet weary, and lonely, and waiting,
Out in the desolate night!

Out in the dark and the danger,
Out in the night and the cold;
Though He is longing to lead them
Tenderly into the fold.

Not far, not far from the kingdom,
'Tis only a little space;
But it may be at last and forever,
Out of the resting place.

* * * * *

A ship came sailing and sailing
Over a murmuring sea,
And just in sight of the haven
Down in the waves went she.

And the spars and broken timbers
Were cast on a storm-beat strand;
And a cry went up in the darkness,
Not far, not far from the land.

Prayer.

BEFORE SABBATH MORNING SERMON,
BY [illegible] H. HEPWORTH, D. D.

[illegible] Thee, Almighty Father, that [illegible] possible for us to come to [illegible] tell Thee all the story of [illegible] and woes. Our eyes [illegible] Thee, and yet our hearts [illegible] hear every word [illegible] have never felt the Di[illegible] of Thine hand, and yet, [illegible] are sure that that [illegible] in the way by day [illegible] have never looked [illegible], and yet Thou hast [illegible] and seen us in, the [illegible], and in the midst of [illegible] Thy look is our [illegible] thank Thee that [illegible] Thee and confess to [illegible] we have sinned [illegible] how many wrong [illegible] cherished, and how [illegible] we have done. We [illegible] we can confess to [illegible] we have [illegible] and toward [illegible] ungenerous [illegible] great causes [illegible] fullest sym[illegible] that we can [illegible] there are [illegible] which ought [illegible] that we have [illegible] ought not to [illegible]

[illegible] Thou art our [illegible] that Thou [illegible] are dust, we [illegible] will forgive [illegible] and for all [illegible] lives, it [illegible] our penitent [illegible] to our best [illegible] to the [illegible] that has [illegible] forget [illegible] things [illegible] around a new mile-stone in life's solemn but beautiful journey, we may take upon our souls new resolutions and new responsibilities.

Father, help us that we may be born again; help us that we may be baptized with Thy spirit of self-sacrifice and self-denial. Oh, Christ Jesus help us that we may forget ourselves and remember others; that, in forgetting ourselves, we may find Thee, and in remembering others, we may get encouragement and good cheer for the hardships of life.

Father, bless those who have congregated here in their wonted place of worship that they may burn the incense of gratitude to Thee once more. So richly bless that they may be cleansed of all their impurities from this hour. So truly guide their thoughts that they may be strengthened for the great conflict of life which awaits them. Bless, Father, with Thy choicest benedictions, our dear brother who ministers to this people, who is not only loved by them, but by us, also, Father, hold him in the hollow of Thine hand, and protect in all ways. Give unto him the rod of Aaron and Moses, that when this people are thirsty because of their wanderings, he may smite the rough rock that from out of its depths may flow the blessed stream of eternal life to quench their thirst withal. Bless him, oh, God, that as he speaks to this people they may feel that it is with God's authority.

We pray that Thou will take into Thy special care and keeping all who are poor and all who are greatly tried; all who are sick and all who need great patience to endure Thine afflicting hand; all who are struggling amid the darkness of doubts, and who cannot find the light; all who are covered over with the stains of sin and guilt. Father, take them all into Thy keeping, and pour into their hearts Thy Fatherly love in such large abundance that it shall wash away all their uncleanness, and leave them white as snow.

Hear this, our morning prayer, and answer according to Thine own will, and in Thine own good time, and we will ascribe unto Thee, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, all praise, and dominion, and power, and glory, forever and ever, Amen.

The Republic of Liberia.

The New York Times has the following excellent article on Liberia:

During the thirty years preceding the war the opposing forces of "radicalism" and "conservatism" were represented by the Abolitionists and the Colonizationists. The latter worked through the American Colonization Society, which, in 1820, made the beginning of the present Republic of Liberia by sending 88 negroes, who first settled on Sherbero Island, (at the western end of Liberia,) but in 1822 removed to the mainland at Cape Mesurado, which is now the center of the population. This original expedition was taken at the public expense, Congress having appropriated $100,000 in 1819 to carry back "surreptitiously imported" Africans. The prevalent idea, however, was that, as the negro came from Africa, he ought to go back, and no distinction was attempted between those of African birth and those of African descent; sustained by moderate contributions, the society went on in a quiet way until the war intervened and changed the conditions of the case. Then the plea was urged that fusion of, and concord between, the two races are alike impossible, and that in this country the colored race will always be virtually if not legally slaves; to both white and black, it was said that only in his own country could the negro ever become a man and have a chance for himself. Colonization efforts were not relaxed; up to 1872 there had been sent out by the parent society, 13,958; by the Maryland branch, 1,227; by the Government, 5,722; total, 20,907. Two trips have been made this year, the latter very recently.

Liberia occupies the southern corner of the north-west coast of Africa, being what is known as the "grain coast;" it has a coast line of [illegible] miles, and covers about 100,000 square miles, of which about [illegible] are occupied. The population is estimated at 701,000, aborigines, and the 21,000 emigrants from this country. The chief farming region is on the principal river, the [illegible], at the mouth of which is [illegible] the capital, with an estimated population of 13,000. From 1870 the public revenues [illegible] a year, of which [illegible] from Customs duties; [illegible] duties were [illegible] and the expenditures at $115,500. The first public debt was contracted in 1871, when a loan of $500,000 fifteen-year 7 per cent. bonds were negotiated in London at 85. The Government is modeled upon that of this country. Information obtainable respecting the productiveness and growth of Liberia is exceedingly meagre, and its commerce is so slight that the statistics are not seperately made up. The exports from Great Britain to the "western coast of Africa" were $9,082,095 in 1871, and the imports $4,381,800; the exports rose in the next year and the imports in the two following years, but in 1875 the former had sunk to $8,255,355, and the latter to $3,462,090. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, this country sent to Liberia 1,100 barrels of flour, $7,403 worth of fish and oysters; there is also recorded an export of butter and cheese during twenty years past, but not exceeding $5,000 value in any years. Something more is, of course, included in such unseperated items as "all other countries," and also in indirect trade through Great Britain, that country, for reasons unimportant at present to specify, having the bulk of Liberian commerce. The chief articles of exports are palm-oil, rice, ivory, dye-woods, ginger and coffee; the last is claimed to be so superior in quality that a good demand has arisen for it, and 70,000 coffee plants have been sent to Brazil and California.

As to the advantages of Liberia for emigration there is a great dispute. The Colonization Society has appropriated $5,000 to carry out the latest lot of emigrants and support them until they can produce crops upon land which is given them at a nominal price. Rev. Abraham Hansom, formerly Resident Minister of the United States, testifies to the general growth and prosperity of the colony, and so does Bishop Gilbert Haven, who has lately made an official examination of the missions of his Church in Western Africa; so does Commodore Shufeldt, who has twice visited Liberia, and letters of like tenor from residents to their friends in this country. On the other hand, Senator Bruce, of Mississippi, has written an earnest letter of remonstrance, arguing that the negro in America is not African, but American; that he has no advantages here which he can afford to abandon in order to go to Liberia, where "he would find a farm without either a plow or the beasts of burden to draw it, a land without roads and without vehicles of transportation, a community without a system of public schools, a Republic without a press." Mr. J. Milton Turner, Resident Minister, has been more minute in discouragement. He says that cutlasses, hoes and bill-hooks are used for agriculture, and that there is not a plow in the colony; that although horses are found in the interior, neither horses, mules or donkeys can endure the sea-coast climate; that miasma prevails during half the year, and the heat of the sun the other half makes work almost impossible to any but the natives; that acclimation is a process so severe that only the strongest survive it; that Liberia has never yet been able to produce food enough for home consumption, and has to import even rice from England; that flour has never been below $14 a barrel, butter $1 a pound, and hams $5 to $8 each; finally, that at the end of six months, after outside aid ceases, the emigrants are left nearly helpless and so anxious to get back that he has never known of the sailing of a vessel to this country without a dozen applications for passage.

In considering these conflicting statements it should not be forgotten that Liberia is fully tropical, lying between extremes of 4½° and 9½° of latitude, the same belt of latitude comprising the northern States of South America, Central and unexplored Africa, Ceylon and the Pacific Island—all of this territory barbarian or semi-civilized. Of course, this peculiarity in the equatorial belt is not purely accidental; man will be what his climate makes him, and he can never, in one generation or fifty, become superior to it. As nature is fervid and bountiful, man is lazy and has more time than energy. There are no good reasons why the negro should abandon civilization in order to try the experiment of building up a Republic in the torrid zone. If he has less ability than the whites as an independent colonist, his risks are all the greater from that fact; if he is equal to the white on a fair field, surely it would be throwing away the advantages of position in this country. Everything is in his favor here except the single fact of his inferior social position, and as to that time and patience are the only remedy. His labor is in demand here, if anywhere in the world, and his social position must be left for time to work out with the other problem of his labor. It is only thirteen years since he ceased to be a chattel, and those who feed his restlessness by urging that he can never prosper in the United States are not good advisers.

"If Thou Hadst Known."

Jerusalem was standing in all her pride and splendor. The pinnacles of her gorgeous temple sparkled amid the glories of an eastern sunset. Her palaces and halls echoed to the voice of mirth, and her dwellings were filled with wealth and luxury. The publican was feasting his guests on the fruits of extortion. The Pharisee was pompously praying at the corners of the streets. The common people, in busy crowds, were seeking pleasure or profit. The hum of business, the noise of mirth, the sound of the viol, the tabret, and the pipe; the ever swelling, ever varying music of city life, in its manifold strains of gladness and grief, were proof that the people there "regarded not the work of the Lord, neither the operation of his hands."

To one looking only upon the outward appearance, Jerusalem, thus filled with wealth and splendor, with joy and song, would seem to be fortunate and happy. The lover of nature standing over against the city by the Mount of Olives, would see in the magnificent view before him enough to kindle his whole soul with a glow of admiration. Yet, when Jesus beheld the city, on his way thither, accompanied by a joyous multitude, he duly silenced their acclamations, and stood in mute sorrow, with his eye fixed on the scene. As he gazed he wept. With tears of compassionate grief he emphasized the exclamation, "If thou hadst known!"

Thus, while all was fair and auspicious to the eye of one looking simply on the outward appearance, Jesus saw beyond the surface of things an impending, fearful doom. The beautiful city was soon to be laid waste. Unutterable distress was soon to consume the people. Not one stone was to be left on another of that temple whose fame had filled all nations. The day of gracious visitation was just closing. The time of bitter desolation was just at hand, and she knew it not. Therefore, while others rejoice in her apparent glory, Jesus, through tears of pity said, "If thou hadst known!"

Alas! too often it is thus with men as with cities. To us they seem fair and prosperous, and we call them fortunate and happy; when he who looks on the heart, and knows the end, discerns before them a doom most fearful. Mercies abused, ordinances despised, grace rejected, demand that mercy give place to wrath. The oncoming doom we see not. The rising storm of wrath we hear not. Often those who stand on the very brink of perdition so charm us with their outward graces, or kindle our admiration by their successes that we cry, "Fortunate," "happy," while Jesus is saying, with pity in his heart, "If thou hadst known!"

The young man is in the flush of a remarkable apparent success. Whatever he puts his hand to seems to prosper. Wealth, position, influence, worldly honors, these all come at his bidding, and he stands upon the summit of a worldly prosperity for which thousands count him happy. With all his other acquirements, however, he has not yet secured the one thing needful. He is too deeply immersed in business, too eager in the pursuit of honors, too restlessly ambitious of worldly success, to trouble himself about things unseen and eternal. He is grasping a monopoly worth millions, and has it fairly at hand! He is striving for a position in the ranks of men of renown, and has been welcomed to the high places of power! Success is written upon his escutcheon that in characters that kindle admiration and envy. "Happy child of fortune!" cry the multitude who witness his progress and covet his apparent prosperity. But there is One who has other words to utter over this prosperous worldling. Jesus, knowing that death is at the door, that amid all this outward prosperity his gospel has been neglected, his cross despised, his grace slighted, looks with compassionate pity on this restless aspirant, and says, as when he looked from Olivet upon Jerusalem, "If thou hadst known!"

The daughter of luxury and pride—beauty has clothed her with its charms. The dance borrows its chiefest spell from the fascination of her graceful movements. Taste throws all its attractions into the adjustments of fashion. Wealth scatters its glittering symbols over her person, and she goes forth among the votaries of fashion, joyous and blithesome, to kindle in all who behold her the wish for a like profusion of nature's coveted gifts. Some admire, some envy, some covet—all exclaim, "How fortunate! happy!" Yet, through these exclamations of friends and admirers, a voice is forced upon the ear of faith, having quite another tone. It is the voice of Jesus who, from his despised glory and rejected throne, seeing the arrow of the destroyer just entering that thoughtless heart, looks down in pity upon this lover of pleasure more than lover of God, and exclaims, "If thou hadst known!"

O, Christian, if we but hear it by faith above the din and bustle of these stirring times, no doubt the voice of Jesus would change our estimate of the real state of some men and women, of some towns and cities, aye, perhaps, even of some churches whose outward prosperity is great. If we would see by faith through the glare and splendor of that outward display, by which we are so easily misled, the face of Jesus, turned in tearful compassion upon worshipers where the form of godliness has parted company with its power, it would make us feel that, if to be a Christian is to be like Christ, then tears are quite as pertinent as smiles in our outlook upon a world neglecting its great salvation!—Christian Secretary.

The Dead Sea--Singular Facts.

The Dead Sea is about forty miles long, and about eight in width. On its north and west shores is a pebbly and muddy beach without shell or trace of living creature, so far as I have observed; no vegitation surrounds it, and for our usual noonday lunch we could obtain no shade from the sun. I had to use my umbrella, and can now understand Jonah's complaint over his withered gourd, and the beauty of the prophet's figure—"the shadow of a great rock in a weary land!" On its banks, near its junction with the Jordan, are a number of reeds, but they were perfectly withered and brittle, probably irrigated, however, by some stray streams from that river at the period of its annual overflow. Altogether the scene was the wildest and most deathlike of any I have ever seen and had an extremely depressing effect on the spirits, for which, no doubt, an unwonted atmosphere was also to blame. So intense was the heat at this level—the lowest spot on the earth's surface, being 1300 feet under the level of the Mediterranean Sea, and more than 3000 under that of Jerusalem—that three of our party who made a tour of the world said that they had never experienced heat so intolerable, not under the equator, nor yet on the Red Sea voyage. It seems obvious that the Dead Sea water surface was, at no very distant era, several hundred feet higher in level. This fact, I think, incidentally indicates the former fertility of Palestine, because a luxurious vegitation would produce more rain, and consequently a larger volume of water supply by the Jordan and its tributaries than in modern times. Some say a miasma arises from the slime beds of the Dead Sea, which induces depression of spirits and excessive fatigue. This is possible but probably imagination has something to do with the feeling. True it is, however, that neither man nor living thing tarries many hours in its vicinity, nor is a boat seen on its solitary waters, although from their high specific gravity everything floatable swims on its surface with remarkable buoyancy. Even the naval officer who undertook to survey its boundaries and sound its depths has done so very imperfectly, driven off, if I remember aright, by sickness. The waters of the Dead Sea contain a fourth part of solid matter, of which one-half is common salt. It is said the bottom or bed of the sea is asphalt, and lumps of bitumen are frequently seen on its shores, as are also flakes of sulphur. The sense of solitude is awful, nor can I imagine any punishment more severe than to be left here alone even for a single week. The valley of the Dead Sea is surely the most extraordinary feat of geography. Its waters have been sounded, and found 1320 feet deep, so that its bottom is nearly a mile lower than Jerusalem! Ever filling and without egress, yet it is never full—assuredly no unfit type of the "valley of the shadow of death!" Bathing our hands in its waters, a disagreeable feeling remained until we had afterwards washed them in the Jordan further on in the afternoon.

Taking the Stone Away.

Now, it is a remarkable characteristic of Jesus that He never spoke an unnecessary word nor performed an unnecessary deed. He never did for another what that person could do for himself. There seemed to be omnipotence at His command. He claimed that there was. He performed acts which go as far as acts can go to prove the possession of limitless power. All disease was under His control. He could instantaneously heal lepers, open the eyes of the blind, unstop the ears of the deaf, and give tone and health to chronic paralytics. All nature seemed under His command. He could still storms, and multiply bread a thousand-fold, even indefinitely, and change water into wine. He was the master of the grave. He sent His summons through its gate into eternity and called back the spirits of the long-departed to re-inhabitate their former bodies. There is no perceptible limit to His power.

And yet He never performed a miracle to gratify His own passion or those of others. He never exerted His great power for display. If Jesus were a mere man to whom Almighty God had for a season delegated His almightiness, it is inconceivable that He should not at some time have put forth His hand to gratify the curiosity of His beloved friends, or to indulge His own desire for display, or bind the hands of His foes, or destroy them with his word of power. But he never did. I never knew a man, never heard of a man, find ~~no~~ record in any history of a man, so continent, so gloriously self-controlling, that he would not, at least once in his life-time, break over the bounds and exert his delegated power selfishly. Jesus never did. Then God never does. It is the merest fanaticism to desire and pray that God will give us a sign, to do a wonder, and set the universe agape at His monstrous power. He never did. He never will. If His power seems glorious to us, it is because that power is glorious. All that men see is what Habakkuk calls "the hiding of His power." God does only what God cannot leave undone.—Rev. Dr. Deems, in Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for September.

A Bible Incident.

A correspondent of the Pacific Christian Advocate writes: Some years ago, there lived in the State of Rhode Island, twin brothers brought up together, each and both exhibiting precisely the same mental and moral cast and habits. This state of things continued to about the age of sixteen, when a neighboring man put into the hand of one of them that very notable book called, "Paine's Age of Reason." About the same time, a friend put into the hand of the other, a pocket Bible. These gifts, it seems, became the books of their respective owners, and as might have been expected from this very date, the characters and habits of these two young gentlemen, twin brothers, as they were, began to diverge the one from the other. The one, I need not say which, began a course of vice, the other a course of virtue. The one continued to increase in profligacy, dissipation and debauchery; while the other increased in his knowledge of the principles and practice of true religion. The one became a vagrant, a vagabond upon the earth, while the other became the industrious, the useful, the contented and the happy citizen. The one a gambler by profession and occupation, while the other was exalted to a seat in the legislature of the State.

I hardly need write that one of these dear young men died upon a gallows, in the State of Kentucky, for the crime of murder; while the other lived and died honored and esteemed by all who knew him.

Now, I know I need not ask the young men of this land, the fate of which of these brothers they would wish to share, but I may ask the more mature, the final destiny of which of these two men they would wish to share in the great day of God's accounts. The one who gave the "Age of Reason," or the one who gave the Bible?

The Fatal Cup.

It was a bridal scene. The wine-cup passed from lip to lip. One gentleman refused. "Can't you pledge friendship in a social glass?" pleaded the bridegroom. "I dare not, I can not." Then the beautiful bride, with bewitching smiles, and eyes that were brighter than the jewels on her fingers, held out the poison to him, saying, "Surely you will not refuse me?" The color mounted his cheek. He faltered. He yielded to the Circe of the banquet. The first taste fired his lust, and he ceased not until he was a sot again.

A few years after, one quiet summer's evening, a wretched outcast reeled into the open door of a pleasant home, when a lady was just drinking a glass of wine, allowing her little one to sip. The vagabond sprang forward with a maniac's frenzy, raised his arm, dashed the cup to the floor, and shouted, "Murder him if you like, but not with that! Look at me. You made me what I am. I was respected and honored. You tempted me at your wedding. Now there is not a reptile I would not gladly change places with. I must soon stand before God's bar. On your head rests my blood!" A gurgling sound was heard in his throat. He fell at her feet a corpse. He sleeps in a nameless grave, the victim of cruel, though thoughtless seduction.

The above is a telling incident, and should lead every one to beware how they tempt their weaker neighbor. Above all, let no woman use her wit, her beauty, or her social position, to snare the feet of their associates, but rather use their winning grace to guide, and guard, and save.

The Spirit World.

The very grave is a passage into the beautiful and the glorious. We have laid our friends in the grave, but they are around us. The little children that sat upon our knees, into whose eyes we looked with love, whose little hands have clasped our neck, on whose cheek we have imprinted the kiss—we can almost feel the throbbing of their hearts to-day. They have passed from us—but were are they? Just beyond the line of the invisible. And the fathers and mothers who educated us, who directed and comforted us, where are they but just beyond the line of the invisible? The associates of our lives, that walked along life's pathway, those with whom we took sweet counsel, and who dropped from our side, where are they but just beyond us?—not far away—it may be very near us, in the heaven of light and love. Is there anything to alarm us in the thought of the invisible? No! it seems to me that sometimes when our heads are on the pillow, there come whispers of joy from the spirit land, which have dropped into our hearts thoughts of the sublime and beautiful and glorious, as though some angel's wing passed over our brow, and some dear one sat by our pillow and communed with our hearts to raise our affections towards the other and better world.—Bishop Simpson.

Sin.

The very terms of evangelical religion—terms not of human device, but of divine revelation—salvation, redemption, forgiveness, cleansing, renewal, grace, and all, declare that there is such a thing as sin; that it is a reality in man that endangers and destroys his life, and from which he must be saved if he is to live well and hereafter. Sin in its reality gives color to all man thinks or feels about himself, or nature around him and God above him. There never was a vainer effort, then, than that so much vaunted at present to blot out the fact and the reality of sin in man. The fact and the consciousness of the fact cannot be blotted out without destroying the soul itself, into which sin has so deeply entered.

Grief banished by wine will come again,
And come with a deeper shade;
Leaving, perchance on the soul a stain,
Which sorrow hath never made.
Then fill not the tempting glass for me,
If mournful, I will not be mad;
Better sad, because we are sinful, be,
Than sinful because we are sad.

It is thought that the Texas cattle drive this year will foot up 300,000. Most of them go by Dodge City up the Arkansas and Purgatoire into the Platt Valley. By the introduction of blooded stock the quality has been greatly improved during the last four years, and these plain-fed beeves are getting the best prices in Eastern markets.

Every year a race over 20,000 miles of ocean occurs between the tea ships, to win the honor of landing the first cargo of the new crop in England. This year the Gleneagle has won, bringing nearly two millions pounds of new tea from Han Kow to gravesend in thirty-seven days, one hour and four minutes, the best time on record. The race was a very close one, and off of Dover the Gleneagle was twenty-seven minutes behind the Glenfoulas.

The proposed tunnel under the Hudson to connect New York with Jersey City will be about four miles in length. It will start in New York in the neighborhood of Washington square. The Jersey City end will be in the so-called Pavonia district. The tunnel in the deepest part of the river, at ebb-tide, must support a weight of water equal to sixty-two feet in height, which will exert an enormous pressure on the structure. Only on the New York side will the workmen be obliged to tunnel through rock. The work, it is thought, may be completed within two years.

Ever since work was stopped on the Washington Monument, a stout rope has hung down the shaft from the derrick at the top, and on resuming work it became a question how to reach the top and make a good connection for hoisting necessary tackle. After testing the old and weather-worn rope a rigger volunteered to climb up, carrying a new rope up with him. Up he went, and reaching the top in safety waved his hat and cut the old rope down. The surprise of those on the ground can be imagined when the old rope on striking the ground, fell into a thousand pieces. It was found to be completely rotted through, and crumbled to pieces on being handled. The wonder is that it sustained its own weight.

The number of yellow fever deaths during twenty-four hours ending with noon to-day (Tuesday) as reported by the Board of Health, is five. This is a decrease from the reports of several days past. We doubt not the total deaths from all causes in this city at the present time will compare favorably with that of any other city of the size in the country. Whether the fever is to become epidemic remains to be seen. In the report of yesterday of deaths from all causes we notice the following: Mrs. T. Phillips, colored, age 104, disease, old age.

The Church.

The Church is represented in God's word as a family. Out of this grows the relation of brethren. "All ye are brethren," says Jesus. "For the cause," says the apostle, "I bow my knee unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in Heaven and earth is named." "Now; therefore, ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God." Thus the universal brotherhood of all who love and serve God comes fully out in the church of our Lord Jesus Christ. No other religion ever taught this truth. It was very imperfectly conceived even in the Jewish religion. Its full development was left for Christianity. It was the idea of Christ, through the establishment of his church, to restore mankind to the fraternal relations which sin had severed. With the restoration of fraternal relations would grow up love, sympathy and even equality. Not that the Christian religion is leveling in the sense of destroying all distinctions of position and rank. These distinctions are acknowledged, but they are freed from all that pride, sense of superiority and reserve which prevent their possessors from "condescending to men of low estate" and keep them from performing all the offices of recognition, love and service which are due from man to man, and particularly to our fellow Christians. We are, indeed, to do good to all our fellow-men, but especially to the household of faith. This, we admit, is the ideal of the Christian church. The reality falls far below the ideal. But just to the extent that Christ's idea prevails in the working of his church, to that extent will its members recognize each other as brethren. In every way will they show by mutual interest and sympathy that they are one in heart and hope. The common bond of faith and love binds them to Christ and the same bond binds them to one another. This feeling of Christian brotherhood was above race and condition. Christian masters and mistresses felt it in the days of slavery towards their Christian servants. It was shown in many beautiful instances between the early converted Roman masters and their converted slaves. Under its inspiring presence learning, riches, power place no bars of approach to the unlearned. the poor and the helpless. All oppression of our fellow-men, all withholding of rights, all indifference to the wants, sufferings, comfort and elevation of our fellow-men will cease. Selfishness will entirely disappear.

Some Notes of Travel.

The "Life of Dr. John Eadie," by Dr. James Brown, is a most readable memoir, whether we consider its subject or its author. The one occupied a very conspicuous place in the Scottish Church, as does the other, and both have made themselves famous by their writings. There is much that is interesting in the memoir. Our attention was particularly awakened by some of the Doctor's notes regarding the Holy Land, where he had traveled. He was sadly disappointed with Jerusalem and thought it not for a moment to be compared with Samaria, which ought, on all accounts, to have been the capital of the country. "Jerusalem is a very dirty town, but looks well from a distance." He describes the Holy City as a "most unholy place." It is a dirty and most smelly hole, a network of poor, tumble down bazaars. Every man works and sells in front of his little miserable shop or booth. But the hills around are the grand old scenery, though Bethesda is now a nasty puddle and filth and smells are everywhere. "Samaria in situation is grand and lovely. In fertile valleys and fine scenery it far excels Jerusalem. The Church of the Holy Sepulchre is a grand delusion. The rubbish they show in Jerusalem is marvellous, the house of Dives and the spot where Lazarus lay, nay, the stones that would have cried out."

Dr. Eadie was more pleased and impressed with places that people are not often so anxious to visit. "The Dead Sea," he says, "is, I think, by far the most beautiful scene I have seen in the South; no apparent curse there save silence and solitude, and not unlike one point on Loch Awe. Naaman was right in [illegible] Abana and Pharpar in [illegible] with the Jordan. We [illegible]ped at the latter of the two [illegible] of Damascus. It comes [illegible] cold, clear, sparkling and [illegible] Hermon clad with snow [illegible] line. The Abana is [illegible] as it [illegible] and circu- [illegible] and groves [illegible] are of sur- [illegible] and [illegible]. It [illegible] Paradise. 'Straight street' still exists, though it is being altered and made miserably narrow by new erections."

All through his notes of travel Dr. Eadie laments the shameful misgovernment of these lands under the heel of the Turk. With good government, he frequently exclaims, what might they not become? The people are everywhere oppressed and wretched, especially the women, who, along with the donkeys, do all the drudgery, and both get hard usage in life and become prematurely old. A great part of the population are quite fair. The Jewish and Christian women do not cover their faces.

It being suppose that shepherds always lead their flocks in Palestine, Dr. Eadie remarks at the close of his travels, "I have never seen but once a man leading his flock; he always drives them as at home." He corrects the line of the Scottish paraphrase, "Bethlehem's plains by night." "It is wrong," he says; "there is no plain near it; all rugged and uncultivated valleys."

The Branded Hand.

As will be seen by the dispatches in another column, the monument to Capt. Jonathan Walker was unveiled at Muskegon, Michigan, on the 1st inst. Next to Mrs. Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin, perhaps nothing did more to fire the hearts of the people of the North with anti-slavery sentiments than the story of Capt. Walker and his branded hand. He was convicted in 1844 of attempting to aid some slaves to escape to one of the Bahama Islands off the coast of Florida. Being captain of a vessel he had received seven colored people as passengers; was captured and carried back to Key West, thence to Pensacola for trial. Of the result Mr. Pillsbury says in his address on the occasion of unveiling the monument:

"The sentence after trial was: 'One hour in the pillory, pelted with unmerchantable eggs, one year in prison for each slave, seven in all; $600 for each slave, and the costs, and be branded on the right hand with a large S. by a red-hot branding iron.' All the bills for fines and costs were made to exceed $100,000. A boy who saw the bad eggs thrown, cried shame, when a ruffianly wretch tore off a bandage which had been put on to protect the face of the victim. That boy was arrested, taken into another county, and fined for his heinous offense. The branding iron had to be made for the occasion. One blacksmith refused to make it. He said he made such to be used on hogs, horses and cattle, but not on men. Another was found to make it, but refused his forge to heat it when it came to be used. He swore there was but one fire in the universe that should heat an iron for such a use. But, at length, all things were prepared. The instrument of inquisitorial torture and torment was sent broiling and hissing deep into the flesh of a hand that was ever open to succor the poor and the outcast; but never, no never, was once lifted in any unrighteous cause."

On one side of the monument are inscribed the following two verses of Whittier's celebrated poem, "The Branded Hand:"

> "Then lift that manly right hand,
> Bold plowman of the wave,
> Its branded palm shall prophesy
> Salvation to the slave."
> "Hold up its fire-wrought language,
> That whoso reads may feel
> His heart swell strong within him,
> His sinews changed to steel."

Fredrick Douglass had been invited to be present at the unveiling, but being prevented by business, sent a letter from which we take the following extract:

Yes, I knew Jonathan Walker—and I knew him well—knew him to love him and honor him as a true man, a friend to humanity, a brave but noiseless lover of liberty, not only for himself, but for all men; one who possessed the qualities of hero and martyr, and was ready to take any risks to his own safety and personal care to save his fellowmen from slavery. It is meet and right that one who, such as he was, should have his grave marked as you propose. His name deserves remembrance, and should be mentioned with those of John Brown, Charles T. Torrey, William S. Chaplin, Elijah P. Lovejoy, Thomas, Work and Barr, Calvin, Fairbanks, Abraham Lincoln and other noble men who suffered at the hands of the slave power. Jonathan Walker is not less entitled to grateful memory than the most honored of them all. He was one who felt satisfied with the applause of his own soul. What he attempted was not to attract public notice. He was one of the free, dashing billows of the Atlantic when the voices of nature spoke to his soul with the grandest emphasis of love and truth, and responsive to those voices, as well as to those of his own heart, he welcomed the panting fugitives from slavery to the safety of his deck, though in doing so he exposed himself to stocks, prison, branding-irons, and, it might have been, to death. I well remember the sensation produced by the exhibition of his branded hand. It was one of the few atrocities of slavery that roused the justice and humanity of the North to the death-struggle with slavery. Looking into his simple, honest face, it was easy to see that on such a countenance as his no trace of infamy could be made by stocks, stripes, nor branding irons. S. S. meant at the South slave-stealer, but was read by the North and all civilized men everywhere as slave savior. His example of self-sacrifice nerved us all to more heroic endeavor in behalf of the slave. My dear sir, I feel it a great privation that I cannot be personally present with you on the 1st of August and assist in the ceremonies in honorable memory of true hearted Jonathan Walker, but I shall be with you in spirit and purpose.

Very truly yours,
FRED'K K. DOUGLASS.

The Grand Jury on the State Printing.

Last week a report was presented by the Grand Jury to Hon. Wm. R. Whitaker, Judge of the Superior Criminal Court, of parish of Orleans, relative to the cost of the State printing. The statements made by the Grand Jury are rather startling. We have heard much about the deliverance of this State from the hand of the spoiler, and the great reforms that have been inaugurated, and it all sounds very pleasant. But every little while something like this official presentation of the Grand Jury claims our attention and disturbs our tranquility. Can there be such a thing as a reform that itself needs reforming? We make the following extract from the report referred to:

Since there is no authority in act No. 49 for printing two thousand volumes such as the State Printer has been paid for upon the bill dated March 21, 1878, and since the last clause of section 20 of act No. 49 expressly repeals "all laws conflicting therewith and all laws and parts of laws on the same subject matter," the Grand Jury can find no authority for the printing of such a book. If, however, the printing of these two thousand volumes has ever been authorized, the work has not been done in accordance with paragraphs 2 and 5 of section 10 of act No 49, as those paragraphs are changed by the contract, under which said work is claimed to have been performed. In the first place, in the bill, a certified copy of which accompanies this report, pay is claimed for printing 2000 volumes of 2187 pages each, charged under section 10, paragraph 2 of act No. 49, as follows: 250 copies of 2287 pages each at $1 per page, and 1750 copies at twenty-five cents per page for each 100 copies. Paragraph 2 of section 10, as changed by the contract made with Geo. W. Dupree as State Printer, and dated December 3, 1877, reads as follows: "The journals of each house shall be printed in the English language in book form, in minion type, and made up from the general matter as published in the official newspaper, the pages to be forty-five ems pica in length, including head and foot lines, and two columns in width, the book to be stitched and covered with colored paper, and delivered to the Secretary of State within the time fixed by law, for which there shall be allowed not more than seventy centy per page for 250 copies, and for each additional 100 copies not more than eighteen cents per page, the required number of copies to be ordered at one time."

Upon the testimony of experts in printing the Grand Jury believe that in this book, for which charge is thus made, under the paragraph 2, section 10, act No. 49, above recited, there is not a line of minion type to be found; the book being printed in long primer, a much larger type, by the use of which, and being leaded as it is, the volume is made to contain more than one-third more pages than if it had been printed in the style of type expressly provided for in the contract.

Again, charge is made for printing this book at the rate of $1 per page, when the contract provides for but seventy cents per page for the first 250 copies, and at the rate of twenty-five cents per page for the subsequent 1750 copies, for which the contract says that but eighteen cents shall be allowed. Thus by the use of larger type than the contract provides for, and by an overcharge of twenty-five cents per page in one instance, and of seven cents per page in the other, the bill is very largely increased.

Again, the second item in this bill is for 2,419,000 ems extra rule, figure work. Upon the testimony of experts the Grand Jury believe that there is in these figures an overcharge for nearly if not quite 1,000,000 ems, which would reduce this single item some $800 or more. In view of the above recited facts the Grand Jury would respectfully suggest that the attention of the Executive and law officers of this State be at once called to this matter, with a view to taking such steps as may most directly lead to the recovery of any amount of which the State may have been defrauded by the payment of the bill above referred to.

The Round Lake Trouble.

The New York Sun gives the following account of the origin of the trouble this year at Round Lake, N. Y. It is to be hoped that in the future everything may be avoided which would interfere with the success of the grand religious gatherings at that delightful summer resort. The Sun says:

"A great attraction added this year at a cost of nearly $10,000, was a model of the Holy Land, on a scale of two feet and a half to the mile. A hundred workmen were employed during March, April and May in its construction, under the direction of Rev. Dr. Wythe. Round Lake, a pretty sheet of water represents the Mediterranean Sea. The surface of Palestine, with all her villages, and the city of Jerusalem is reproduced in minature. The visitor can ride in a small boat to Joppa and reach Jerusalem by a very brief walk. Mount Hermon towers to a height of twenty-five feet, and the Jordan is a tiny stream. The coloring is natural, and all is accurate. Everything is labelled; the spectator might almost believe he was looking at the real Palestine the wrong way through a powerful field glass.

All these sights and sounds, to say nothing of the mineral spring, and a series of magic lantern exhibitions, were regarded as sure to draw multitudes. The means of revenue were discussed, and it was resolved to charge, during the Sunday-school assembly, from July 16 to 26, an admission fee of twenty-five cents, or one dollar for the ten days. This plan was put into practice, and immediately the most violent opposition was evinced by the people of the country. The attendance was far below what had been expected, but the displeasure was not shown solely by staying away. Farmers refused to sell provisions to be used at Round Lake, and the hotel proprietor found it impossible for several days to get a supply of milk. The neighbors sent a petition to Washington, to have the Round Lake Post-office moved out of the grounds, and an order to that effect came back promptly. A public road runs through the grounds, and, as a result of a quarrel about it, President Hillman had a tunnel dug underneath. At length the railroad company grumbled. The traffic was not half that of last year, and the admission fee was regarded as the reason. Mr. Hillman has therefore made a concession to public feeling. The grounds are now free, but Palestine has been fenced in, and can be seen only by paying the twenty-five cents.

Important Notice.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of Kosciusko, Miss., having purchased the beautiful property formerly owned and used by the white people as a male academy, have changed the same into a church, and appointed August fifteenth. at eleven o'clock a. m., as the time for the dedication. Rev. H. R. Revels, D.D., will preach the dedication sermon. Other distinguished ministers will take part in the services. There will be held in connection, also, a grand Sunday-school Jubilee. Excursion trains will run to Kosciusko on the occasion, one from Water Valley on the north and another from Jackson on the south. All are invited—we expect a grand gather of Methodiste and their friends here on that day.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

A special invitation to the editor to be present at the dedication accompanied the above, but his engagements North at the time will prevent his acceptance.

The demand for the five-cent Testaments issued by the American Bible Society is so great that it has led to the issue of 1,000 copies per day.

From Waxahachie, Texas.

I write you in regard to the welfare of our people in northwestern Texas. I was raised at Huntsville, Ala. It has never been my goo fortune to look upon a more beautiful country than this, Ellis county, Texas. The white people are clever; the school system good. This county could give employment to a dozen more as good ministers as Rev. J. W. Robinson. We need more good preachers and school teachers. Those who have a good English education. Lands are cheap, and all of us can get homes in this country that wish. There is no good reason for a man to say that he can not make a living in Texas, and educate his children where everything is so plentiful. A good work horse can be had for thirty dollars, milch cows, $20, bacon five cents per pounds, and beef eight cents, best flour four cents, dry goods cheap accordingly. The demand for labor good at all times.

From Our Mission Rooms.

Two cases of malignant persecution of our members have occurred in our Hing Hwa work. Persistent demands were made in both cases for contributions to idolatrous rites and repairs of temples. This not being complied with, the crops in the field were destroyed in one case, and in the other, Brother Ling Seng Ki was caught, taken to the temple and tortured, and some twenty dollars extorted from him with the threat to treat others in a similiar manner if caught. M. M. De Lano, esq., our U. S. consul, is vigorously pressing the case before the provincial authorities. There is quiet and peace in others parts of our work.

In April last, a fire broke out in the neighborhood of our Ching Sing Tong property in Foo chow, which consumed the property on three sides of our church including our newly-built book-store. The new church building and two personages were marvelously spared. The little spire over the bell of the church took fire and the building would have burned but for the diligent efforts of the members, aided by the neighbors, who formed a line of water-carriers from the canal to the roof and at the opportune moment pushed the burning spire on to the pavement below. The hearty thanks of the mission are due to Hu Keng Mi and others for their noble efforts in saving our new church.

The annual meeting of the Japan mission commenced in Yokohama, July 2.

Brother Correl is making a six weeks tour through the Shinsha country and is having fine success.

Dr. Maclay has been unable, in consequence of great pressure of engagements during two years past, to meet with the committee for translating the New Testament into Japanese. Recently, however, owing to the absence of one of the members of the committee, he has been meeting with them. This, added to all his other duties, taxes his strength unduly.

Brother Davison, of Nagasaki, has traveled through a portion of Japan devastated by the late Satsuma rebellion, and was most cordially received by the people. He has been greatly cheered by his experiences during the trip.

Brothers Harris, of Hakodati, Davisson, of Hirosaki, and Soper, of Tokio, are all laboring vigorously and with marked success in their respective fielps.

The Sweden Annual Conference met in Goteborg, July 4th, Bishop Bowman presiding.

According to the reports of the preachers on Stockholm district that there has been an increase of 400 during the year past, and the total increase will probably be greater throughout the Conference this year than last.

The resistance upon the part of the Lutheran Church to our presence and preaching in Sweden grows gradually less. Mission houses and schools are opened in several places, and there is a large attendance on the preaching. The land is open to us. In Mora and Dalarna friends beg for a pastor, offer rooms for a preacher and a large hall for preaching—all free of charge—and so fully anticipate a minister that they have planted a field with potatoes for his use. At Seffle a person of rank has given a lot for a chapel and building material worth 500 crowns, and the friends have collected between 400 and 500 crowns more toward the erection of a chapel. Four chapels were dedicated on the Stockholm district during the past year and three are in process of erection.

M. Waddington, Prime Minister of France, is a Protestant, and an active member of Pastor Fisch's Church in Paris. Five of nine heads of departments in the French government are of the same religious belief.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. W. McDonald, State Line, Miss.: "Our new church, 30x40 feet in size, has just been dedicated to the service of Almighty God. The indebtedness has all been paid with the exception of $34.00, which will soon be provided for. The sermon was preached by our presiding elder, Rev. M. Adams. Thirteen persons united with the church and five were baptized on the occasion."

Rev. P. M. Carmichael, West Point, Texas: "Our campmeeting just closed was a time long to be remembered on account of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon us. Such manifestations of the divine power were never witnessed here before. There were sixty-five conversions and there were sixty-three accessions on profession of faith, and two received from the Baptist and one from the A. M. E. Churches. We had the assistance in the services of Rev. P. Gates, E. Cogswell and J. Jarman from neighboring works, and also of several local preachers of the vicinity."

General Religious Items.

Nine Protestant denominations have now missions in Mexico. These employ ninety-eight missionaries. There are 137 congregations, 12,000 members and adherents, and forty-five Sunday and thirty-six day schools, with 1,137 scholars.

The Russian Greek Church possesses 38,602 churches, including cathedrals; 12,860 chapels and oratories; 18,887 arch-priests, priests, deacons and precentors; 56,500,000 members, of whom 29,000,000 are women and 27,000,000 are men. The sums received by the church during the year amount to about $9,000,000.

The Methodist Conferences across the water are held in the summer. Three of them have been in session—the Irish Wesleyan, the Primitive Methodist, and the Methodist New Connexion—and one, the British Wesleyan, is to meet soon at Bradford. The Irish Wesleyan Conference of this year, held in Dublin, will be remembered for two reasons. It admitted lay delegates and consummated the long desired union with the Irish Primitive Methodists.

According to the just published statistics of the Southern Presbyterian Church, while the number of ministers is stationary, the number of churches is increasing. Forty-three more churches are reported than 1877, although the excess of church organizations over church dissolutions is only reported at 23. The total number of churches is 1873, and of ministers and licentiates, 1117. The ruling elders number 5428, an increase of 306. The deacons numbered 3452, an increase of 114. They number together nearly 9000, an average of nearly five to a church.

General News Items.

Muskegon, Michigan, Aug. 1.—The unveiling of the monument to Jonathan Walker, of the branded hand, to place here to-day.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 1.—The Democratic State Convention met to-day, with full quotas of Delegates from all the counties. A resolution endorsing Gov. Hampton and other State officers, and renominating them, was adopted with a rising vote amid great enthusiasm. Gov. Hampton and others made speeches, which were vociferously applauded. The convention then adjourned.

London, Aug. 4.—The Government has released the Fenian prisoner, Robt. Burke, who was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for the attempted murder of a constable in London. It is confidently stated that the Government has promised to release nearly all the prisoners shortly.

New York, Aug. 3.—Secretary Sherman is still here. He expects before returning to Washington to have a conference with the bankers relative to resumption. Some prominent bankers say that they will urge him to begin paying out Gold on current indebtedness at once. A plan to put into circulation $5,000,000 of gold every fort-night in exchange for called-in bonds will be suggested as the best means to extinguish the ruling premium on gold.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Aug 1, 1878.
To Superintendent of Mint, New Orleans:

In consequence of the prevalence of Yellow fever in your city, and the death of the melter and refiner, it has been decided, after conference with and approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to intermit for ninety days active preparations for coinage at your Mint. Such repairs, however, as it may be necessary to make will be continued under the supervision of the Superintendent, assayer and coiner.

H. R. LINDERMAN,
Director of Mints.

London, Aug. 1.—A dispatch received from Rome announces the death this morning of Cardinal Franchi, the Pontifical Secretary of State. The Cardinal's death is deeply lamented by the Pope, who was not only greatly attached to him, but had the greatest confidence in his discretion and sagacity.

Cincinnati, Aug. 3.—The wholesale grocery house of R. M. Bishop & Co., of which the Governor of Ohio, R. M. Bishop, is the head, suspended payment to-day. The reason assigned is the heavy shrinkage in property. A meeting of their Eastern creditors will be held on Monday in New York city. No paper has gone to protest. Liabilities and assets so far unknown.

A Total Abstainer.

Mr. Barnum, the showman, is a total abstainer. He neither drinks nor smokes. In a recent conversation, he said:

Whatever I do, I do with my whole life; and it is easier for me to abstain entirely from beer, wine and liquor, than to be moderate in the use of them. From 1842–46, when I was with Tom Thumb in England, France, Belgium, and other countries, I got to liking ale, half-and-half, champagne dinners, etc. I kept pouring in and pouring in. When I returned home the habit was strong, and I broke it at once. I should have been in my grave now if I hadn't.

I was the first man in America who ever kept a place of amusement without a bar. More than that, I never gave a return check to persons in my shows. I won't have them going out between the acts and imbibing.

The New Hymnal.

August 18, 1878.—THE WIDOW OF NAIN.

SCRIPTURE.—Luke 7: 11-17.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not."—13.

TOPIC.—A compassionate Savior.

[Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.]

The Dead Carried Out (11,-12).—There was a great deal of significance in the meeting of those two processions by the gate of the city of Nain. One was headed by Death—the other by the Prince of Life. One was symbolic of the helplessness of humanity—the other the power of divinity. One represented the sorrow of this world—the other the imperishable joy of the world to come. One suggested the fall—the other the redemption. One spoke of the multitude which is subject to the grave and on their way to it—the other of the multitude which has been redeemed from its bondage, and which seeks a country that is an heavenly. Never two processions met where such weighty contrasts halted to front each other.

Note the circumstances under which this meeting transpired. He had with him "many of his disciples" and "much people." It was the day of his popularity. As yet that bitter and unrelenting persecution had not arisen, which ended, in his death, and which, when it did arise, caused the people to look upon him with distrust and made them timid of connecting themselves with him. The miracle of the day before probably made large accessions to the ranks of those who followed him. He was accompanied by a multitude, some of which were eager to behold other wonderful sights, and some of which were eager to hear the wonderful words that fell from his lips. They, as yet, were untroubled by a doubt as to his being, at least, a prophet sent from God, and were under no apprehensions felt on account of any hostility manifest by the chief priests and ruling classes of the Jews. The dawn of Christ's ministry was wonderfully fair. Who should have thought from it that his sun would set at noonday in clouds of darkest night!

With the widowed and bereaved mother, also, was "much people." The eminence of her affliction had drawn together a number unusually large. For she was mourning for the death of her only son—a grief the depth and bitterness of which has passed into a proverb. And that was sorrow enough—but before this she had parted with her husband. When her son died the last stay in life had been taken away from her—the last light had been extinguished in her dwelling. Her home now would be entirely empty when she returned. The demonstrative sympathetic grief of those around her could not much help a sorrow as deep as hers. Poor soul!—how little she dreamed that there could be consolation for desolation so utter—that for her there could be "the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness!" How little, too, did she realize God's purpose in bringing such a great multitude together! That Funeral procession was to be broken up into an assemblage of witnesses for him.

The Dead Restored (13, 15).—Luke says, with a choiceness of expression, which, under the circumstances, is notable, that "the Lord saw her." Great as was the previous miracle—no less than the calling of the soul back from the verge of the grave—yet he speaks of the one who did that by the ordinary title of "Jesus." But when he comes to tell the story of his restoring one from the dead, he cannot, even after years have passed, speak of the one who did that deed except as "Lord." For it was no mere man of extraordinary endowments, no prophet however gifted, who could utter such a word of power as that spoken by Christ on that memorable day. It was only the Lord himself who could give the word of command which should retenant a body with its departed soul.

"He had compassion on her." It is worth our while to dwell a little upon that fact. He marveled yesterday at the faith of the centurion, and, to-day, he has compassion on the sorely bereaved widow. In the midst of his most awe-inspiring deeds, how thoroughly approachable and winning is this wonderful being! And, was there ever an afflicted case upon earth, while he was here, and which he beheld, upon which he did not have compassion? There was no cripple but who was conscious of his sympathy, no impotent man but who saw how deep was his commiseration, and no one racked with pain but who felt the thrill of his pity even before he felt the thrill of the new life coursing through his veins which he called into being [illegible]. He [illegible] only recalled [illegible] to life, but he wept with Mary and Martha at his tomb. And when their brother was restored to them, we question whether they were more grateful for the restoration than they were for the gracious tears which he shed by the grave. His compassion was instant—"when the Lord saw her he had compassion on her." His approach was without appeal from any one. The pitiful sight had had an imploring language of its own that was sufficiently moving. Our distresses are, with the Lord, our strongest intercessors. He said unto her "Weep not." Even those two short words were spoken as "man never spake." There was something in them that caused the tears to stop their flow—a gentle authority which controlled her grief. Coupled with the news that there was something in them, also, to awaken her faith. For immediately he went to the bier, and, despite the fact that to do so was to become ceremonially unclean, he touched it. The hint was instantly taken, for "they that bare him stood still." Then came the word of power: "Young man, I say unto thee, Arise." In all this what a simplicity there is! How little of the dramatic there is about it! Though [illegible] the Savior [illegible] quil, as [illegible] heavily [illegible] own resources at all. [illegible] matter of the situation [illegible] first time he and [illegible] So, with [illegible] lack of dramatic emphasis, he [illegible] the word of recall [illegible] the other [illegible] where [illegible] stored [illegible]. He took the daughter [illegible] by the hand and simply said, "[illegible], arise," and to the [illegible] Mary and Martha the [illegible]

Hence the information that it was known throughout Judea as well as in the regions round about where it happened accords with what we should expect. It even reached John in his prison, and he sent word to him saying: "Art thou he that should come, or look we for another?" And the reply was, not only the are dead raised, but, "the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached." As there seems to be a natural progression of magnitude in the cases mentioned, it would appear that Christ considered it a greater thing to preach the gospel to the poor even than to raise the dead! And why should he not?—for one is but a short restoration to this life, while the other is the means of awakening the soul to a life eternal.

Died.

At Carrollton, La., June 22, 1878, Mrs. Teresa Collins, aged forty years.

The deceased was the wife of Bro. Nelson Collins, the Superintendent of our Camp Parapet Sunday-school. She was a native of the parish of St. James, in this State. For some days previous to her death she was entirely speechless, but her exemplary Christian life during the past twenty years in which she has been a faithful member of the church furnishes abundant evidence of her preparation for the great change. She leaves a husband and four children. Her funeral was largely attended.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR EXERCISES, BY MORRIS AND BOWEN.

This little book belongs to the series of Literature Primers published by Appleton & Co. Every attempt to simplify the obstruse science of English Grammar is a welcome contribution to public education. This treatise travels out of the beaten road. It commences with the sentence, first requiring the pupils to state what each work tells us in the sentence, and thus, classifying its component parts. It then deals with phrases and their various kinds. Analysis of the sentence follows. The special attributes of each part of speech come up, after analysis, in orderly succession and the book ends with syntax and parsing. The treatment of these various subjects is very simple and brief and yet illustrated with abundant exercises. We can very cordially commend this primer of Grammar, especially for private use.

North American Review, July-August, 1878. The contents of this rich number are, The Failure of Universal Suffrage, A Senator's Fidelity Vindicated, The Position of the Jews in America, Part II., The Outlook, Debtor and Creditor, The Native Army of India, Contemporary Literature. The articles on "The Failure of Universal Suffrage," "An Advertisement of a New Religion," "The Position of the Jews in America," and the "Native Army of India" are of particular value. It is seldom that we have been more amused than by the advertisement for a New Religion. Its quiet humor and trenchant satire are well aimed at the religion of Humanity as evolved by Compte, Mill, Darwin, Huxley and their still more progressive disciples.

HIS OCCUPATION GONE.

Had the Arkansas "doctor" that "tapped" the fat man thinking he had dropsy, but finding no water pronounced it "dry dropsy," lived to-day, he would, like Othello, find "his occupation gone," for Allan's Anti-Fat, a purely vegetable remedy, safely but positively, reduces corpulence at from three to six pounds per week. Sold by druggists.

tween the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagra Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

Our Class Leaders.

We are often asked for the names of books suitable for class leaders. We recommend the following and ask the Presiding Elders and Pastors to do all they can to put these books in the hands of the leaders.

1. The Class-Leader: His Work and How to do it. With illustrations of principles, needs, methods and results. By Rev. John Atkinson, A. M. 12mo., $1.50.

2. Address to Class-Leaders. By Bishop Janes. 18mo., 20c.

3. Seed-Thought; A Hand-Book of Doctrine and Devotion. By Rev. Geo. C. Robinson. Price $1.00.

4. Father Reeves, Methodist Class-Leader. By Edward Corderoy. 18mo., 35c.

5. All for Christ: How the Christian may Obtain, by a renewed Consecration of His Heart, the fullness of Joy Referred to by the Savior Just Previous to His Crucifixion, with illustrations from the lives of those who have made this consecration. By Thomas Carter, D.D. 16mo., 75c.

For any of these books address Nelson & Phillips, New Orleans.

The Methodist Hymnal,

Hymnal with Tunes.

We are now prepared to fill orders for the following editions of the "METHODIST HYMNAL:"

16mo, Roan Gilt Edge	1 40
*Hymnal with Tunes, 12mo	1 00
Hymnal with Tunes, 8vo	1 75

Since the manuscript of the Hymnal was delivered by the Committee, October 26th, last, time has been required to prepare and perfect the indexes, to complete the arrangements of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts, and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal, and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

*The 12mo size may be delayed a few days.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

New Orleans University,

Cor. Camp and Race Streets.

This Institution, under the patronage of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, gives instruction in the following departments:

Collegiate,
Preparatory,
Theological,
Medical, and

The First Term of next year opens Monday, September 9, 1878.

The expense of Board, Room Rent, and Washing, in the Institution, will not exceed Ten Dollars per Month of four weeks.

An incidental fee of One Dollar per month is charged all students, except those in Theological Department.

The buildings of the Institution are located on Coliseum Square, in a most healthful and pleasant part of the city.

The instruction is thorough in all the Departments.

The Medical Department gives a good opportunity for the study of Medicine under competent and practical physicians. The expense per term of five months, beginning October 1, 1878, will be $65.00. This amount pays for matriculation, attendance upon all lectures, dissecting room privileges, and clinical practice in the New Orleans Charity Hospital.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

SMILE WHENEVER YOU CAN.

When things [illegible] to suit you
And the world seems upside down,
Don't waste your time in fretting,
But drive away that frown;
Since life is oft perplexing,
'Tis much the wisest plan
To bear all trials bravely,
And smile whenever you can.

Why should you dread to-morrow,
And thus despoil to-day?
For when you borrow trouble,
You always have to pay.
It is a good old maxim
Which should oft be preached;
Don't cross the bridge before you
Until the bridge is reached.

You might be spared much sighing
If you would but keep in mind
The thought that good and evil
Are always here combined;
There must be something wanting,
And though you roll in wealth,
You may miss from your casket
The precious jewel—health.

And though you're strong and sturdy,
You may have an empty purse;
And earth has many trials
Which I consider worse!
But whether joy or sorrow
Fill up your mortal span,
'Twill make your pathway brighter
To smile whenever you can.

Joe White's Temptation.

Deacon Jones kept a little fish market. "Do you want a boy to help you?" asked Joe White one day. "I guess I can sell fish."

"Can you give good weight to my customers, and take care of my pennies?"

"Yes, sir," answered Joe, and forthwith he took his place in the market, weighed the fish and kept the room in order.

"A whole day for fun, fireworks, and crackers to-morrow," exclaimed Joe, as he buttoned his white apron about him the day before the Fourth of July. A great trout was flung on the counter.

"Here's a royal trout, Joe. I caught it myself. You can have it for ten cents. Just hand over the money, for I'm in a hurry to buy my fire crackers," said Ned Long, one of Joe's mates.

The Deacon was out, but Joe had made purchases for him before, so the dime was spun across to Ned, who was off like a shot.

Just then Mrs. Marlin appeared. "I want a nice trout for dinner, to-morrow. This one will do; how much is it?"

"A quarter, ma'am," and the fish was transferred to the lady's basket, and the silver piece to the money-drawer.

But here Joe paused. Ten cents was very cheap for that fish. If I tell the Dacon it cost fifteen, he'll be satisfied, and I shall have five cents to invest in fire crackers."

The Deacon was pleased with Joe's bargain, and when the market was closed each went his way for the night. But the nickle in Joe's pocket burned like a coal; he could eat no supper, and was cross and unhappy. At last he could stand it no longer, but walking rapidly, tapped at the door of Deacon Jones' cottage.

A stand was drawn out, and before the open Bible sat the old man. Joe's heart almost failed him, but he told his story, and with tears of sorrow laid the coin in the Deacon's hand. Turning over the leaves of the Bible, the old man read, "'He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.' You have my forgiveness, Joe, now go home and confess to the Lord, and remember you must forsake as well as confess. [illegible] keep this [illegible] long as you live, to remind you of the first temptation."—Child's World.

Courtesy in Business.

A man paid our four cents for a [illegible] the office of one of our [illegible] the other morning, a [illegible] "Thank you" from the gentleman. We have thought [illegible] We should [illegible] it discourteous [illegible] ; "and the little [illegible] to minding to the sub[illegible] put at the head of this [illegible] not be much better all [illegible] more courtesy [illegible] our business deal[illegible] into some offices and [illegible] be the [illegible] whether [illegible] or not. We [illegible] need be nothing fawning or simpering about it. It is best when thoroughly manly or womanly. But it certainly is most easily acquired in youth, and it will stand its possessor in good stead in all after years. The courteous clerk will rightly be the favorite clerk. We know that the homely old proverb is in one sense true, that "fine words butter no parsnips"—words do not take the place of things, of actions. But it is also true, as the Scripture says, that "a soft answer turneth away wrath." This politeness in manner and in word will be like the oil that prevents the friction of the machinery. It makes everything run easy.—Christian Weekly.

Learn a Trade.

I never look at my old steel composing rule that I do not bless myself that while my strength lasts, I am not at the mercy of the world. If my pen is not wanted, I can go back to the type case and be sure to find work, for I learned the printer's trade thoroughly—newspaper work, job-work, book-work, and press-work. I am glad I have a good trade. It is a rock upon which the possessor can stand firmly. There is health and vigor for both body and mind in an honest trade. It is the strongest and surest part of the self-made man. Go from the academy to the printing office, or the artisan's bench, or, if you please to the farm—for, to be sure, farming is a trade and a grand one at that. Lay a sure foundation, and after that branch off into whatever profession you please.

You have heard, perhaps, of the clerk who had faithfully served Stephen Girard from boyhood to manhood. On the twenty-first anniversary of his birth-day, he went to his master and told him his time was up, and he certainly expected important promotion in the merchant's service. But Stephen Girard said to him:

"Very well. Now go and learn a trade."

"What trade, sir?"

"Good barrels and butts must be in demand while you live. Go and learn the cooper's trade, and when you have made a perfect barrel bring it to me."

The young man went away and learned the trade, and in time brought to his old master a splendid barrel of his own make.

Girard examined it, and gave him two thousand dollars for it, and then said to him:

"Now, sir, I want you in my counting-room; but henceforth you will not be dependant upon the whim of Stephen Girard. Let what will come, you have a good trade always in reserve."

The young man saw the wisdom and understood.

An Alphabetical Anecdote.

A B, that could C far over the D with great E's, F allowed so to do, went one day to extract honey from a piece of G's, literally sprinkled with snuff. "H oo! altchoo!" sneezed the B; I would sooner be a J and be, as the poet says, "happy, free and K," than try to extract "honey from such stuff." So he buzzed to his home—a nice house with an L to it, where M, his wife 'N all the little bees were taking O such a meal from a sweet P! The old bee arranged his Q, and said, "You R a nice lot, ain't you?" One little bee, not seeing the sarcasm, answered "S, sir!" This put the old B in a good humor, and he said he'd take some T with them, and he said U may have this 'V' for pin money, if you promise that you won't go near the cucumber vines. They'll W up if you touch 'em!" "Give us an 'X,' and we will promise!" cried the little ones. "That would be as bad as the cucumbers." "Y?" asked the little one. "Pshaw! can't you Z? It would be doubling up."

When first the marriage knot was tied Between my wife and me
My age did hers as far exceed
As three times three does three,
But when ten years and half ten years
We man and wife had been,
Her age was then as near to mine
As eight is to sixteen.
Now tyros skilled in numbers, find
Our ages when the knot was tied.

"Sound," said the schoolmaster, "is what you hear. For instance, you cannot feel a sound." "Oh, yes you can," said a smart boy. "John Wilson," retorted the pedagogue, "how can you make that out? What sound can you feel?" "A sound thrashing," quickly replied the smart boy.

CONSUMPTION IN ITS EARLY STAGES.

Send for Circular. The Tube, with full directions, postpaid. Sent on receipt of $3.50, or call at his residence, Passaid, N. J.

The Rev. N. N. BEERS, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y., writes:

It is now nearly thirty years since I commenced the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's can possibly be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

The Rev. B. M. ADAMS, of the N. Y. East M. E. Conference, says:

I thank the Lord that I ever saw you. The Inhaling Tube I obtained of you almost twenty years ago has been a wonderful blessing to me, and I am glad, through my recommendation, to many. I think Schureman Halsted's life was lengthened years by it. His chest enlarged, although he was over fifty years old when he commenced using it and he fed the Lord's battles with a shout long after the doctors told him he must stop. Many other dear friends of mine have had their lives lengthened by its use.

From Rev. J. H. VINCENT, D.D., of the Sunday-school Publications of the Church.

I have used your Tube at times for several years, and have unbounded faith in its philosophy. may2'78-tf

The Class-Leader.
His Work, and How to Do It.
With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.
BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,

12mo....................$1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who means business. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS
AND BANDS,

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions—Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle-aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets
SIZE OF PELLETS.

Or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated, Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules. THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC, or Multum in Parvo Physic.

The novelty of modern Medical, Chemical, and Pharmaceutical Science. No use of any longer taking the large, repulsive, and nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each little Purgative Pellet represents, in a most concentrated form, as much cathartic power as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in drug-shops. From their wonderful cathartic power, in comparison to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect: but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized and modified, one by the others, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly operating, cathartic.

$500 Reward is hereby offered by the proprietor of these Pellets, to any chemist who, upon analysis, will find in them any calomel or other forms of mercury, mineral poison, or injurious drug.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad taste in the mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, High-colored Urine, Unsociability and Gloomy Forebodings, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of my Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, I wish to say that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. Recollect that for all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction to all who use them.

They are sold by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Prop'r,
BUFFALO, N. Y.

WOMAN.

By an immense practice, extending through a period of years, having within that time treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and agreeable medicine that meets the indications presented by that class of diseases with positive certainty and exactness.

To designate this natural specific compound, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon my own personal observation. As a close observer, I have, while witnessing its positive results in the few special diseases incident to the separate organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly and in harmony with the laws which govern the female system, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician. Nay, even more, so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. If a beneficial effect is not experienced by the time two-thirds of the contents of the bottle are used, I will, on return of the bottle, two-thirds of the medicine having been taken according to directions, and the case being one for which I recommend it, promptly refund the money paid for it. Had I not the most perfect confidence in its virtues, I could not offer it as I do under these conditions; but having witnessed its truly miraculous cures in thousands of cases, I feel warranted and perfectly safe in risking both my reputation and my money on its merits.

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhea, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing Down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, Female Weakness, and very many other chronic diseases incident to woman not mentioned here. In all affections of this nature, my Favorite Prescription works cures—the marvel of the world. This medicine I do not extol as a cure-all, but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

TESTIMONIALS.

"The N. Y. Times says: "Waters' Orchestrion Chime Organ" is a beautiful little instrument, simply perfect. The Chime of two and one-half octave bells and the artistic effects capable of being produced by the player are singularly fine.

The tone is full, clear and resonant, and a very interesting effect is produced with the chime of bell.—Christian Union.

The Waters' Pianos are well known among the very best. We are enabled to speak of these instruments with confidence from personal knowledge.—N. Y. Evangelist.

We can speak of the merits of the Waters' Pianos from personal knowledge, as being of the very best quality.—Christian Intelligencer.

blindness was gone, and he looked up upon his Savior and his God. What a grand and joyful termination to the suffering of blind Bartimeus!

Brethren, there are two kinds of blindness, the physical blindness of the eye and the blindness of the conscience which is spiritual.

Physically blind men are everywhere, but so also are the spiritually blind, for we do not every day see men groping their way in life and stumbling over difficulties, of the true cause of which they seem to know nothing, and of the remedy far less? The evil is that people are too prone to accept religion as theory only, and not as fact. With such individuals the Bible may be theoretically correct; they assent to creeds, but that is all. Such persons are unquestionably spiritually blind, never having come near enough to the Lord Jesus for Him to touch their eyes with the tips of His fingers. You all know that the proper medicaments which are seen at the bed-side of a sick person cannot cure until applied, but as soon as they are used the wound, which was open and gaping, begins to heal. Thus in all the churches are souls on the verge of ruin theorising about religion, instead of at once entering into covenant with God and who finally will be surprised, too late, to find that they know nothing concerning His promises. We read in John xiv: 21 that "He will manifest Himself to him" who is a Christian. That he will do so is literally true, but there are many who know nothing of His personal love for us, and his transforming power, and are not able by the eye of faith to behold the glorious New Jerusalem, but see only, see darkness and death looming up in the future. It is on this account that the Infidel is a blind and unhappy man, without hope of any kind, and tempest-tossed by the slightest reverses of fortune.

On every side a great deal of ignorance abounds about spiritual things.

Now, what is our duty?" We ought to be alive to the importance of spiritual things. In business matters men are very precise and earnest; then why not equally so in matters which affect their souls? Apply, and at once, this precision and carefulness and earnestness to the weighty business of your salvation, for since death comes alike to youth as well as to old age, you have the worst kind of blindness in delaying an instant in doing so. Not to do so is a cruel and irreparable injustice to yourselves. There has been many a young man with a praying father and mother but who was very far from them in grace. While struggling to make a name for himself in the world, boon companions crowd upon him, and the poison of the wine-cup enters into his young life-blood. First of all there comes the moral and then the physical decay, until, at last, the peach has lost its bloom, and the petal begins to wilt. If [illegible] had not been blind, he would have seen ruin in every step he was taking, and would have cried out in good earnest, "Lord, that I might receive my sight!" There are all kinds of temptations, and the one thing needful is that we ask Christ the Savior to come to us and put His fingers upon our eyes and save us from temporal and eternal blindness. If I understand true religion aright it is plain common [illegible] applied to our spiritual welfare [illegible] hereafter, teaching us to prepare [illegible] for what will inevitably take place. He who follows the teachings of the Divine Jesus will have the scales fall from his eyes and save his soul alive.—Metropolitan Pulpit.

Gutekunst, of Philadelphia, also shows some very fine charcoal and fusian portraits. Joshua Smith, of Chicago, makes a specialty of photographing children, and the remarkable collection of portraits of babies of all sizes, ages and descriptions, who "have come all the way from Chicago," is a sufficient proof that this artist has been thoroughly successful in a difficult branch of photography. J. Gurney, of New York, shows some excellent specimens of his permanent souvenir colored photographs. The colors are fixed and do not fade either from time or exposure to the air. The Centennial Photograph Company exhibit some very large and excellent photographs of Philadelphia and of the Centennial Exhibition. In short, whether in portraiture, composed subjects or landscapes, the American photographers have, I think, shown themselves as a rule, far ahead of their European competitors. The American photographs are far superior to the general run of European portraits in pose and expression, a point which depends entirely on the artistic skill of the operator.

The Shah of Persia, who has just left Paris, recently went to Fontainebleau, and his little bill has been published in the papers. It amounted to only 14,200 fr., but after some expostulation in Persian it was reduced to 10,000 fr., or $2,000. In this bill the item "Flowers" figured at $300, twenty fowls at $40, a cigar at $1, four bed-rooms at $45, two boxes of cigarettes at $10, twelve peaches $25, a melon at $11, and three carriages at $160. No wonder the Shah made a clean bolt of it.

The coolest place in Paris just now is in the catacombs. These subterranean galleries, which extend under a greater part of the city, have upwards of sixty entrances in different suburbs. The principal staircase which descends to them is in the Rue de la Tombe-Isoire. Armed with candles and pasteboards of authority from the Prefect of the Police we were admitted to these gloomy depths. The galleries and the different compartments are completely lined with human bones, arranged with great care and intermingled with rows of skulls. The catacombs were formerly quarries, worked as far back as the Roman Period, yielding a soft kind of limestone which hardens on exposure to the air. During the several Revolutions and Reigns of Terror in France, immense numbers of bodies and bones have been brought here from various quarters and thrown in confused masses into these cavities; but in 1810 a regular system was organized for the more seemly disposition of these remains, and the preservation of their resting place. New pillars have since been erected to support the roof, excavations made to admit more air, and channels dug to carry off the water. Paris has more than three times as many inhabitants underground than overhead, still they come and the number is still increasing. This reminds me of my recent visit to Cologne, where in the ancient church of St. Ursula, are displayed in about the same manner as are the swords and bayonets in the tower of London, the bones of some 11,000 virgins, who, on a return from a pilgrimage to Rome, were mercilessly slain by the hordes of Attila. However visionary it may appear that 11,000 virgins could have been brought together and made to travel on foot from Cologne to the Holy City and back, yet there are many who place implicit faith in the story. Furthermore, the bones can be viewed on a payment of about twenty-five cents, and with the bones are shown the skulls of the chief virgins arranged in a most artistic manner. LOUIS.

Paris, July 26, 1878.

The Glorious Gospel.

Preach the gospel to every creature—that is, go tell every man, without any exception, whatsoever his sins be, whatsoever his rebellions be,—go and tell him these glad tidings, that if he will come, Jesus will accept him, his sins shall be forgiven him, and he shall be saved.

The gospel method of salvation resembles a well-drawn picture, which seems to look every person in the face. In like manner [illegible]

An Angel in a Saloon.

A TRUE INCIDENT.

One afternoon in the month of June, —, a lady in deep mourning and followed by a child, entered one of the fashionable saloons in the city of N—. The writer happened to be passing at the same time and, impelled by curiosity, followed her in to see what would ensue. Stepping up to the bar and addressing the proprietor, who happened to be present, she said to him:

"Sir, can you assist me? I have no home, no friends, and am unable to work."

He glanced at her and then at the child, with a mingled look of curiosity and pity. Evidently he was somewhat surprised to see a woman in such a place begging, but, without asking any questions, gave her some change; then turning to those present he said:

"Gentlemen, here is a lady in distress. Can't some of you assist her?"

They all cheerfully acceded to this request, and soon a purse of two dollars was raised and put into her hands.

"Madam," said the gentleman who gave her the money, "why do you come to a saloon? It isn't a very proper place for ladies, and why are you driven to such a step?"

"Sir, I know it isn't a proper place for me to be in, and you ask why I am driven to such a step. I will tell you in one short word," pointing to a bottle behind the door labeled "whisky." "That is what has driven me to such a step, WHISKY. I was once happy and surrounded by all the luxuries that wealth could procure, with a fond and indulgent husband. But in an evil hour he was tempted and, not possessing the will to resist that temptation, fell, and in one short year my dream of happiness was over, my home forever broken and desolated, and the kind husband and the wealth some called mine, lost, never to be returned; and all by the accursed wine cup.

"You see before you only a wreck of my former self, homeless and friendless, with nothing left me in this world but this little child." And weeping bitterly, she affectionately caressed the golden curls that shaded a face of exquisite loveliness. Regaining her composure, and turning to the proprietor, she continued:

"Sir, the reason I occasionally enter a place like this is to implore those who deal in the deadly poison to desist—to stop a business that spreads desolation, ruin, poverty and starvation. Think one moment of your own loved ones, and then imagine them in the situation I am in. I appeal to your better nature, I appeal to your heart, for I know you possess a kind one, to retire from a business so ruinous to your patrons.

"Did you know that the money you receive across this bar is the same as taking the bread from out of the mouths of the famished wives and children of your customers? That it strips the clothes from their backs, deprives them of all the comforts of life, and throws unhappiness, misery, crime and desolation into their once happy homes? Oh! sir, I implore, beseech and pray you to retire from a business you blush to own you are engaged in before your fellow men, and enter one that will not only be profitable to yourself, but to your fellow creatures also. You must excuse me if I have spoken too plainly, but I could not help it when I thought of the misery and unhappiness it has caused me."

"Madame, I am not offended," he answered in a voice tremulous with emotion, "but thank you from my heart for what you have said."

"Mamma," said the child—who, in the meantime had been spoken to by some of the gentlemen present—taking hold of her mother's hand, "these gentlemen wish me to sing 'Little Bessie' for them. Shall I do so?"

"Yes, darling, if they wish you to."

They all joined in the request, and placing her in a chair, she sung in a sweet, childish voice the following beautiful song:

Out on the gloomy night sadly I roam;
I have no mother dear, no pleasant home,
No one cares for me, no one would cry
Even if poor little Bessie would die.
Weary and tired, I've been wandering all day,
Asking for work, but I'm too small they say;
On the damp ground I must lay my head—
Father's a drunkard, and mother is dead.

We were so happy till father drank rum,
Then all our sorrow and trouble begun!
[illegible] pale and wept every day—
[illegible] hungry to play;
[illegible] one summer night
[illegible] all silent and white,
[illegible] slowly dropping I said.
All the day long I've been begging for bread—
Father's a drunkard and mother is dead!

The games of billiards were left unfinished, the cards were thrown aside upon the counter; all had pressed near, some with curiosity, some with sadness and some with pity beaming from their eyes, entranced with the musical voice and beauty of the child, who seemed better fitted to be with angels above than in such a place.

The scene I shall never forget till my dying day, and the sweet cadence of her musical voice still rings in my ears, and every word of the sweet song as it dropped from her lips, sank deep in the hearts of all those around her.

With her golden hair falling carelessly around her little shoulders, her face of almost ethereal beauty, and looking so trustingly and confidently upon the men around, her beautiful blue eyes illuminated with a light that seemed not of earth, formed a picture of purity and innocence worthy the genius of a poet or painter.

At the close of the song many were weeping; men who had not shed a tear for years now wept like children. One young man who had resisted with scorn the pleadings of a loving mother and the entreaties of friends to try and lead a better life—to desist from a course that was wasting his fortune and ruining his health now approached the child, and taking both her hands in his, while tears streamed down his pale cheeks, exclaimed with deep emotion:

"God bless you, my little angel! You have saved me from ruin and disgrace, from poverty and a drunkard's grave. If there ever were angels on earth, you are one, God bless you! God bless you!" And putting a bill in the hand of the mother, said, "please accept this trifle as a token of my regard and esteem, for your little girl has done me a kindness no wealth can ever repay. And remember, whenever you are in want, you will find in me a true friend," at the same time giving her his name and address.

Thanking her child by the hand, she turned to go, but, pausing at the door, said:

"God bless you, gentlemen! Accept the heartfelt thanks of a poor friendless woman for the kindness and courtesy you have shown her." Before any could reply she was gone.

A silence of several minutes ensued which was at last broken by the proprietor, who exclaimed:

"Gentlemen, that lady is right, and I have sold my last glass of whisky; if any of you want more, you will have to go elsewhere."

"And I have drunk my last glass of whisky," said a young man who had long been given up as utterly beyond the reach of those who had a deep interest in his welfare—that he had sunk too low to reform. "There is a temperance organization in this city, and at their next meeting I shall send up my name to be admitted. Who will go with me?"

"I—I—I—I, and I!" several exclaimed in chorus, and fifteen names were added to his.

True to his word, the owner of the saloon where this strange scene was enacted, disposed of his entire stock the next day, and is now engaged in an honorable business. Would to God that lady, with her little one, could have gone into every hamlet, town and city throughout our country and met with like results.—Gem.

Nature of Conversion.

The acts of God's part in conversion are essentially two, justification, or the pardon of sin, which takes place in the divine mind; and regeneration, which is also an initial sanctification, which takes in the human soul. These two co-ordinate elements are inseperable from the very beginning of any true religious life in the Bible sense, and they are, therefore, characteristic of every genuine believer, whether in the Old or the New Economy. Thus Saul, the first Hebrew king, was "turned into another man" when he met the company of the prophets (1 Samuel x, 6), although he afterwards fell from grace; and Saul, the first chief persecutor of the infant Church, received the same change on the way to Damascus, and continued steadfast in it to his life's end. Jacob experienced a similar spiritual transformation as he wrestled with the angel—for be it carefully noted that his vision of the ladder resulted only in a conditional promise of future consecration to God (Genesis xxviii, 20, 21); but the apostles were no doubt converted men long before the day of Pentecost; for Judas could not otherwise have been an apostate (John xvii, 12). Both these acts—forgiveness and the new birth—are necessarily instantaneous and complete at once, because they are acts, and divine ones. They are not processes, but each is a fact, which must be perfected whenever their conditions are met, matured, or perfected. Sanctification, on the other hand, is the outcome of a progressive work, begun at conversion and and completed, whether gradually or instantaneously, at a subsequent stage. Possibly it might have been completed at conversion, had the subject possessed adequate intelligence and faith, and it might be perfectly attained at any other point of the Christian's career on the concurrence of the same requisites; but this all-conquering faith is itself a divine endowment. In point of fact, it is usually deferred till fatal sickness or utter decreptitude has weaned the heart from earth, or it is even postponed to the hour of dissolution, if, indeed, it is granted, as is generally assumed, but not proved, that the saved soul entering Paradise, must be, in the fullest sense, "cleansed of all sin." At whatever moment this great change may be fully achieved, it is, of course, entirely the work of God, that is, of the influence of the Holy Spirit.—National Repository for August.

Not the Man for Me Now.

In my early Christian life, says President Finney, I heard a Methodist Bishop report a case that made a deep impression on my mind. He said there was, in his neighborhood, a gentleman of fortune, who was a gay, agreeable man, and gave himself much to various field sports and other amusements. He used to associate much with his pastor, and often invite him to dinner and accompany him in his sport and pleasure-seeking excursions of various kinds. The minister cheerfully complied with these requests, and a friendship grew up between the pastor and his parishioner, that grew into an intimacy which continued till the last sickness of this gay and wealthy man.

When the wife of this worldling was apprised that her husband could live but a short time, she was much alarmed for his salvation, and tenderly inquired if she should not call in their minister to converse and pray with him. He feelingly replied, "No, my dear; he is not the man for me to see now. He was my companion, as you know, in worldly sports and pleasure-seeking; he loved good dinners and a jolly time. I then enjoyed his society, and found him a pleasant companion. But I see now that I never had any real confidence in his piety, and have now no confidence in the efficacy of his prayers. I am now a dying man, and need the instruction and prayers of somebody that can prevail with God. We have been much together; but our pastor has never been in serious earnest with me about the salvation of my soul, and he is not the man to help me now."

The wife was greatly affected, and said, "What shall I do, then?" He replied, "My coachman, Tom, is a pious man. I have often overheard him pray when about the barn or stables, and his prayers have always struck me as being sincere and earnest. I never heard any foolishness from him. He has always been honest and earnest as a Christian man. Call him." Tom was called, and came within the door, dropping his hat, and looking tenderly and compassionately at his dying master. The dying man put forth his hand, saying, "Come here, Tom. Take my hand. Tom, can you pray for your dying master?" Tom poured out his soul in earnest prayer.

I cannot remember the name of this bishop, it was so long ago; but the story I well remember as an illustration of the mistake into which many professors and some ministers fall, supposing that we recommend religion to the unconverted by mingling with them in their pleasures and their running after amusements. I have seen many illustrations of this mistake.

The History of Plants.

Wheat was brought from the center table lands of Thibet, where it yet exists as a grass with small mealy seeds; exists wild in Siberia; barley in the mountains of Himalaya; and oats in northern Africa. Maize (Indian corn) is original in this country; and rice in South Africa, whence it was taken to India, and thence to Europe and America. The garden bean came from the East Indies: the horse bean from the Caspian Sea. Buckwheat originally came from Siberia and Tartary. Rape seed and cabbage were first found wild in Sicily and Naples. The poppy came from the East, the sunflower from Peru. Flax or linseed was originally a weed in the ordinary grain crops in southern Europe. The garden cress came out of Egypt; the radish from China. Hemp is a native of Persia and the East Indies. Hops were found wild in Germany; also mustard and carraway seed are from that country. Anise from Egypt and the Grecian Archipelago. Coriander grows wild near the Mediterranean. Saffron came from the Levant; the onion out of Egypt. Horse-radish originated in south Europe. Tobacco is a native of Virginia. The potato is said to be a native of Peru, Mexico. Turnips and mangel wurtzel came from the shores of the Mediterranean. White Turnips are natives of Germany. Among other kitchen garden plants the spinach is attributed to Arabia; the cucumber to the East Indies; the melon to Kolmuck; parsley to Sardinia; celery to Germany. Of fruit trees and shrubs, the currant and gooseberry came from southern Europe; the pear and apple from Europe; the cherry, palm and almond from Asia Minor, and also the walnut and peach; the citron from Media. Of forest trees, the majority are native plants of England. The pine, oak and other fine timbered trees are natives of North and South America.

Twenty-Five Years With the Gypsies.

The story that a traveler told a correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, at Gosport, Ind., on the 2d inst., runs thus: "I am now on my way to Texas from the southern part of the State. I am—or rather was—a gypsy. Have traveled over this State several times, and a greater part of Illinois and Ohio. My master, or chief of the tribe I have been with, died just three weeks ago yesterday of old age. While upon his death-bed he called me to him, and to the great surprise of myself and others who were present, told me that I was not his son; that 24 years ago, in Northern Indiana, about dusk one evening, he, with several others, were passing by a wood, near a farm house, where they saw me playing. One of them got out of the wagon and coaxed me to go along with them, offering me some little things. I did so, being too young to know my danger. They missed me at home, and the whole country about was roused with the alarm. A heavy reward was offered for the capture of the kidnapper and the return of the child. 'It was our intention,' he said, 'to get the reward, but we could not do so without being captured. We traveled by night, and slept in the daytime, till we reached Illinois, where we remained for eight years; then we returned to this State, and have been wandering around since. He said my parents had removed to Texas, near Austin. The old man died in a few hours, and I immediately wrote to my supposed parents, and received an answer a few days since, stated that all mentioned above was true, and that they were all well and wished me to come at once, so I started at once for that place.

Reasons for Being Holy.

A man who has been redeemed by the blood of the Son of God should be pure. He who is an heir of life should be holy. He who is attended by celestial beings, and who is soon—he knows not how soon—to be translated to heaven, should be holy.

Are angels my attendants? Then I should walk worthy of my companionship. Am I so soon to go and dwell with angels? Then I should be pure. Are these feet so soon to tread the courts of heaven? Is this tongue soon to unite with heavenly beings in praising God? Are these eyes of mine so soon to look on the throne of eternal glory, and on the ascended Redeemer? Then these feet, and eyes, and lips should be pure and holy, and I should be dead to the world, and live for heaven.—Albert Barnes.

Mary Benton, of Elton, Durham county, England, is supposed to be the oldest woman in the world. She was born February 12, 1731, and is of course in her 148th year. She is in possession of all her faculties, perfect memory, hearing and eye sight. She cooks, washes and irons, threads her own needle and sews without spectacles.

The Jews in America.

A recent article in the North American Review from the pen of Rabbi G. Gotthiel discusses this interesting question: "What is the present condition of Judaism in this country?" As our readers may like to know how he answers it, we will condense some of his statements. He says "that the uniformity of faith and practice, once the pride and strength of scattered Israel, no longer exists. It is true that there is no disruption into sects. So long as the Jew does not openly and distinctly renounce his allegiance, he is considered as still within the fold. The defender of the old paths will not deny the radical reformer the character of a brother in the faith and the latter shows no abatement of sympathy with the former in his hour of need. But the divergence is wide enough to justify the division of those who still profess Judaism as their religion into at least three distinct classes. There is the strictly conservative wing comprising the faithful adherents to traditional Judaism as established by the ordinances of the Talmud, the later casuists and the "Winhag," or fixed usage. They are numerous but not influential. Large and representative congregations have but few in the land.

On the opposite extreme we find a large class whose relations with the synagogue are of the slenderest. They have abandoned most if not all the pious usages of their fathers, no longer remember the Sabbath to keep it, and limit their observance of the great festivals to a few hours' devotion with their brethren. In their houses the offices of religion are on special occasions, such as marriage and death, respectfully tolerated rather than devoutly solicited. The rite of initiation is falling into desuetude and the religious training of the young, if at all desired, relegated to the rabbi. This rapid decline of a faith once so potent in the heart of every Israelite is accounted for by saying that "while under the social ban" religion was his only refuge, his all, but when the Jew was freed from the ostracism that everywhere prevailed against him, and became an important factor in society he felt that "if he was to live as a man with men, the ceremonial chains must be riven. This was the primary thought of the first generation of reformers, but nevertheless stirring up doubts as to the validity and necessity of a separate religion at all. When the currents of skeptical thought began to rush with an evergrowing force through all the avenues of the intellectual and social life of nations," it caught the Jews already on an inclined plane, and no wonder they were hurried forward with a greater velocity than the professors of other creeds, and that some were landed on the barren plains of atheism and materialism and losing their [illegible] of mind were turned into [illegible]. The havoc of this "Sturm and Drang" period of Judaism [illegible] and causes serious [illegible] but it is beginning to work its own cure. It has opened the eyes of the more sober to the perils with which this faith is threatened and electrified into new activity the Party of the Center which is encamped at equal distance from both [illegible]. It is the party of reform, of progress within the boundaries of Hebrew doctrine. To the [illegible] of that party are due the new developments. The largest and most influential congregations in these States profess its doctrines and it may be called the dominant feature of American Judaism. What the rabbi has to say of this party we will reserve for another issue.

[illegible] they would not supply it. I offered the three or four buttons left on my jacket for a little milk; but it was refused. We had the prospect for another hungry night at a distance from water, though within sight of the river. When twilight grew on, a woman approached from the height beyond which the village lay. She bore on her head a bundle of wood, and had a vessel of milk in her hand. The latter, without opening her lips, she handed to us, laid down the wood, and returned to the village. A second time she approached with cooking vessel on her head, and a leg of mutton in one hand and water in the other. She sat down without saying a word, prepared the fire, and put on the meat. We asked her again and again who she was. She remained silent until we affectionately entreated her to give a reason for such unlooked for kindness to strangers. Then the tears stole down her sable cheeks, and she replied: 'I love Him whose you are, and surely it is my duty to give you a cup of cold water in His name. My heart is full, therefore I can't speak the joy I feel in seeing you in this out-of-the-world place.' On learning a little of her history, and that she was a solitary light burning in a dark place, I asked her how she kept the light of God in her soul in the entire absence of the communion of saints. She drew from her bosom a copy of the Dutch New Testament, which she had received from Mr. Helm when in his school some years before. 'This,' said she, 'is the fountain whence I drink; this is the oil that makes my lamp to burn. I looked on the precious relic printed by the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the reader may conceive my joy while we mingled our prayers and sympathies together at the throne of our Heavenly Father.

A New Publication.

We have received the first number of the Southern Journal of Practical Education, published quarterly at Atlanta, Ga., by the Southern Journal Company. The names of the editors are not given, but as subscriptions are to be sent to Professor E. E. Bisbee, President of Clark University, at Atlanta, we presume that he is one. The Journal is neatly gotten up, contains forty pages, and its articles such as may be read with interest and profit by its readers. The following explanation of its design is given under the caption of "What For:"

"We start this Journal, hoping thereby to help a good cause. Our object is to do something towards endowing a professorship in a freedmen's college. Through the liberality of the publishers the expense of publication is to us very small. We issue quarterly at the rate of Fifty Cents a year. Sixty per cent. of the subscriptions will go directly to the endowment, so that every person subscribing will help our work to the amount of thirty cents. We shall make no deduction and allow no commission to agents. No articles will be admitted to our columns except from persons actually engaged in Southern educational work. The cause has suffered too much already from misrepresentation and lack of candor. Even those who profess to be our friends have often done us harm by hasty conclusions and careless remarks. While our articles may be less brilliant than many who have written about our work, we shall always try to be plain and truthful, and hope to be able to present the case so that our friends will realize the exact condition of affairs at the South. But aside from general discussions, we hope to present our readers with their money's worth of good practical instruction. Now we ask that you help us. Can you take our Journal? If you can without injustice to yourself and others you will favor us greatly by doing so. Can you get others to take it? If so you will favor us still more by sending their names with fifty cents for each. Here is a chance for everybody to do something for Christianity and education. Will you let the opportunity pass unimproved? If so you must answer to your own conscience for it.

Most of our religious papers of all types freely discuss social and political questions. This is just as it should be. We want these matters discussed from a religious point of view; and it is vastly better that religion should be made to cover all departments of our life than that it should be kept in a department by itself. That the [illegible] press of this country has been a powerful help in educating [illegible] cannot be denied. Not only to our politics, but to our literature and science it has contributed [illegible] stimulus it carries everywhere [illegible] homes of the people [illegible] of good men on all [illegible] the times it stands al-[illegible] for the highest virtue [illegible] charity.—Sunday Af-

The British Wesleyan Conference.

The Wesleyan Conference was opened in Bradford, Yorkshire, England, Tuesday morning, July 23. After filling up "the legal hundred," Dr. Rigg was elected President by 361 votes out of 448 cast. In the evening, the first session was held for the reception of fraternal delegates. After impressive and devotional exercises, Bishop Thomas Bowman and Dr. E. O. Haven, Chancellor of Syracuse University, were first introduced by Rev. M. C. Osborne, Secretary, and most cordially received by the President, who heartily shook hands with them, as he said, in true English and American style, and pronounced a high eulogy upon them personally as he introduced them to the Conference. The address to the General Conference was read and listened to with great interest, the statistical statements in it evidently producing a great impression upon the audience. Bishop Bowman and Dr. Haven then addressed the Conference, and in spite of the earnest wishes that no time might be lost in applauding, the "Hear, hear," and other demonstrations of applause were frequent throughout both speeches. Each speaker confined himself to half an hour. The following is a brief synopsis of Bishop Bowman's address:

He expressed the pleasure he felt at being present at the Conference. He first learned to love Wesleyan Methodism when he had the privilege of preaching, in the year 1839, in the coal region of Pennsylvania, to a great many Wesleyan Methodists. He learned to love Methodism because of the earnestness, the loyalty and devotion of its members, and since that time had felt a desire to visit the Wesleyan Methodists in England. He alluded to the war between the Northern and Southern States of America, remarking that the bond of unity which was then broken was now well-nigh repaired, and said that he had learned since coming to England the joyous intelligence that fraternity was an accomplished fact between the Methodists of the North and South. Since the address which had been read had been prepared, the prosperity of their Church had not fallen below what was there stated. Their principles had been increasing gradually and decidedly, and he was now glad to say that their foreign work was never more blessed than at the present time (hear, hear). He was also happy to say that the system of doctrine which was sent to them by the English Methodists some one hundred and twelve years ago, and that system of Church policy which the English Methodist Church of England sent not quite one hundred years ago, was working just as smoothly, as beautifully, as grandly, and as successfully as it has ever done. Very few people of England—indeed not a large number in his own country—fully appreciated the wonderful embarrassments and difficulties under which Methodism came into America and the work which it had done. All the other churches in the land had been influenced in doctrine, in policy, and evangelical work, and the evangelism of his land was the result of the working of that system. Although the increase in population in America had, during the past few years, been very large, Methodism had kept pace with it, and to-day they were as strong in the center of the population as in the outskirts, and as strong in the outskirts as in the center (hear, hear). Their Methodism to-day was as efficient as it was fifty years ago. He had heard it said that Methodism was declining, but this he did not believe, for he knew during the last ten years there had been a larger percentage of the elements of success than in any previous ten years of its history. In conclusion, Bishop Bowman expressed a hope that the national sentiments of fraternity which had been spread might continue to be spread until the time when war was known no more (hear, hear), and that ere long they would see in England a Pan-Methodistical Conference (hear, hear, and laughter.)

We have room only for the concluding part of the address of Chancellor Haven.

I believe the Methodist Episcopal Church has been one important factor to maintain civilization in America, just as I have no doubt that the Wesleyans of Great Britain have been one of the most potent factors to advance the civilization of Great Britain during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

America has been called upon to grapple with some most serious evils. History teaches us that savagism began by men's wandering far from society into the wilderness. God did not create a savage. Adam was not a semi-brute and Eve was not less refined than her most accomplished daughters. I am willing to accept Milton's theory so far. We do not trace our genealogy to a savage, and thence to a gorilla, and thence to an ascidian or a toad-stool, or a proto-plasmatic cell. We prefer the genealogical table that ends after this fashion: "which was the son of Seth, which was the son of Adam, which was the son of God." Be that as it may, in America, to barbarism, we resist needed all the good we could get out of free schools, a free press, a free government and a free church, and we wanted also a flexible, organized church, full of life, having both freedom and severity, elastic, alert—a kind of combination of steel and rubber and all on fire—and the church which you and your fathers sent over, and [illegible] there was just the thing required, or certainly it was the best adapted to [illegible] American wants of all that America had. I repeat it: it is just the thing needed. And I believe God raised it up for a special purpose. I am no [illegible]. I love all branches of the universal Church of Christ. The stern, strong Presbyterians, the zealous Baptists, the ancient and honorable bulwark of Protestantism, the genuine Church of England, I admire them all; and they [illegible] mission; but still I maintain that God raised up the Methodist Episcopal Church just at the right time to meet the demands of a great republic, which was fulfilling the dream of some of England's grandest thinkers: and so long as God has work for the church and for you to do, both of us will be immortal! As the venerable Dr. Lovick Pierce, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, now nearly one hundred years old, said a few days ago to our fraternal delegates, "When they can outlove me send me word." So say I. Let us love our neighbors as ourselves. But of course to make that amount to much, we must first love ourselves. But I do not much prize that fraternal love which is not based on a good strong love at home. Now, it is not easy in America for the pioneer population to outrun the Methodist preachers; their horses are fleet and used to fording rivers and finding their way through forests. The saddle-bags of the minister were formerly well supplied with Bibles, hymn-books and Disciplines, and now it is not difficult to furnish any pioneer neighborhood with all the paraphernalia of the church.

We have four or five millions of darkly-colored fellow citizens, mostly in the South. Three-fourths of them fifteen years ago were destitute of property, not owning their ragged clothes, and as ignorant of books as the veriest savage of Australia or South Africa. But many of them were already Christians, mostly through the labors of Southern Methodist and Baptist preachers. We have had to undertake to educate them. Our own church has expended on this work during the past ten years more than £120,000. We are starting elementary schools and even training schools and colleges among them. Others are engaged in the same work. This is one of our particular problems.

You have your problems. I recollect reading the report of your Committee on Education that met in Centenary Hall, London, in 1872, participated in so largely by Drs. Arthur and Rigg, and other ministers and laymen, and as I laid it down, I remarked to my friends: 'That is the ablest and most suggestive discussion of the relations of ecclesiastic and secular education I have ever read.' I still think so, and I admire not only its thoroughness, but the courtesy of the speakers, and the fact that after presenting all imaginable phases of elocution, they came substantially to a unanimous conclusion; that, sir, is something about you Englishmen which I, as an American, find it hard to understand. But what I wanted to say when I alluded to that discussion was, that it was on a subject with which we Americans have almost nothing to do. Your magnificent day school enterprise we cannot imitate. We might, perhaps, have done it once, but it is too late now, unless, which God forbid, popery and infidelity join hands to curse our public school system and succeed in making it tremble. If they do, the Methodists of America, patriotic as they are, will not sell out to Satan, in whatever form he may come.

But, Sir, I have said enough of schools. I think now in theory we agree, and if your compactness of population and minuteness of supervision have given you great advantages, we are pressing forward in the race.

Mr. President, I admire your ecclesiastical government. It is vital. It interests me, as all of God's works do, much more than the works of man. It grew. Wesley did not fashion it. Dr. Bunting and his contemporaries did not shape it. As the diamond is made up of elementary molecule diamonds so this grew. We, too, have a similar system. In common we have much, but you have a superintendency different from ours. We should need a life-long education to work yours and you a life-long education to work ours. But we are each doing our own work.

That Ecumenical Council spoken of by my honorable colleague I hope will take place. Let us all meet representatively—not in the spirit of pride to number the people like David, and to atone for it in a pestilence or in spiritual death. Let us meet, not in pomp or pretence and with officers of high-sounding titles, but on terms of equality, as servants of Christ—in penitence that we have done so little—for the most of us have done but a fraction of our duty. Let us meet with fasting and prayer. Let us meet also in a spirit of business, to see if we can join in some great missionary movement and mass our common Methodist forces in China, Japan, India, Germany, and wherever we have missions on the same or adjacent soils. Let us have no English and American conflicting Methodism in other parts of the world. When our outflowing streams meet let them mingle into one. Let us endeavor to spread our common English speech and English customs and American zeal, and especially our common regard for the Sabbath and voluntary support of Christian institutions without the aid of the State. Let us join our influence to bring about an alliance of Christian nations, which can only be perfect when all of them shall disarm themselves and beat "their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks and have war no more."

We glory in all your success. I fully sympathise with what my colleague has so ably said of the union of the two flags of Great Britain and the United States. For wherever these two flags float, the English language will be heard, and the Christian missionaries will go, churches will be planted and true freedom will be universal. A tradi-[illegible] the great banyan tree has put forth so many branches with one common [illegible] rigidity [illegible] some [illegible] while [illegible] American [illegible] to shine on a Methodist Church or chapel, and the voice of family prayer and praise around the earth is unbroken.

My time is exhausted. God grant you His benediction and may we all enjoy heaven's favor until all the world is brought to the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. H. W. Key, Murfreesboro, Tenn.: "After six weeks confinement to my bed by sickness I was able to preach to my people on last Sunday. Revivals are in progress on both the Stone River and Woodberry circuits. On the former there have been ten conversions and twelve accessions to the church during the past week. The Murphy temperance movement was introduced here by Mr. Chas. Wenzell. He at first had great difficulty in getting a place in which to hold his meetings for the white people. Pastors objected to the use of their houses of worship on the ground that their churches were temperance societies. It is true that they are such in theory, but how far from it are they often in practice. The Cumberland Presbyterian Church was finally secured, and twenty-five lectures given to the white people. Three lectures were given to the colored people in James Chapel, M. E. Church. Of those who signed the pledge there were five hundred white and three hundred colored people. Dr. J. S. Bass, a graduate of Central Tennessee College, is located here in the practice of his profession, and is doing well. The white physicians of Murfreesboro, to their honor be it said, have uniformly treated him with the utmost kindness and rendered him every assistance in their power. In their profession caste seems to be unknown—may the time soon come when it shall be unknown among those professing to be the ministers of the Lord Jesus Christ."

Rev. J. Gould, Presiding Elder of Baton Rouge District, reports his work on his recent round as in good condition and prosperous. At Jackson, Rev. M. Smith, five conversions and thirty accessions were reported; State Line, Rev. A. Martin, fifteen conversions, (accessions not given); Clinton, Rev. P. Yarborough, twenty accessions; Comite, Rev. Z. T. Gayden, ten accessions; East Feliciana, Rev. John W. Wesley, ten conversions and thirty accessions.

The "Disciples" generally called Campbellites, have just opened their first chapel in Paris.

The old Catholics of Basle have increased in numbers the past year from three thousand to four thousand.

Two Chinese young men are preparing themselves for the ministry of the Episcopal Church in San Francisco, Cal.

Among 43,500 words of the official Chinese dictionary, none could be found to describe the graces of the Spirit. It took the missionaries half a century to settle what word should be used for God.

East Tennessee Wesleyan University has found a munificent friend. Col. H. G. Bixby, of California, has given to the University a large interest in a consolidation of eight very rich silver mines near Globe City, Arizona.

The copy of the Bible which Martin Luther used daily, and the leaves of which are covered with annotations made with his own hands, is now in the Bradenburg Museum, which gave for it about $450. The Bible was printed in Basle in 1509, is bound in leather, and is in good preservation.

At the meeting of the National Council of the Union of the American Hebrew Congregations, held in Milwaukee, last month, the creation of a single representative body, which has long been desired, was effected. Instead of two organizations there will hereafter be one known as the "Union of American Hebrew Congregations."

As an illustration of the progress of the Reformed Episcopal Church in England, Bishop Gregg's church at South-end is too small to accommodate the rapidly increasing congregation, and nearly one thousand sittings are to be furnished. On the 18th ult., Bishop Gregg ordained seven new candidates to the Diaconate.

The Congregationalist reports that the inquiry was recently made of an officer in one of our New England asylums, near which the labors of Mr. Moody had resulted in the accession of hundreds to churches, how many had reached his institution in consequence. He promptly replied: "One, from hearing Bob Ingersoll!"

General News Items.

New Haven, Aug. [illegible].—An eye witness of the terrible tornado which passed over Wallingford last evening, says: The tornado struck the town near the Hartford railroad depot, cutting a swath about half a mile wide, and devastating the plains. There seemed to be two storms which met over Community Lake, and the gale then started to the south-west. Its force was terrific and levelled everything in its path. The greatest damage is confined to the plain, and among the houses of working classes. The water of the lake seemed to be scooped up and carried upwards, forming a waterspout. The Wallingford Community was carried off like chaff. The roaring was awful. The damage to property is between $250,000 and $325,000. The gale did not last more than ten minutes, but left behind an appalling scene of death and destruction.

Ocean Grove, N. J, Aug. 12.—Yesterday was one of the most brilliant Sundays, in point of attendance, of present summer season, not only for Ocean Grove but for nearly all the seaports along the coast. Saturday night seems to be the signal for a tremendous outpouring from New York, Philadelphia and other neighboring cities. It is estimated that little Ocean Grove holds 15,000 summer visitors. This multitude was swelled by visitors from Long Branch and other resorts. The first meeting in the morning was that of the young people and was largely attended. At 10:30 the anniversary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church attracted an audience of over 3000. Dr. Snell, of New York, preached. The women's anniversary meeting followed, the monster tent being filled with 5,000 people. The surf meeting at 6:30 p.m. held upon the magnificent expanse of beach along Ocean Grove, was a remarkable success, not less than 7000 or 8000 people being present. Then followed the evening services at the great tent, the sermon being preached by Dr. Hartzell, of New Orleans.

Omaha, Neb. Aug. 8.—The Chinese embassy, consisting of forty-five persons, including servants, passed through here going East yesterday forenoon on a special car. His Excellency Chin-Lan-Pin, chief of the embassy, came to the United States in 1872 as chief commissioner in charge of Chinese students sent to New England colleges to be educated, and afterward visited England and Spain. He will establish consulates in the United States, and then go to Spain on business concerning a consulate in Cuba, and afterward to Peru on a similar mission. He will return to Washington, where he will take up his abode as minister resident. The embassy will visit the schools of New England where there are Chinese pupils, before going to Washington.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—A dispatch to the Golos dated Tiflis, Aug 5, reports that an explosion has occurred in the mines of the fortifications of Kars, resulting in a fire which destroyed the best portion of the city.

August 25, 1878.—THE FRIEND OF SINNERS.

Scripture.—Luke 7: 40-50.

Golden Text.—"This man receiveth sinners."—15: 2.

Topic.—Saving faith.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

Was this woman Mary Magdalene? The argument for identity is that "Simon" was the host in each case, the anointing was almost exactly similar, even to the wiping with the hair, the character of Mary, and the fault-finding and misrepresentation in both instances. The argument against, which is a great deal the stronger, is: that this happened in Galilee and that in Judea; this at the beginning of his ministry and that at the close; in this the complaint was from the master of the house, and in that from a disciple; in this the ground of the complaint was the sinful character of the woman, and in that waste of money; here the lesson was that the offerings of penitence are accepted, and there that the offerings of love cannot be considered a waste. The two are very unlike instead of having much in common. And, besides, the scriptures represent Mary as afflicted—not as an harlot. If one will carefully notice the accounts relating to fallen women, he will see that their names are never mentioned. All that we know of the one who met Christ at the well is, that she was a "woman of Samaria;" the one taken in the act of adultery is spoken of indefinitely as "this woman"; and even the one who bathes the feet of the Savior with her tears is referred to only as "a woman which was a sinner." Their names are hidden in obscurity, so that future generations in reading the stories of their redemption, might do so with no feeling of personal scorn for themselves! The fact that we know the name of Mary Magdalene is sufficient proof that she did not belong to this class.

When reclining at the table, as was the fashion in those times, there came in with the crowd, which always on such occasions was permitted to come in unchallenged, taking their seats around the walls as lookers on, a "woman in the city which was a sinner." It may be that she had heard that gracious invitation and assurance which could not long have preceded this entertainment at the house of Simon, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Perhaps it was the memory of those tender words which had opened the fountain of her penitence, and which caused her to stand at his feet behind him weeping. Some of her tears fell upon the bare feet of the Savior, and she, noticing the fact, wiped them away with the hairs of her head. But that made them flow all the faster, until she literally bathed the feet of the Savior with her tears. One act led to another. Seeing no exhibitions of annoyance, and led on by the impulsive power of her affection for the one who had so comforted her, she began softly to kiss his feet, and still unrepelled, she broke the alabaster box of ointment, "very precious," with which she had been in the habit, no doubt, of adding to her own seductions, and anointed them with that.

The fragrance of the ointment, if not the act itself, would have attracted universal attention to what she was doing. The Pharisee saw and wondered. His comment was inward—not insultingly open. It appears to have been honest—not hostily unjust. He carried on an argument within himself, which, in premises and conclusion, was as follows: "A prophet would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: a prophet, being holy, would have shrunk from such a contact with impurity: therefore, this man can be no prophet." It never occurred to him that it could be possible that he might have known the one and yet suffered the other. His only conception of the effect of impurity touching purity was that the latter would be smirched by the contact. He had no idea of a purity so great that it would not only be unsullied by it, but would actually change the character of the sinner so that it would be "whiter than snow."

The Question (40: 42).—Christ answered the thoughts of Simon, and thus proved himself to be greater even than that which his host had just inwardly declared that he was not. The significant way in which the thoughts of the master of the house were arrested probably prepared him somewhat for what was coming. "Simon, I have somewhat to say to thee" was a sentence which sounded very much like an arraignment—as it was. Simon's answer is still courteous: "Master (or teacher) say on." What Christ has to say to him takes the form of a parable—that seemingly simple, but inimitable way which Christ had of teaching truth. In this case, it is hard to tell which most to admire—the skill with which he makes the accuser become a witness against himself, or the way in which he both spares and condemns him. "Tell me, therefore, which of them will love him the most?" He does not ask which one of the two will serve the best, nor which will be the greatest saint, but which will love him the most. The creditor was willing to take love in lieu of dollars. And it is for the same reward that God is willing to cancel our indebtedness to him. He is hungry for the love of his creatures.

The Answer (43).—Simon answered the question in the only way that it could be answered. But that "I suppose" indicates that it was reluctantly answered, as if he had caught sight of the possible application which his guest intended to make. But there was no escape. He was shut up to one conclusion—"He to whom he forgave the most." The commendation: "Thou hast rightly judged," must have told him that he had pronounced against himself. The characteristic feature of the judgment day will be that each one will be condemned out of his own mouth.

The Application (44-48).—"Seest thou this woman?" Thus the two supposed cases were suddenly brought face to face. The debtor for fifty pence was confronted by the one who owed five hundred, and infinitely to his own discredit. For from Simon much, comparatively, should have been expected—from this outcast, comparatively very little. Simon had shown no love at all! It was the want of that which accounts for his neglect of all those little courtesies which make a guest feel at home. The sin of Simon was—not his want of courtesy—but his want of love.

The Explanation (49–50).—First there was the inward explanation of those who sat at meat with him, and who had been witnesses of what had taken place. "Who is this that forgiveth sins also?" Their verdict was just—that no mere man could forgive sins. But there was a stupid wonder—not a conviction. They caught a glimpse of the real truth, but did not accept it. The second explanation was that which was given by the Savior himself to the woman. "Thy faith hath saved thee." That was the real reason for her salvation—not the fact that "she loved much." Faith is always the condition of salvation—love the result of it. It does not say "whosoever loveth," but "whosoever believeth in him shall not perish, but have everlasting life." And there are more who could attempt faith in him than love for him: for one is under one's control, and the [illegible] [illegible] ner accepts the on[illegible] fore i[illegible] surrenders to be other [illegible] counsel [illegible] surance is a benedic[illegible] must have fallen like a balm on this [illegible]. reflecti[illegible] common operations of life, which, but for their commonness, would be deemed half-miracle[illegible] vel, few things are more wonderful than the origin, structure, history and significance of words. The tongue is the glory of man; for though animals have memory, will and intellect, yet language, which gives us a duplicate and multiplied existence—enabling mind to communicate with mind—is the Rubicon which they never have dared to cross. The dog barks as it barked at creation, and the crow of the cock is the same to-day as when it startled the repentant Peter. The songs of the lark and the howl of the leopard have continued unchangeable as the concentric circles of the spider and the [illegible] hexagon of the bee. PLAN OF EPISCOPAL VISITATION made in [illegible] time ut fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, this making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagara Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

Hymnal with Tunes, 8vo	1 75

Since the manuscript of the Hymnal was delivered by the Committee, October 26th, last, time has been required to prepare and perfect the indexes, to complete the arrangements of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The super editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books, that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

*The 12mo size may be delayed a few days.

A FINE HEAD OF HAIR is such an indispensable adjunct to beauty, that one who prizes good looks should neglect to use "London Hair Color Restorer," the most delightful article ever introduced to the American people for increasing its growth, restoring its natural color, and at the same time a lovely hair dressing and beautifier. It is totally different from all others; not sticky and gummy, and free from all impure ingredients that render many articles obnoxious; in fact, it is exquisitely perfumed and so perfectly and elegantly prepared as to make it a lasting hair dressing and toilet luxury. Sold by all dealers in fine toilet articles, at 75 cents a bottle, or six bottles for $4. E. Hart & Co., wholesale agents, New Orleans.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

Rev. H. R. REVELS, Pres't,
jy4-3m. Rodney, Miss.

COURSE OF STUDY FOR Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, § 5 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I.—Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. FIRST YEAR.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

To BE READ.—Scripture History—Old Testament.—Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

To BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

To BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. I. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

To BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

GRAMMAR IN A NUTSHELL.

[illegible]

II.
A Noun's the name of anything,
As school, or garden, hoop, or swing.

III.
Adjectives, the kind of Noun,
As great, small, pretty, white, or brown.

IV.
Instead of Nouns the Pronouns stand—
Her head, his face, your arm, my hand.

V.
Verbs tell of something to be done—
To read, count, laugh, sing, jump, or run.

VI.
How things are done, the Adverbs tell,
As slowly, quickly, ill, or well.

VII.
Conjunctions join the words together—
As [illegible] and [illegible], wind or weather.

VIII.
The Preposition stands before
A Noun, as in, or through the door.

IX.
The Interjection shows surprise,
As Oh! how pretty! Ah! how wise!

The [illegible] of Speech,
Which reading, writing, speaking teach.

Polly and the Parrot.

The widow Whiting had a green [illegible] son, who was a sailor, [illegible] home for her on his [illegible] a long voyage. The [illegible] with this poor [illegible] as she lived alone, [illegible] company for her. [illegible] "Pretty, Poll, oh, [illegible] Poll!" How smart [illegible] at times it would say, [illegible] and, "That's right" [illegible] Whiting lived near a [illegible] hotel, the boarders [illegible] past her little cottage [illegible] bird talk.

[illegible] tell our little readers [illegible] happened [illegible] which you may [illegible] may be very [illegible] inex- [illegible] lived [illegible] small town [illegible] was [illegible] distinctly [illegible] are [illegible] or [illegible] shoes [illegible] her life, [illegible] pride [illegible] What [illegible] posed [illegible] when every one in this charming place was attracted by her wonder[illegible] [illegible] children, with their nurse, next passed by; she did not like to go near the window, for she heard them saying also, "Pretty Polly! pretty Polly!"

"That's right, that's right!" called the same strange voice from the next house.

"Oh, dear," thought Polly Cole, "what a nice town this is! I wonder if I had not better put on my best dress? Some one might come in to see me!"

Her mother had not unpacked her best dress, and she could not find the key of the box in which her clothes were kept, but she found her mother's best shawl and bonnet, and putting these on she went out and seated herself on the front steps.

"How nice!" said the same voice.

"How strange!" thought Polly Cole.

Soon there was such a screeching and scolding and crying, all of which seemed to come from the piazza of the next house, and then the voice called out loudly, "Polly! pretty Poll, oh, pretty, pretty Poll!" and then the poor, silly, bewildered girl did not know if to cry or laugh or answer back, saying that she was here.

Presently, however, she heard a voice that she had no difficulty in recognizing calling her by name. "Polly Cole, what are you sitting idle for, and with my best shawl and bonnet on, too? Have you finished your work? Go right in the house."

Poor girl, how mortified she felt when she found it was a Poll parrot that had made her so conceited and silly, and that it was the bird and not herself whom the boarders at the hotel had called pretty Polly!

It was fortunate for this child that her mother was a good Christian woman, for she talked to Polly about the wickedness of being so proud, and made her commit to memory a portion of the sixth verse of the fourth chapter of James. Look for that verse and learn it, so that pride may not enter your heart.

The moral of my story you will find in Proverbs, eleventh chapter and second verse.

Old Letters.

Never burn kindly written letters; it is so pleasant to read them over when the paper is yellow with age, and the hands that traced the friendly words are folded over the hearts that prompted them, under the green sod. Above all, never burn love letters. To read them in after years is like a resurrection of one's youth. The elderly spinster finds in the impassioned offer foolishly rejected twenty years ago, a fountain of rejuvenescence. Glancing over it she realizes that she was once a belle and a beauty, and beholds her former self in a mirror much more congenial to her taste than the one that confronts her in her dressing-room. The "widow indeed" derives a sweet and solemn [illegible] from the letters of the [illegible] one who has journeyed before [illegible] to the far-off land, from which [illegible] no message, and where [illegible] one day to join him. The Class-Leader.
His Work, and How to Do It.
With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.
BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,
Author of "Garden of Sorrows."

12mo..................$1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who means business. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant. Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

A Fine Head of Hair is such an indispensable adjunct to beauty that no one who prizes good looks should neglect to use London Hair Restorer, the most effectual article for increasing its growth, restoring its natural color and a delightful hair dresser and beautifyer—being free from sticky and gummy properties—clear and richly perfumed. Recommends itself to every lady and gentleman using fine toilet articles.

Extracts from Letters.

A. A. Gibson, Barrytown, Duchess County, N. Y., writes, April 30, 1877, Dr. Swayne & Son, Phila., Gents—I enclose post-office order for eight dollars, please send me one dozen London Hair Color Restorer. It has stopped my hair from falling out, and restored it to its natural color. It has proved satisfactory in every respect.

Dr. Isaac H. Miller, West Breeknock, Pa., writes: As a restorer of grey hair and preventative of baldness, it is the best remedy I have ever sold, and gives entire satisfaction.

Wm. Schell, Germantown, Columbia co., N. Y., writes: April, 1877—The London Hair Color Restorer was received. I am delighted with it. You will find enclosed four dollars for a half dozen bottles by express.

London Hair Color Restorer

Is the best and cleanest article ever made; is entirely harmless and free from all impure ingredients that render many other preparations injurious. It removes dandruff, stops the hair from falling, and restores the perfectly natural color. It is exquisitely perfumed and so perfectly and elegantly prepared as to make it a lasting hair dressing and toilet luxury.

READ THESE TESTIMONIALS.

U. S. Marshal's office, Harrisburg, Va.

Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth st., Philadelphia—Gentlemen, I have suffered for twenty years from that terrible disease itching piles, had consulted many physicians and used numerous applications and medicines, but found no permanent relief until I procured your All-healing Ointment. After using one box in the space of three weeks' time, I found myself entirely cured, and for the last four months have not even felt a symptom of the disease. I also used the Ointment on a spot of dry tetter on my head, which had annoyed me for five years, and found the same happy result, a perfect cure in a short time. I deem it my duty to give you this well merited testimonial of so great a medicine. You may publish this if you see fit. Very respectfully,
WM. P. GROVE.

SKIN DISEASES.

Swayne's All-healing Ointment is also a specific for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barber's Itch, Blotches, all Scaly, Crusty, Cutaneous Eruptions. Perfectly safe and harmless, even on the most tender infant. Price 50 cents, 3 boxes for $1 25. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price. Sold by all leading druggists. Prepared only by

To Consumptives AND Invalids.
Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry

seldom, if ever fails to cure a cough. Even when the lungs have become much disordered, with night sweats, burning fever pains and oppression, it has effected wonderful cures

A Remarkable Cure.

Dr. Swayne—Dear Sir—I feel it to be due to you and suffering humanity to give the following testimony respecting the wonderful curative powers of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla and Tar Pills. I was afflicted with a violent cough, pains in the side and breast, night sweats, sore throat, my bowels were costive, appetite nearly gone, and my stomach so very weak that my physician was at a loss to know what to do for me, as everything in the shape of medicine was rejected; spit at different times a pint of blood. I remained for months in this awful condition, and gave up all hopes of ever recovering. At this time you recommended the use of your syrup and pills, which immediately began to soothe, comfort and allay the violence of the cough, strengthened and healed my lungs: in short it has made a perfect cure of me, and I am now able to pursue my daily labor. Any person doubting the truth of the above statement will please call on or address me at the factory. EDWARD H. HAMSON.
Engineer of Geo. Sweeney's Pottery, Ridge road below Wallace, Phila.

PHYSICIANS RECOMMEND IT

Dr. Thos. J. B. Rhoads, Boyertown, Berks co., Pa., writes, "Your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry I esteem very highly; have been selling and recommending it to my patients for many years, and it always proves efficacious. It has made some remarkable cures in this section, and I consider it the best remedy with which I am acquainted."

Price, $1. Six bottles for $5. Describe symptoms in all communications, and address letters to DR. SWAYNE & SON, 330 North Sixth street, Philadelphia. No charge will be made for advice. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines generally.

Cures Diseases of the THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD.

In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above directed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

INVALIDS' HOTEL.

The very large number of invalid people who daily visit Buffalo, from every quarter of the United States and Canada, that they may consult Dr. R. V. PIERCE, and the widely celebrated Faculty of Specialists in Medicine and Surgery associated with him, rendered it necessary that the founder of this institution should provide a place on a grand and commodious scale for their entertainment and comfort.

ADVANTAGES OFFERED.—The Invalids' Hotel is more complete in its appointments than any similar institution in the world. The building is located in one of the most healthful and desirable portions of the City of Buffalo, and commands a fine view of Lake Erie, Niagara River, and the surrounding country, being situated in the midst of an extensive system of beautiful parks. The Hotel is furnished with a patent safety passenger elevator, to convey patients to and from the different floors, is provided with all kinds of approved baths, and has also connected with it a well-appointed gymnasium and bowling alley to afford proper means of exercise.

CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms, whether requiring medical, surgical, or mechanical treatment, come within the province of our several specialties.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are the facilities of this Infirmary of a superior order as regards the remedial means and appliances for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females. The employment, in moderation, of tonic, chemical, electro-thermal, and other approved baths, is in many cases an invaluable auxiliary to the remedial means to which we resort in such cases. Dry friction to the surface, general shampooing, Swedish movements, and light calisthenic exercises, to enliven and equalize the circulation of the blood in the system, relieve congested parts, improve digestion, and strengthen the muscles, produce important beneficial results in all cases to which these means are applicable. No experimenting is resorted to in the treatment. The most approved medicines are carefully employed, and the judicious regulation of the diet, to suit the condition of the patient, the thorough ventilation of the sleeping apartment, the cheering influence of music, social intercourse, innocent games for amusement, and all those agencies which tend to arouse the mind of the patient from despondency, and thus promote recovery, are not neglected.

NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty, by which the greatest skill is attained and the most happy results secured.

LUNG DISEASES.—This division of the practice in the Invalids' Hotel is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases are very largely treated in this department, and with results which have been highly gratifying to both physician and patients.

EYE AND EAR.—Special attention is given to the delicate operations on the eye and ear, a distinguished oculist and aurist being under engagement to conduct this branch of the practice.

Invalids arriving in the city and desiring to consult us, should come directly to the Hotel. It is easily accessible by carriage, omnibus, or street cars. Miller's Omnibus Agents, on all incoming trains, can be relied upon to deliver passengers and baggage with security and dispatch.

TESTIMONIALS.

The N. Y. Times says: "Waters' Orchestrion Chime Organ" is a beautiful little instrument, simply perfect. The Chime of two and one-half octave bells and the artistic effects capable of being produced by the player are singularly fine.

The tone is full, clear and resonant, and a very interesting effect is produced with the chime of bell.—Christian Union.

The Waters' Pianos are well known among the very best. We are enabled to speak of these instruments with confidence from personal knowledge.—N. Y. Evangelist.

We can speak of the merits of the Waters' Pianos from personal knowledge, as being of the very best quality.—Christian Intelligencer.

PATENTS

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada, and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office, we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost, than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German-American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims; to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

THE DAY IS DONE.

The day is done, and the darkness
Falls from the wings of night,
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in his flight.

I see the lights of the village
Gleam through the rain and the mist,
And a feeling of sadness comes o'er me
That my soul cannot resist:

A feeling of sadness and longing,
That is not akin to pain,
And resembles sorrow only
As the mist resembles the rain.

Come, read to me some poem,
Some simple and heartfelt lay,
That shall soothe this restless feeling,
And banish the thoughts of day.

Not from the grand old masters,
Not from the bards sublime,
Whose distant footsteps echo
Through the corridors of Time.

And the night shall be filled with music,

tinct and a detail account of the phenomena that resulted in his conversion. Now, if this was a fact, it was a miracle of miracles; it was God's endorsement of Christianity. If it is not a fact, then its narrator was either an impostor or a fanatic, or a dupe, or self-decieved. Was he an impostor? If so, what was his motive? Not wealth, for his pecuniary condition could not have been more desperate prior than subsequent to his abandonment of the religion of his ancestors. The system he embraced, the social standing of its author and his disciples, the antagonism of its spirit and precepts to worldliness, his own life of toil and self-denial, and the results of his own life, forbid the supposition. Worldly honor was equally foreign to the cause he espoused, the character of its founder the social conditions of his early disciples, the principles and precepts the duties and trials the system involved. He already occupied a distinguished position among the decendants of Abraham, and could not have expected equal honor among the disciples of the Nazarene the carpenter. A life of ease and worldly pleasure, or the allurement of military or civil power, are still more impossible as inducements to embrace the cause of Christ. The change in his ecclesiastical relation was not only without motive, but in the face and eyes of every motive that could influence a man of the world. For in embracing the religion of Christ, as an impostor, he not only imperilled his interests for eternity, but for time. He entered upon a life not only of toil, but self-sacrifice, persecution—dying daily, and finally loosing his head by the knife of the Roman executioner. A life spent in advocating and practicing the severest virtues—I submit, it seems easier to believe in the physical miracle than to believe the character and life of an impostor.

Was he a fanatic? Every feature of his life and every element of his character disprove the charge. His prudence, his wisdom, his humility, that shone out so resplendently through his whole eventful life [illegible] and his epistles, prove beyond a doubt that he was no [illegible]. If Paul was a [illegible], then is there an utter confusion among all mental and moral [illegible], and the distinction between [illegible] and fanaticism is forever effaced.

But there is another fact still more inexplicable upon natural principles: the change in his intellectual views. Saul was a firm believer in Judaism, and one of its [illegible] students. He profited [illegible] many of his equals in his own [illegible]. A Pharisee of the strictest sect, he verily believed he might do many things contrary to the name of Jesus. How, what [illegible] and violently changed [illegible] on the road to Damascus, [illegible] to the relations of Christianity to Judaism? How happens it [illegible] once he discovers that [illegible] in the seed [illegible] which [illegible] and is burdened [illegible] type and prophecy [illegible] deepest Christian meaning [illegible] admit the Christian [illegible] and it is explained; [illegible] it is inexplicable. [illegible] another fact of [illegible] significance—the radical [illegible] moral change that [illegible] in his experienced [illegible] the lion into the [illegible] [illegible] emerged into the life, light and blessedness of a Christian experience. If in a different direction, how turned him is that new path? If upon a higher plane, who lifted him to that plane? And how happens it that reformation, culture or improvement did for him in three days what they had failed to do in thirty years? There is but one solution to this fact; he was changed by the power of Divine Grace through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; and so the conversion of Saul of Tarsus, involving a physical miracle and a universal mental and moral change stands forever an incontestable demonstration of the truthfulness of the Christian religion.—Metropolitan Pulpit.

Letter from Rev. R. J. Kellogg.

Professor Kellogg, of the Monrovia Seminary, is working vigorously to put that institution on a proper basis. He does not find all that he needs, and he has not been afraid to work with his own hands, even in that hot climate, to get things in order. He insists on the school aiming steadily at becoming self-supporting in the near future. Perhaps, however, our readers will get a better idea than we can give them by following some of Brother Kellogg's statements in detail. He says:

"I found upon my arrival here only twenty-five desks, at which two pupils could be seated, but not suitable desks. I found a few broken chairs, together with a few rough benches, which I have recently re-constructed with my own hands. These old broken chairs and benches are the seats upon which my Intermediate and Higher Departments are seated. In these two departments I have over sixty interesting pupils, male and female. These twenty-five hard wood desks are in good repair, but there are not enough of them, and I have constructed some temporary rough desks with my own hands, in order to avoid expense as much as possible.

Upon the first floor is the Primary Department with over forty pupils in that grade. Thus you see I have over one hundred pupils in the Seminary. I have to refuse to receive pupils in some grades from lack of books until I get them from America. The pupils are from St. Paul's River and vicinity. The brethren tell me that a very large school can be maintained there. Some pupils from abroad enter for a year. It is general court week here and many have informed me that next term they will send their children in from the country to board and attend school.

We have literally nothing in the way of seating for the forty pupils in the Primary Department. At present we are accommodated by the church which occupies the first floor of the Seminary upon the Sabbath. Our church is making extensive repairs upon their edifice to the amount of $2500 and over, and the pews of the church are placed in this room in the Seminary for temporary accommodation, by this means this lower department is both accommodated and discommoded. The church seats are too high for the small children and we have no desks. But these seats will soon be removed and nothing will remain.

Under a pressure I have opened a boarding department upon my own hook, running my chances to come out whole. Parents pay $6 per month for children under fourteen years, all of whom bring their own bedding and pay their own wash-bills. Not having my family here I am compelled to hire everything done. My sleeping rooms are all occupied. I am putting pupils for the time being in the large hall up stairs to sleep. My housekeeper sleeps up there to oversee them, as there are no partitions up and all sleep upon the floor. I have hired three assistant teachers, viz: Brothers Daniel Dennis and Sisters Payne and Johnson. I allow Brother Dennis $25 per month and the two ladies $15 each per month. I expect to pay the two ladies out of school funds here collected from tuition bills. I hope to pay a part of Bro. Dennis' salary thus also, if not all of it. Now if we get assistance from the Church at home we can [illegible] institution [illegible] will pay every [illegible] [illegible] the reach [illegible] provisions are made [illegible] the Monrovia Seminary will open its second term with over two hundred pupils, whose average tuition rates will be nearly $2 per student. From all accounts we will close this second week of our work with one hundred and twenty-five pupils. We had one hundred and [illegible] in all to-day. I ask each one who enters if they are aware that this is a pay school. All appear to understand it. I have sent many applicants away who could not pay—simply because I said that all my room and time would be occupied with those who can and will pay. If I crowd my room with free pupils, I will have nothing with which to pay my assistants, since the Mission Board has not voted a dollar yet for such help. I want funds to pay carpenters to partition the upper hall into domitories for the better accommodation of the boys and girls who sleep up there. These rooms are of vital importance to the Seminary as all can readily see at a glance. I want funds to pay for the chairs which have been ordered to be made at 50 cents each; seventy-five in all have be ordered. I expect to get these in time for seating the room when the church moves its furniture out. I want funds to build suitable primary desks as temporary accommodation until I can raise funds from the public by a general school exhibition into which there will be an admission fee. Thus the school intends to buy its own modern furniture in due time, but at present we are in need of temporary help. The people encourage this movement.

My health was never better than now notwithstanding I am laboring so excessively hard. I have several young men in theology among whom are three young Baptist licentiates.

Flour is very high here—[illegible] cents per pound. The sale of goods upon steamers is largely prohibited by action of the Government. The merchants ashore are jealous of those who sell on harbor without paying duties. Therefore [illegible] trade is about abandoned, except in small trinkets. Native fruits can be had cheap, but all use flour and rice, which are very dear.

Our Paris Letter.

The receipts continue to diminish at the Exhibition, though the building be no hotter than elsewhere.

In the Camp de Mars, the galleries are positively cool, thanks to the awning and the fresh air through the slitted floor. Those desiring a zero temperature can take up a position beside an ice making machine, and lend a hand at passing the "bricks" to the trucks; there is an underground aquarium with subterranean attractions that would delight the Duke of Portland himself, and the tasting hall, where refrigerated wines, brandies and liquors can be [illegible] for nothing. The truth is, the Exhibition wants animation. Visitors demand to live there and be amused for a day, not to have to return "done up" to a late table, and too exhausted to crawl anywhere after the meal. There is no music in the grounds, and only the reckless consent to be stewed in the Trocadero concert hall, and finished by international fiddlers, flute-players, big and little drums, trombones, cymbols and tri-angles.

Something like a series of State lotteries are to be organized, to come to the rescue of the Exhibition; one million of francs will be issued in tickets of one franc each, the proceeds are to be expended in lots, consisting of free admissions; objects d' art purchasing from exhibitors, &c. The end justifies the means. The Jordin d' Acclimation ought to lend its camels to enable visitors to perform the journey between the Trocadero and the Champ de Mars; the poor animals would feel at home in a temperature of [illegible] degrees and the travellers [illegible] as happy as looking at the [illegible] carding machines, or the [illegible] of the cases in the drug section. In the Italian department are ladders or fire escapes that [illegible] constructed on the principle of Irish miles—lengthening as they go. Only think of the [illegible] has to run up and down [illegible] to illustrate the working [illegible] the machines for the public [illegible] has overlooked this [illegible] in his [illegible] The French [illegible] not employ these escapes [illegible] would deprive their [illegible] displaying [illegible] The English [illegible] the spiral [illegible] rope [illegible] runs the chance of being dealt with as if on a turn-spit before a blazing fire.

The Italien section is devoted to active, rather then to industrial exhibits. Its facade in the alley of nations is ornamented with the busts of Dante, Titan, etc., Victor Emaunel, Garabaldi, the King and Queen, but Carrur is not visible. He ought to be among the men of the dey, of the Italian end French school of non-partitioning of territories, as, like Garibeldi, he protested against Nice and Savory being transferred to France. As a compensation there is a wooden bust of Napoleon I., an apparatus by which the head can be expanded to the size of Bartholdi's Liberti in the park, or as diminutive as Hugo's Napoleon le Petit. Next wonder is Micheal's stenographing machine of six reporter's power, it is even doomed by the phonograph. The specimens of furniture, sculptured end Inlaid, are both rich and beautiful. France produces nothing equal to them; black marble end ebony encrusted tebles are very numerous. There is a piano in wooden mosiac work for 10,000 francs, but Evard hes plain instruments at 50,000 francs. The gems in the way of saloon furniture are the small presses inlaid with ivory or lapis-lazuli. In the application of fine art to industry the best are the imitations; the new and original are very poor. This remark does not apply to the artistic glass work of Venice; there are cups formed by two layers of melted glass having the decoretion between them. No wonder Nero ordered the death of Consul Petronius, who refused to give up a kindred vase. The irrisated, or rain-bow hues in some of the glass can be metched by Austrian manufacturers. Venice has the monopoly of this colored glass for Abyssinia and Kaffraria, where it is bought as beads or to serve as money; there are glass tissues, made up as colored cravats and selling at 30 [illegible]; one of these and a paper collar can be understood in the dog days. The lower classes in Italy, as in other countries, have but limited taste; their household pottery is vulgar; not only taste for but the very sentiment of art is absent. Of general industry little is to be said, yet, in the fourteenth century, Italy exported quantities of tissues in wool, cotton, linen and silk. She wants coal but trusts to yet employing sunshine as a motive power. In silks and Tuscan straw hats much business is transacted, and Venice seems to have rediscovered her art of making lace, as well as glass. The country is naturally rich, but her agricultural products are few; capital is wanted and would be supplied only it would at once be taxed heavily. There are excellent specimens of wheat, preserved fruits, and well known wines; agriculture is backward all the same, though the Etruscans were fair cultivators; they were ingenius, too, as they invented hand-mills and trumpets; their descendants inherit some of their qualities, the love of music, for example, as the Etruscans even beat their slaves to the sound of the flute.

The most popular song in Paris is "Thou Art only a Flea;" double prices are charged to hear it, and the greatest prodigy is a dwarf with a movable hump. LOUIS.

Paris, July 31, 1878.

Cyprus.

Whether a position on Cyprus is a commanding one may be questioned. The island has had a pretty long series of owners, and has passed through quite an eventful history, but that it has been a source of strength to its successive conquerors is a point on which one might well hesitate to speak with decision. Those who have held it have first been powerful on the mainland, and not been lifted to power by the acquisition of Cyprus. Whether it will prove an addition to the strength of the British Empire remains to be seen. At least some intelligent and thoughtful men will have serious doubts upon this point, and be inclined to consider some position on the adjoining continents more desirable. Cyprus is beleived to be the Chittum and Cepthor of the Old Testament. Its rich copper mines attracted the attention of the Phœnicians, who had flourishing colonies on the island certainly as early as B. C. 1000. Greek settlements were also made at a very early period. Agamemnon landed here on his way to Troy, and it is said the Greek colonization began after the return of the Trojan expedition. On an Egyptian tomb it is recorded that Thothmes III. conquered Cyprus, and it is certain that Sargon, the King of Assyria, subjugated the Cyprian kings, B. C. 707, and that in B. C. 594, Apries, King of Egypt—the Pharoah Hopra of Scripture—defeated a number of Cypriote monarchs near Citium. After this the island became a part of the Persian Empire, end in the time of Darius was the fifth province. Again the Greeks held a portion of it and again it reverted the Persians. Afterward the successors of Alexander wielded the Cypriote sceptre, but only at the cost of continual conflict, and this was in the fourth century before Christ. Subsequently the Egyptian Ptolemy Soter retook the island and held it for a considerable period; the last Egyptian potentate being the uncle of Cleopatra. At this point the Romans appear upon the scene, and Cyprus is surrendered to Cato. Cicero became its pro-consul in the year 52 B. C. From the time of the Maccabees the Jews seem to have had settlements here, and were strong enough during the reign of Trajan to maintain a serious revolt. St. Paul landed upon Cyprus on his way to Rome, when Sergius Paulus was pro-consul. Under Constantine the people were considerd Christians. Afterwards Cyprus was a part of the Byzantine Empire, until Richard the Third, of England, defeating its army, and becoming the possessor of this debatable ground, sold it to the Knights Templars. They proved to be incompetent rulers, and Richard resumed his rights and soon after sold the territory to Guy of Lusignan, whose dynasty held peaceful possession of the throne until A. D. 1372. Since then the Genoese, the Duke of Savoy, the Venetians, and the Turks have in succession occupied the throne.

The surface of the island is broken by mountains, the highest peak being Mount Olympus, which rises to a height of 6,500 feet. The soil of the valleys and plains is fertile; the climate is enervating to man but favorable to vegetation, and crops are raised with moderate labor. The people are proverbial for their love of luxury and pleasure, and the people around Paphos are said to be the worst people in the world. The brief description of the inhabitants given by the Apostle Paul is said to be as true to-day as when they were written. Great Britain enters upon a property not altogether to be coveted. Indeed, the student of history will be somewhat inclined to consider the possession of Cyprus a source of weakness. It certainly has never produced strength.—Christian Messenger.

The Soul's Picture Gallery.

There are grand picture galleries, where one could spend weeks, and even months, in looking at the works of the old masters, but rich and rare as these treasures are, the human soul has a picture gallery of its own, that will rival the finest collections of the earth. For doubtless the Heavenly Photographer is taking every scene in our lives with perfect exactness, and when the light of eternity flashes in upon us, we will see every thought and act of the past in life-like proportions before us. We may not understand how this can be done; no matter, there are transactions as wonderful going on all about, that we do not understand. We take a shell from its ocean bed and carry to the mountain top, but it still sings of the sea. We cannot tell why it echoes through all the years its cradle song, but still it sings on.

We cannot understand how the light can paint so delicately and yet so perfectly, that it requires the aid of a magnifying glass to bring out the finer lines of delicate tracery, but still it paints on, and leaf, and flower and picture glows in living beauty beneath its touch.

And as the secrets of its power become known, the more wonderful its revelations of beauty.

By a recent discovery a piece of glass may be so prepared as to answer the purpose of the finest lithographic plate, and a photograph transferred to it by the light becomes so permanent that any number of copies may be struck off. And no matter how elaborate the picture, it is quickly and perfectly copied.

Now, if material forces can work such wonders, what may not the stronger spiritual power accomplish?

It has been suggested by a friend that at conversion all the past is swept from the canvas, the negative lines of a Christ-life traced, and that these lines are deepened until the glass through which we see darkly is removed and we see Jesus face to face, and are like Him.

Any way it is easy to believe that the Creator of all these natural wonders about us, can and will give a panorama of the earth life.

Reader, what will be the treasures of your picture gallery? Will the heavenly canvass reveal your garments bedraggled in the mire of sin, or washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb? Will you be represented as bowing at the shrine of fashion, or at the altar of prayer? Will your hands appear filled with the vanities that minister to pride and selfishness, or busy with ministrations that bring comfort and blessings to others?

Your picture gallery is being filled with pictures that will never grow old, and that will give sorrow or joy forever.

How careful we are when we sit in the presence of an earthly photographer that he may represent us to the very best advantage.

Shall we not be even more careful as we sit in the King's gallery, where the pictures that are taken are to be enduring as eternity, that we shall appear true and pure? Careful that all our deformities shall be covered with the righteousness of Christ, and that His precious image shall appear in every line?

And then, as the angel of death passed by the blood-sprinkled doorposts of the Israelites, so will the angel of the second death pass by our blood-sprinkled souls.

It will be seen by the above that, during the six months reported, over one-third of the pastorel charges neglected to take the collection for the freedmen ordered by the General Conference. The amount raised last year for the seme period, was $18,191.21—making a decrease in the collections of this year of $3,075.14, a little less than 17 per cent. R. S. RUST.

Stand by Your Colors.

When you join a church you should calculate to stand by your colors. What is a soldier good for who drops out of the ranks, or skulks, or runs, the moment the cause is in peril? What is a church-member worth who becomes invisible just when his services could be of some value? If you are in a large church where the workers are abundant, you may without harm keep modestly in the background; but in case the ranks are thin, your response should ring out at every roll call. As a Christian soldier, you have enlisted for the wer. How can you settle it in the court of conscience that you are delinquent in the breach? What good opinion can you have of yourself, if, when in a large church, you press your way to the front ranks and seek promotion, and then when your lot falls emong small people who really need your help, you keep your letter in your pocket or pass it over to some other denomination which happens to be larger or more popular than your own? That course is a sad commentary on religion. But we fear it is a true history of many a sham professor. If they are not deserters from the ranks they are shirks or pretenders, and as such a source of positive weakness to any body to which they belong.—Zion's Herald.

The total cost of the Paris Exposition is officially reported at $9,060,000. The receipts are estimated at $6,900,000.

General Howard telegraphs that the crisis in the Indian campaign has certainly passed, and intimates that comparatively little trouble will be experienced for some time.

The cotton crop of the present year will be the largest since the war, and is estimeted at 4,700,000 bales. In 1859–'60, the crop amounted to 4,861,000 bales; 1870–'71 4,437,000 bales; 1875–'76, 4,632,000 bales; 1876–'77, 4,474,000 bales.

The body of Mr. J. Hall Whipple, the only son of Bishop Whipple, the Episcopal Bishop of Minnesota, was taken from the Ohio river a few days ago. Restive of restraint, he had led a dissipated life, which is terminated by suicide or violence.

There is much distress in the agricultural districts in Spain in consequence of the drouth. In Andalusia the peasants resist the collection of the octri and land-tax. Locusts and phylloxera are also very prevalent.

A famine, unprecedented in its severity, which will be intensified during the rest of the year, is scourging the southern portion of Morocco; no less than 3,000,000 people are affected by it.

Since the 2d of June, the date of the attempted assassination of the Emperor of Germany by Nobeling, there have been 563 arrests of persons for insulting the Emperor.

It is estimated that in the famine-stricken districts of China the population has been reduced over 5,000,000 by actual starvation. Rain has continued in the famine-stricken provinces of China, and hopes are entertained of a good harvest; but meantime the suffering continues.

A dispatch from Calcutta reports that the government of Madras has telegraphed for extra famine officers immediately, because of the ravages of locusts. The recovery from the famine of drouth is only partial when the relief is cut off by the locusts.

Brother Sankey has accepted an invitation to go to England, and will sail the latter part of September. It is expected that he will remain there for some months, holding services of song. On his return he will join Moody, who will meantime spend the time as quietly as he can in Baltimore.

It is estimated that the wheat crop of the United States of 1878 will amount to three hundred millions of bushels, of which fully one-half will be harvested west of the Mississippi. Minnesota leads off with sixty million bushels, and Iowa comes next with forty-five thousand.

Colonel Casey has submitted his report in relation to the Washington Monument. He recommends that it be run up to five hundred and twenty-five feet in height, and that it be commenced as soon as possible and continued until completed.

A dispatch to the New York World states that the Cabinet has been considering the Mexican question with anxiety, and that the officers in the department of Texas considered war almost a certainty. The Secretary of war has announced the receipt of dispatches giving information of a widespread organization in Mexico to repel the American "invaders." The Cabinet has finally determined, however to protect the frontier. The United States troops on the Rio Grande are to be ordered to pursue raiders; and if opposed by troops on Mexican soil, to withdraw their command to the north side of the river and report at once to the government. Just at this epoch a war with Mexico might be rather beneficial to the country at large, and especially, perhaps, to New Orleans, which in the event of a protracted struggle would become a great store-centre for munitions of war; and perhaps a centre of supplies.

"I see," said General Grant recently, "they talk of an empire in France. There is nothing in France, nothing in Europe, to my mind, to justify such a hope. From all I see there is nothing clearer than that Europe will see a good many more republics before she has another empire.

In New Orleans, August 1[illegible], 1878, DAVID W. JONES, a native of Greencastle, Indiana, and for several years a resident of this city.

Bro. Jones has been connected with the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE for the past three years as associate editor. He was a devout member of the M. E. Church, and a noble, kind-hearted gentleman. It is sad to have to chronicle any death, but when we are called upon to record the demise of a true and faithful friend, a beloved brother, it is a painful duty indeed. For many years the writer of this has been intimately acquainted with the deceased, and has always found him to be a true friend, a good man, and a devout Christian. Quiet, unassuming, true and brave, ever ready to help the poor and friendless, always foremost in any good work, he won the respect and friendship of all who knew him.

Bro. Jones was sick only a few days, the first symptoms being discovered last Thursday, and the dread disease which is making desolate so many happy homes snatched him from among his friends so suddenly that they can hardly realize that he is gone. He leaves a wife and little child, who are at West New Brighton, New York, and upon whom this sad intelligence will fall with crushing force; for he was a loving husband, a devoted father. Our most sincere sympathy is extended to the heart-broken wife. May a kind providence enable her to bear this great bereavement and watch over and care for the fatherless babe.

The Austrian occupation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina, in accordance with the terms of the settlement of the Russo-Turkish war by the Berlin Congress, meets with many obstacles. Turkey has asked for a convention to settle the period of the Austrian occupation which was not definitely fixed by the Congress. This convention has not been concluded, and public sentiment is very strongly opposed to it. Meanwhile the inhabitants of the provinces in question have taken up arms and combated the advance of the Austrian army. A large number of Turkish regulars deserted their posts and joined the insurgents; hence the suspicion arises that the revolt is due to Turkish intrigue, and to force an Austrian compliance with the wishes of the Porte. Servia has been warned by Austria not to violate her international obligations, by covertly aiding the insurgents. The Prince of Montenegw counsels non-resistance to the Austrians. The latter having sent four new divisions to confront the insurgents, the peace promised by the Berlin settlement appears still to be far off.

Intelligence from Point Coupee parish is to the effect that on Wednesday night last, on the Botany Bay plantation, bayou Fordoche, a number of men styling themselves "bulldozers" whipped one Levy Allain almost to death, seriously whipped William Abraham, shot Levi Sherman three times, and would have injured more had they not made their escape out of the way. All three of these colored men are reported to be confined to their beds from the injuries received. An indignation meeting of citizens and merchants, it is said, was called to meet at New Texas Landing on Wednesday, 21st inst., for the purpose of repudiating the conduct of the bulldozers. The persons whipped and shot were to make affidavits on Monday 19th inst., and the sheriff was expected to try to make arrests. If he could not do so, he was expected to place the whole matter before Gov. Nicholls, and ask his co-operation as the chief-executive of the State in the suppression of the disgraceful outlawry, which he has so often declared should have no sympathy from his administration.

There is considerable suffering among the families of the City Police, on account of their salaries not having been paid them by the city administration. On Thursday the Crescent City Police Benevolent Association met at Violet Hall, Capt. Manning in the chair. The committee of five appointed to wait upon the Mayor relative to the payment of police salaries, reported that the July pay would be given them about the first of September; and that an effort would be made to have the preceeding months made receivable for taxes.

After the adjournment of the association, Patrolman Scully organized the Crescent City Police Force Association, which adopted the following resolution:

From West Texas

During the first week of July I aided Rev. B. E. Bowman in a camp-meeting eight miles from Lampasas Springs, resulting in the conversion of 22 souls, and 11 additions to the C. P. Church and 45 to the M. E. Church South.

Wednesday before the third Sabbath in last month I commenced a protracted meeting in McCreeville in Lampasas county. After the meeting had progressed for some three days, and several had been converted, an old man claiming to be a Southern Methodist preacher came in and wanted to take part in the meeting. Of course I said to him, you are welcome here, but I conducted the meeting still; at this he became enraged and did all he could to break up the meeting. One night after we had had a good interest and several had professed faith in Christ, the old man mounted a bench, and said he, "I think Northern Methodism is in the wrong latitude in the South, and the people ought not to aid the abolition church," for said he "she freed our negroes and made them citizens of the country with us and she spilt the blood of our people, and now she wants to kiss us and be at peace. Never." To all this I made no reply, as reply was not needed, for, before the old man was through the people were disgusted and even hissed at him while talking. On the next morning the old preacher left us, the meeting continued for more than a week and indeed we had a glorious time. The Spirit of God was upon us, sinners felt the power thereof and tremblingly asked what they should do to be saved. Tears flowed, prayers went up in faith from many Christian and penitent hearts, God in mercy sent down his Spirit and refreshed the Church and converted 21 persons; the meeting closed with 18 penitents at the altar and as many more in the congregation said they would seek Christ. All that were converted joined the C. P. Church and the M. E. Church South. I made no effort to organize the M. E. Church from the fact that we have no people near Lampasas, and we have not preachers to take charge of one society here. However I hope the day is in the near future when the M. E. Church will have her preachers missionating over this western country. Much could be done here if we had the men and means to push forward the interest of the Church.

The Southern people want union between the two Episcopal branches of Methodism, but unfortunately the preachers are opposed to union and some are even opposed to fraternity, but I trust the good people of this country will compel the preachers to do right.

Wishing you much success as the organ of the M. E. Church in the South.

I am yours in Christ,
SAMUEL C. LOCKETT.
Colporteur American Tract Society.

Dr. Ridganay, of St. Paul's Methodist Church, is absent upon a vacation. Rev. Dr. McCarty has supplied for him for the past two Sundays very acceptably. He has made a host of warm friends in the Queen City and will always be a welcome visitor to our churches and homes.

The preachers' meeting has under discussion the theme of "Immortality." It has been discussed for several weeks under a variety of forms and great interest and profit included. The Methodist Preachers' meeting is composed of the ablest ministerial ability of our city and its deliberation are creditable to any city in our land.

Methodism is advancing. Aggressiveness marks her movements in every advance upon sin and satan, she occupies the vanguard. Most of the pastors are holding but one preaching service Sunday in the morning, reserving the evening for prayer meetings or song services.

The Loneland camp meeting is progressing grandly. The notable feature of yesterday were the sermons by Bishop Wiley and Dr. Rust, both of which were pronounced superior efforts—and were attended with universal spiritual effects in the general attendance of the people.

Yellow Fever.

This dreaded disease is steadily increasing in this city. Last Sunday there were no less than 47 deaths and 115 new cases. The total number up to this writing (Tuesday) being 1219 cases and 356 deaths. The New Orleans Picayune speaking of yellow fever in this city in 1853, gives the following summary:

The total mortality in 1853 was 15,[illegible], of which 7849 were from yellow fever. The deaths from this [illegible] 1 in January, 3 in May, [illegible] in July, 5133 in August, [illegible] September, 247 in October, [illegible] in November and [illegible] in December. [illegible] the victims, [illegible] were white males, 3475 white females, 17[illegible] colored males and 21 colored females.

Up to this date not more than four colored persons are reported as having the disease. We give below a mode of treatment which we find in the Daily City Item of the 16th:

In the Delta of September 28, 1853, Dr. Edward Jenner Coxe, then a celebrated physician of this city, gave his idea of how yellow fever should be treated. He advises the use one of pill at the early stage of the attack, subsequently worked with Seidlitz powders, or a dose of oil, with a salt water injection to cleanse the alimentary canal. Quinine is considered injurious, as it injuriously acts on the brain. For nervous pain in the head he advised local application and a mustard poultice on the back of the neck. If the skin be hot and dry, cold applications are regarded as improper. When the bowels have been acted on and a moderate perspirations is maintained by ptisans, etc., for some time, blankets and hot drinks must gradually give way to a more comfortable and cooling treatments. At this stage he recommends a mixture composed of nitrate potash, one drachm, spirits sweet nitre, one ounce, antimonial wine, halfdrachm, orange flower water, one to two ounces, with water sufficient for a eight ounce mixture. He adds, I have added occasionally forty to sixty grains of chlorate of potash and half a drachm of tinc. aconite, and as I have thought, with increased efficacy. "Touching the exclusion of air," the doctor says: "I confess I have to learn why fresh air should be excluded from the sick, or a sweating patient be forced to lie in fetid clothes and upon equally fetid sheets, under the bar, well calculated to produce, and still more, to keep up a febrile condition of the body.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. H. Ca[illegible]thorn, Brooksville, Miss: "Our protracted meeting is now going on, we received eight members, had five conversions, and baptized nineteen children and five adults. Our work is going nobly on, and our members are in good cheer. I have in my Sunday-school 115 scholars."

Rev. P. M. Carmichael, West Texas: "We held quarterly service at La Grange on the 3d and 4th inst., which was quite interesting. 109 persons partook of the holy sacrament, one joined the church, and eight adults and two children were baptized. Our work is greatly revived. At 11 o'clock, our Presiding elder preached the funeral sermon of Bro. Johnson, and at night, Rev. Mr. Miller, of the M. E. Church South, preached an interesting sermon. Rev. P. Gajes, of Lagrange, participated with us.

Rev. Jas. H. Parker, Pickens station, Miss: "We will hold a camp-meeting at Gages Springs, three miles north of Pickens, commencing on the 27th of August. Members of all denominations are invited to attend. We trust that our proposed re-union will prove beneficial to man and redound to the glory of God."

Rev. C. Gilbert, Memphis, Tenn.: "I have just closed a two weeks protracted meeting, at Friendship Church. There were seventeen conversions; thirteen joined the church and were baptized. The good work of the Lord is going nobly on, and I pray it may continue."

Rev. Alexander Martin, State Line Circuit: "We have just closed our third Quarterly Conference. Thirteen classes report in good condition; there have been ten conversions, and three received into full membership; seven adults and fifteen infants were baptized. On the 4th inst., our Presiding elder, Rev. J. G[illegible]ld, preached an excellent sermon. Our Sunday-school numbers sixty scholars and is in a fine condition. May the grace of God be with us."

Rev. John Wright, Seguin, Texas: "Our Camp meeting begins on the 8th. We have a new church building at Seguin, for which we thank the Lord; it is small, being 24x34 feet, but is large enough for our present. We have a good Sunday-school. Our Presiding Elder, Rev. S. Gates, is noble Christian man and a father to our church. We are having a hard time in Seguin, but we look hopefully to the future."

Rev. B. L. Thompson, La Teche: Bro. Be[illegible], President of the New Orleans University, is here doing a noble work in the interest of that institution. He preached in our new church on last Sabbath; next Sunday he goes to Jeannerett to attend a Union meeting. He meets with a hearty reception from our people, and his canvass among the young will result in many attending the University the coming season.

The Howard Association is daily receiving liberal contributions from the generous at home and abroad; and applications are pouring in for assistance to the number of forty and fifty per day. The members have been assigned to the different districts of this city, and their field of labor. On Monday a check of Potter Palmer, of Chicago, with advice to draw on him for more, if needed, exhibited an early appreciation of the needs of the city by those who have heard of the progress of the fever at a distance.

General Religious Items.

Italy contains 39,480 Protestants; 3,994,000 Roman Catholics.

The total amount of Presbyterian church debts paid last year was over $1,000,000.

Only 35,000 persons regularly attend church in Berlin. The population of the city is 1,000,000.

Eleven young ladies are studying at the London Medical School in preparation for missionary work in India and Africa.

It is asserted that the estates which Barnabas, the fellow worker with St. Paul, sold for the propogation of the Gospel were lands in Cyprus.

Nine Protestant denominations have now missions in Mexico. These employ 98 missionaries. There are 137 congregations and 12,000 members and adherents.

Rev. William Leewood, of the Central Alabama Conference and stationed in Mobile, fell in the pulpit, overcome with the heat, on Sunday, the 28th of July. He is reported to be improving.

The Chinese Sunday-school of the First Congregational Church of San Francisco lately celebrated its tenth anniversary. About two hundred and fifty Chinese were present. The Stockton Chinese school has had sixty-four scholars during the year.

It is proposed to hold a General Conference on Foreign Missions in London, from the 21st to the 26th of October, to which all Foreign Missionary Societies are invited to send delegates. Among the conveners of the assembly are the Earl of Shaftesbury, who is expected to preside, the Rev. Dr. Mullens, the Rev. Dr. W. Morley Punshon, and many other well-known men.

The Old Testament Revision Company, since the first meeting on the 30th of June, 1870, have sat for four hundred and sixty days, working six hours each day, and thus revised the whole of the Old Testament for the first time, with the exception of a part of Esther, Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Solomon's Songs, and Daniel. They have also been a second time through the Pentateuch.

The Secretary of the New York Sunday-school Convention reports that there are in the schools of the State 900,000 teachers and scholars. This total is thus distributed; teachers, 90,000; in adult classes, 100,000; scholars under adult age, 700,000. There are, acording to the late census, 1,585,601 persons in the State between the age of five and twenty-one years of age. The Sunday-schools statisticts leave, therefore, 800,000 children unaccounted for. The number in Roman Catholic Sunday-schools, which is not repoted, would materially reduce this aggregate.

Yellow Fever.

Our City Wrapped in Mourning.

Terrible Suffering and Destitution among the Poor.

The Dread Scourge Rapidly Increasing.

An Appeal to a Christian People for Help.

The yellow fever is rapidly increasing here; 1355 cases up to Tuesday noon; 396 deaths. The gloomy crape is seen on residences all over the city. There are many poor persons down with the disease who are penniless, and the appeal for charity is going up from all quarters. The Howard and Young Men's Christian Associations are doing all in their power to relieve the suffering; they have as yet little means at their disposal, but contributions are coming in. They appeal to a Christian people throughout the country to aid them in their charitable work; we hope our brethren will respond liberally. All donations should be addressed to the "Howard Association, No. 58 Camp street, New Orleans."

The following sad incident will illustrate the suffering in some families in our stricken city; Yesterday Coroner Roche held an inquest, at a house on Poydras street, on the body of a woman and her baby, both having died of yellow fever. When the corner entered the apartment he found the baby lying in the bed, dead, and the mother, who was sitting in a chair beside it, was also a corpse. Out of this house eight corpses have been taken in a week.

General News Items.

Washington, Aug. 16.—At the cabinet meeting this afternoon the prevalence of the yellow fever in the South was made the topic of discussion and much sympathy for the sufferers was expressed. The question arose whether it would not be proper for the government to furnish material aid to the sufferers, in the way of provisions, if the epedemic should continue to spread. Their condition at present is not thought sufficiently dangerous for such a course to be adopted.

The action of Secretary McCrary in furnishing tents, etc., at Memphis, was commented on, and it was the general opinion that wherever aid in this form could be given, it should be extended by the government to such an extent as was possible.

London, Aug. 16.—A dispatch from Berlin says that Hoedel, who attempted the assassination of Emperor William on May 10, was executed this morning. The reluctance of the Emperor to permit the execution was at last overcome, and the imperial decree was issued commanding the carrying out of the sentence of the court.

Hoedel was informed of his fate only a short time before the hour fixed for execution. He received the announcement at first stolidly, but afterwards betrayed great agitation. Some difficulty had been experienced in obtaining an executioner. It is reported that the man who at last accepted the task is a respectable butcher of Berlin.

The boot and shoe manufacturers of Chicago, held a meeting recently, and considered a proposition of the Chinese Six Companies of California to furnish them 1,500 Chinese at seventy-five cents per day, for three years, in the place of the eight hundred strikers.

The Western Union Telegraph Company at New Orleans, has placed its wires at the disposal of the Howard Association for receiving and sending dispatches necessary to their work.

New York, Aug. 17.—All the towns along the Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri rivers are adopting quarantine regulations. Money packages from New Orleans received at the Treasury at Washington, have been ordered to be thoroughly disinfected before being given to the counting clerks. The disease continues to rage with violence at Havana and Vera Cruz.

In Baltimore no additional quarantine has been announced. The authorities are thoroughly cleaning the city and taking all possible precautions to prevent the appearance of the fever.

The Galveston News' from San Antonio says Mackenzie and his troops crossed into Mexico at Fort Duncan night before last.

A Louisville dispatch says many persons from yellow fever cities are arriving here. One thousand dollars were subscribed for Grenada sufferers.

New York, Aug. 17.—The pestilence is making fearful havoc at Grenada, Miss. The shops are all shut, the streets deserted, and one sees only hearses and burial parties. Railroad trains go rushing by, refusing to stop. At the last report 120 persons were lying sick with the fever, and nine died during yesterday.

At Memphis there were twenty new cases and five deaths yesterday, some of them old residents. The streets are entirely deserted, and many of the stores are closed.

Louisville is full of refugees from the fever-stricken cities, and the Galt House, the great hotel of the city, with the most commendable charity, announces merely nominal rates for these people.

Cairo, Aug. 17.—The Steamer Golden Rule from New Orleans for Cincinnati, was stopped below this city and told that she could not make a landing. One of her passengers and her cook had died.

New York, Aug. 17.—A subscription was started in the Cotton Exchange yesterday for the sufferers by yellow fever at Grenada, Miss., and before the close of business hours about $500 were subscribed. The Adams and Southern express companies cheerfully transmit free of charge all donations of money contributed in New York and elsewhere for the relief of the afflicted in the South where yellow fever prevails.

Cincinnati, Aug. 17.—A special dispatch to the Commercial from Memphis says: A careful revision of the yellow fever situation to-day shows 110 cases and 11 deaths, one or two late this evening not included. The mortuary report for the week ending at noon to-day shows 63 deaths in all, of which 26 were yellow fever. To these four or five may be added for deaths this evening. The previous week's report showed 41 deaths; an increase this week of 22. The total number of yellow fever cases so far is about 100, of which 25 are convalescent, 50 are yet in their incipiency and the rest dead. This is a reliable count.

Memphis, Aug. 19.—Up to noon eight new cases reported at the office of the Board of Health. Of these six are within the infected district, one near the Charleston depot, and one, Henry Schmultze, at 19 West Court Street. In addition to the above one death and one new case was reported in Chelsea, an indication that the fever is spreading. The Citizens' Committee is actively engaged in getting persons to remove to Camp Joe Williams, south of the city, and the trains will leave this evening with about two hundred families. Tents are also being given persons with families who wish to flee from the plague, but are unwilling to go into the common encampment. These persons will camp out at points along the railroads.

Vicksburg, Aug. 19.—The health officer is unable to give official estimates, but there are at least 100 cases in the city, and increasing rapidly. Four interments to-day from yellow fever. There have been 1[illegible] deaths to date. The City council [illegible]lished the quarantine this evening.

Grenada, Miss., Aug. 19.—The mortality is terrible. The scenes cannot be described. Dr. Mandeville, an experienced yellow fever physician, says he never saw anything that would begin to compare with it, that it is fearful beyond any description. Total deaths over seventy, and with no abatement and no hopeful cases reported. Several deaths have just been reported; it seems none are to be spared.

New York, Aug. 19.—Col. Buffaloe, agent of the Virginia and Tennessee Air Line Road, received contributions to-day for the Grenada yellow fever sufferers amounting to $930.

New York, Aug. 19.—Wm. Wogan, of Brooklyn, was taken sick to-day, supposed with the yellow fever.

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—The city police sent $573 in aid of the sufferers at Memphis and Grenada.

Nashville, Aug. 19.—The City Council rejected the bill to establish a quarantine against the Southern cities, proposed by the Board of Health.

A private letter from Aberdeen, Miss., states that Okolona, twenty miles from Aberdeen, reports three cases of yellow fever and one death. The fever is supposed to have been brought by refugees from Grenada. Many of these are encamped in the vicinity of Aberdeen, and fears are entertained for the health of that town.

The Austrian troops are meeting armed resistance in the occupation of Bosnia. A company of hussars penetrated the valley of the Bosna: and the inhabitants appeared to be friendly, but in entering the town of Shebesche they were fired at and forced to retreat. They marched back to Maglai, where the people had been friendly, but they were received with a volley, and in passing a defile encountered a heavy crossfire, by which seventy of the hussars fell. The revolutionary excitement is extending throughout both Bosnia and Herzegovina. In all, the Austrians have lost about one thousand in killed and wounded in occupying the Turkish provinces.

Where?

My brother, where are you standing, and upon what is your habitation founded? Upon Christ the rock, or upon the follies and vanities of this world, which are as sand?

How long is your building to stand? Surely not longer than the foundation. If upon the Savior, you have fixed your rest, upon that foundation will you remain forever, for Christ, the living God, lasteth through time into eternity for evermore. If upon this world's pleasures how long will they last?

You feel now contented and safe, for all seems well and all goes on smoothly.

Is it enough that all is well at present? Have you no thought of eternity; A little pleasure, a few hours of comfort and enjoyment; no care; but soon there will be a breaking of an eternal day. Hark! the voice saying, "Render an account of the deeds done in the body." What answer can you give? None? "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

O sinner, "flee from the wrath to come," Turn unto the Lord now and be saved' for "now is the accepted time, and now is the day of salvation."—American Messenger.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagara Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

The Methodist Hymnal,

AND

Hymnal with Tunes.

We are now prepared to fill orders for the following editions of the "METHODIST HYMNAL:"

Pearl, Plain	$0 40
Pearl, Red Edge	0 50

24mo, Red Edge	0 65
24mo, Roan, Embossed	0 75

16mo, Roan Gilt Edge	1 40
*Hymnal with Tunes, 12mo	1 00
Hymnal with Tunes, 8vo	1 75

Since the manuscript of the Hymnal was delivered by the Committee, October 26th, last, time has been required to prepare and perfect the indexes, to complete the arrangements of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts, and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal, and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

*The 12mo size may be delayed a few days.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

New Orleans University,

Cor. Camp and Race Streets.

This Institution, under the patronage of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, gives instruction in the following departments:

Collegiate,
Preparatory,
Theological,
Medical, and Musical.

The First Term of next year opens Monday, September 9, 1878.

The expense of Board, Room Rent, and Washing, in the Institution, will not exceed Ten Dollars per Month of four weeks.

An incidental fee of One Dollar per month is charged all students, except those in Theological Department.

The buildings of the Institution are located on Colisseum Square, in a most healthful and pleasant part of the city.

The instruction is thorough in all the Departments.

The Medical Department gives a good opportunity for the study of Medicine under competent and practical physicians. The expense per term of five months, beginning October 1, 1878, will be $65.00. This amount pays for matriculation, attendance upon all lectures, dissecting room privileges, and clinical practice in the New Orleans Charity Hospital.

COURSE OF STUDY FOR Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, § 6 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I.—Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. FIRST YEAR.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—Old Testament.—Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. I. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

THE CANDIDATE.

"Pa! [illegible] the [illegible]?"
"[illegible], dear, 'tis the candidate;"
Fit example of human woes—
Early he comes and late he goes.
He greets the woman with courtly grace,
He kisses the baby's dirty face,
He calls to the fence the farmer at work,
He bores the merchant, he bores the clerk;
The blacksmith, while his anvil rings,
He greets, and this is the song he sings:

"Howdy, howdy, howdy-do!
How is your wife, and how are you?
Ah! it fits my fist as no other can,
The horny hand of the working man."

"Husband, who is that man at the gate?"
"Hush, my love, 'tis the candidate."
"Husband, why can't he work like you,
Has he nothing at home to do?"
"My dear, whenever a man is down,
No cash at home, no credit in town,
Too stupid to preach and too proud to beg,
Too timid to rob and too lazy to dig,
Then over his horse his legs he flings,
And to the dear people this song he sings:

"Howdy, howdy, howdy-do!
How is your wife, and how are you?
Ah! it fits my fist as no other can,
The horny hand of the working man."

Brethren, who labor early and late,
Ask these things of the candidate:
What's his record? How does he stand
At home; no matter about his hand,
Be it hard or soft, so it be not prone
To close over money not his own.
Has he in view no thieving plan?
Is he honest and capable?—is he our man?
Cheer such an one till the welkin rings,
Join in the chorus when thus he sings:

"Howdy, howdy, howdy-do!
How is your wife, and how are you?
Ah! it fits my fist as no other can,
The horny hand of the workingman."

Lending a Pair of Legs.

Sometimes we ask people to "lend a hand," and sometimes we hear them say "lend me your eyes." Here is the story of a boy who lent a pair of legs just to accomodate. Some boys were playing at base-ball in a pretty, shady street. Among their number was a lame little fellow, seemingly about twelve years old—a pale, sickly-looking child, supported on two crutches, and who evidently found much difficulty in walking, even with such assistance.

The lame boy wished to join the game; for he did not see how much his infirmity would be in his own way, and how much it would hinder the progress of such an active sport as base-ball.

His companions, good-naturedly enough, tried to persuade him to stand on one side and let another take his place. None of them hinted that he would be in the way; but they all objected for fear he would be hurt.

"Why, Jimmy," said one at last, "you can't run, you know."

"Oh, hush!" said another—the tallest boy in the party. "Never mind, I'll run for him, and you can count it for him," and he took his place by Jimmy's side, prepared to act. "If you were like him," he said, aside to the other boys, "you would'nt want to be told of it all the time."

How many times loving hearts will find a way to lend their powers and members to the aged, the poor, the sick, and the weak.

Good Friends.

"I wish that I'd good friends to help me on in life!" cried lazy Dennis, with a yawn.

"Good friends! why you've ten!" replied his master.

"I'm sure I've not got half so many, and those that I have are too poor to help me."

"Count your fingers, my boy," said his master.

Dennis looked down on his big, strong hands.

"Count thumbs and all," added his master.

"I have; there are ten in all," said the lad.

"Then never say you have not ten good friends, able to help you on in life. Try what those true friends can do before you go grumbling and fretting because you do not get help from others."

Plea for Pure Air.

A few well known facts will show the urgent necessity for pure air. The longest period of time upon record in which a man lived without food and water is about fourteen days. If water be given, but no food, life may be sustained longer than this; but deprived of air, human life may be extinguished in three minutes. This serves to show in one way, and in a prominent manner, the high value of ventilation. Human life may be continued for a time by bad air, stagnant water, and decaying food; but without pure air, good water and wholesome food, life soon loses all its freshness. Most persons make great exertions to obtain good water and sound food; but unfortunately there is not [illegible] the same regard paid to the condition of the air. Is ventilation, then, of no importance? Should it not be studied by the statesman and the philanthropist as well as by the physician?

Lost Friends.

[illegible] make inquiries of the [illegible] of my two brothers [illegible] My brothers' names [illegible] and Scotty Peters, [illegible] Peters. We were [illegible] Peters, of McVille, [illegible] Mr. Tom [illegible] before [illegible] should [illegible]
[illegible] Thomas.

[illegible] Falls [illegible] brother, [illegible]

Before the presence of a spirit of sympathy doubt and skepticism give way, passion and predjudice yield, and human hearts soften to receive the truth.

It is impossible to conceive how human nature can become so frightfully perverted as to pursue a fellow man with the malignity of a fiend, simply because he is good, just and generous.

The Class-Leader.
His Work, and How to Do It.
With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.
BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,
Author of "Garden of Sorrows."

12mo.............$1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who means business. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

HELP!
FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS
AND BANDS,

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions—Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS AND BANDS

cure these various diseased conditions, after all other means fail, and we offer the most convincing testimony direct from the afflicted themselves, who have been restored to

WOMAN.

By an immense practice, extending through a period of years, having within that time treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and agreeable medicine that meets the indications presented by that class of diseases with positive certainty and exactness.

To designate this natural specific compound, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon my own personal observation. As a close observer, I have, while witnessing its positive results in the few special diseases incident to the separate organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly and in harmony with the laws which govern the female system, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician. Nay, even more, so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. If a beneficial effect is not experienced by the time two-thirds of the contents of the bottle are used, I will, on return of the bottle, two-thirds of the medicine having been taken according to directions, and the case being one for which I recommend it, promptly refund the money paid for it. Had I not the most perfect confidence in its virtues, I could not offer it as I do under these conditions; but having witnessed its truly miraculous cures in thousands of cases, I feel warranted and perfectly safe in risking both my reputation and my money on its merits.

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhœa, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing Down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, Female Weakness, and very many other chronic diseases incident to woman not mentioned here. In all affections of this nature, my Favorite Prescription works cures—the marvel of the world. This medicine I do not extol as a cure-all, but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS. ○○○ ○○○

Or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated, Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules. THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC, or Multum in Parvo Physic.

The novelty of modern Medical, Chemical, and Pharmaceutical Science. No use of any longer taking the large, repulsive, and nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each little Purgative Pellet represents, in a most concentrated form, as much cathartic power as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in drug-shops. From their wonderful cathartic power, in comparison to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect; but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized and modified, one by the others, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly operating, cathartic.

$500 Reward is hereby offered by the proprietor of these Pellets, to any chemist who, upon analysis, will find in them any calomel or other forms of mercury, mineral poison, or injurious drug.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad taste in the mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, High-colored Urine, Unsociability and Gloomy Forebodings, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of my Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, I wish to say that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. Recollect that for all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction to all who use them.

They are sold by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

TESTIMONIALS.

The N. Y. Times says: "Waters' Orchestrion Chime Organ" is a beautiful little Instrument, simply perfect. The Chime of two and one-half octave bells and the artistic effects capable of being produced by the player are singularly fine.

The tone is full, clear and resonant, and a very interesting effect is produced with the chime of bell.—Christian Union.

The Waters' Pianos are well known among the very best. We are enabled to speak of these instruments with confidence from personal knowledge.—N. Y. Evangelist.

We can speak of the merits of the Waters' Pianos from personal knowledge, as being of the very best quality.—Christian Intelligencer.

[illegible] TO BE LIKE JESUS?

[illegible] like Jesus, [illegible] perfect Pattern, [illegible] narrow way. [illegible] blood, [illegible] and good.

but if you pressed him with the question, "What is the main object of life?" he would not like to say that he was living to only enjoy himself—seeking his own pleasure. He would hardly like to say that he was living to grasp and grab and get a fortune. He would hardly know how to answer you. Many young men are in this condition; they have not a definite object. Now, you will not make a good captain if you do not know the port you are sailing for. You will not make a good life of it, young man, if you go out as an apprentice, and then afterwards out as a master, with no definite aim and end. Say to yourself, "I can only live for two things. I can live for God, or I can live for the devil; which now am I going to do?" Get your mind well fixed, and firmly resolved as to which it shall be. I will put it to you as boldly and badly as even Elijah did when he said, "If Baal be God, serve him; and if Jehovah be God, serve Him." If the world, if the flesh, if the devil, be worth serving, go follow out the career of a sensualist, and say so. Let yourself know what you are at; but if God be worth serving, and your soul worth the saving, go in for that; but not sneak through this world really seeking yourself, and yet not having the courage to say to yourself, "Self, you are living for yourself." Do have a definite and distinct object, or else your vital energies will be wasted, and your most industrious days will be recklessly squandered.

from a malicious spirit, that I might be right-hearted and true." Those were the pearls that I wanted. I did not know just then that I could find something that would include all these minor pearls and a good deal more. Still, it is well when such a desire as that is in the heart, especially of any young man. I wish it were in the heart of the old, if up till now they have never found the pearl of great price.

FINDING.

Let us go a stage farther, and look at this man's finding. He was buying pearls everywhere. Where he went he asked people if they had any pearls. He went down back streets, into the slums of big cities, and found out the Jews in those old days, living in the dirtiest corners of the city. He wanted to know whether they had any pearls. It was pearls of a morning, pearls at mid-day, pearls at night. If under his window at night anybody had cried, "Pearls!" he would have been down stairs in a trice to get them. He was hard after pearls; and so it came to pass that he lit upon a pearl that he never hoped to see. It was more than he expected. Ah, I pray God that some here, whose hearts are honestly seeking after that which is right, may find Christ, who has in Him more of the spirit of temperance, uprightness, truth, philantrophy, than will be found anywhere else. O that they might find Him who is the truth, and whose doctrine is perfect holiness and everlasting life! It will be more than they expected to find; but when they do find it, how glad they will be.

This find was to this merchantman a remarkable one. He did not find goodly pearls; he found what was much better, one pearl; and to him that one pearl contained all the little pearls that he had aforetime been seeking after. Tell it, and let all men know it, that all that is good beneath the moon—all that is true, all that is right, all that is loving, all that is philantrophic, all that is of good report, commendable before God and praiseworthy among men—is to be found in the teaching of the Lord Jesus Christ, and will be given to us, and wrought in us, when we submit ourselves to Him, and make Him our all in all. He who is a Christian, if he be perfectly a Christian, has all good things in one. If there be aught that is to be praised and extolled by philosopher or sage, you shall find it in the example of the Master, and He will give us grace to exhibit it in ourselves.

Concerning this find we must mark next that the man, having found it, was resolved that he would have it. Having found the pearl of great price, he did not question whether he should buy it or not. If he had not gone out honestly to seek pearls he would have demurred at the price, but being intent upon pearl finding, he no sooner found this than he said, "I must have that. I can let the little pearls go if you like, but I must have that." And it is a grand thing when the Lord brings the human mind to this. "I see that in Christ there is everything I want,—pardon for my sin, cleansing for my nature, grace to maintain my character and to make me perfectly fit for heaven. There is all in Christ that I want, and I must have Him. I must have Him. It comes to this,—at any price,—whatever it may cost me, I must and I will have Him."

Now, although the parable does not say it in so many words, it is perfectly clear that the person with whom he was dealing was willing to say. When he had found one pearl of great price he bought it, which he could not have done if the other had not been ready to sell it. Albeit the Lord in His mercy does not sell His grace, but gives it freely, the manner in which He disposes of it is here described under the figure of selling. The Tortoise and the Deer.

ADAPTED FROM THE GERMAN OF GRUBE.

H. V. OSBORN.

One day in the long ago, when animals and their ways were better understood and appreciated than they are now, an ugly, low-bred tortoise, in his wanderings through the wood, found himself in the neighborhood of a beautiful high-toned deer. Now the deer could spring farther on his slender legs in a minute than the clumsy tortoise on his short, fat paddles could waddle in a day. It would seem as if the tortoise ought to have remembered his own short-comings sufficiently to have bowed himself in the grass, and kept silence until the noble deer passed by. But that is not the way of the ignorant and lowlived. They are always forcing themselves in a brazen way into the company of their betters.

"Eh, deer," said the tortoise, imprudently and familiarly, "what are you hunting for here?"

The deer, paying no heed to the rudeness of little Hard-Shell, answered, politely:

"I am seeking something to eat. But Tortoise, whither do you travel?"

"I go a little in all directions," said the tortoise tossing his head, "and seek water when I am thirsty."

The deer looked down upon the little animal, who had to work so hard in his coat of mail to drag himself oven a short distance, and his heart was filled with compassion for the toiler.

"How long will it be," said he, in a sympathetic tone, "before you will find water?"

This question and its tone vexed the pride of the tortoise, and he was sufficently well-bred to conceal it.

"Why do you ask such a question?" demanded he, in a snarling manner.

"Because," said the deer, smiling benevolently upon the indignant one, you have such short little trotters."

With this open-hearted explanation, the deer just nocked the bottom out of the tub, as people say. The tortoise was so angry he nearly jumped out of his armor.

"My legs are quite short," said he sharply, "but I can run as fast with them as you with your long ones."

This greatly amused the deer. He threw back his head and laughed heartily. As soon as he could speak he said to the tortoise:

"If it be true that you are so swift-footed, I suppose it wouldn't be unfair to propose that we try a little friendly sport."

"Suit me to a T!" said the brazen tortoise. "When will we run?"

"To-morrow," said the deer.

"At what time?" screamed Clumsy.

"In the early morning," replied His Grace.

"Eng, eng," (yes, yes), snapped the tortoise, and waddled off to the wood without even as much as a parting nod to the deer, who good-naturedly stepped aside to let him pass.

Once in the wood, the tortoise called on all his relatives, a hundred or more, and collected them together. They were not a little surprised, as he, in the most excited tones, gave vent to the following words:

"The deer, who lives in the forest not a mile from here, that stuck-up hateful beast, has got to die. I myself will kill him!"

Such a bold design from such a little fellow made the relatives tremble for his fate, and shaking their heads disapprovingly, they murmured, "How will you bring it about?"

"Pay attention now," said the surly creature. "The deer and I met together, and he at once picked a quarrel with me, as he does with every one. He passed remarks on the shortness of my legs, and treated me with great scorn. The upshot of the business was I offered to run a race with him—"

"To run a race with the deer!" broke in his companions excitedly. "Hear! hear!"

The tortoise strutted before them for a minute or two, filled to the top of his shell with vanity. Then [illegible] looking [illegible] upon his little black [illegible] legs [illegible] much [illegible] what [illegible] made [illegible] as [illegible]

And he gave a wicked, cackling, significant laugh.

"To trickery. Eng! eng!" (yes, yes), applauded the whole tribe of tortoises, spitting excitedly on their fore paws and rubbing them together. "To trickery. Um! um!" (good, good.)

Elated by their comments, the tortoise preceeded to unfold his plan.

"Come to-morrow morning early," said he, "and place yourselves on the outskirts of the woods close to the open field, but sufficently concealed. Don't stand too near together—a certain number of yards apart; and don't crawl about—remain quietly in your places; and don't whistle or sing, or even dare to catch flies. But when the deer passes by, and asks, 'Where are you, Tortoise?' the one that stands just ahead of him in the woods must then answer for me, 'I am already here.'"

Then all the tortoises broke out into a coarse laugh, threw hand springs for very joy, and looked wickedly at each others eyes.

"Already here; already here. Eng! eng!" (yes, yes,) said they, and thrust their noses in the mud, another way they had of expressing their delight.

Punctually in the early morning the deer came bounding toward the tortoise, who had just returned from stationing his friends on the edge of the woods, according to his plan of the day before.

"Good morning, Tortoise."

"Good morning, Deer."

"Are you still willing to race?" said the latter.

"I am," replied the former, "quite reedy," giving the deer an evil look. "And what is more," he continued, "I will not only race with you, but I will let you run in the open fields along the border of the woods, while I travel just inside through brier and brush."

This offer created no suspicion in the mind of the honest deer, but nearly took his breath away for a minute, it so surprised him.

"What!" said he, "you little short-legged fellow, will you undertake to run through the wood?"

"Certainly; that's nothing," said the tortoise carelessly, "I'm used to the woods. I like to keep my shell cool in the shade of the trees. I'll run in the field though, if you wish."

"Oh, no; suit yourself," said the deer; "I was only thinking of your welfare."

"You'll think of your own," muttered the tortoise to himself, "before you get through." Then aloud he cried, "Time's up. Let us start!"

The deer took an easy pace; he did not wish to discourage the tortoise at the outset. But that tortoise far from being disheartened, was sitting still in the dewy grass, and laughing contemptuously at his companion in the distance.

"Run to your heart's desire," said he; "you'll have a hard enough time before you get through."

When the deer had run a hundred yards or more, he called out:

"Tortoise, where are you?"

"Already here," shouted the voice of a tortoise just ahead.

This suprised the deer. He took a little faster gait, but still did not exert himself. He did not want the tortoise to make too painful an effort. After running another stretch he called pleasantly again.

"Tortoise, brave fellow, where are you?"

"Already here," sounded the answer, the same as before.

"Well, well," said the deer to himself, "I shall have to bestir myself or lose the day." And the next hundred yards he traveled like the wind. Stopping for breath again he questioned, "Tortoise, how is it now?"

"Already here," said the tortoise's substitute.

The deer could scarcely credit his senses.

"Never yet was a deer beaten by a tortoise," said he, excitedly; and he ran and ran, the foam flew from his mouth, his head grew dizzy, and he could no longer see. With full force he bounded against a tree, and staggering for a few yards fell lifeless to the ground, hearing in his dying moment the last voice of the last tortoise on the line, who waddled forth and croaking cried, "Already here."

Thus a noble, honest, fleet-footed deer became the victim of the low-bred, deceitful, small-paced tortoise. The deer committed no sin, it is true. But any one can see at a glance that his life would have been spared had he kept out of bad com-

A Plea for the Microscope as a Toy.

We are often reminded that the microscope is no longer a toy, but a scientific instrument, and those who use it for recreation only are not unfrequently hard hit, as mere wasters of time and desecrators of a noble power.

Now, while fully appreciating the scientific use of the microscope, I would suggest a slight alteration in the above dictum, and say, it is not only a toy, but a scientific instrument. I would plead for it as a source of amusement. The President of the Quekett Club, in his recent address, reminds us of a remark in the first page of the Microscope Journal of 1841, where it is said of microscopic research in those days, that it "is for the most part an amusement rather than a profession"—it is an "intellectual pastime, which is sure to terminate in beneficial results. General knowledge may be obtained by observation," and this "by industry and perseverance imperceptibly produces recondite science." This is just the view I would take of microscopical employment. It is an "intellectual pastime." Wearied in body or mind the man of business or literature seeks rest. Some find it in mere lounging in an easy chair, and joining in the family chit-chat; others in listening to the music which a wife or daughter elicits from the pianaforte. There is no objection to this; but if the taste leads to the observation of nature in the sky, the earth, the sea, then a special interest is felt in whatever tends to reveal the secrets of that existence by which we are surrounded. Some turn to the telescope, others to the microscope, not as means of scientific research, but as "an intellectual pastime." Investigation requires powerful effort, both of mind and body. Few have this to expend now-a day on what does not bring grist to the mill. The mind wants recreation as the appetite longs sometimes for a change of diet, and enjoys the dainty bit. The holiday keeper rushes into the country, not to study, but to enjoy its beauties. He visits the picture gallery not to become an artist, but to satisfy a taste. He goes to the British Museum or Zoological Gardens, not to become a naturalist, but to enlarge his ideas. He cultivates a variety of sweet and pretty flowers in his garden, not with the remotest intention of becoming acquainted with their oders and relationships, but purely for the enjoyment to be derived from them. And why may a man not use his microscope in the same way? What wonders, what beauties, does it reveal! Well it has been said that the microscope is a door into the other world. It is so, and the man who uses it merely as such is amply rewarded. The door is opened and he is almost bewildered with the variety and beauty of what he sees. His mind is enlarged, his views are corrected; his taste is charmed, his wonder excited. The whole man is elevated, refreshed and invigorated. It is not only a pastime, but an "intellectual pastime."

But, farther, we are told it is "sure to terminate in beneficial results." This "intellectual pastime," then, does not as a rule stop there. It is not a lovely picture which vanishes but is an avenue to a brighter and broader view. It induces the habit of observation, and surrounds the least thing with a halo of interest which they could not otherwise have possessed. The smut on the ear of corn—the disease of the leaf of potato—the mould on the cheese—all are now full of interest. The most unpromising object oftens exhibits a most unexpected character, or reveals a long-looked-for secret. Thus the mind is not only refreshed but stored with a new fact, which, in its turn proves to be only the cradle of another; so step by step, the "beneficial results" are evolved. And as great as these are in an educational and abstract point of view, they are by no means wanting in a practical, as the application of the microscope to physiological, histological and commercial subjects, abundantly proves.

Let us begin, then by play. If it ends here it is at least as innocent and pleasing as any other—let some of us begin by using our microscopes as toys, let others use them sometimes, for the amusement of the uninitiated—it is "an intellectual pastime which is sure to terminate in beneficial results."

This toy, moreover, is not an expensive one, either to begin with, or to keep going. If you buy a gun there is the annual license, and the constant supply of ammunition. If you buy a horse, the first outlay is nothing compared with the keeping of it. But when once you are provided with a microscope, there is no tax to pay, no food required. Let this be a plea for getting a fairly good instrument at first, capable of being added to as required. Even the magic-lantern soon tires unless new slides, which are very costly, be continually added. Having, then, this toy, we learn to find objects which cost us nothing, but, on the contrary, contribute largely to our pleasure and profit. It has, too, a great advantage over the telescope. You have not to wait for cloudless nights, nor to run the risk of colds and neuralgia. Every night is a microscopical night, and the long, dark evenings of Winter may be not only beguiled but improved.—Science Gossip.

The Over Timid.

There are members in all our churches who are afraid to undertake to be useful. They say, and are doubtless honest in their disbelief of themselves, that they are not qualified. Yet herein they are mistaken. All qualification of whatever sort anywhere is the result of effort, and of persistent effort. Make a beginning. Be not simply a hearer of the Word, but take its directions, trusting in him, who has said, "My grace is sufficient for you." Do not be afraid of criticism or failure. Do the best you can, and you shall soon find that faith will beget experience and experience faith, and you will wonder why you waited to enter upon some pathway of Christian work. And then you shall have joy in the discipleship. The unhappy, the discontented, the irritable, fault-finding and censorious members of active and aggressive churches are commonly found to be those who sit still and decline to enter into service whereunto called. A united church cannot be where there is room for many who are too timid to undertake tasks for Christ, and yet bold enough to sit in judgement upon the ways, methods, and manner of others.

Of the Rev. Joseph Cook, his father says: "When a boy I tried my best to make him work on the farm. I resorted to every expedient, without success. He would conceal a book under his arm when ordered out into the lot to work, and steal away under some tree to read. If a small cloud appeared in the heavens he thought it might rain, and would make it an excuse to leave his work for study. This occurred so often that my men would say that the appearance of Joseph in the field was a signal for rain. When nine years of age a district school library was advertised to be sold at auction. He was very anxious to attend and purchase. I gave him money and told him he might go and buy what books he wanted. He did so, and bid off all the best books; those that were left were almost worthless. He bought also a small book-case, and probably never felt prouder in his life than when he came marching into the yard with the case under his arm. From that moment I became convinced that it was my duty to give him an education. I sent him to school, to college at Andover, to Germany, where he studied for two years, and you have seen the result. When he graduated from school I told him I would give him a nice watch or an encyclopædia. He chose the latter."—N. Y. Tribune.

Tin Mines.

The mines of Cornwall, for a long time thought to be the only tin mines in the world, are finding serious rivals in the deposits of Tasmania. Four years ago the value of the exports of tin and tin ore from this island was $35,000, while last year it amounted to nearly $1,500,000. One of the most productive regions is the Mount Bischoff district; but this has now been eclipsed by the discovery of a tin mountain at Mount Heemskirk, on the west coast. The "wash dirt" is some twenty feet thick, and produces about 25 per cent of tin; but the existence of solid seams of the metal, traversing the mountains in veins several feet in depth and width, has been demonstrated. Some "nuggets" weighing several hundred-weight each, have been found, yielding nearly cent per cent of pure metal. Mixed with the tin, too, is a small quantity of gold, about ten ounces to the ton, not sufficient in itself to render it worth seeking, but adding considerably to the tin miner's profits.—American Architect.

The Lord Thinketh Upon Us

How sweet and comforting this thought! The sailor boy is comforted by the mother's thought of him far away on the ocean depths! The soldier fights bravely for he knows many hearts are thinking of his dangers and of his powers! The father works away with a will for he knows dear ones are looking to his might of hand or head! When the Prince of Wales left the dominions of Prince Scinda who had built a palace at an expense of over six hundred thousand dollars for the Prince's brief stay and who sent for the Prince of Wales a necklace containing 2000 pearls with rubies and diamonds, taking the hand of the Prince of Wales and bidding him farewell, said, "It has been much to see your face; I can hardly hope to see you again; but sometimes in England turn a kind thought to me. All I have is yours."

We have made no such costly presents to the King of Kings. Very few have put themselves to practical inconvenience for God's cause. Shall we venture to ask Him something in heaven to turn a kind thought to us?

At all times He is turning kind thoughts to the children of men—kind thoughts even before we have asked for them—kind thoughts in answer to our hard thoughts of Him and reaching us in the midst of our ingratitude and rebellion.

Men think very little about those who are supposed to be beneath them in social or in moral and intellectual worth. We sometimes say a man is not worth a thought but our very worthlessness gives us a place in the Divine thought. God seems to think of us more on account of our very wretchedness. What marvellous condescension!

God is acquainted with us altogether and knows us far better than we know ourselves. He knows what help we require—what riches are suitable—what grace is essential—what supplies we need and will grant them according to his own riches in glory by Christ Jesus.

God's thoughtfulness is not barren and vain. Thoughtfulness and provision do not always follow one another. Sometimes we think of [illegible] poverty and need of another [illegible] send no ray of light to pierce [illegible] and drop no sympathizing [illegible] into his wounded heart; or [illegible] go a little further and [illegible] to be warmed and filled [illegible] not give him those things [illegible] needful for the body. [illegible] thoughtfulness is far [illegible] for it is always the sure [illegible] of Divine provision. [illegible] wisdom thinks, an infinite [illegible] out the sublime con- [illegible] of the possession [illegible] treasures. Every [illegible] every perfect gift is from [illegible] of Lights. It is the [illegible] of His thinking upon us. [illegible] graciously upon me, [illegible] through Jesus. I am [illegible] indeed. Sure provisions [illegible] "all things are mine, [illegible] Apollos or Cephas or [illegible] or life or death or things [illegible] or things to come."

Reformed Judaism.

In our last number we gave from the [illegible] American Review some [illegible] showing the three parties [illegible] modern Judaism is [illegible] the strictly conservative [illegible] are the faithful adherents [illegible] traditional Judaism; [illegible] on the opposite extreme [illegible] abandoned most, [illegible] the pious usages of [illegible] the Party of the [illegible] equal distance [illegible] or the [illegible] latter [illegible] "Start- [illegible] "that in re- [illegible] must be dis- [illegible] ations the rights which it claims for itself. It accepts the emancipation of religion from the more contracted news of the past, all the invocations in which the oppressed heart of the down trodden race sought relief; all the exaggerated notions of racial sanctity and divine election; all the grosser elements of the Messianicidea, all the mystic and cabalistic deposits which were swept into the Synagogue by the various religions with which the Jews came in contact during their wide wanderings; all the laments over the lost glories of the sacrificial service, and the yearnings after the restoration of national supremacy—have either entirely disappeared or been spiritualized. Only the frame work and the typical parts of old ritual have been retained. Finally, the relation of Judaism to other forms of faith has passed through a purifying process. The root idea of the unity of God now enumerates the unity of the human race and the definite recognition that He who revealed himself in Israel had his witness in all ages and in all climes. He is no adversary to Christianity. What he resists is its deviations from the truth as it was delivered to him. But he rejoices in every sign that the chasm which separated the daughters from their mother is narrowing, and that bridges are being thrown across it on which those who were, but never ought to have been, estranged from each other, may meet for the exchange of assurance of restored friendship. Christian churches have invited Jewish ministers to their pulpit, and thus after eighteen centuries of bootless strife, returned the hospitality which the first apostles of Christianity met in their Synagogues.

A Touching Letter from a Missionary:

Rev. A. Strittmater, of Kin Kiang, China, has been compelled to fly to Japan in the hope of protecting his life. His physicians speak despairingly of his recovery. Rev. V. C. Hart says of him, that "he will return to the mission if better, and if worse he desires to return and die here. He is a heroic man, full of faith and good works. The doctor has hope of his recovery by great care." But the letter from Bro. Strittmater to the corresponding secretary of the Missionary Society will show the spirit of the man, and we prefer to let him speak for himself to the church.

KIN KIANG, CHINA,
June 29th, 1878.

I am very sorry to have to report a relapse of my lung trouble which has reduced me to so low a state of health as to compel me to suspend all active work for the time. The disease has made such progress that my physician gives me no hope of recovery, but advises my going abroad for a change, as a means to my partial restoration. If I remain at Kin Kiang during the hot season just beginning, it is hardly possible for me to recruit any and by the time fall comes I fear I shall be so reduced as not to be able to do any work. By going abroad for a few weeks, I hope to recruit enough to carry me through a period of active service yet. I know not how long I have to live, but I think it my duty to live as long as possible, to work as long as I live.

When I came to China, I had a robust constitution and a fair prospect for a long life of missionary service, and it was my ardent desire to spend forty or fifty years on the field before the Master called me home. But I have lost my health by unavoidable exposure during country tripping, so that now I am only the wreck of what I was five years ago. Still, by proper care, I trust to lengthen out my life so as to be able to do some work yet, and it may be that God intends me to live much longer than the doctors do. In any case, I can leave my life in his hands, working so long as strength and energy are left me, and laying down my burden when the time comes. I should be sorry to die before I have accomplished anything in my line of duty, and so far I have done very little, and if it is the will of God to extend my life, I trust he will give me grace to make it a useful one. I have no thought of going to America, but I [illegible] to die at my post."

The Church.

We have in a previous number shown the Church to be a family. We will now consider it as a School. The term disciple arises from this idea. Schools both of Philosophy and Religion had been known for ages. They had great men for their heads and masters. All connected with them as learners were called disciples. Christ, likewise, had his school. His followers were, at first, designated almost wholly by the same appellation. "To sit at the feet" was another expression to denote learner. The Twelve sat at the feet of Jesus and learned of Him. When He uttered those parables by which the truths of the Kingdom were so clearly unfolded they gathered around Him as their Teacher and treasured up His word in their heart. These truths and others revealed to them by the Holy Ghost they went forth teaching everywhere. The teaching function of the Church thus became one of its most important functions. Whether in the Sabbath-school or in the pulpit, instruction is its great work. Instruction is ever preliminary to conversion and after conversion it is essential to edification. The knowlege of God and the knowledge of themselves are the first steps in the process of spiritual restoration. But there must be no stopping with these first principles. The apostle Paul speaks of those who for the time they were disciples ought to have been teachers but who needed to be taught again the first principles of the oracles of God and to be fed with milk instead of meat. There should be steady progress in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior. There should be some proportion between the time we have been connected with the Church and the spiritual attainments we have acquired. This is one of the greatest failures in church members. They seem satisfied to remain babes instead of growing steadily up into the stature of perfect men in Christ Jesus. Too many are spiritual dwarfs. Were they to keep before them the fact that the Church is a School of which Christ is the Head Master ever teaching by the agency of his representative and executive the Holy Spirit—were they to always remember that growth in knowledge and grace is the law of His kingdom—and were they faithful students of His word, seeking to make improvement of its teachings in daily character and life, how intelligent and lofty would be the piety they would exhibit! How thoroughly furnished would the mass of Christians become for every good work and work! What poor scholars we are! How different and slow to learn! Let us not be satisfied with listening to God's truth, nor with even reading it. It is the amount we digest that benefits us. How many spiritual dyspeptics! They are content with filling their minds or ears with Christian truth but there is no progress because Christian truth is not inwrought into their lives and characters day by day. There is little meditation! It is not like food that forms the blood and muscle of the system. Let it be our study to be like Christ—to walk like Christ—to work like Christ. Faithful scholars in the School of Christ!

Is There to be Religious Toleration in Bulgaria?—A Straw.

A private correspondent to the Mission Rooms writing from our Bulgaria Mission Territory says that the mission has met with no hindrance from any quarter. At Sistof the new administration has recognized by an official act the existence of a Protestant Bulgarian Church or congregation in the following manner. Of the many foreigners who have followed the Russian army for commercial purposes two got into a commercial disagreement. The case was carried before the local authorities and the administration of an oath was required. The parties claiming to be the one a Roman Catholic and the other a Protestant refused to swear by the Orthodox Greek (i. e. by the Bulgarian) church forms. So both of them were sent to Mr. Economoff, of the Methodist Episcopal mission, as the only Protestant Pastor in in town who administered the oath. This is a recognition of the American Methodist Episcopal, as a Church, and there seems but little doubt that the policy of the future is indicated herein.

A discussion of the question, "What is Inspiration?" is to appear in the September-October number of the North American Review. The [illegible] will be Rev. Dr. F. H. Hedge, [illegible] Rev. Dr. E. A. Wash- [illegible] Rev. Chauncey [illegible] Rev. Dr. J. [illegible]

We are in receipt of a touching letter from Mrs S. B. Merrill, the mother-in-law of D. W. Jones, the deceased associate editor of this paper, mailed on hearing of his death through a Mobile paper. She speaks of him as "a devoted Christian, husband, father, and son-in-law," and was greatly distressed at the news of his decease. He was making arrangements to go North and take his family home. "Dear man, so patient, so noble, so submissive under all his trials; his faith so strong in God," says this mother, from her heart. "Pray earnestly to God to help that stricken wife and mother to bear the affliction with perfect submission to His will." And say his co-laborers, "Amen."

When we said sometime ago, that though in 1,500 of our congregations and 5,000 of our Sunday-schools no missionary collection was taken last year, we also said that we thought that we were not more negligent than other churches. If any body can find any grain of comfort in that, they may, for Dr. Scudder has shown that of 500 Dutch Reformed churches, 160 gave nothing for missions while only 181 gave over $25. The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions says of their churches that out of 51[illegible] church congregations, 2343 gave nothing. We believe our Methodist plan for raising missionary money enables us to penetrate the churches very thoroughly. Work the discipline on missions, brethren!

Rev. V. Witting writes to the Corresponding Secretaries of the Missionary Society from Goteborg, Sweden, July 15, saying that the Conference had just closed, and that it had been "a good and blessed time." Bishop Bowman presided with ease and wisdom and won the affection of both preachers and people. At the beginning there were signs of strife, but peace prevailed and all closed in harmony and love. The prospect for the future is bright and the progress of the year has been fair.'

By postal card of the 8th, the postmaster of Greensboro, Miss., requests us to stop sending the ADVOCATE to that place, until the fever subsides. We replied that we could not do so because under contract with our subscribers, and suggested the fumigation of the mails to remove all possibility of the spread of contagion by them.

Our Southern Methodism.

Occasionally a friend sends to this office a letter making requests, which we would cheerfully comply with, were it not for the fact that our dear brother neglects to furnish us with his signature! Please remember to attach your name to all your letters.

Rev. J. R. Carnes, Giddings, Texas: "Our protracted meeting has just closed. We had four conversions but no accessions. The people appeared to be deeply interested in the meeting and there were many mourners at the altar. Our Sunday-school is doing well but need books. My work is prosperous and I hope for the future and trust in the Lord."

Rev. L. J. Terril, Houston, Miss.: "We have just closed our protracted meeting in our New Church, which is just finished. The meeting continued one week, and we close with eight conversions; three joined the church in full connection and eight on probation. We have organized a Sunday-school with twenty scholars, and we are hopeful for the future."

Rev. Geo. W. Smith, Columbus, Texas: "Our Camp Meeting held in July was a great success. There were twenty-six conversions and nine accessions to the Church. Two nights before we closed there were forty-six persons at the altar. From the Camp Meeting I returned to Columbus, and after a few days' rest, I opened a protracted meeting here which has continued six nights. There were two conversions, and six joined on probation. Our Sunday-school is marching right onward under the superintendancy of Bro. Jno. Yancy, a noble working member of our church. May the good Lord continue our work."

Rev. T. D. Jackson, Shreveport, La.: "We have purchased a church lot fifty-six feet wide by one hundred and fifty feet long, and erected a church building twenty by thirty-two feet. Our work is getting along pretty well considering the hard times, but, as it is said the darkest hours are just before day, we hope the glorious sun of prosperity and goodliness will break with its resplendent rays upon us. We are doing all we can to push ahead the good work of the Lord."

Rev. A. W. Wright, West Point, Miss.: "I have just closed a glorious protracted meeting at Tibbee Station. The good Lord is blessing our work. There were twenty-five conversions, and a great many still inquiring the way of salvation. Could we have continued our meeting, there is no telling how many would have joined the army of the Lord. We had to close the meeting on account of the church being used jointly by our people and the Baptists. Just about the time the fires of the church were beginning to burn in the hearts of our people, our Baptist friends stepped in and claimed their time for service. Let us one and all strive to have a house of worship of our own, then we will have none to molest us."

Rev. L. Carper, San Antonio, Texas, writes that he expects to hold a Camp Meeting, commencing the third Friday in September. His church has received a new bell, which can be heard to the uttermost parts of the city, and with which the congregation is delighted.

Rev. B. Turner, Sparta Circuit, Tennessee: "We have had a glorious meeting. We began July 20, and continued till August 1. We had fifteen converts and eighteen accessions to the church. The work is in good condition. I think the Spirit of the Lord is surely moving the hearts of the people."

Rev. A. Gillum, Courtney, Gaines County, Texas: "We have just closed our Camp Meeting, which continued twelve days. The fruits of the meeting are good; the Lord blessed us. With the assistance of S. Allen, Wade Hamilton and S. Hardwell, we added to the church twenty-six converts, forty four probationers and baptized sixteen brethern. Pray that the blessed Lord will ever bless us with an outpouring of his Spirit."

Rev. P. Martin, Napoleonville, Tenn.: "Our Fourth Quarterly meeting convened on the 13 and 14th July, at Ebenezer Chapel, Napoleonville Tennessee, in which on Sunday night our protracted meeting commenced. Our Presiding Elder C. Pickett continued with us during the first week, his sermons were effective and made great impressions on the congregation in bringing them to the Lord. The meeting was well attended both by white and colored. During the revival fifty eight came forth for prayer; of these 38 were happily converted to the Lord. The closing of this work was last Sunday 6th inst., of which there were 38 baptised. There were many earnest souls left groaning for redemption. The meetings were only held at night. We have not yet forgoten our missionary work. I think that I shall be able to bring up all of my benevolent collections."

Rev. M. A. Daugherty, Denison, Texas: "We are getting along nicely and hopefully at this point. Our city never, commercially, had better prospects and her future seems ensured. Our church is becoming rooted for permanent growth and usefulness and is being felt. We have had a hard struggle to get our beautiful new church completed, but we have overcome nearly every difficulty, and will soon be free from all embarrassment. The greatest financial obstacle to such an enterprise, in a new city of transient people, is that of collecting subscriptions. We have lost more than one-third altogether and another third come in slowly. I intend to try and get a list of subscribers for you. I am fully in sympathy with the Southern work and papers; they are a power in the land, and a much needed agency both North and South. We have much to do to occupy this country, but on its occupancy by us as a church depends its future largely, both religiously and civilly. We sympathize with New Orleans in her yellow fever calamity. We hope that her trouble will not be ours, and we hope that a good providence will protect the South country generally from 'the pestilence that walketh in darkness and the destruction that walketh at noonday.'"

Telegraphic Summary.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 22. — The following dispatch from Grenada received:

"Over one hundred negroes are down and about seventy-five whites. Only fourteen white persons are well in all the town. People are dying without an attendant. I saw three negroes, with fever, laying around the platform outside this office yesterday evening. Those die turn as black as your hat in less than one hour. Oh, it is horrible, horrible! You can smell the fever everywhere you go. It is a pestilence that is upon us, and Grenada is only a pest-house, and to scent its plague-laden air is sure death. One hundred and ten have died and all seemed doomed. The operator Miller, who left New Orleans to go to Grenada, lost heart and kept right on.

Vicksburg, Aug. 21.—At least two hundred and fifty cases. The disease is malignant and confined to no class or locality.

Port Gibson, Aug. 21.—About fifty cases of yellow fever here.

Canton, Aug. 21.—Three cases at Sharon, two of Ben Mims' children and Miss Sallie Benthall. Late intelligence from Canton report the sick there as convalescing.

Holly Springs, Aug. 22.—A south extra reports the existence of yellow fever in Holly Springs.

Memphis, Aug. 2[illegible].—Twenty new cases and fourteen deaths for the last twenty-four hours.

Holly Springs, Aug. 22.—The commissary here, by direction of the commissary general at Washington, will send to the sufferers at Grenada, three thousand rations, each of flour, beans, coffee and sugar; three hundred pounds each of bacon and pork.

Three cases of fever here, all refugees.

Cincinnati, Aug. 22.—A bale of new cotton, the first bale of the season, from some point in Mississippi, was sold on 'change this noon for one thousand, one hundred and fifty-five dollars, and the amount has been dispatched South to aid the stricken cities.

Vicksburg, August 22.—The yellow fever is attacking negroes; a number were stricken down to-day It is estimated there were fully fifty new cases to-day with ten deaths up to 3 p. m. There is great need of physicians. Some estimate there are 600 cases of yellow fever here, but the general estimate is a little over 300.

Memphis, Aug. 22.—The fever is on the increase, thirty-seven new cases being reported from 5 p. m. to noon to-day, but a fewer number of deaths than for the same period yesterday. Reports from Senatobia, Miss., this morning are that five cases have been developed there, and the people are panic stricken. Sixty families moving out last evening.

Memphis, Aug. 24.—A special from Holly Springs, Miss., reports six cases of yellow fever there.

To-day the number of yellow fever cases reported here is nearly double that of any previous day, the total for the 24 hours ending 6 p.m. being 106. The deaths 15.

Vicksburg, Aug. 24.—The fever continue to spread, 46 colored people are down.

Canton, Miss., Aug. 24.—The town is depopulated. Only 100 left out of 3,500.

Grenada Aug. 24.—Dr. Veazie and Judge Walton, chairman of the relief committee, were stricken with the fever yesterday. Negroes are falling like sheep.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 24.—Not a case of yellow fever here. Our authorities are working with the energy of despair to keep out the grim destroyer. Every dirt road and the railroads are watched night and day, and the town patrolled. Citizens, both white and black, constitute themselves detectives, and all strangers unable to give a good account of themselves are marched to the city limits and warned not to return. The fire bells ring at 10 p. m., and all persons found on the streets after that hour are arrested.

New Orleans, Aug. 25.—Drs. Pratt and Miles, of the Charity Hospital, both being sick with yellow fever, Dr. Holt, vice president of the board, earnestly requests such physicians as can spare an hour or two of their time daily to notify the secretary.

Vicksburg, Aug. 25.—Fever continues increasing. Over 50 new cases the past 24 hours, and 22 deaths, among them [illegible] Brown, son of Judge Geo. F. Brown. J. P. Allen, city editor Vicksburg Herald, is down with the fever, also his wife and son; his daughter died this evening. Trains on the Vicksburg & Meridian railroad have ceased running, owing to quarantines along the road, and threats are made to fire into the trains and wreck them.

Memphis, Aug. 24.—A special from Grenada says, the appeals for nurses to day, which could not be answered, is heartrending. Whole families are down without a soul to aid them. Fifty brave nurses on duty have more than an average of two patients a piece, yet they do not flag in their duty. Abundant supplies of provisions from neighboring towns come in daily and funds are now being received quite liberally. Good nurses are the great need.

Nashville, Aug. 24.—$2,040 and a large quanty of provisions have been subscribed for the feverstricken towns.

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—The fund for fever sufferers South was increased to-day to $5,000.

Cleveland. Aug. 25.—$1,500 was subscribed to-day for fever sufferers.

Vicksburg, Aug. 26.—There is no abatement in the prevailing epidemic here and the daily mortality is without parallel in this city. Deaths in last twenty-four hours twenty-eight, new cases seventy-three, under treatment six hundred; and the plague spreading. There is much suffering and destitution with trains stopped and those on duty are exhausted in energy and resources.

Memphis, Aug. 26.—To day the weather has been cloudy and gloomy in the extreme. The fever has not only increased in the city, but has seemed to thwart the efforts to save the lives of many poor people who where moved out of the city, by appearing in two of the camps. It is now definitely known that three deaths occured yesterday from fever at Camp Joe Williams, and several other of the refugees are sick. From 6 p. m. yesterday to noon to day, 76 new cases and 17 deaths were reported.

Plaquemine, La, Aug. 26.—Yellow fever and black vomit here are awful. New cases every hour. Six deaths in one hard day, and only a few convalescing.

Jackson, Miss, Aug. 26.—The melancholy news reaches here of the death of Judge Thomas Walton, the bravest of the brave. He remained firmly at his post in plague-stricken Grenada nursing the sick and burying the dead when it had been deserted by nineteen-twentieths of its citizens. All honor to his name and memory, it shall live in history and in song as long as time lasts.

Philadelphia, Aug. 26.—One thousand workmen in the iron mills of James Roland & Co., Stephen Robbins & Sons, Marshall Bros. & Co., the Philadelphia Iron and Steel Company, and John V. [illegible] notified their employers [illegible] they would [illegible] the proposed reduction of [illegible]

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Addie Gray, aged 13, was shot and fatally wounded by Wm. Baker, a rejected suitor, while walking on the street this afternoon. Baker approached without speaking, placed a pistol to her back and fired. The assassin is a restaurant waiter, aged about 25.

New York, August 26.—Holly Springs evinces no alarm, and so far there is no fever among her citizens. She has her invitation to all refugees to come still standing open.

At Winona, twenty-two miles south of Grenada, the Mayor refused to allow a train boy to sell Memphis or other papers.

Water Valley responded to the call of help very liberally.

From Canton encouraging reports come. Only one death has occurred since last report. The fever is abating, and many of those prostrated are recovering. No new cases have occurred. At the Chamberlain House, one of the most popular hotels in the city, another sad scene was exhibited. The voices of twelve sick and dying patients filled the air with groans and piteous appeals to God and man to have mercy upon them. At the Waltham House a similiar scene was presented. This spot is looked upon as the most deadly and contagious in the villiage, owing to the many of the dead being buried in a lot adjoining this building.

Plucky Holly Springs has had three deaths from yellow fever, but each case was imported either from Grenada or Memphis.

Dr. J. H. Vincent and our Work and friends in Atlanta, Ga.

We publish Dr. Vincent's article in which he claims to have been misrepresented by the Southwestern, the Northwestern and the Methodist Advocate, Dr. Mitchell and others, of Atlanta, Ga., respecting his remarks made in that city concerning the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church there. It is only right that we publish the following letters which explain themselves. Mrs. Eswald's letter was published before Dr. Vincent's letter appeared in the church papers, and Dr. Mitchell's letter is an answer to Dr. V's letter:

ATLANTA, Ga., July 23, 1878.

REV. JAMES MITCHELL, D. D.

Dear Bro.—At your request I will here state as near as I can remember, the few words uttered by Dr. Vincent in our church and which so grieved and surprised me at the time.

They not only wounded the few struggling Methodists here in Atlanta, but I felt they were a reproach and censure for establishing and nursing a branch of the old vine, and an insult to the whole M. E. Church (our dear mother), in the North.

Hence I could not forbear to mention the fact to you and other friends here.

When Dr. Pershing, of Pittsburg, closed his sermon that afternoon, you came up to Dr. Vincent, who had only a few minutes before entered the house with Bro. Kimball (a late member of ours, now of the M. E. Church South,) and another prominent member of the M. E. Church South, all three taking a seat back of our pew, and asked him to make a few remarks which he declined to do. Dr. Ford next came to him with a similiar request, and after waiting a moment this was also declined, and the services closed.

As we rose to leave the audience room Dr. Ford introduced Dr. Vincent to me and a conversation about our church took place, in which the latter said to me as follows: "Is this the usual size of your congregation?" I answered, "Sometimes more." He then replied in a sharp, hasty, and offensive manner, "What are you here for then?" These words, in the way they were uttered, and the tone of conversation, made the impression upon my mind distinctly and painfully deep that Dr. Vincent held and here intended to avow the opinion that the M. E. Church had no right to organize white societies here or elsewhere in the South, and I answered, "Bro. Vincent, I will tell you why we are here, because we have a right to be in the name of the Lord, and will tell you, if you will excuse the expression, why we are so weak, because when such 'big guns' as you consider yourself, who belong to our church, come down here, in place of identifying yourself with our little church, you ignore us and place yourself on the side of the church South." This was rather severe, and I felt sorry for the Doctor after I said it; nevertheless it was true and Dr. Vincent knew it, and the more I thought of it the more indignant I became, and [illegible] to myself, "Poor, weak [illegible] disciples of the Southern [illegible] here, a few fine dinings and lodgings at the Governor's mansion have [illegible] his brain, and he denied his [illegible] as Peter did his Master, for I consider the M. E. Church his employer.

I felt the more aggrieved by the great disappointment because we had all promised ourselves much pleasure from his company at our several houses, where we had made suitable arrangements and given the invitation to the doctor and had he accepted these, and instead of despising us in the eyes of those pro-[illegible] Southern Methodists, who [illegible] the conversation, I say, if he had shown himself openly a friend and supporter of our little band, he would not only have encouraged the few ostracised Methodists here, but by so doing he would have honored the cause of our Master in our dear M. E. Church all over the country which we love and to which we endeavor to cling as children to their dear but generally forsaken and despised mother, here in the South. In connection with the insult heaped upon the M. E. Church here, I could not refrain from stating my thoughts and feelings, and I hope that the Doctor will see his folly and retract first of all by [illegible] the truth of the fore[illegible] I learn he has denied. [illegible] let me state that Dr. [illegible] heard Dr. V's remarks as well as myself, and he and we talked of it soon afterward in great sorrow. Yours respectfully,

MRS. S. A. EISWALD.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH IN ATLANTA AND DR. VINCENT'S "UNJUST ACCUSATION."

BY JAMES MITCHELL, D. D.

J. H. Vincent, D. D., makes some statements and "an unjust accusation" in a communication to The [illegible] Advocate (New York), of [illegible] need some correction. [illegible] had a truthful [illegible] title, for it is [illegible] accusation [illegible] and others. [illegible] the Atlanta [illegible] tion to answer him fully taken until Monday, when I found our people afflicted and in need of defense. I am truly sorry to have lost the good esteem of Dr. Vincent. But unjust charges sit lightly on me or I would have been crushed to the earth long ago, in the midst of this thirty years' war of ideas and institutions. He will please note the following points:

[illegible]

1. I did respect his protest, (though under no obligation to do so), and did not publish the proposed open letter addressed to him. Neither he nor his New York friends can point out such a letter.

2. I made some reference to him in connection with the convention in one of my regular letters to our New Orleans paper, the SOUTHWESTERN, under the title, "Tide-Marks," but I complimented him therein. (See the issue of May 9 of that paper.)

3. I did not "overhear" the offensive remark addressed to Mrs. Eiswald, which, as can be seen from her published letter, he made, and all that follows in his letter about a conversation in our church is an error. I received the information as did the three editors—from others. I had fled from the plantation manners of the brother.

4. And, finally, I believe I was the only man in the Atlanta church that earnestly tried to parry or soften the blow that the three editors he quotes, (who met here during the session of the Southern General Conference) concluded, in their godly judgement, should be directed at the pro-Southern spirit, that we fear affects unhappily some of our brethren in the North. It will be remembered by some, that at a dinner-party at the house of Col. Eggleston, where I board, while our fraternal delegates were present, I calmly and seriously entered a protest against making the matter public, though I thought to do so at first.

For all this I have my reward. I am charged with a breach of confidence, [illegible], and that he [illegible] under such circumstances [illegible] for much as three editors in sympathy with others constitute a rather formidable force, and as a sacrifice is needed, he turns on me.

I have little time to attend to such matters, and less disposition. Though in the midst of war from my youth, I [illegible] with persons, but wrong [illegible]. In this case I will let the [illegible] and the public judge [illegible] "gentleman," and let it [illegible] such [illegible] and close this defense [illegible] requesting each paper [illegible] place to the doctor's letter to publish this explanation as it goes from my hand.

FAT PEOPLE MADE LEAN.

Physicians and physiologists have long "scratched their heads," and "burned midnight oil," seeking to devise some means whereby excessive corpulency might be either prevented or controlled. Until recently all "theories," "special directions," and "remedies," have failed. But at last the problem is solved. Allan's Anti-Fat will surely and positively reduce flesh at from three to six pounds per week. No medicines or combination of medicines has ever been discovered that would produce such wonderful results, and at the same time improve the general health. Sold by all druggists.

Wilmington, Del., May 16, 1878.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagra Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

Our Class Leaders.

We are often asked for the names of books suitable for class leaders. We recommend the following and ask the Presiding Elders and Pastors to do all they can to put these books in the hands of the leaders.

1. The Class-Leader: His Work, and How to do it. With illustrations of principles, needs, methods and results. By Rev. John Atkinson, A. M. 12mo., $1.50.
2. Address to Class-Leaders. By Bishop Janes. 12mo., 20c.
3. Seed-Thought; A Hand-Book of [illegible] and Devotion. By Rev. Geo. C. Robinson. Price $1.00.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY.

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, [illegible] number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refectory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray, but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

Rev. H. R. REVELS, Pres't,

jy4-3m. Rodney, Miss.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. I. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course, Written Sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

said Tom Bix- [illegible] and stamp- [illegible] green, spiteful, [illegible] him. I wish he [illegible] and fairly [illegible] who [illegible] came [illegible] see what [illegible]

When I was a little girl, long ago, I walked by my mother's side, holding her hand while she talked with a neighbor on her way home from church. I took no notice of the talk until I heard my mother saying, "I think Sophy is a Christian."

I was astonished. Sophy a Christian! She was very near my own age, and I played with her every day, and never knew she was a Christian. I had been well taught, but still I had in my inmost soul a feeling that a Christian child should be very sober and quiet, and not care for play but only for reading the Bible and other good books. I said nothing, but determined in my heart to watch Sophy and see if she acted like a Christian.

[illegible] watching [illegible] by her side, but I remember to-day that she seemed cheerful and happy, and as much interested in our play as usual. She helped me kindly when I needed help; I saw her face flush as she kept back the impatient word when I vexed her; I noticed when she went without complaint to do an irksome task; and I knew when she retired for secret prayer. I was convinced that Sophy was a Christian, and longed to be one myself.

So, though she knew it not, Sophy witnessed for Christ in her daily life. And so may every Christian child, with Jesus' help, witness daily for him, speak of his love in the prayer-meeting, and live for him at home and everywhere. "Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure and whether it be bright."—Christian Mirror.

Give Yourself.

Said a mother to me one day, "When my children were young I thought the very best thing I could do for them was to give them myself. So I spared no pains to talk with them, to teach them, to read to them, to pray with them, to be a loving companion and friend to my children. I had to neglect my [illegible] many times. I had no time to indulge myself in many things which I should have liked to do. I was so busy adorning their [illegible] and cultivating their hearts' best affections, that I could not adorn their bodies in fine clothes, [illegible] I kept them neat and comfortable at all times. I have my [illegible] now. My sons are ministers [illegible] gospel, my grown-up daughter [illegible] lovely Christian woman. I [illegible] time now to rest, [illegible] keep my house in [illegible] plenty of time to in- [illegible] many ways, besides [illegible] Master's business [illegible] need of me. I [illegible] beautiful memories [illegible] to comfort me. [illegible] they have gone out into the world, I have the sweet con- [illegible] of having done all I could [illegible] them ready for whatever [illegible] calls them to do. I gave [illegible] the best I could, myself."

A Mother's Influence.

[illegible] ago, a gentleman [illegible] of the metropolis [illegible] kneeling be- [illegible] a little girl about [illegible]. In her hand she [illegible], which she placed on [illegible] up to her, he [illegible] one very dear to her [illegible] said, "my mother is [illegible] a father, or sisters, or [illegible] are all dead, and I am [illegible] if she be in [illegible] to you?" [illegible] in heaven." [illegible]

The Class-Leader,

His Work, and How to Do It.
With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.
BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,
Author of "Garden of Sorrows."

12mo..........$1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make [illegible] the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who [illegible]. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once [illegible].

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

A Fine Head of Hair is such an indispensable adjunct to beauty that no one who prizes good looks should neglect to use London Hair Restorer, the most effectual article for increasing its growth, restoring its natural color and a delightful hair dresser and beautifyer—being free from sticky and gummy properties—clear and richly perfumed. Recommends itself to every lady and gentleman using fine toilet articles.

Extracts from Letters.

A. A. Gibson, Barrytown, Duchess County, N. Y., writes, April 30, 1877, Dr. Swayne & Son, Phila., Gents—I enclose post-office order for eight dollars, please send me one dozen London Hair Color Restorer. It has stopped my hair from falling out, and restored it to its natural color. It has proved satisfactory in every respect.

Dr. Isaac H. Miller, West Brecknock, Pa., writes: As a restorer of grey hair and preventative of baldness, it is the best remedy I have ever sold, and gives entire satisfaction.

Wm. Schell, Germantown, Columbia co., N. Y., writes: April, 1877—The London Hair Color Restorer was received. I am delighted with it. You will find enclosed four dollars for a half dozen bottles by express.

London Hair Color Restorer

Is the best and cleanest article ever made; is entirely harmless and free from all impure ingredients that render many other preparations injurious. It removes dandruff, stops the hair from falling, and restores the perfectly natural color. It is exquisitely perfumed and so perfectly and elegantly prepared as to make it a lasting hair dressing and toilet luxury.

U. S. Marshal's office, Harrisburg, Va.

Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth st., Philadelphia—Gentlemen, I have suffered for twenty years from that terrible disease itching piles, had consulted many physicians and used numerous applications and medicines, but found no permanent relief until I procured your All-healing Ointment. After using one box in the space of three weeks' time, I found myself entirely cured, and for the last four months have not even felt a symptom of the disease. I also used the Ointment on a spot of dry tetter on my head, which had annoyed me for five years, and found the same happy result, a perfect cure in a short time. I deem it my duty to give you this well merited testimonial of so great a medicine. You may publish this if you see fit. Very respectfully, seldom, if ever fails to cure a cough. Even when the lungs have become much disordered, with night sweats, burning fever pains and oppression, it has effected wonderful cures.

Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry

A Remarkable Cure.

Dr. Swayne—Dear Sir—I feel it to be due to you and suffering humanity to give the following testimony respecting the wonderful curative powers of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla and Tar Pills. I was afflicted with a violent cough, pains in the side and breast, night sweats, sore throat, my bowels were costive, appetite nearly gone, and my stomach so very weak that my physician was at a loss to know what to do for me, as [illegible] in the shape of medicine was [illegible] times a pint of [illegible] for months in this [illegible] and gave up all hopes of [illegible] this time you recom- [illegible] your syrup and pills, [illegible] began to soothe, com- [illegible] the violence of the cough, [illegible] and healed my lungs; in short it has made a perfect cure of me, and I am now able to pursue my daily labor. THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD.

In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above directed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

INVALIDS' HOTEL.

The very large number of invalid people who daily visit Buffalo, from every quarter of the United States and Canada, that they may consult Dr. R. V. PIERCE, and the widely celebrated Faculty of Specialists in Medicine and Surgery associated with him, rendered it necessary that the founder of this institution should provide a place on a grand and commodious scale for their entertainment and comfort.

ADVANTAGES OFFERED.—The Invalids' Hotel is more complete in its appointments than any similar institution in the world. The building is located in one of the most healthful and desirable portions of the City of Buffalo, and commands a fine view of Lake Erie, Niagara River, and the surrounding country, being situated in the midst of an extensive system of beautiful parks. The Hotel is furnished with a patent safety passenger elevator, to convey patients to and from the different floors, is provided with all kinds of approved baths, and has also connected with it a well-appointed gymnasium and bowling alley to afford proper means of exercise.

CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms, whether requiring medical, surgical, or mechanical, treatment, come within the province of our several specialties.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are the facilities of this Infirmary of a superior order as regards the remedial means and appliances for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females. The employment, in moderation, of tonic, chemical, electro-thermal, and other approved baths, is in many cases an invaluable auxiliary to the remedial means to which we resort in such cases. Dry friction to the surface, general shampooing, Swedish movements, and light calisthenic exercises, to enliven and equalize the circulation of the blood in the system, relieve congested parts, improve digestion, and strengthen the muscles, produce important beneficial results in all cases to which these means are applicable. No experimenting is resorted to in the treatment. The most approved medicines are carefully employed, and the judicious regulation of the diet, to suit the condition of the patient, the thorough ventilation of the sleeping apartment, the cheering influence of music, social intercourse, innocent games for amusement, and all those agencies which tend to arouse the mind of the patient from despondency, and thus promote recovery, are not neglected.

NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty, by which the greatest skill is attained and the most happy results secured.

LUNG DISEASES.—This division of the practice in the Invalids' Hotel is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases are very largely treated in this department, and with results which have been highly gratifying to both physician and patients.

EYE AND EAR.—Special attention is given to the delicate operations on the eye and ear, a distinguished oculist and aurist being under engagement to conduct this branch of the practice.

Invalids arriving in the city and desiring to consult us, should come directly to the Hotel. It is easily accessible by carriage, omnibus, or street cars. Mr. LEE'S Omnibus Agents, on all incoming trains, can be relied upon to deliver passengers and baggage with security and dispatch.

Whose Kingdom ?

It is not enough that you are wallowing in the mire of manlul lusts. You may be far removed from the vicious and yet be as completely subject to the same spiritual power. The men who soar in a balloon among the clouds are as perfectly controlled by the earth's attraction as the men who heavily trudge [illegible] low. [illegible] the lofty will be on a level with the low. The move upward from the earth which is made by aid of man's own powers will neither go far nor last long. If you are not caught and carried off by the power in heaven, the earth will soon have you on its bosom again. As long as the soul remains in the power of its old centre, a few degrees more or less of elevation will not decisively affect the final issue.

The kingdom that does not exert supreme controlling power is not a kingdom. In whose power does your soul actually lie? On that hinge turns all your time—all your eternity. The passage of a human spirit from the power of satan into the kingdom of God is a real event. If there should not be in all cases the power of precisely observing and recording, the moment when the border line between death and life is crossed, there ought to be a well defined and clearly seen distinction between living under the power of darkness and a translation into the kingdom of God's dear Son. If you have crossed that line, the love of Christ must hold you as [illegible] power. There has been [illegible] and unreserved [illegible] surrender to the power [illegible] kingdom—to Christ [illegible]. Christ's yoke is easy and his burden light but none know this but those who have surrendered without reserve to the Redeemer's claim of soverignty. Many are willing to be accounted Christians yet few are willing to be the servants of Christ. They do not permit true religion to grasp their hearts and guide their lives and carry them whithersoever it will. When the question regarding the royal revenue comes up for solution, the demand is [illegible] a penny but show me whose image and superscription has he? If he is a renewed man; if the image of God is there; if the superscription is that of a Divine hand, that is the proper coin of the king [illegible] How important then to [illegible] what kingdom [illegible] really [illegible] to. Is it a kingdom in word, or is it a kingdom in [illegible] Let Christ be not a nominal but a real king over you! Let laws of this kingdom thoroughly govern you! Let the spirit of his kingdom reign completly in and over you! Let there be no doubt as to which kingdom you belong.

Ladies and Pastor's Christian Union.

This society should be cherished in the heart of the church as one of its great life-springs. It is a home missionary society—a vast recruiting company, gathering souls to swell the list of the redeemed. Its workers are the overlooked two-thirds, the women of the M. E. Church. Its work is to canvass, house by house, the entire district about every church, seeking the neglected, young and old, ministering to the poor and sick, distributing tracts, and inviting all to Christ and the church. It is a tract society on the best plan—economizing systematizing the distribution of tracts, and redeeming them from the odium of being thrust at people, or under doors as common handbills, by accompanying each with the personal presence and words of a kindly visitor.

Dear Pastors, you need this organization in your churches. You cannot afford to neglect it. You have not access to all the unsaved people about you, for whom you and your church are responsible, and if you had, they would often resist you when they would yield to the pathos of a woman's voice. Help the women of your churches. Remember it is not enough to put nothing in their way. They need bringing out, encouraging and training, just as your young men do; and if they grow up feeble, timid, and idle, in the Lord's vineyard, you will not be found guiltless.

Dear sisters of the churches, we place upon you the responsibility of souls. The perishing pass and press you every hour. Sinful, suffering, weary humanity needs your ministry. To-day is God's time for women. The camp of the Lord tarries for you: the work of the world's redemption waits for you. Come away from vanities and drudgeries, and take up the blessed work of God. Yield to the strivings of the spirit, who will lead you into paths that are strange, but will turn out beautiful beyond what you have asked or thought. Your excuses are legion, but, as sure as you live, are only excuses. Kneel down before God, face to face with a dying Savior, face to face with eternity, face to face with the destiny of souls; stay there until all else fades into nothingness; stay there until the Lord lays before you all your duty, and fills you with his own spirit, and your excuses will vanish, and your cry will be, not "How little can I do?" but, "How much may I do?" You will beg for work.

We want the name and location of every church having an auxiliary society. Let one who feels any interest in the cause go to work at once and revive old societies and organize new ones. Send to the address below for documents. We want every auxiliary society to have a copy of our papyrograph letter. We want reports regular. Every auxiliary society should have a public annual meeting or anniversary, addressed, if possible, by the conference Secretary. If the pastor of any church does not take hold of this work, let the [illegible] of that church—with his consent—organize themselves [illegible] one [illegible] number of [illegible] president. We consider this society specially adapted to Southern work. Let us have a movement all along the lines.

The power of the gospel, under the new dispensation, received a sublime [illegible] when Jesus bowed [illegible] the cross. It touched the hearts of His murderers. It spread into adjacent neighborhoods. It penetrated surrounding communities. It flew as the light to distant nations. It forced an entrance into the cities of Asia; it flashed into the schools of philosophy; it pressed its way into the household of Cæsar, into the palaces of the rulers, into learning, into literature, and into the laws of the world. The more it was opposed the more it spread. It was the very kingdom of heaven upon the earth, and is the same this day.—The Methodist Recorder.

The Young Men's Christian Association is doing its whole duty during the present crisis. Its rooms are open day and night, and the means at its disposal are conscientiously used. At first it was feared that the funds would fall short and thereby embarass it, but earnest prayers have been answered, and from North, East and West liberal amounts have come to aid the good work in hand. We know of no better agency to relieve our suffering people.

The Peabody Subsistence Association, composed of merchants who appreciate the situation of the poorer classes during the epidemic and general cessation of business, opened a supply depot last Saturday. Several thousand rations have been issued daily since. The Howard, Young Men's Christian and Peabody Associations, the Chief of Police and others are authorized to receive applications for aid and fill out blank orders for rations. It is a sad and touching commentary on the condition of our city, and the Peabody Association is deserving of lasting gratitude for its practical charity.

The Howard Association is doing a glorious work, thanks to the generous contributors to its treasury from all parts of the nation. About $80,000 has been received to date. Some 200 persons here are relieved daily, while doctors and nurses have been sent to almost every infected place south of Memphis. The medical profession, acting in accord, is doing yeoman service and is pushed to its utmost capacity.

The Austrian army of occupation is closely pressed by the Bosnian insurgents, and Austria must pay dearly for her new acquisition. She will have little sympathy from enlightened nations; her greed prompted her [illegible] the Berlin Congress [illegible] jugate a people fighting for their [illegible] and the union of the Servians, before Bosnia, can be of any profit to her, if ever.

As the quarantine [illegible] deprives us of communication with many friends of the SOUTHWESTERN we call upon those near us to send in the small amounts due us. We are struggling under many disadvantages, which our friends must realize from the deplorable condition of affairs caused by the presence of the fever scourge.

The Republican convention of Ascension parish, which met to elect delegates to the State convention, endorsed the course of Senator Pierre Landry in the last General Assembly. Senator Landry deserved this recognition by his constituents, and is one of the few leaders of his race, who have won universal respect by their probity of character.

The third quarterly conference at Asbury Chapel was held last Saturday and Sabbath. Reports were all favorable. On Sunday at 11 o'clock special prayers were offered for the suffering people at Grenada, and other places. In the afternoon sacramental services were administered to a large number of communicants. Our presiding elder, Bro. J. G. Johnson, made a good impression on our people. Brother Myers Thompson, a local preacher from the A. M. E. Church, joined us.

Holly Springs, Miss., Aug 30, 1878.

Christian principle is the only true reliance for the support of God's ordinances. But some churches have been so smitten, pecuniarily that the debts they owe cannot be removed at present. To such then remains a resource, which is, if expenses be reasonably low, to pay the interest upon the debt if required, and to raise also a sinking fund. A small percentage for a sinking fund, will, if it can be relied upon, lift the incubus from pastor and people, and will so far reduce the debt that if prosperous times come it can be quickly extinguished.

Intoxicating Drinks.

The habit of indulging in ardent spirits by men in office has occasioned more injury to the public than all other causes. And were I to commence my administration again with the experience I now have, the first question I would ask respecting a candidate, would be, "Does he use ardent spirits?"—Jefferson.

A Great Bargain.

FROM A SERMON BY REV. C.H. SPURGEON

"Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchantman, seeking goodly pearls: Who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had and bought it.—Matt. 13 : 45, 46.

Let us watch this merchantman while he is doing four things; first, seeking; then, finding; then selling out; and, fourthly, buying again.

(Concluded from last week.)

THE SELLING OUT.

Having thus described the seeker, and described the finder, we must go on to describe him selling out. He sold out all that he had. It had taken him a long time to get it together and I have no doubt he had much pleasure in the accumulation, but now he has great pleasure in selling. He is more glad to get rid of his possession than ever he was to obtain them. Away they shall go at the best price they will fetch, but go they must, for he must have the pearl. Well, now, Jesus Christ is to be had, but there is a great deal that a man must give up if he is ever to call Christ his own.

"What, then," says one, "what am I to give up?" Well, there must be a selling off to-night of a whole mass of old prejudices. Sometimes when the truth as it is in Jesus comes to a man's mind he repels it because it is so different from what he has learnt ever since he was a child; and the notion is that you had better follow the religion of your parents. If you had been a Hottentot, you would have worshipped a fetish. If you had been born in Hindustan, you must have worshipped Juggernaut, according to that theory. But it is great mercy when a man says, "Now, I understand that Jesus the Son of God has died in the room and place and stead of sinners that believe in Him, and I am simply to believe in Him and I shall be saved. On my believing I shall receive a new nature and be born again by the Holy Spirit, and henceforth I shall become the disciple and the servant of Christ. Now," says the man I will do it. It is contrary to what I have always been told. I have been led to think that it was my good works which would save me. I have heard that the grace was in the sacraments, but at length I perceive that God teaches in His word that salvation is faith in Jesus Christ, and I will have it. I will sell my prejudices off. Away they shall go."

Next to that you must sell off your righteousness. It will not fetch much, but I daresay you think it is a fine thing. Hitherto you have been very good, and your own esteem of yourself is that as touching the commandments—"all these I kept from my youth up." And what with a good deal of church-going, or attendance at the meeting-house, and a few extra prayers on a Christmas Day and on Good Friday, and just a little dose of sacraments, you feel yourself in tolerably good case. Now, friend, that old moth-eaten righteousness of yours that you are so proud you must now sell off and get rid of it, for no man can be saved by the righteousness of Christ while he puts any trust in his own. Sell it all off, every rag of it. And suppose nobody will buy it, at any rate you must part with it. Assuredly it is not worth putting amongst the filthiest rags, for it is worse than they are.

And everything else that you have heretofore thought fit to boast of—come, you must get rid of it. You know so much. Well, you had better sell off what you know. for except a man become as a little child he cannot enter the kingdom of heaven. You are somebody, you fancy you are not cast in a common mould, for you have a great strength of will, and can force your own way to heaven. You will have to get rid of that little conceit, for that strength of yours will be your weakness. It is only when we are weak in ourselves that we can ever be strong in Christ. Are you contented so to do? Will you sell off all the old prejudices and all the old righteousness? Going, gone! Will you let them go, or have you got a reserve price? Let them go, for they are dross and dung, and the sooner they are gone the better, for then you can buy the pearl, but not till then.

Ay, and there are some men that have to give up a good deal of what they call pleasure, sinful pleasure. No pleasure which is honest, which is really beneficial to us, can ever be denied us.

"Religion never was designed
To make our pleasures less."

It makes them vastly more. But any pleasure that savors of sin is to be done away with. Come, can you sell all that off? That mixing in loose company, anything approaching to lewdness, anything that has to do with the gratification of the vile passions of the flesh—come for Christ's sake, can you give it up? Well, if you cannot, of course you cannot have the pearl. If you must have the world, you cannot have Christ; if you can find pleasure in the haunts of sin, you are of your father the devil, and his works you do. But come out from it; give it all up; cast it behind you. These things must be sold off if we are to have the pearl.

And, then, sometimes, in some cases, men have to give up a good deal of the honors and the satisfaction of life that arises from the esteem of their fellow-creatures. Has it come to this, "If I become a Christian they will ridicule me?" Well now, can you not put up with a little obloquy for Christ? "But if I am an earnest Christian, then I shall have to encounter all sorts of slander." Be it so, and you can give up the applause of men for the sake of Christ? Come and let the dogs tear your character to shreds, so long as you are right before Him, and your motive is pure. "Ay, but I know what it is. I shall get the cold shoulder in society if I become a thoroughly earnest Christian. There is Lady So-and-so, for whom I have very great respect, whose good opinion I would not forfeit on any account, and she will not recognize me any more." Very well, can you put the whole lot into the scale and say, "I sell it all off; let it all go, that I may have the pearl?" That man is not worthy of Christ who would be ashamed in the pillory with Him, or go with Him to prison and to death. We must so love Him that we count reproach for His sake to be honor, even as Moses counted the reproach of Christ greater riches than all the treasures of Egypt. . . . .

"Well, you have taken enough surely." Yes, but this pearl-hunter sold all that he had, and you have got a little left. You have got some prospects. If you become a Christian, your old uncle will cut you out of his will. You know very well that if you shall go to hear the gospel at such and such a place you are very likely to be turned out of your situation. "But we must live," says somebody. This is not at all clear to my mind. I do know that we must die, but as to "must living," I do not feel quite so certain. Infinitely better to die than ever to do a dishonorable thing. If Jesus Christ be our Master, we must be content to let the fairest prospect go, and all things that seem to tell for our success in this life must be secondary in our account. We must seek the kingdom of God and His righteousness. Ay, and sometimes love that has been longed for must go for Christ's sake. Company that has been delightful must be forsaken for Christ's sake, and if all this be done, yet still it is not enough. He that has Christ must give to Christ himself and all that he has. I should doubt whether I were a follower of Christ if I had not in my very soul given up to Him all that I am and all that I have, to be forever His. He has bought us with a price, and it is not surely meet for us to give Him one arm, and one eye, and one foot, and half a heart. He that is a true Christian is a Christian through and through. Whatever he possesses of talent, whatever of substance he owns, he looks upon nothing as being his own, but as all belonging to his Master, and he is prepared to use all for his Master's glory, and to part with all if so it were needful for the maintainence of his Master's kingdom. The merchantman sold all that he had.

I think I see you draw back. "This—this is too hard a line." Very well, if you do not want to buy the pearl, you see—that is to say, if you do not want to make your fortune—for that buying of the pearl was the making of the man's fortune—if you do not think the pearl is worth it, pray do not have it. It is not possible to estimate the intrinsic value, the real worth, of Christ. We do not cast pearls before swine. If you do not want Him, there are plenty who do. He need not come begging of you that you will be His customer. God forbid you should refuse, but you do not want Him, then say so. Only do say it, and definitely and distinctly say it, "I will have nothing to do with Him."

But this man went and sold all that he had. I tell you he was glad to sell it. He counted that the man who bought his farm was doing him a favor. So if you really want Christ, instead of needing Him to urge you to dispose of these poor effects which I have described, you will be eager to be rid of them that Christ may be yours. May the Spirit of God work in such a high resolve.

THE BUYING.

Now, the last thing is the buying. He had sold all that he had, and then he pays the shekels over—pays them over that he may have the pearl, and he gets the pearl. It was a considerate purchase—a deliberate bargain. He did not see the pearl and then in a hurry go sell his goods and guess at the value of it. No, but he had looked at it, for he was a seeker of pearls. And so he thought it over. It did not want much thinking over. O, if a soul did but know Christ, he would not think twice before he would have Him. If men were not such fools, if they had but light from heaven to see the value of my Lord and Master, instead of our standing here and having to beg and persuade and find out new words of commendation, methinks they would only say, "Tell us about Him. We will have Him. What does he ask of us? What can we do for Him? What can we submit to so long as we may make sure of Him who forgives all sin, who gives immediate and perfect salvation to all who trust Him? So long as we may have the Christ of whom it is written, 'He that believeth in Him hath everlasting life,' we shall be content." It was a well considered purchase.

And it was an immediate purchase. He did not go home and say, "I shall think about this." No, but he knew that pearl and he said, "If I let that slip through my fingers I shall never see the like of it again." And so he does but take time enough to go and sell his farm off, and the little property he had, and the little property he had. So, dear friends, he that cometh to Christ aright may well deliberate about it, but the end of his deliberation ought to be speedy. It was a deliberate bargain—an immediate bargain. And then it was a joyful one. Ah, when a soul gets Christ it is—

"Happy day, happy day,
For He has washed my sins away."

It is the beginning of delight to a soul when he can say, "Jesus is mine; I know he is. Grace has enabled me to lay hold on Him."

This was a final purchase. The merchantman, according to the parable, never went buying pearls anymore. "No," said he, "no; I have bought a pearl of great price, and now I will go out of the business." And when a man once finds Christ—ah, then he seeks nothing more. If Jesus Christ be mine, more than all in Him I find. He does not want a secondary object. His desires all to stay at home, and satisfy themselves with the fullness that is in Christ Jesus. He went out of the pearl-hunting line, for he had found all the pearls he should ever want. And it was a purchase he never regretted. The parable does not say that he came back to the seller and said, "There, take your pearl, and let me have my house and lands again." No, it was done. The great transaction was done. He never wished to have it undone. With his pearl of immense worth he was a rich man, worthy to be the rival of princes, and he felt that it was enough. O, blessed are they who can say, "It is enough," and can rejoice and bless and magnify the Lord.

"Now rest my long-divided heart;
Fix'd on this blissful centre, rest;
With ashes who would grudge to part,
When call'd on angels' bread to feast?"

[illegible] experience is not designed to be a dark lantern. It is not kindled for your sake alone; the world is to be benefited by your light. The world will, however, judge these Christian missionaries—and Leo too—by their fruits, not by their words."

The salmon catches in Oregon is reported at 330,000 cases. The finny tribe adds to the wealth of Oregon. The wheat yield is also said to be large, that in the Willamette valley turning out forty bushels to the acre. Oregon is the farmer's paradise—the second crop of wheat from the scattered grain is nearly as good as the first. For fruit there is no better climate.

A Florida scientist named Hardee proposes to kill the yellow fever by atmospheric concussions, to be produced by a succession of gunpowder explosions. He says the experiment was attended with entire success last year at Jacksonville, and instances the disappearance of the places liable to it in the South during the war, and in Mexico before the American troops.

Not less than 28 railroads have been sold under foreclosure since the 1st of January, most of them in the West and Southwest. The aggregate length of these lines is 2184 miles, having bonds and debts amounting to $114,674,000, and a capital stock $115,156,700. Fourteen other roads have passed into the hands of receivers.

Paris has a dwarf, Tom Thumb II, is twenty-one years old, weighs twenty pounds and is less than thirty two inches short. He weighed nine pounds at birth, has five brothers and sisters, of whom but one is anything like him in smallness, and reads, talks and sings very cleverly.

New Publications

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY.—The September number of this excellent magazine is particularly distinguished for the publication of three articles, which, for the interesting and valuable information they contain, are alone worth more than the price of the periodical. The first gives full particulars of the proceedings of that important historical event, "The Berlin Congress," the entire text of the treaty, map showing territorial adjustment of the Turkish provinces, portraits of the members of the Congress, and numerous other engravings. The article on the "United States Signal Service" is descriptive of the interior and exterior workings of the Bureau, and explains the Modus Operandi by which the duties are accomplished. Prof. Charles A. Joy's "History of Steam Navigation" will be read with great interest, describing, as it does, the various experiments with steam as a motive power from ancient to modern times. There are copious illustrations and portraits. "Through the Untrodden Woods of Paraguay," "The Terrible Nine Days, an Episode of the Russian Conquest of Central Asia," "A Night's Shark-ing in the West Indies," are of thrilling interest. Mrs. Etta W. Pierce's serial, "The American Countess," is [illegible]. FAT PEOPLE'S MISFORTUNES.

Some of the savage tribes enter their dwellings through a hole in the roof, and when a person becomes so fat that he cannot get in, he is regarded as an outlaw. Had this system been adopted in the United States, the "outlaws" could not have made a more active demand for Allan's Anti-Fat than now exists. Hundreds who had lived in constant fear of sudden death have, by its use, been reduced to a comfortable living weight. The Anti-Fat is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. Sold by druggists.

Special Notices.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new [illegible], at heavy expense, and the [illegible] system of ballasting that has been undertaken. ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are specially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

Rev. H. R. REVELS, Pres't,

PULVERMACHER'S

ELECTRIC BELTS AND BANDS.

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions —Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle-aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S

WOMAN.

By an immense practice, extending through a period of years, having within that time treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and agreeable medicine that meets the indications presented by that class of diseases with positive certainty and exactness.

To designate this natural specific compound, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon my own personal observation. As a close observer, I have, while witnessing its positive results in the few special diseases incident to the separate organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly and in harmony with the laws which govern the female system, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician. Nay, even more, so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. If a beneficial effect is not experienced by the time two-thirds of the contents of the bottle are used, I will, on return of the bottle, two-thirds of the medicine having been taken according to directions, and the case being one for which I recommend it, promptly refund the money paid for it. Had I not the most perfect confidence in its virtues, I could not offer it as I do under these conditions; but having witnessed its truly miraculous cures in thousands of cases, I feel warranted and perfectly safe in risking both my reputation and my money on its merits.

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhoea, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing Down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, Female Weakness, and very many other chronic diseases incident to woman not mentioned here. In all affections of this nature, my Favorite Prescription works cures—the marvel of the world. This medicine I do not extol as a cure-all, but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

Or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated, Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules. THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC, or Multum in Parvo Physic.

The novelty of modern Medical, Chemical, and Pharmaceutical Science. No use of any longer taking the large, repulsive, and nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the cathartic and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each little Purgative Pellet represents, in a most concentrated form, as much cathartic power as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in drug-shops. From their wonderful cathartic power, in comparison to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect; but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized and modified, one by the others, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly operating, cathartic.

$500 Reward is hereby offered by the proprietor of these Pellets, to any chemist who, upon analysis, will find in them any calomel or other forms of mercury, mineral poison, or injurious drug.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad taste in the mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, High-colored Urine, Unsociability and Gloomy Forebodings, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of my Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, I wish to say that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. Recollect that for all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction to all who use them.

They are sold by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Walk Before Me.

What is the controlling force of our lives? Many things contribute to that result which we call character and conduct. Yet, doubtless, some one thing has done more to produce this result than all others combined. What a power has a mother exerted over her child in determining what he shall be in all after life! How [illegible] a teacher has left [illegible] upon his pupil to an extent, that the pupil seems to be but a reproduction of the teacher himself in all his views and principles! Our associates and friends are influencing us in our course, more or less all the time!

It may be said in all this we are passive. We are not conscious of the plastic force thus shaping us. This is true to a large extent. Yet every kind word, every amiable remark, every little tender action indicates on our part a conscious desire to please those with whom we are associated and thus make ourselves pleasant members of society! The desire of the approbation of our fellow men is natural and proper. God has made us to be members of society and He has put in society a controlling power.

It were utter recklessness to be careless of the opinion and feelings of others! It is right, in a large measure, that we walk before men, before our families, before our associates and before the community. It is a good thing that public men [illegible] themselves responsible to the [illegible] public opinion. The eyes of [illegible] They [illegible] not altogether [illegible] inspire [illegible] conviction. [illegible] hero and the [illegible] elevation to the [illegible] the [illegible]. But all this [illegible] to be a high standard for [illegible]

[illegible] to walk before [illegible] in His sight, in [illegible] presence, endeavoring to please [illegible] in all our actions and to have His law for our guide. In walking before Him, the very lowest step is to [illegible] to [illegible] we are to do [illegible] He commands. He re[illegible] [illegible] for His own glory. We must study to learn what is the will of God. We are not simply to listen as it may be pronounced [illegible] We [illegible] It [illegible] it [illegible] do it [illegible]

[illegible] element [illegible] matter [illegible] that [illegible] conscious[illegible] God's eye is upon us. Just as we know that the eyes of [illegible] should [illegible] thought that God's eye is over [illegible]. We are never alone. We [illegible] the fact, but we do [illegible] cultivate the sense of it. If it was a thought ever present with us how [illegible] would be our utterances [illegible]

[illegible] wisdom, strength, [illegible] we need is at our [illegible] before Him [illegible] the [illegible] the midst of dark[illegible] [illegible] and bringing [illegible] results. We are [illegible] when God [illegible] Jordan [illegible] will divide it. When [illegible] the Red Sea, [illegible] the waters to [illegible] pass [illegible] walk before God. Mission Rooms.

Rev. F. M. Wheeler, of our India Mission, returning to America, and Rev. M. Buck, of the same Mission, returning to India, had a pleasant meeting in England. Brother Buck went to India in 1846 and after a short respite in his home climate goes back with fresh vigor to his work. Brother Wheeler went to India in 1868, and has done noble work, and is highly esteemed in India, but returns to the United States without much hope of ever being able to return to India. He has been working for a few months past in Bombay. His voyage home as far as England had resulted in an improved condition of his health, and he will be able at once on arrival home to take pastoral work, but the climatic difficulties threaten to be disastrous should he remain in India. His heart is in the work in India, which with his marked qualifications for service there, make all who know the case to deplore the necessity for his retirement from that field.

Bishop Bowman writes from Sweden to the Mission Rooms under date of July 11th saying that "the people begin to realize that they should help themselves. This year they will contribute to the pastor's salary much more than ever before. The highest salary paid is 3,000 crowns (about $800.) Living is nearly as dear as it is in America. Many articles higher. How the preachers manage to live I cannot see. Several charges would be self-supporting if they were out of debt."

Rev. R. Hoskins writes from Budaon, India, that he had recently baptized five persons and received thirteen on probation, and took four into full connection. He reported many candidates for baptism and a widespread interest in Christianity. He says they have now access to another class of people called Rama Nandi Bairagis, a people widely scattered and intelligent, great numbers of whom are coming to the Mission House for instruction, as many, certainly, as they can properly instruct.

From the Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati: "The Central Methodist indulges in denunciation of two of our ministers who left New Orleans and came North upon the outbreak there of the yellow fever, and reproachfully contrasts their conduct in this matter with that of "faithful Southern Methodist preachers, standing by their flocks like the sainted Dr. Myers, ready to die with them if the Lord so wills," and also with that of "the pastors of all the Southern churches of whatever denomination." The facts in the case of Rev. J. C. Hartzell are as follows: Long before the arrival of the fever at New Orleans, Rev. Mr. Hartzell entered into a contract to perform certain work in the interests of the Church which would occupy his time for several months, [illegible] In the fulfilment of that contract he is absent from the [illegible], and not from fear of the fever, as the Central Methodist insinuates. It should lead the editor to an apology for his attack to know that Rev. Mr. Hartzell and [illegible] remained at their post at New Orleans for several years, and that both of them, in consequence of their fidelity to the interests of their work, barely escaped death from the malignant epidemic. Rev. Dr. Mattack, his predecessor, remained during several seasons at New Orleans, when the yellow fever raged, and by the mercy of God [illegible] from the jaws of death, while his devoted wife fell a victim to the fever. Rev. D. W. Jones, Mr. Hartzell's associate, remained at his work, and was among the first victims of the president epidemic. We submit to our Southern brethren, that while the heart of the North is moved with tenderness and sympathy towards the suffering South, while prayer is offered from all our pulpits in their behalf, and while our funds flow like water to relieve their distress, it is in extremely bad taste to indulge in flings against the mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the grand work in which her ministers are engaged. In a time like this let us cherish the principles of our holy religion and provoke one another to love and good works."

It is with some anxiety that the Missionary Secretaries learn of the [illegible] of Brothers Osgood and Kellogg [illegible] Liberia. Both were passing through the malignant fever, so common on the west coast of Africa, and which is almost invaribly experienced by persons newly arrived in the country, within the first six weeks of their residence. Brother Osgood was taken ill in the interior, but was brought down to Muhlenburg, where, through the good nursing of the wife of Rev. Mr. Day, the Southern missionary, whose hospitality he was sharing, he was rapidly recovering. Bishop Pennick of the Episcopal Church of Liberia, has kindly got up from the coast to visit Bro. Osgood. The tidings of information concerning Bro. Kellogg was of the same date as his first attack, and he was able to write it himself. A friend at hand says he prays by name each day for some missionary on each of the heathen fields. Would it not be well for a good many people to pray each day for Brothers Osgood, Bovard and Kellogg by name? That "dark continent" must be taken for Christ.

The New York Independent committed an unfortunate error, when, in mentioning the return of Rev. Dr. Palmer to New Orleans, on hearing of the presence of yellow fever, it said it was "the same Dr. Palmer who was charged by some of the Northern press with having introduced clothing infected with yellow fever into Northern cities during the war. He brought suit for libel against the paper that published the story, and secured judgment." The Southwestern Presbyterian truly says, the Independent is mistaken as to the charge, the disease and the man," for Dr. Palmer has never had any such experience. We cheerfully unite with the Presbyterian in making the correction, and feel assured that is is a blunder which the Independent will speedily endeavor to set right in the minds of its numerous readers.

The Government rations, (40,000) placed under the control of Collector Smith, by the Secretary of War, are being issued on an admirable plan by the Orleans Relief Committee. This committee is the result of conference between the Collector and the representatives of various relief societies. It occupies the old appraisers room on the Canal St. side of the Customhouse. Requisitions are received in bulk from the relief societies, filled out, placed in wagons and carried to the residences of the applicants, and if they are found worthy the rations are left; otherwise they are returned, and thus an attempt at imposition fails. The relief is restricted to the families who have had, now have, or may have the yellow fever.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN:—Our church here is spiritually alive and exerting quite an influence for the Master. Like the leaven, its benign, transforming influence is gradually permeating the whole community. The grog shops and gambling dens, which have ever proven to be the deadliest enemies of the church, are gradually giving way before the irrepressible determination of our Total Abstinence Society which numbers ninety-six strong and active workers; pledged not only to war against alcohol, but its two twin brothers, gambling and profanity. In addition to the thirty-two conversions which we reported some time ago, six more precious souls have been happily converted. Pray that we may land in the next conference with victory perched upon our banner, Methodism and the Lamb.

Rev. Geo. Lacey, Bayou Goula, La.: "I am holding a protracted meeting. I started on Sunday night. Up to date (Sept. 4) I have 40 mourners, 5 converts, 3 accessions to the church. The meeting is yet going on, full of the spirit of the Lord; and our Sunday-schools are prospering wonderfully. Pupils 58, average attendance 45. Bro. Manigo, superintendent. The people are begging for the meeting to go on."

Rev. L. J. Terrell, Houston, Miss.: "In my protracted meeting of eight days in Hopewell Church, there were four converts and four accessions to the church, eight on probation. Bro. A. M. Mccready preached a great sermon, and roused the people. I ask the prayers of my brothers."

Rev. A. Heady, Canton, Miss.: "It has been three weeks since we have been able to meet in our church. My congregation has scattered twenty and twenty-eight miles out in the country. Some members are down with the fever, but none have died yet. About 2,700 citizens have fled to the country. I am now picking cotton. I want you to pray to the Lord for us."

Rev. H. L. Kennedy, Hazlehurst, Miss.: "At our camp meeting there were 5 conversions and 2 probationers. The camp meeting did not go on more than four days, as the people were so scared about the yellow fever. The Board of Health thought it would be best to break up. The Sunday school is doing well."

For the ADVOCATE.

Camp Meeting.

I desire to give an account of our Camp Meeting given in Mr. John Sanx's lane, commencing on the 4th of August 1878, and ending on the 19th.

The meeting opened with singing and prayer, after which a noble sermon was delivered by the Rev. Scott Chin. The weather being unfavorable in the morning, there were few people present, but later in the day the clouds cleared away and the attendance increased. During the week there was an increased number every day, and thank God, good order prevailed throughout.

It appeared as though every one was anxious to hear the true gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to-day we close with grand success.

On Saturday the 18th, at midnight, a large number engaged in the love feast, and Sunday evening many took communion.

Ten persons were converted on the grounds, and there were also forty members who seemed very much interested for the salvation of their souls.

The Union Sabbath School of the M. E. Church visited the meeting, numbering about fifty. Great credit is due to our pastor, Rev. Felix Landor, for the able manner in which he has conducted our church. We attribute the success of our meeting to the combined efforts of the Rev. Felix Landor and the Rev. James Craig, who deserve much praise. The farewell sermon was delivered by the Rev. Felix Landor, in his usual eloquent and impressive manner.

Work and Pray.

Asa and Ira were two brothers, whose farms lay side by side in a fertile value. When the young corn, the oats, and the barley were springing up, the weeds took advantage of the rich soil and came up with them. "Do you see," said Asa, "what a hold the weeds are taking? There is danger of their choking out the crops entirely." "Well, well, we must be resigned," said Ira. "Weeds as well as grain were a part of the Creator's plan." And he lay down for a part of his afternoon doze. "I can only be resigned to what I can not help," said Asa. So he went to work, and plowed and hoed until the fields were clear of weeds. "The army worm is in the neighborhood," said Asa to Ira one day. "It has eaten its way through the neighboring meadows and is fast moving towards us." "Ah!" exclaimed Ira, "it will surely destroy what the weeds have not choked out. I will immediately retire to pray that its course may be stopped or turned aside." But Asa replied, "I pray betimes every morning for strength to do the work of the day." And he hastened to dig a trench around his land which the army worm could not pass; while Ira returned from his prayers only in season to save a portion of his crops from its ravages. "Do you see, Ira," said Asa another morning, "the river is rising, and there is but a small chance of preventing our farms from being overflowed?" "Alas! It is a judgment upon us for our sins; and what can we do?" said Ira, throwing himself upon the ground in despair. "There are no judgments to serve as those which our own sloth brings upon us," said Asa. And he went quickly and hired workmen, with whose help he raised an embankment that withstood the flood; while Ira witnessed with blank looks the destruction of all his wealth. "There is one consolation," said he; "my children at least are left me." But while Asa's son grew strong and vigorous men, among Ira's there was a drunkard, a gambler, and a suicide. "The ways of the Lord are not equal," said Ira to his brother. "Why are you always prospered, while I am afflicted, and my old age is disgraced." "I only know this," replied Asa, "that Heaven always helps me to meet my children's faults as I meet the weeds, the caterpillars, and the flood; and that I never presume to send a petition upward, without making toil my right hand servant, the messenger of my prayer."—Baptist Weekly.

The Parable of the Sower.

OUTLINE OF A SERMON BY REV. GEO. F. PENTECOST, EVANGELIST, BROOKLYN.

Behold a sower went forth to sow, etc.—Matt. xii: 3-9; also see explanation, 18-23 vs.

This parable of the sower is one of seven parables recorded in this chapter. They should be interpreted together. There is unity in the group. The difficulties the kingdom of heaven encounters, in securing firm lodgment in the human heart, are illustrated by this parable of the sower. In the parable of the tares we see the difficulties this kingdom meets in its development. The parable of the mustard seed shows its wonderful capabilities for growth. The hidden treasure tells us how it should be valued above all things. The pearl of great price presents the æsthetic side of the kingdom—it is altogether lovely. This group of parables winds up with the draw-net. Death takes up all, the good and bad, then the final separation follows. The meaning of all is, we must take heed as to how we receive the Word of God. If we receive it rightly we shall dwell with God and the good; wrongly, we shall be cast away forever.

This parable I wish to call attention to the first parable of the group—that of the sower. It naturally falls into divisions.

I. The Sower.—This is Jesus himself. He has gone forth and is still going forth to sow the seed of the kingdom of heaven in the hearts and in the understandings of men. When did Christ first go forth to sow? We are told that He was slain from the foundation of the world. After the first sin we read the promise that the seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head. Here the promise is dropped as seed into the despairing heart of man. So in Noah's heart, and through Noah into the hearts of others, the seed of truth is scattered. Then God calls Abram and makes him a new depository of the seed and sends him forth. Then God, the great I Am, speaks to Moses, etc. So all through the centuries of the Jewish dispensation, by angels, by dreams, by signs, by prophecies, the seed of the kingdom of heaven was sown. Then, at last, the Sower Himself comes and sows the seed for years, and again enters the skies, having appointed apostles, martyrs, and good men through all ages to continue the sowing, until nearly all nations now have heard the good news of salvation through Christ, the ever-blessed Redeemer.

II. The Seed.—The Word is the seed. The promises? Yes, and more: the incorruptible Word of God. More still: we read, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God"; that is, Christ is the Word—Christ himself is the seed. The Bible is the growth of time, but the Word is from the beginning; before time was It was. Jesus is not only the sower; He is also the seed which is being sown in the hearts of men. True, He plants doctrine, truth, but, infinitely better, He plants within us Himself. In this he differs from all other teachers. Socrates, Confucius, Buddha taught their disciples doctrines. Christ does much more than this: He imparts the truth, but He Himself is truth. The everlasting Savior, the Bright the Morning Star, the true God plants Himself in the heart of the faithful hearer. So we preach not only correct doctrine—we preach Jesus Christ, the living Savior. It is not dead orthodoxy we proclaim, but a truth that has the life of God in it. Take heed how you receive this marvellous seed.

Observe several things concerning this seed:

1. Ordinary seed is covered with an outward coat. The live principle is hidden away from observation. So we find Christ the living God in the appearance of a man. 'Is not this the son of Joseph, the carpenter?' The vital principle, the living God, was covered by flesh and bone; it was incarnate. Who of us could have understood God save we saw Him enclosed in a body? We might have talked forever of the Son of God, like the philosophers about the Logos, but no one would have understood us. Well might Nicodemus exclaim, "How can these things be?" Also, we find the truth hid away in the Bible. "He that heareth my word," exclaims Christ, "hath eternal life." Is that true? Certainly. Well, I hear. Yes; but says Jesus, "My word is spirit and truth." The words that you here see and that you hear are but the outward covering. If you hear nothing but these words you do not hear Christ's word. In this the Bible differs from all books. One man reads a chapter. It sounds ordinary enough to him. Another reads it, and it blazes and scintillates. Thus sermons affect different men. Some pierce the covering and behold the vital principle, the spiritual truth; others observe but the shell, the dull, dead covering. We are thus protected on the one hand against a mere doctrinal Christianity, dead orthodoxy, and on the other hand against mysticism. There are men who split hairs as to doctrines, are absolutely correct in their statements concerning the truths of Christianity, who yet know nothing of the vital principles of Christianity. They know the outward covering, but not the inward life. Then there are others who ignore the outward form, and say Christianity is wholly spiritual, and they plunge into a wild mysticism. One man says, "Germs are nothing. To prove it, I will pick out of these seeds the germs and sow what remains." Another man says, "The shell of the seed is nothing. The germs contain the vital principle and are alone important. I will pick out the germs and sow them independent of the shells." Neither reaps a harvest. The shell is important, the germ is important; they must both go together. So the written word must not be ignored; much less dare we lose sight of the vital principle.

2. Again we observe, the life-giving property is not in the soil but in the seed. You may plow, enrich the soil as you will, but without seed you can have no life. Scientists have about given up the idea of spontaneous generation. There must be involution before evolution.

Philosophers have given up faith in spontaneous generation, but many people still hold to the idea that the human heart, dead in sin, can of itself generate life. Life cannot come from death. The life is in the seed, not in the heart in which it is sown. There is no salvation apart from the indwelling of Christ.

3. Where life is there is power. You may say, I will take these pebbles and sow them and secure a harvest. Your pebbles are dead and can have no power to reach a harvest. The living word of God is immensely powerful because it is living.

4. Every seed brings forth after its kind. Grapes are not found on thorns. You cannot sow the seed of wickedness and reap a harvest of Christianity. Now, the test of Christianity is perfectly simple: it brings forth after its kind. Apply the test to doctrine, to life—individual—Church.

III. The Soil.—Now, we have not in the parable four different kinds of soil, but the same soil under different conditions. 1. The wayside hearer—soil made hard by the tread of feet, by passing wheels. Here we hear the tramp of the feet of mammon. This is the careless hearer. 2. The stony-ground hearer. He takes in the Word quickly, but soon lets go. Enduring for a while is one thing; for all time is another—they bring harvests that differ infinitely. This is the emotional hearer. The seed is not allowed to strike its roots in the understanding. 3. Among the thorns. Here we have the double-minded hearer. 4. Good soil. The man who hears aright. Friends, have you received the good seed? Has it passed beyond the outward ear? Is it growing into a harvest? Is Christ in you? Examine your heart. Take heed how you hear.—Metropolitan Pulpit.

Trusting the Promises.

When a pious old slave on a Virginia plantation was asked why he was always so sunny-hearted and cheerful under his hard lot, he replied, "Ah, massa, I always lays dat down on de promises, and den I pray straight up to my hebenly Fader." Humble, happy soul! he was not the first man who has eased an aching head by laying it upon God's pillows, or the first man who has risen up the stronger from a repose on the unchangeable word of God's love. Spiritually that man was a Crœsus, for all his soul's wealth was in the currency of heaven.

Telegraphic Summary.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 9.—The fever has broken out in several new points in this State, Bolton, Lake and Lawrence stations, on the Vicksburg and Meridian railroad, Gallman station on the New Orleans road and Dry Grove, in Hinds county. No abatement at Vicksburg, Holly Springs, Port Gibson or Greenville. At Grenada only three or four remain to be attacked.

Crystal Springs, Sept. 9, 1878.—It is reported that the yellow fever has broken out at Dry Grove, ten miles northwest of this place, located in Hinds county.

Already two deaths have occurred in one family.

There is great excitement among the people.

S. H. S.

Canton, Miss., Sept. 9.—Twenty-one new cases have been reported in the last twenty-four hours, and four deaths. The fever seems to be spreading into the country. All look to us for help. We need nurses badly.

Holly Springs, Sept. 9.—The following deaths to-day: George Wing, Thomas Falconer, Miss Julia White, R. G. Campbell, Mrs. Blank, Bateman's child, Jennie Lynch, W. H. Ross.

Lake, Miss., Sept. 9, 1878.—This little village is sorely afflicted. Five new cases of yellow fever are reported to-day. It invades not only the railroad town, but penetrates the country for miles around. To-day a case is reported at Newton.

The V. & M. railroad is almost entirely shut off, but Col. Haworth, the superintendent, is making the most heroic efforts, in spite of quarantines to supply the afflicted points on his road with medicines and food. Shameful to relate, an attempt to stop a medicine train en route for this place was made at Meridian, the other day, but the true-hearted and brave of that town rose and checked the effort.

Fire Low.

Three-fourths of all the shots fired in battle fall of effect by being sent over the enemy's head. Nothing is harder for a soldier to learn than to fire low. There are ministers who are always failing to do execution in their sermons for the same reason. A "point blank" from the average pulpit is sure to go over the head of the average hearer in the pews. Some of the best informed Sunday-school teachers know so much more than their scholars, that they forget how far they must come down to be on a level with the understanding of their classes. It is important to have higher ground than the person you would uplift, but because he is below you, you must stoop sufficiently to allow him to get hold of your hand. If he is down a well and you are on the level ground, you can reach him by standing on tiptoe and [illegible] arms. You must get down [illegible] knees, and lower [illegible] level of his, before you can start him toward your [illegible]. Have this truth in mind, in all your preparation for [illegible]

HOW FAT CAN A PERSON BECOME.

Mirabeau, alluding to a very corpulent person, said, "He has only been created to show to what extent the human skin would stretch without bursting." Then, corpulence was believed to be a natural condition; now, it is known to be a disease. Hundreds who have considered themselves useless for life, by reason of too much fat, have, by the use of Allan's Anti-Fat, been reduced to a healthy and natural standard. This great remedy for corpulence is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts on the food, in the stomach, preventing its being converted into fat. It cures indigestion and tones up the system. Sold by druggists.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned, and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The [illegible] the University for[illegible] all [illegible] objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will [illegible] any to remain at the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

Extracts from Letters.

A. A. Gibson, Barrytown, Duchess County, N. Y., writes, April 30, 1877, Dr. Swayne & Son, Phila., Gents—I enclose post-office order for eight dollars, please send me one dozen London Hair Color Restorer. It has stopped my hair from falling out, and restored it to its natural color. It has proved satisfactory in every respect.

Dr. Isaac H. Miller, West Brecknock, Pa., writes: As a restorer of grey hair and preventative of baldness, it is the best remedy I have ever sold, and gives entire satisfaction.

Wm. Schell, Germantown, Columbia co., N. Y., writes: April, 1877—The London Hair Color Restorer was received. I am delighted with it. You will find enclosed four dollars for a half dozen bottles by express.

Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry

seldom, if ever fails to cure a cough. Even when the lungs have become much disordered, with night sweats, burning fever pains and oppression, it has effected wonderful cures.

A Remarkable Cure.

Dr. Swayne—Dear Sir—I feel it to be due to you and suffering humanity to give the following testimony respecting the wonderful curative powers of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla and Tar Pills. I was afflicted with a violent cough, pains in the side and breast, night sweats, sore throat, my bowels were costive, appetite nearly gone; and my stomach so very weak that my physician was at a loss to know what to do for me, as everything in the shape of medicine was rejected; spit at different times a pint of blood. I remained for months in this awful condition, and gave up all hopes of ever recovering. At this time you recommended the use of your syrup and pills, which immediately began to soothe, comfort and allay the violence of the cough, strengthened and healed my lungs; in short it has made a perfect cure of me, and I am now able to pursue my daily labor. Any person doubting the truth of the above statement will please call on or address me at the factory. EDWARD H. HAMSON.

Engineer of Geo. Sweeney's Pottery, Ridge road below Wallace, Phila.

PHYSICIANS RECOMMEND IT

Dr. Thos. J. B. Rhoads, Boyertown, Berks co., Pa., writes: "Your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry I esteem very highly; have been selling and recommending it to my patients for many years, and it always proves efficacious. It has made some remarkable cures in this section, and I consider it the best remedy with which I am acquainted."

Price, $1. Six bottles for $5. Describe symptoms in all communications, and address letters to DR. SWAYNE & SON, 330 North Sixth street, Philadelphia. No charge will be made for advice. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines generally.

THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD.

In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above directed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

The Church.

The Church is not only a family and a school. It is also a flock. This idea implies on the one side watch, care and protection, and on the other, docility and submission. Jesus himself is the chief shepherd. His people are His sheep. He knows them. He gives unto them eternal life. They shall never perish. But the distinguishing features of His sheep are that they hear His voice and that they follow Him. These are the marks of His flock. They are very clear and simple marks. Whether it is the voice of direction, comfort or warning, that Divine voice they are keenly sensitive to. When heard, the holy instinct of obedience implanted in them prompts them to obey it promptly, cheerfully, fully. How precious such a shepherd full of all wisdom, full of all goodness of all power! How happy such a flock ever secure and richly provided for, led into green pastures and blessed to lie down by the still waters of Divine grace! But all this is conditioned upon the hearing and the following. How vain to imagine ourselves to be of the flock; how useless to expect the blessings of his sheep, unless we have these marks!

The chief shepherd has appointed over his flock undershepherds, pastors and guides, for the more immediate watch and care of the flock. They are not under the people but under Christ. He has set them over the flock not to fleece them but to feed them, not to flee when the enemy cometh, but to protect them against the enemy. How responsible a position for any man to occupy!

"Feed the flock of God which is among you taking the oversight thereof." There is reason to fear that too many of the undershepherds have forgotten the object for which they are over the fold. Nor will they keep that in view unless they themselves listen most attentively to the voice of the chief shepherd and follow it closely. Faithful to Him, they will be faithful to the flock. They will feed it, watch over it, defend it. The flock will grow and strengthen and flourish under them. If not true to their work, they need not be surprised if the sheep do not hear them. "A stranger will they not follow but will flee from him." They may be misled for awhile, but [illegible] detect [illegible] the voice and [illegible] the true shepherd!

The important event connected with the recent meeting at Chautauqua [illegible] was the inauguration of the new department known as the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle. The necessity for educating the people in principles of sound finance and rational politics receives every day fresh exemplification. That the most effective agent for this purpose is a well-conducted Republican newspaper will be generally conceded. That no obstacle on the score of cost may prevent The New York Weekly Times from reaching all who need its instructing influence, it is offered from the 18th of September, 1878, to the 1st of January, 1879, for the sum of Twenty-Five Cents, either singly or in clubs.

The destitute unemployed increase daily. The Howard's ask the public to stop subscriptions for their work, the caring for the sick; but of course this does not apply to the Peabody, Orleans, Young Men's Christian, Homeopathic, Ladies, Physiological, German, French, Spanish, and other associations and societies which are providing for the destitute of all classes. It will be many days before New Orleans and surrounding villages and towns, sorely visited by the fever, will be free from dependence on the noble charity from abroad.

Mission Rooms, September 3d.

Of the five Indian Agencies in which corrupt administration has been disclosed, none of those to which the Mission Board of our Church nominates the agent are found. The following extract from the report of John Young, agent of the Blackfeet Agency, Montana, made to our Missionary Secretaries, will indicate somewhat of the work being done, and the prospects of further good amongst these red races. Mr. Young says:

"These Blackfeet, Bloods and Piegans are an intelligent race of fine physique, now and for some years back, entirely friendly to the whites. Eight years ago it was different. Then their murders and atrocities were such as called for the severe lesson given them by Col. Baker, in the extermination of the 'Double Runners' band, a punishment which at the time was by many called barbarous, though the results have proved beneficial. The Indians saw that it was either submission or extermination, and at once in solemn council accepted the former, and since have consistently acted up to it; and now when they see the happy results of obedience in the lessened crime following the suppression of the whisky traffic, and are beginning to feel the value of schools and the fruits of agriculture, that they should go back to what they were is not to be feared nor looked for. This improved condition of these tribes has a special value [illegible] by the events of last year. They have always been the enemy of the Sioux, and their full equal in courage and skill. When Sitting Bull and his band took refuge in Canada, they crossed the reservation of the Piegans, which runs along the Canada line for several hundreds of miles, and along which are their hunting grounds, and thus they form a faithful guard against any attempt of hostile Sioux to cross the line or boundary; and even should they not be in force sufficient to resist an unlooked for attack at one point, they can still be depended on to give the alarm promptly by scouts in time for the military and border settlers to prepair."

"Horse stealing and other thefts were formerly common and applauded, but during the last year no charge of any offense has been made against them, though during that period thirty-seven head of horses and mules found straying on the prairie, the property of white men, were brought to me and restored to the owners.

"Last year was the first attempt at farming, no attention having ever been given before to raising any crop, and the proceedings were watched with interest, but with one or two exceptions the males would not work, though the squaw did. A fair harvest resulted and the potatoes, turnips, etc. given them as [illegible] during the winter were highly relished. When our farming [illegible] began this spring, their conduct [illegible] different; more males offered for service than I could employ, and further, twelve of their head men have broken up, fenced and planted small patches, with the aid of my employees, and just now the prospect of a good harvest is very encouraging. A good many are building houses also.

"The attendance at our school has this year been more than double that of last year, and the interest [illegible] teachers, whose patience and perseverence have been rewarded by the attachment of their pupils and their progress in their studies. The reluctance of the scholars to speak English has been in a measure overcome by requiring them to ask for whatever was wanted by its English name. The liking of the children for school and its exercises has been manifested in many ways. When removed [illegible], for instance, to accompany their parents to the hunting grounds, after one or two day's journey they would start off and return to school. One of our causes of regret is that the nomadic habits of the people prevent a continued attendance of the children.

My time is so busily occupied with the [illegible] people that [illegible] there is no [illegible] service. No minister of any [illegible] has been [illegible] than a year. Biographical Sketch.

From the Greencastle (Ind.) Banner, of Aug. 22, we take the following notice of our deceased associate editor.

DAVID W. JONES.

The many friends of David Welborn Jones will be pained to learn of his sudden death, which occured from yellow fever, at New Orleans, on the 19th inst. Mr. Jones was born in Vigo county, Ind., on the 16th of March, 1833, and with his parents moved to Greencastle in 1847. He entered Asbury University, but at the age of 19, and when within one term of graduation, quit college to engage in business. Afterwards, however, upon recommendation of Bishop Bowman, he was graduated with the honors of the University. From 1854 to 1861 he was engaged in the hardware business in Greencastle, with Robt. Dorsey, under the well remembered firm name of Dorsey & Jones. By appointment of Gov. Morton, he served near two years in the South during the war as a member of the Sanitary Commission, caring for and aiding in the relief of our sick and wounded soldiers in the field. In 1864 he finished the course of study and graduated at the Garrett Biblical Institute at Evanston, Ills., and for a short time had charge, as pastor, of a church in Missouri, which he relinquished on account of a contest relating to the property between the churches North and South. In 1867 he moved to Mississippi, and resided at Jackson about four years, during the greater part of which time he served as Deputy Auditor of the State. For near three years past he has been acting as business manager of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE at New Orleans. The last issue of that paper, of the 15th inst., was mailed to his friends here with his own hands. On the 5th inst. he wrote to his friends here, saying he had no fear of the disease, but that he had made every arrangement to be taken care of should he be attacked, and to let his friends hear from him every day. He was full of good cheer and urged his friends not to be uneasy about him. He was expecting in October to join his wife in New York, and with his family visit his friends in Greencastle, and then return with his family to his work in New Orleans, where he expected to make his future home. But the dreadful scourge laid its hands upon him, and its work was speedily accomplished. The first knowledge his friends had of his sickness was the dispatch in the Indianapolis Journal announcing his death. But few persons were better known in Putnam county, and no one ever drew to himself warmer friends than did he. For every good work his hands were ever ready and his heart ever open. In the church, in the Sabbath-school, and in the temperance cause he was always the same active earnest worker. As evidence of his early devotion to the temperance cause many will remember the spicy temperance paper published in 1853 by him and Alfred W. Sewell, called the Torch-Light. He was peculiarly fitted for this work as he had learned the printer's trade previous to his graduation from college.

To no one are we more indebted for the completion of the soldier's monument than to David W. Jones.

He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity and held high position in the order. In disposition he was most tender, affectionate and kind; while in his outer life he illustrated the high qualities of a true and noble manhood. He leaves as the saddest mourners over his grave, a heart-broken wife and child, a mother and a sister. That he died as he lived, full of the true christian faith and hope, there can be no doubt. Those who knew him, when they read these lines, will join the writer of this sketch in saying—"David W. Jones was one of the best men I ever knew."

A true man is always highly esteemed, even by those who may affect to despise him. Their estimate of his character may be concealed, but secretly they approve and commend him. In the estimation of the virtuous and good, moral honesty and integrity are always regarded as cardinal virtues, and essential to the formation of a worthy character. A man who lacks sincerity, who is true to the lip, but false to the heart, who looks one way and rows another, is unworthy of confidence, and cannot be trusted. Be sincere, honest, true, and you will command the respect and confidence of all,

Calamity Shows We Are Akin.

Calamity will heal Congress. This congregation of political athletes succeeded admirably with their spasms of mutual recrimination and reactive investigating committees, in embittering the North and the South. Neither party is immaculate, and while there may be a choice between them, individual schemers for office so irritate and anger opponents that honest patriots often tremble for the republic when left to the keeping of children estranged through the selfishness of their political fathers. Congress destroyed common patriotism, while pretending to "pacify" the country. The plague, while a destroyer, proves that we are brethren.

August, in this year of our Lord, hath brought a new element into the equation. Suddenly, and pitilessly that destroyer, yellow fever, overtook New Orleans, Memphis, Vicksburg, Grenada and other towns, and in its presence all political walls of separation fall down and all hearts melt into one, as men clasp each other's hands and call upon God for deliverance. It is impossible to depict the scenes enacted so near us, and among our own countrymen.

* * * * * * *

Nothing is grander, more touching and more promising of blessed results among survivors in the South, than the record of the ready treasure and the unquestioning sympathy which the North is casting into the laps and hearts of our Southern brothers and sisters. We always have claimed, and truthfully, that selfish leaders have made our troubles for us, but that the hearts of the people in both sections are in the right places. The Northern mere politician is a dangerous leader, while the Southern masses by force of sheer habit follow the lead of a real minority. This giving of dollars, which we hope will, if necessary, aggregate millions, has its own reward. We pray that God will even miraculously direct the flow of every dollar and guide providentially every ounce of antidote and every pound of food to the point where life is in the scales. The result, when the trial is past, must be blessed indeed. It will hereafter be quite difficult for Southern demagogues to convince their followers that Northern men who gave without stint, really desire to rob, traduce, belittle, or kill their brethren. The test, while deplorable and awful, will yield the peaceable fruits of fraternal righteousness. The man who will seek to divest the lesson of its legitimate moral will deserve a moral murrain more savage than the fell Southern plague. The eye of the entire nation—nay, of all civilization—is upon this transaction. We could not immediately realize the peril or the straits into which our brethren had fallen, but the news that brought full information, startled the entire world. Therefore, we hear of donations in Canada and England. Presently we shall the more clearly see the value of the telegraph which is a product of Christianity, and the more blessed results of inter-communication in the cable of human sympathy that binds all hearts in one. Still again do we see the significance of the first message sent over an American telegraph wire—"What hath God wrought?" both in the domain of science which is the sum of what we know of God's law, and in the wide field of morals that in the name of a common Creator make the whole world kin. There is an ocean of difference between the "fraternity" that demands money as its certifier, and that which pours out money like water when a brother is too helpless to ask for a dollar or a drop.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"We did not bring any novels to the country this summer, and now the members of the family are reading Motley, Macaulay, Irving, and other authors. They seem, too, to be more than usually interesting." So said a friend. We are quite in agreement with Emerson that if the bulk of modern literature could be burned up, our boys and girls would be immensely the gainers. The reading of light, trashy, sentimental, sensational, silly and sickly novels and novelettes has neutralized to a great extent the purpose of a universal system of popular education. Instructive reading requires the use of brains, demands reflection, stores the memory, and develops faculty. But who are they who now read solid books?—Christian Intelligencer.

Interesting Missionary Meeting.

GATHERING IN THE LIBERTY STREET M. E. CHURCH—ADDRESS OF REV. J. H. MCCARTY, OF NEW ORLEANS.

From the Pittsburg Telegraph, Monday September 9th.

The Liberty Street M. E. Church, which has been undergoing some general repairs during the last few weeks, was opened for divine service yesterday morning. The sermon on the occasion was delivered by Rev. J. McCarty, D. D., of New Orleans. A new front has been put on the old sanctuary, the woodwork throughout has been painted, and the walls and ceilings handsomely frescoed. The church now presents a neat and attractive appearance, and starts out on a new lease of life. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Miles, has worked vigorously and with good success. In the evening a missionary meeting was held, at which several addresses were delivered. The pastor spoke on home missionary work, Rev. W. H. Kincaid on Foreign Missions, and Rev. Dr. McCarty on the work of the M. E. Church in the South. We can only give space to some of the remarks of the last speaker. The Doctor states that when one talks of the work of the M. E. Church in the South it must not be inferred that there was no Christian work there but what the M. E. Church is doing. The South is not a heathen land. There are tens of thousands of faithful Christians and many eloquent and devoted ministers in all the churches in the South. He would speak of the work in the South as he would of that in the West, or the East, or the North. A church has no right to localize itself. The M. E. Church South has a right to plant her churches anywhere. He hoped she would do so, for the harvest is great and the laborers are few. So the M. E. Church has a right to go South; it is our duty to go everywhere—into all the world. He stated that however much political questions had divided the North and South a few years ago, that day was now past and the war is over. Now he believed in the most cordial fraternity among Christians and especially among Methodists. He had never attended better prayer meetings, nor listened to more eloquent preaching than in the M. E. Churches in New Orleans. He hoped the day was not far distant when the two Methodisms, even though there might never be an organization, would stand shoulder to shoulder in the great strife against sin.

The M. E. Church had undertaken to do a work for the colored man—a work in which all Christian people in the South were engaging in to a large extent. He deemed the work of educating the colored people a mission of which any church might justly be proud. He was at the present time away from his charge in New Orleans, at a time when every man should be at his post. He had come North to raise funds for a pressing church debt and had arranged for the work before any yellow fever had broken out. He was here against his will and if he could get the money he must have he would return to the stricken city as soon as he could reach there notwithstanding he was wholly unacclimated and the Board of Health protested against unacclimated persons coming there to feed the epidemic.

Telegraphic Summary.

Dispatches of the 15th give the following:

Says the New York Times; "Of the two thousand Indians who live in Lower Canada, nearly one-half are Roman Catholics, though the priests complain that they are difficult to regulate theologically, as they have an uncontrollable tendency to confound their native superstitions with the dogmas of their adopted creed. They join their baptismal rites with those of animals as family names, calling themselves Jean Baptiste Horse, Pierre Antoine Dog, Paul Charles Bear, Louis Marie Wolf, and Jacques Constantine Elk. Most of them speak French, or rather the barbarous patois known as Canadian French. They are generally industrious and tolerably honest, but extremely poor, like most inhabitants of the province. Their chief vice there, as in this Republic, is intemperance. They get drunk whenever they have an opportunity, and it is said to be a noticeable fact that a certain amount of liquor drowns their Catholicism completely. When intoxicated they return altogether to savagery.

BUT A DAY OF LIFE.

BY L. E. KEELER.

But a day of life, but a day of life,
To strive for the world's proud glory;
Garnering riches, and honor, and power,
The fame of the good in the earth's great dower;
To write in its annals our story;
To answer the martial call of the fife,
But a day of life, but a day of life.

But a day of life, but a day of life,
To fill with pleasure and singing,
But a day to gladden the world with smiles,
Drinking in [illegible] and laughter the whiles,
And listening the glad chimes ringing;
To gather the blossoms with color rife,
But a day of life, but a day of life.

But a day of life, but a day of life,
For our sorrows, pains and losses,
But a day to bow 'neath the weight of grief—
To garner for heaven the precious sheaf—
To carry our burdens and crosses,
And fill the ranks in the holy strife,
But a day of life, but a day of life.

But a day of life, but a day of life,
To gather our all of treasures;
Be they jewels, or laurels, or loving hearts,
Right, ourself and our guerdon parts,
And we know as we purchase our pleasures
The [illegible] feels the edge of the knife.
But a day of life, but a day of life.

But a day of life, but a day of life,
Then sleep—till the endless "To-morrow"—
We are gathering flowers that fade and die,
Or toiling "by faith," as the hours glide by;
We are bearing in patience the sorrow;
Or sighing unthankfully, weary of strife,
"But a day of life, but a day of life."

But a day of life! But a day of life!
The morning is passing forever!
The dew has dried on the unkept field,
How quickly the wheat for the autumn yield—
The grain from the thistles sever—
Rise, from the harvest with blessings rife,
All the day of life. All the day of life.

A Sermon for Little Folks.

"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."—John 13:17.

I. "These things," that is, your [illegible]. You have your duties [illegible] you are:

1. At home, obedience and respect [illegible] and kindness to brothers, [illegible], and servants.

[illegible] school, respectfulness to [illegible], faithfulness in study, and [illegible] in play.

[illegible] church, be quiet, listen, [illegible] give your hearts to [illegible].

[illegible] the street, modesty, good [illegible] kindness, minding your [illegible].

[illegible] should you do your du[illegible] [illegible] for pay. That is a low [illegible] always ask, "What [illegible] love. So the Savior did [illegible] at Nazareth. So the [illegible] will (which is only [illegible] for duty). This will [illegible] it cheerfully.

[illegible] By trying to [illegible] become [illegible] you improve in [illegible] writing, and music. Peter [illegible] duty makes you [illegible] make Eve hap[illegible] Disobedi[illegible] make you [illegible] unkindness, bad [illegible] kind of sin can make [illegible]

[illegible] comes from doing [illegible] God's reward [illegible] every day for just one [illegible] true it is. [illegible] your duty. Be [illegible] is doing it for love [illegible] then you will be [illegible] earth, and for[illegible] school, stands a poor chance to be a prompt man. The boy who neglects his duties, be they ever so small, and then excuses himself by saying "I forgot! I didn't think!" will never be a reliable man. And the boy who finds pleasure in the suffering of weaker things will never be a noble, generous kindly man—a gentleman.

A great many mistake religious sentiment for a religious life. Because they are touched by religious truth they fancy they are religious. Because they are susceptible to religion they think they have it. An impression is to them the same as if they obeyed it; to appreciate right is the same as though they did the right. Weeping over a book of martyrs, they almost think it is as heroic as if they died at the stake themselves. They come to take what God has planted in them as a substitute for a practical Christian life.—Ex.

A gentleman in the habit of occasionally using intoxicating drinks took up an able temperance speech and sat down in his family circle to peruse it. He read it through without saying a word, when he exclaimed: "This man is a fool!" He read it again, and when he had finished it a second time he exclaimed: "This man is a fool or I am!" A third time he read it with still greater care, and as he finished the last sentence exclaimed: "I am a fool!" and never touched a drop of ardent spirits afterwards.

New Publications

We have received the second volume of the Metropolitan Pulpit, bound in cloth from the publishers, Religious Newspaper Agency, 21 Barclay St, New York, for which our thanks are due.

That Fat Person Cannot be Found. Not even Edison with all his inventive genius and extensive research, can find a fat person that Allan's Anti-Fat will not reduce at the rate of from two to five pounds per week. Those having uselessly tried different anti-fat prescriptions, including "starvation," "horse-back" and "saw-horse" "riding," may be skeptical, but a fair trial will convince them that Allan's Anti-Fat is a genuine medicine, and that it will speedily fulfill all promises. Sold by druggists.

A FINE HEAD OF HAIR is such an indispensable adjunct to beauty, that one who prizes good looks should neglect to use "[illegible] Hair Color Restorer," the most delightful article ever introduced to the American people for increasing its growth, restoring its natural color, and at the same time a lovely hair dressing and beautifier. It is totally different from all others; not sticky and gummy, and free from all impure ingredients that render many articles obnoxious; in fact, it is exquisitely perfumed and so perfectly and elegantly prepared as to make it a lasting hair dressing and toilet luxury. Sold by all dealers in fine toilet articles, [illegible] a bottle, or six bottles for $4. ([illegible] & Co.) wholesale agents, New Orleans.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE H. VASSON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned, and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

Rev. H. R. REVELS, Pres't,

HELP! FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S

ELECTRIC BELTS

AND BANDS.

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only award of merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions —Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy thoughts? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle-aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucous, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists.

ANTI-FAT

THE GREAT REMEDY for

CORPULENCE.

ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT

is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts upon the food in the stomach, preventing its being converted into fat. Taken in accordance with directions, it will reduce a fat person from two to five pounds per week.

"Corpulence is not only a disease itself, but the harbinger of others." So wrote Hippocrates two thousand years ago, and what was true then is none the less so to-day. Sold by druggists, or sent, by express, upon receipt of $1.50. Quarter-dozen $4.00. Address,

God's Dealings With Us.

Among men it is no uncommon thing to find love acting against justice or justice doing its work regardless of love. But the perfect balance of Divine nature requires that these qualities be blended and operate harmoniously. "I am the Lord which exercises loving kindness, judgment and righteousness in the earth; for in these things I delight saith the Lord." It is hard to realize this in many of the trials and afflictions that we have to pass through. We see the judgment, but where is the loving kindness and where is the righteousness? Doubtless reason often staggers just here. Faith comes to the rescue. Our confidence in the Divine integrity and goodness holds its own, although we may have to cry out, "Lord I believe; help Thou mine unbelief."

It will be noticed that loving kindness is put first. This is the spring of all God's actions. "God is love." There is nothing that He does, there is nothing He can do that is not the outcome of His love. Hence all His doings are kind because they spring from love and so He declares that He exercises loving kindness in the earth. But with the loving kindness of God there is mingled judgment also. When He sends sorrow or trial upon us it is in order to take from us something that He knows will injure us if left in our own possession or to inflict upon us that wholesome chastisement that He sees necessary for our future well being. [illegible] judgment [illegible] and although we like silly [illegible], may cry out [illegible] all it [illegible] and heartless, [illegible] blessedly true that [illegible] whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth and scourgeth every [illegible] whom He receiveth." The [illegible] judgement of God are also in perfect harmony with His righteousness. They are [illegible] in perfect accord with perfect rectitude. "Shall not the [illegible] of all this earth do right?" [illegible] all the miseries, sufferings and [illegible] that follow sin, there is [illegible] and the sufferer himself [illegible] it to be righteous, but there is no vindictiveness in God, [illegible] human suffering. [illegible] every loving kindness itself requires the infliction. He is [illegible]; He is righteous. Here is a blessed trinity of attributes in whose exercise God [illegible] all [illegible] blessed harmony in His providential government [illegible] this world.

[illegible] comfort [illegible] this [illegible]. What we do not now understand [illegible] hereafter [illegible] shall look back upon [illegible] way by which we have been [illegible] and we shall readily recognize [illegible] every chapter and in every verse [illegible] our own history loving kindness [illegible] judgment blended together, and [illegible] perfect and complete [illegible].

[illegible] tributed by sympathizing friends for the relief of the suffering and want caused by the yellow fever. Additional contributions enable us now to send you another check for the same amount, ($500) after having forwarded a like check to Memphis for use there. Please make an early acknowledgment of the receipt of our letter and enclosure, and when you conveniently can some information of the use of the amount sent.

Yours truly,
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
per D. DENHAM, JR.

The recipients of the above mentioned amounts after consultation, concluded to distribute it through the agency of the pastors of the Methodist churches, who should in person report each case needing relief by name, residence and number of family. This to be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, with the name of the pastor or agent attached to the amounts disbursed. It is hoped due care will be taken by pastors in investigating applications made to them, in order that the fund may reach only those sufferers for whom it it is intended.

On Monday, at the SOUTHWESTERN office, the work of relief was commenced, and although small amounts were allowed in each case, the disbursements for the day amounted to $153 50! This shows at a glance the extent of poverty and misery the scourge has left in its track, and must satisfy the donors of the relief fund that their action was both thoughtful and opportune.

Let the prayers of all include a blessing asked for the charitable Northern friends, who have come to our succor in the hours of distress.

The Central Methodist, Catlettsburg Ky., tried to make out an odious comparison between the conduct of preachers of the church North, and the church South. The Western Advocate, of Cincinnati, pointed out errors of fact, upon which the Methodist relied in its statements, which was published in the SOUTHWESTERN of the 12th inst. We regret that the Methodist has rejoined in this spirit.

The editor of the Western Advocate thinks we are not fraternal for telling our readers that North Methodist preachers in the South flee upon the first approach of yellow fever, while Southern Metodist preachers remain at the post of duty, administering to the comfort of the sick, and burying the dead. But the point is our ministers are judged by them unworthy to represent and defend Methodism in this Southland, hence they send men whom they hold up to the world as of better Wesleyan stock than they, to do this work, who, on the first appearance of danger flee North and leave their sheep without shepherds to care for and protect them, we simply stated the fact, and that is not denied. Now, [illegible] say, distinctly, we do not censure these men for leaving, under the circumstances, but the Northern church should forever seal their lips as to the main reasons assigned for sending ministers South.

We agree with the Western Advocate that no fraternal spirit graces [illegible] and disproven attack of the Central Methodist, and its allusions are untimely and without warrant. The sheep have "shepherds to care for and protect them;" [illegible] the very ones, named by the Methodist, with able assistants. Is it this fact which arouses the envy of our contemporary? All honor to the heroes of this crisis, without drawing any unfraternal lines, say we; the others may be safely left to the better judgment of the high-minded followers of Jesus!

A notable change has taken place in the affairs of Egypt. The Khedive has been generally reckoned a man of far more than ordinary abilities, and not without a desire to elevate the country of which he is the ruler. He has spent vast sums of money in public improvements, principally, however, to beautify his capital and administer to his personal enjoyment. His tastes have been those of an Oriental despot, an unceasing round of extravagance and profligacy has characterized the life of his palace. For years he has been hopelessly in debt, borrowing large sums of the Jews to meet necessities until the case has become desparate. The step that has now been taken is in the interest of the foreign creditors. The Khedive and his family are to restore to the State the lands they have acquired since he came to the throne, and there is to be a real reform in the administration, including large retrenchments in the civil list. To carry out these reforms, Nubar Pasha [illegible] President of the Council, [illegible] Rivers Wilson, the Minister of Finance. This is only one step less than an actual dethronement of the Khedive. The new prime minister is a Christian, an Armenian and a reformer. He is in accord with Western civilization and owes his position no doubt to British intrigues and influence.

Rev. R. W. Overton.

Rev. R. Overton, pastor of Camp Parapet church, died September 17th of yellow fever. He was taken sick on the 10th, and on the 17th he breathed his last. He was appointed to his post by Bishop Wiley, in 1877. and re-appointed by Bishop Wiley. He was born in the year 1849 in Elizabeth City, North Carolina, and now leaves relations, his father and one brother in the ministry. At the time of his death, his wife was away for her health with his daughter, on a visit to his former charge, Morgan City and Centreville, where he was first appointed by Bishop Merrill, and recommended from Asbury Chapel, Franklin, La. Rev. Overton was beloved by all, and his many friends will be pained to hear of his death.

As his friends gathered at his bed-side, he prayed and told them to tell his wife to meet him in Heaven, and said he was going to a better land. He slept in Jesus, full of faith. His funerel at Camp Parapet was attended by his conference brethren, Revs. E. Williams, W. P. Forrest, S. Duncan, S. Priestly and A. Moore.

We hope the Secretary of War will not hesitate to use his powers to the fullest extent in furnishing government rations to the needy in the South. His hesitation is the result ot the ill-advised notice of the Howards, that funds were no longer needed by them, which has been misinterpreted abroad. The poor, deprived of work, are daily increasing in numbers, and the hand of charity should be liberally extended to them until they are able to help themselves.

An Interesting Letter from Vicksburg.

THE SILENT BELLS—FLEEING PEOPLE — HEARSES — DESTITUTE — RELIEF ASKED FOR.

VICKSBURG, Sept. 14, 1878.

BRO. HARTZELL.—Dear Sir: Perhaps it would not be amiss to write you from this once happy city, situated on the hills by the Father of Waters—yes, I say once happy, because in days gone by not only could the bells of the many churches be heard pealing all through the city on the Sabbath, but also during the week days of labor. Now how different! Not a sound is to be heard, save those of the many hearses and hacks conveying the dead to the city of the dead. Business is suspended, churches are closed all over the city. No more ringing ot bells to summon the people to hear the word of God expounded.

Great destitution and distress prevail. Over 600 have passed away thus far and our list of dead ranges from 15 to 50 daily—the last weekly report of the sexton being 210. This is fearful for a city with less than 10,000 inhabitants, and where over 5,000 have fled from it into the country, and left the poor to face the contagious disease. Much suffering prevails among the colored people at this place.

As to the M. E. Church here, we were making great improvements previous to the breaking out of the fever. The old building has been repaired and virtually made new—over $500 expended on it. It was ceiled overhead, painted, and furnished with a new set of pews, O. G. style, a new pulpit, and a large gallery in front 30 by 8 feet. But just as we were finishing our repairs the fever broke out, and stopped everything about the church at present. Our presiding elder has not been able to reach here since July, owing to tho quarantine laws prohibiting his coming here and going elsewhere. Bro. J. J. Shumpert, our beloved pastor, is in Aberdeen with his family. He left here Aug. 12 to visit his sick mother, and owing to his being in somewhat bad health, has been advised not to return until the yellow fever abates here. He is loved by his congregation. Our church is in a better condition than ever before. Our elder is loved and esteemed highly. May God bless both of them and spare them to return here when times are more favorable.

We hope you will do all you can for our distressed and destitute people. We have organized an association here to aid the destitute of all classes. All aid sent to the Peabody Association of Vicksburg must be sent to one of the following parties: Geo. W. Stith, President; T. M. Broadwaters, Treasurer; W. H. Rogers, Secretary. Here is a full list of all the officers of the Peabody Association of Vicksburg, viz: President, Goe. W. Stith; 1st Vice President, W. J. Jordan; 2nd Vice President, Goe. Robinson, Secretary, W. H. Rogers; Assistant Secretary, N. J. Stith; Treasurer, Thos. M. Broadwaters; Directors, W. J. Jordan, Geo. Robinson, P. C. Hall, Claiborne Green, J. H. Wilson, H. C. Carter, J. W. Taylor.

Please excuse me for taking up so much of your valuable paper. I will close by appealing to all, both white and colored everywhere, to help us in this hour of distress. I am very respectfully

Yours in Christ,
GEO. W. STITH.

Mission Rooms, September.

The latest tidings from Moravia are to July 30, and are to the effect that Bro. Kellogg was improving, and that he hoped to have the school resumed by August 1. The school numbers over one hundred and thirty pupils and more were expected from remote points. Bro. Osgood was still at the Muhlenburg Mission, receiving the kind care of Rev. D. A. Day and wife, of that Mission, and continues to improve.

We regret to learn of the very serious illness of the wife of Rev. Mr. Correll of our Mission in Yokohama. She was very low with typhoid fever according to the advices at the Mission Rooms under date of Yokohama, August 14th.

Rev. M. Hansen writes to the Missionary Secretaries from Christiana, Norway, under date of August 8th, in which he says: "At our Conference presided over by our dear Bishop Bowman, we had a time of great pleasure and benefit. Everything went on easy and in good order. The missionary collections for this year were $623 72." He also reports the death, on the second of August, of Rev. S. A. Stenson, of the Norway Conference.

"When the Greek postillion mounts his horse he begins a song which he only concludes with his journey" is a sentence we recall from Chateaubriand, and one we are prone to think of in connection with the jubilant, song-loving form of Christianity known as Methodism. Before he gets his creed, before he gets his catechism, the Methodist is wont to compile his hymn book. We have a fresh illustration in a book before us. Early in its history our Mission in India furnished itself with its own hymnbook. The Mission Rooms still distribute hymn books in Ojibwa, Chippewa and Mohawk languages. In Mexico Dr. Butler saw to it that amongst the earliest publications of our Society should be a collection of Spanish hymns, and now Rev. H. G. Jackson favors us with a copy of the second edition of "Nueva Coleccion de Himnos Evangelicos, Originales y H. G. Jackson, pastor de la Iglesia Methodista Episcopal en Buenos Aires."

"In every land let us begin the song,
To every land the strains belong."

Letter from Holly Springs.

Holly Springs, Miss., Sept. 20, 1878.

Dear Brother:—Since last writing the yellow fever has broken out most fearfully at this place, and many families that were cheerful and happy are now mourning the loss of some of their friends. Among those that have died was Bro. Benj. J. Boyd, Reording Steward of Ashbury Chapel, and also an acceptable class leader. He stood to his post, and braved all the terrors of the epedimic, not only performing his own accustomed duty, but taking on cheerfully the load that others dropped as they died or fled from the plague. He was a student of Shaw University, cut off in that bloom and promise of a useful career in the Methodist Episcopal Church, which he so dearly loved.

He was a devoted and a consistant Christian, a true and conscientious friend. He had been successful in business matters, and had a nice comfortable little home. A purer or better young man I have never known.

When the yellow fever first broke out here he offered his services at the telegraph office to assist in delivering messages. There he remained until the fever took him. After a comparatively brief battle on the 17th inst., he succumbed. "He said he was "packed" up and ready and willing to die." He is now numbered with those who fell with their faces to the foe. Ashbury Chapel deeply mourns the death of one of her young and brightest official members, and earnestly condole with the relatives in their loss of one whom was respected and honored by all who knew him.

Yours truly,
J. M. SHUMPERT, Pastor.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. L. J. Terrell, Houston, Miss: "In my protracted meeting here I met with great success. In season only five nights, and had twelve converts and four accessions to the church. I ask the prayers of my brethren."

Rev. J. D Huy, Henderson, Tenn.; "My protracted meeting is now closed. It lasted two weeks. During that time God blessed me with twenty-one converts and two accessions to the church. Thirty-five mourners are left crying for mercy, and there is a good prospect of a bright revival here. God is blessing the M. E. Church in this country. My benevolent collections are very good. Reader, pray for my success and that God may prepare me for the pulpit."

Rev. James Hayward, Franklin, La: "We have increased the membership of Asbury church, and some are conversions. In our congregation we see the effect of the Gospels among the young men. Some of them are dropping their ways of gaiety on the Lord's day, finding their way to the church and filling the seats. Prof. Bean, of New Orleans, visited and preached to us, and the people appreciated it very much. He has done some good for the University by his visit to Franklin. We often read the ADVOCATE in church."

COTTON PLANT, MISS., }
Sept. 12th, 1878. }

Editor SOUTHWESTERN: I desire to announce through your columns to the brethren of the Holly Springs District, who are doubtless becoming anxious as to my whereabouts, that I am slowly recovering from an attack of chills and fever that has held me bedfast for ten days. I am happy to say that my health seems to improve slowly, and in a few days I shall be able to resume my routine duty.

Respectfully, J. G. JOHNSON,
Presiding Eldor.

Telegraphic Summary.

Memphis, Sept. 22.—There have been thirty-three deaths officially reported by the Board of Health for the twenty-four hours ending at six o'clock to-night; nine were colored.

Memphis, Sept. 23.—The weather has turned warm again, which is favorable to the spreading of the disease.

Baton Rouge, Sept. 23.—cases of yellow fever reported for forty-eight hours ending this morning at 9 o'clock: Number of deaths 3; number of new cases 86. Total number of deaths to date 48. Total number of cases to date 789.

Canton, Miss., Sept. 23.—New cases in the last twenty-four hours, twenty-three; deaths, one. Dr. A. T. Semmes is up. Robt. Mosby is doing well. Weather cloudy with some rain. No abatement in fever so far as new cases are concerned. About two-thirds of the whites have had the fever, but there are a great many negroes yet who have not had it. One of our telegraph operators, Campbell, is down with the fever.

Water Valley, Miss., Sept. 23—The fever is epedemic here. Twenty-five cases have occurred, and 7 deaths since Thursday last. Supplies needed.

Port Gibson, Miss., Sept. 23.—About six hundred cases to date, deaths one hundred and four. The fever is in several parts of the county, and some deaths have occurred.

Grand Junction, Tenn., Sept. 23.—T. E. Jones, president of the Howards, taken down. Only three white men on their feet. Three cases and three deaths yesterday. Forty cases on hand. A doctor was captured on the down train. In need of blankets and the necessaries of life.

Louisville, Sept. 23.—Fever patients from points this side of Memphis continue to arrive. Ten were discharged from the hospital to-day. Nine deaths during the week, forty remain. All refugees. Not a case has occurred among our citizens.

Cairo, Sept. 23.—A telegram from Martin, Tenn.. says: The condition of things is deplorable. Two deaths in the last twenty-four hours. Several others down. Among them W. T. Johnson, railroad agent and wife; Owens, express agent; Ben. Poynter, operator. Hickman reports four deaths and ten cases to-day.

Hernando, Miss., Sept. 23.—Three cases yesterday, including Dr. Powell.

Vicksburg, Sept. 23.—Weather clear and warm, light rain last night and early this morning; thermometer 91°. Six deaths on Sunday, and twenty new cases. The fever has decreased so much here that visiting physicians and nurses are going to other points.

Holly Springs, Miss., Sept. 23.—We have scattered the roses over the grave of Col. Kinloch Falconer, Secretary of State, of Mississippi. The fever is on the increase, and those who stand here to aid the sufferers, see hourly the best and true stricken down by this fearful plague.

The Women of Cyprus.

The bewitching power attributed at this day to the women of Cyprus is curious in connection with the worship of the sweet goddess who called their isle her own. The Cypriote is not, I think, nearly so beautiful in face as the Ionian queens of Izmir, but she is tall, and slightly formed; there is a high-souled meaning and expression, and seeming conscious of empire, that speaks in the wavy lines of the shoulder, and winds itself like Cytherea's own cestus around the slender waist; then the richly abounding hair (not enviously gathered together under the head-dress) descends the neck, and passes the waist in sumptuous braids. Of all other women with Grecian blood in their veins, the costume is graciously beautiful, but these, the maidens of Limesol—their robes are more gently, more sweetly imagined, and fall like Julia's cashmere in soft, luxurious folds. The common voice of the Levant allows that in face the women of Cyprus are less beautiful than their majestic sisters of Smyrna, and yet says the Greek, he may trust himself to one and all the bright cities of the Ægean, and may still weigh with a heart entire, but that so surely as he ventures upon the enchanted Isle of Cyprus, so surely will he know the rapture or the bitterness of love. The charm, they say, owes its power to that which the people call the astonishing "politics," politike, of the women, meaning, I fancy, their tact, and their witching ways; the word, however, plainly fails to express one half of that which the speakers would say. I have smiled to hear the Greek, with all his plenteousness of fancy, and all the wealth of his generous language, yet vainly struggling to describe the ineffable spell which the Parisians disposed of in their own smart way, by a summary, "Je ne scai quoi."

Serenity of the Virtuous Soul.

Suppose a good man hath a wife, and children and riches and great power, with all these things he remaineth alike virtuous. Take them away, and again in like sort he will be virtuous, neither overwhelmed by his misfortunes nor puffed up by prosperity; but as a rock standeth equally unmoved in the raging sea and in calm, neither broken by the waves nor influenced at all by the calm; thus too, the strong man stands firm, both in calm and in storm. And as little children, when sailing in a ship, are tossed about, whilst the pilot sits by, laughing and undisturbed, and delighted to see their confusion; thus, too, the soul which is truly wise, when all others are in confusion, or else are inopportunely smiling at any change or circumstance, itself sits unmoved, as it were at the helm of piety. For tell me, what can disturb the pious soul? Can death? This she knows to be the beginning of a better life. Can poverty? This helps her on toward virture. Can disease? She regards not its presence. Why speak I of disease? She regards neither disease nor tribulation, for being beforehand with it, she hath straitened herself. Can dishonor? The whole world hath been crucified to her. Can the loss of children? She fears it not. For when she is fully persuaded of the resurrection, what can surprise her? None of all these things. Doth wealth elevate her? By no means; she knoweth that money is nothing. Doth glory? She has been taught that all glory of man is as the flower of grass. Doth luxury? She hath heard Paul say, "She that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth." Since then she is neither inflamed nor cramped—what can equal such health as this?—Chrysostom.

NIGHT AMONG THE HILLS.

So still ! So still !
The night comes down on vale and hill !
So strangely still, I cannot close
My eyes to sleep. No watchman goes
About the little town to keep
All safe at night. I cannot sleep !

So dark ! So dark !
Save here and there a flitting spark,
The fire-fly's tiny lamp, that makes
The dark more dense. My spirit quakes
With terror's vague and undefined !
I see the hills loom up behind.

So near ! So near !
Those solemn mountains, grand and drear
Their rocky summits ! Do they stand
Like sentinels to guard the land ?
Or jailors, fierce and grim and stern,
To shut us in till they return ?

I hear a sound,
A chirping faint, low on the ground :
A sparrow's nest is there. I know
The birdlings flew there three days ago !
Yet still return each night to rest
And sleep in the forsaken nest.

No fear ! No fear !
Sleep, timid heart ! Sleep safely here !
A million helpless creatures rest
Securely on Earth's kindly breast ;
While Night her solemn silence keeps,
He wakes to watch who never sleeps.

Can the Truth Overtake a Lie?

Investigation discloses the fact that the lady reported in the Associated Press dispatches, about Aug. 10th, to have died in Chicago after two weeks' use of some reputed remedy for corpulency, had not taken Allan's Anti-Fat, but had used a preparation put up by a regular physician in Luzerne, Pa. Allan's Anti-Fat is manufactured in Buffalo, N. Y., by the undersigned We have already sold over 100,000 bottles of it. It has therefore been taken by thousands, and we challenge proof that it has ever harmed any body, unless the reduction of obese persons from 20 to 60 pounds, leaving them healthy and strong, is considered a misfortune. Furthermore, we hereby offer $5,000 reward for evidence showing that it contains poisonous or injurious ingredients. We also offer $5,000 if we cannot prove that it has reduced numbers of persons as stated herein, and always without injury. It is said a lie will outtravel the truth any time ; but we trust that those newspapers that have misled the public by saying that physicians attributed the lady's death to the use of Anti-Fat (which is only put up by us, the term "Anti-Fat" being our trade-mark), will correct the false impression they have conveyed, by publishing this refutation.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms ; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose ; two college literary society halls ; a President's house ; Professors' residences ; and a refactory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray ; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned ; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges ; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz :

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz :

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University ; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address, seldom, if ever fails to cure a cough. Even when the lungs have become much disordered, with night sweats, burning fever pains and oppression, it has effected wonderful cures

A Remarkable Cure.

Dr. Swayne—Dear Sir—I feel it to be due to you and suffering humanity to give the following testimony respecting the wonderful curative powers of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla and Tar Pills. I was afflicted with a violent cough, pains in the side and breast, night sweats, sore throat, my bowels were costive, appetite nearly gone, and my stomach so very weak that my physician was at a loss to know what to do for me, as everything in the shape of medicine was rejected ; spit at different times a pint of blood. I remained for months in this awful condition, and gave up all hopes of ever recovering. At this time you recommended the use of your syrup and pills, which immediately began to soothe, comfort and allay the violence of the cough, strengthened and healed my lungs ; in short it has made a perfect cure of me, and I am now able to persue my daily labor. Any person doubting the truth of the above statement will please call on or address me at the factory. EDWARD H. HAMSON.

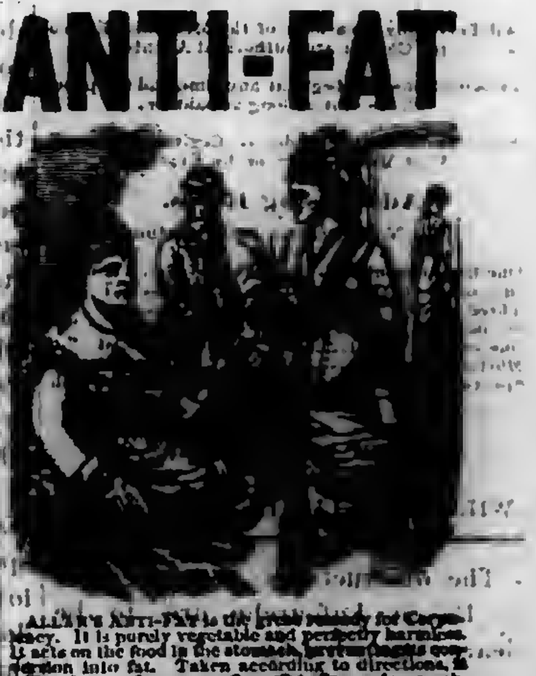
ANTI-FAT



ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT is the great remedy for Corpulency. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts on the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Taken according to directions, it will reduce a fat person from 2 to 5 pounds a week. In placing this remedy before the public as a positive cure for obesity, we do so knowing its ability to cure, as attested by hundreds of testimonials, of which the following from a lady in Columbus, Ohio, is a sample: "Gentlemen—Your Anti-Fat was duly received. I took it according to directions and it reduced me five pounds. I was so elated over the result that I immediately sent to ACKERMAN'S drug store for the second bottle." [illegible] writing for a patient from Providence, R. I., says, "Four bottles [illegible] pounds [illegible] Anti-Fat reduced me twelve pounds in three weeks, and altogether I have lost twenty-five pounds since commencing its use." Messrs. Our Editor's Work in the North.

As our readers know our editor was appointed some months since to visit a large number of the Annual Conferences, which met in the northern States during September and October, and address them on the work of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In addition to this special work he speaks on the general work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States.

Our last private advices from Dr. Hartzell were from Chicago. He was then on his way to the Upper Iowa Conference and had yet five conferences to meet. He was in excellent health, and had travelled since leaving New Orleans five thousand miles, and spoken from three to five times a week. He says. "Everywhere I find much sympathy in our southern work. Our great Church, with all her intelligence and wealth, and social power and religious enthusiasm, is with us in the South, and will stand by and aid our work wherever or whenever needed, from the Rio Grande to the Potomac. In the prosecution of her southern work the Methodist Episcopal Church has only the Spirit of Christ. She wants only to do good, by giving intelligence to the ignorant, by giving churches to the poor and by giving salvation to the unsaved. Her love is for the whole South, and by helping and saving those who welcome her she does the greatest possible good to the whole people. Our great Church, in her spirit and work in the South only gives a continued illustration of the feelings of the whole North toward the South, as now for a time is being shown by the magnificent gifts of money sent from every State to aid in caring for our afflicted, during this terrible yellow fever scourge. Thank God! this nation is one in spite of sectional politics."

From our northern exchanges we gather many complimentary notices of Dr. Hartzell's addresses.

The Northwestern of Chicago in its issue of Sept. 25th, says:

Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell, of the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, New Orleans, is in the North by appointment, attending to the interests of his paper at the Fall conferences. Dr. Rust has empowered him to represent also the Freedmen's Aid Society, and Dr. [illegible] [illegible] at kind [illegible] the people and inform them definitely concerning the vital importance [illegible] freed[illegible] work.

The St. Paul, Minn., Pioneer Press Sept. 21, has the following dispatch from Rochester, Minn., giving an outline of his remarks before the Minnesota Conference, Sept. 20:

Rev. Dr. Hartzell, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, New Orleans, gave a highly interesting address. He spoke of the great problem before the nation, [illegible] the conflicting elements [illegible] South. [illegible] there will be [illegible] there will be mutual good will. No nation on the globe ever had such a problem before it. In the solution of this problem [illegible] is necessary. There must be the broadest charity, the [illegible], and the wisest [illegible]. The Church must [illegible] much to do in this mighty [illegible]. The Methodist Episcopal Church has here a great responsibility. This church has 400,000 members and over eight million [illegible] property, in what was slave territory. [illegible] has been gathered [illegible]. The Baptists of the South number a million, colored and white. [illegible] Methodist Church has three-fourths [illegible] church stands [illegible] in the southern [illegible] half of our people [illegible] white and half [illegible]. The Freedman's Aid [illegible] special work the [illegible] taught, half of whom are studying for teachers and preachers. Of the thousand colored preachers we have in the South, a large per cent have already had more or less training in the Schools. As the people increase in intelligence, the demand for better preachers increases. He gave many interesting facts and incidents illustrative of the following points: The colored people are dying out; second, they are going to Africa; third, they will and do work; fourth, they are getting property; fifth, they are developing good type of manhood and womanhood.

Burning Lamps.

What is a lamp without oil? But if the lamp be filled with oil, but is without flame, of what use is it? Does he who has oil without flame, see better than he who as yet, has neither oil nor flame? There are many empty lamps. The human soul ignorant of love and of duty, is an empty lamp. Sad it is to look at it. Spiritual darkness has full possession. How anxious we should be to fill them with truth, the truth which God revealed for our instruction and salvation!

But how many lamps there are filled with oil! Minds that have been well furnished with gospel truth, that are thoroughly indoctrinated in Christian principles and that clearly understand their duty! Yet these lamps are of no more use than the empty lamps. The great want is a burning lamp! It is the flame, not the oil nor the lamp, although both the latter are necessary to the former. The oil of holy truth in the soul set on fire by the Divine Spirit? Then there is light; light within the soul; light shining out upon the world; light shed upon our own path; light that guides and cheers the way of others. How important that flameless lamps filled with oil are soon kindled! You are acquainted with truth and duty, but truth and duty are lifeless. They have no awakening, no converting, no sanctifying power over you. Kindle your lamps. Ask for the divine spark that shall kindle them. Bring your lamps to be lighted by the Holy Ghost. Then shall they send out their rays far and near to cheer and bless yourselves as well as others.

There are not a few, alas, who seem to think that lamps once kindled will always burn of themselves, will possibly never be extinguished! Whoever knew a lamp that never needs refilling, and that never needs trimming and other attention? But [illegible] professing themselves Christians seem to act upon this impression for what are they doing to nourish and sustain the holy life within their own souls? What are they doing to make their light burn brighter? The burning lamp needs replenishing. It needs trimming. It needs cleaning. So we must seek constantly to fill our soul with God's truth, by reading and meditation. We must, by prayer without ceasing, be ever opening the doors and windows of our hearts to God's grace. Nor let the flame of the lamp [illegible] extinct for the [illegible] works. Christ went about his Father's business. [illegible] to keep our graces in exercise.

The world needs more of these burning lamps. The church needs [illegible]. We need them ourselves, for how great is the darkness illumined by the ray of light. We must have this light as we pass through this dark world of sin. [illegible] have it in the days of [illegible] in the hour of our final leaving of this world. Christ is the great luminary. Christians are the lights put here to illuminate the world. May they ever shine beautifully and clearly!

The following extract is taken from the address of Rev. S. F. Upham, D.D., Fraternal Delegate to the Methodist Church of Canada, delivered Sept. 12:

No, sir, in no part of our field have our successes been greater than in the Southern States of our Union. When the war closed we had in the late slave States in round numbers about 6,000 members. We now have in that same territory, distributed among 27 Annual Conferences, embracing 2,103 travelling preachers, 400,000 members. Our Church membership is made up almost exactly of equal numbers of white and colored people. One of our Bishops —Bishop Haven— resides in the South. His eye is open to see the needs of the field, and his tongue and pen are ever ready to defend our interests there. We have [illegible] colored people [illegible] very prosperous, and [illegible] largely to the [illegible] cational elevation of the masses.

The Methodist Episcopal Church feels that she is needed in the South. We cannot abandon our work there. We do not ignore or undervalue the work being done by others, especially by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. We shall continue to labor side by side with them in fraternal relations, it is hoped; but we can never think of leaving a field where God has so signally blessed us. Wherever the flag of our nation floats in the breeze there we claim the right to be, and there we mean to stay."

The National Repository for September contains the following from the editor, Dr. Curry:

The action of the General Conference of 1872, (written by the hand that now pens these words, and adopted unanimously without an amendment,) was designed to place both churches in their proper positions towards each other. The time had come when it was incumbent upon the parent body to recognize the proper church-hood and the legitimate Methodist character of the Church, South, and to extend to it the hand of fraternity, neither asking or giving apologies for the past nor concessions for the future. And that there might be no mistake in the matter, due notice was given that there could be no southside boundary line to the territory of the Methodist Episcopal Church; that we were there and intended to remain, thus affirming the principal article of the action of the General Conference of 1848, setting aside the so-called "Plan of Separation."

Instructed by this action, our commissioners appeared before the Southern General Conference of 1874 with our fraternal greetings; and, of course, their reception in their official character by that body was a practical acquiescence in, and adoption of, our interpretation of the relations of the two churches—past, present and prospective. It was not strange, therefore, nor was it merely an indication of any want of brotherly charity, that some of the best minds of that General Conference hesitated, and opposed the unconditional acceptance of our offer. By accepting it the Southern Church abandoned its traditional position, and consented that whatever might have till then been thought to remain of the "Plan of Separation" should be thenceforth forever buried out of sight.

Christian fraternity is always less a formal arrangement than the spirit of charity dwelling in and actuating individual souls, and without the latter the former is hollow and offensive. IF OUR SOUTHERN BRETHREN ACCEPT THE HAND WE OFFER THEM, they must do it heartily and on the terms we designate. THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH is not of the North in any such sense as makes it not equally of the South; nor can it accept a "fraternity" that practically denies or ignores that fact. The application of this principle to certain things recently done, and others left undone, might do much good.

"Colored Evangelical Work."

Editor SOUTHWESTERN:

In a recent number of the Southwestern Presbyterian appeared an article under the caption, "The Colored Evangelical Work." The writer, it will appear upon reference, in the strongest terms and in a Christian-like manner objects to a certain phrase in the circular issued by the "Executive Committee of the Assembly's Institute for colored ministers at Tuskaloosa." This "Executive Committee" conscious of having done nothing for the colored people, (comparatively speaking) in that section, would screen itself from this neglect of duty to humanity by saying: "While we should enlist our white ministry as far as possible in preaching the gospel to them (the colored people,) yet, as their people almost universally refuse such labors, we seem almost shut up to the alternative of leaving them to themselves or raising and educating a colored ministry."

The writer, commenting on the italicized words says: "Possibly the fact alleged therein is true in the section in which the Institute is located, but it must be a mistake when extended to the territory occupied by the Church as a whole." That the colored people as a race or as a "Section" throughout the whole country have ever refused or refuses the teachings of the Gospel from "white ministry, can be established on no well grounded fact, not even in that particular "section." Add to this, that the colored people have had fifteen years of religious training, which has shown them capable of attaining the highest degree of moral culture and stability, the excuse that "white ministry "is not acceptable" evidently becomes a sham. Even when they were in the grossest ignorance and superstition they welcomed "white ministry," and now it is eagerly sought for and highly appreciated.

The great M. E. Church stretches out her hands, opens her heart, and sends her means and to releive suffering humanity, and her "white ministry," Drs. Newman, Matlack, Daily, Hartzell, McCarty and a host of others, though confined to particular circles forgot not the colored people, but preached, lectured, and toiled assiduously for and with them. They were hailed as messengers of peace, and listened to with anxious hearts and unlifted spirits. Their names will all be revered, and in the after years of the nation when it shall know God and stand on the basis of genuine religion and civilization, they will rise up and pronounce them "blessed." Wherever there has been a "white ministry" superstitious views of the "Holly Writ" are not found. I do not claim that the "colored ministry" is incapable of presenting right views of the "Holy Writ," and thus avoid and uproot superstitious conceptions; but that the "white ministry" was efficacious wherever it was in preventing such results cannot be denied. Indeed, ignorance cannot lead ignorance aright and in no instance has a blind man helped a blind man out of the gutter.

The "colored ministry" was taught and sent out by the "white ministry," which never would have been had colored people "refused white ministry." Again, the writer says: "Let the same kind of self-denying efforts be made for the salvation of Africans by our brethren in Africa, in China, in Brazil for the evangelization of the people in those countries, and we believe that the best results will be accomplished." This is an honest confession and a significant truth, for it is clearly and fully substantiated by facts. As a result of the efforts put forth by the M. E. Church, and the "self-denyings" of her "white ministry" there are schools established in every Southern State for the training of a "colored ministry" and teachers; there are churches planted in every "section" of the country receiving missionary aid, and scores of other self-sustaining; and there are Sabbath schools numbering hundreds with thousands of pupils. It is a duty to rescue the fallen, and to instruct and urge the down trodden and ignorant to a higher sphere of life, and "nobler scenes in the development of character." And the M. E. Church has not only learned this duty but performs it, and it stands to-day not only at the head of "The Colored Evangelical Work," but of every "tongue and people" under the sun.

OMEGA.

Our Southern Methodism.

Mary G. Leewood, Mobile, Ala.: "I have received from Rev. S. J. Harris, Tenn., Conference, Gallatin Station, the amount of $2,50, which was thankfully received. For eight weeks the band of affliction has been on my husband so that he has not been able to fill his pulpit. I cannot discover any improvement."

Rev. Peter Harris, Columbia Miss., Sept., 18th: "I have just closed a protracted meeting at one of my churches, and I am glad to say the report has blessed us. There were 8 converts, 20 new probationers, and dry stubble that has not brought forth fruit for some time, is budding and promises to give fruit and harvest. One was received in full membership, and 4 infants were baptized."

Rev. P. O. Powell, Byhalia, Miss. Sept., 28th: "A gracious revival at Bright Prospect Church has just closed. Five converts, 4 reclaimed from a backsliding condition, 21 joined on probation, 3 baptized, 5 joined on full connection and 8 children were baptized. Our church is in a very good condition. The Sabbath school numbers 20 pupils. Bros. Pyam and Trotter are faithful laborers.

Rev. Thomas Kennedy, Napoleonville La., Sept., 25th.: "We have just closed our protracted meeting. It had lasted five weeks. We had a general good time. The attendance at the mourners' bench was from 46 to 48, out of which we had 16 converts. The attendance at the church was unusually large, and probably a larger addition would have been made; but owing to the prevalence of the scourge, in and about here, we were forced to close. I am pleased to say that the good made itself felt, and that the Lord was with us all the way."

Rev. Oscar Hoskins, Greensboro, Miss., Sept., 21st: "We have just closed a camp meeting, and are prepared to say that the Lord has poured out his blessings upon us. During the sixteen days session, 37 souls were converted to God. Forty-four persons have joined the church this year as full members and probationers. At the close of the meeting, we held a love feast and class meeting, Frances Greenly, a little girl who joined recently, told her experience, with moving effect."

The Louisville Christian Observer it seems to us has gone somewhat out of its way to publish that Bishop Haven, Dr, Hartzell and Dr. M'Carty are "visiting" at the North, while the yellow fever is raging in the South. And the insinuation that Bishop Haven might earn the good will of the South at this juncture is particularly gratuitous. The Bishop, as every editor knows, has scarcely been fit for any kind of duty since his return from Africa. Lately he has been in Canada trying to brace up his strength that he may attend the conferences assigned him, one of which is now in session at Auburn, N. Y. His home is at Atlanta where there is no unusual sickness. No one who knows Bishop Haven would accuse him of cowardice or neglect of duty. He is where he ought to be, attending to his official duties as a Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. Hartzell came North on special busines before a case of yellow fever had occured, and is now filling a series of engagements in the interests of the Freedman's Aid Society. He is an editor and a presiding elder, not a pastor. It would be manifestly improper for him to return South at this time. We have no knowledge of the whearabouts of Dr. M'Carty. —Christian Advocate St. Louis.

A Real Hero.

The following is a personal note from Rev. J. W. Register, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Memphis, Tenn., to Rev. O. O. Knight, by whose permission we are permitted to insert it in these columns:

Dear Brother Knight—Your letter containing $4 35 received; many thanks. The flour, no doubt, will arrive to-day. Our people are suffering terribly with yellow fever. At the "Fort" nearly all of them are down; some have died; the situation is truly appalling; 600 new cases here yesterday. My family is at Raleigh; I have seen them but once since they left. I shall not desert my post; the Lord sent me here and here I shall stay until He says "Come away." Will the people of Dickson be willing for me to attend the annual conference? I do not wish to put any lives there in jeopardy. It may be by disinfecting my clothing there will be no danger. But the Lord knows best. I may not be alive by that time. Do not entertain a thought about my deserting my post. If I leave Memphis during this fearful scourge it will be for heaven. Remember me.—Methodist Advocate.

Tennessee Conference.

The Nashville District Conference is in session in this city. The Conference is held in Clark Chapel. Rev. C. Pickett, the efficient Presiding Elder, presides. The Secretaries, Revs. C. W. S. Woods and J. W. Pickett, discharge their duties faithfully. The reports and addresses, so far, speak well for the Conference. The report of the Committee on Temperance is just what is needed. The pastor's reports are cheering. The several benevolent collections are being cared for.

This district will report an advance at their Annual Conference.

Ned's Lesson.

"Polly wants a cracker! Polly wants sugar! Hurry up! hurry up! Poll is hungry!" screamed the parrot from the top of her perch. Mabel and May fed her with bread and fruit, and filled her cup with fresh water; and while Poll chattered her thanks the little girls turned to watch Ned at his play.

He was building a fort out of sticks and stones. "Now, girls, this is the way to make the roof. You lay the sticks so!"—but the pieces of wood dropped, and the fort fell into ruins before his eyes.

Then Ned stamped upon the ground in his anger, and a word, a dreadful word, fell from his lips. It was the first time in his life he had ever spoken such a word, and Mabel and May cried out, "Oh, Ned! how could you!"

Quick as a flash Poll caught the word, and in her loud harsh voice sent it ringing out through the garden. It had a dreadful sound when it fell from Ned's lips, but when Paul screamed it out the girls covered their ears, and Ned, full of grief and shame, ran to the bird. "Oh, Polly! hush, do hush! "I'll never say it again! Mabel give her some candy, cake, anything to make her forget that dreadful word!"

Ned is a big boy now, but he never forgot Polly's lesson. It was the last time he ever soiled his lips with an unclean word.—Exchange.

The Young Men's Christian Association of New Orleans have attracted no little attention through the noble aid which they have extended to the suffering ones of that stricken city. A banking firm of this city recently received a letter from one of their correspondents there, from which we quote: "From personal knowledge I can say that they are trustworthy gentlemen, who are giving their personal attention to the work of relief." The Young Men's Christian Association of Cincinati has received and forwarded South for the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers $1,062 77, principally made up from Church collections.—Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati.

Change of Time.

The time of holding the Central Tennessee Conference is changed to November 28th, owing to the spread of yellow fever in West Tennessee. Our preachers in the infected districts, are standing nobly at their posts. God bless and preserve them. Let the church pray God to remove this scourge from our land.

The next number, the first of October, begins a new Volume, and is a good one with which to begin a subscription. For fifty-two numbers, of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3000 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; or for $10,50 any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies is sent with the Living Age for a year, both post-paid. Littell & Gay, Boston, are the publishers.

"HAUS UND HERD," a German Family Magazine, Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati; Nelson & Phillips, New York, Publishers; Henry Liebhart, D. D., Editor, presents a very interesting number for October. It contains fine illustrations, of which the Niagara views attract special attention. The contents are: Envy without Reason (poetry to the steel engraving); How Does the Holy Bible agree with the Developements of Science? Purpose of Life; Niagara; The Rector's Wig, from the boy-life of the celebrated Johannes Falk; The Last Night at Home (poetry); The Sun-dial; Acquisition and Consumption; Acoustic Novelties; The Inventor from Menlo Park; The Froeschweiler Chronicle Peace and War Pictures of 1870; The Women of the Orient; Like Sire, Like Son; Success; A Story to the Sixth Commandment; Good Advice for the Old Days; He Who Giveth to the Poor Lendeth to the Lord; God's Call; The Three Professors. The International Sunday-school Lessons for Teachers and Scholars are carefully prepared. The Editors Department is well supplied.

JESUS IS COMING, by W. E. B. 96 pp. 16 mo; F. H. Revell, 148 & 150 Madison St., Chicago. This is the title of a pamphlet upon the subject of the second coming of Christ. It gives seven arguments in favor of the pre-millinial coming, the distinction between the Rapture and the Revelation, and between the Church and the Kingdom, and a diagram with explanations, similar to the one used in presenting this subject before the Methodist ministers' meeting in Chicago. There are a large number of Scripture quotations and references, and the object has been to furnish in an abbreviated form a handbook as a convenient reference volume in the study of this truth, and as an aid in the presentation of it to others. It has been placed on sale at 10 cts. per copy; the avails to be used in the issue of another edition. The author is desirous of placing it in hands of every enquirer upon this subject, and will cheerfully mail a copy free to any one who will send a two cent stamp (for postage) to his address to wit: Wm. E. Blackstone, Oak Park, Cook Co., Ill.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This last train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Colombus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waokesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagra Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

HELP! FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S

ELECTRIC BELTS

AND BANDS,

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions—Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS AND BANDS

cure these various diseased conditions, after all other means fail, and we offer the most convincing testimony direct from the afflicted themselves, who have been restored to after drugging in vain for months and years.

HEALTH, STRENGTH, AND ENERGY,

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. [illegible] or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE of PELLETS. ○○○ ○○○

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions [illegible] Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of Cold in the Head by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists. R. V. PIERCE, M. An Appeal.

Duties as well as Blessings.

The willingness of God to bestow upon us all the blessings and glories of the sons of God, is shown by the very circumstance that we are called to the duties of the sons of God! It is true that our services are not of any value to God. He does not need them. It would not take away anything from God's power and majesty, though we were to oppose Him [illegible] of the unworthiness of all that men can do as in itself meritorious, but still since God has been pleased to command our services, such as they are, and to call our devotion an acceptable sacrifice, unworthy though it is, this is a very clear and satisfactory indication that He is disposed to be our friend. It is a very solid and sufficient reason for believing that He desires our welfare here and hereafter. What evidence have we of God's reconcilation? Is it not that He calls us to do something for Him, to honor Him by some service? What proof, too, of our own reconcilation to Him? Is it not that we have the desire and the disposition to render Him service? Jacob desires reconciliation with Esau. He sends him a present and pleads that Esau will accept it. The very acceptance of that present was proof to Jacob that his brother had kindly feelings towards him. All animosity had departed. We shall be more than half outcasts till we engage in the occupation of the true children of [illegible] want [illegible] duties of God's people [illegible] seek the re[illegible] not [illegible]; the results [illegible] with the conditions [illegible] great meaning in [illegible]. There can be no surer proof [illegible] harmony between [illegible] God. "If ye love me, keep my commandments," saith the Savior. The Psalmist declares, "Thy commandments are my delights." Many do not understand how there can be any pleasure in doing God's commandments. It seems to them a burden, a yoke, a restraint upon their liberties and enjoyments. It is associated in their [illegible] severity [illegible]. Yet nothing is clearer than that to the right in heart, to the [illegible] harmony with God, there is no sweeter enjoyment than that which grows out of obedience [illegible] willing [illegible] an acceptable sacrifice [illegible] God. That he lays commandments upon us, that he requires services of us, is joy to believers. It is a manifestation of God's loving-kindness to us. He is seeking our happiness. He knows what is best for us. There can be no greater proof of our reconciliation than our cheerful and prompt compliance with his will.

"The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the [illegible] of the Lord are true [illegible]

[illegible] may please Him; how you may honor Him; how you may [illegible] love [illegible] to [illegible] is more a privilege than a [illegible]

[illegible] Heard From.

The following extract is taken from Dr. [illegible]'s address, delivered before the General Conference of the Methodist Church of Canada: "In the State of New England 1783, Dr. [illegible], a Congregational clergyman, [illegible] of Yale College, published [illegible] having this striking [illegible] Power." It was a [illegible] few other sects are of no particular account, as religious agencies to be employed in shaping the religious affairs of the young Republic. That sermon was published ninety-five years ago. Bretheren, I stand before you to-day to represent the "Westlians." I bring you the fraternal greetings of the great Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States. I bring to you the love of nearly 2,000,000 of Methodist church members, [illegible] travelling preachers, [illegible] local preachers, 19,775 Sunday-schools, 1,706,000 Sunday school teachers and scholars. The grand total of "Westlians" in the United States, that is, Church members, is 4,383,888. Surely, the "Westlians" are heard from!"

The Nationals have nominated Robert A. Hebert for Congress, in the Third District. Says the N. O. Observer:

Mr. Hebert is the son of Ex-Governor Hebert, was educated at Sing-Sing, New York, graduated at the head of his class, and but for the outbreak of the war, would have entered West Point; his education having had especial reference to this object.

His life and record have been well known to his friends and neighbors and those of his family and none stand higher within the district. Mr. Herbert commands the influence of the most numerous and powerful families in the district, and is one of the very few therein who can command a support outside of and in a sense superior to party lines. If nominated by the Republican [illegible] there is no question of [illegible] by a majority of from 2000 to 3000.

The Fraternal Relief.

On the 5th inst., an additional check of $500 was received from Nelson & Phillips, by the trustees of the relief fund, $270 50 of which is the contribution of Hon. W. H. Berry, for Woodbridge, New Jersey. Grand total from Nelson & Phillips to date $2000.

Other donations received are Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust, Cincinnati, Ohio, $20; Rev. J. H. Reddick, Oecoda, Michigan, $10 70; Rev. J. H. McCarty, Pittsburg, $65.

The pastor at Baton Rouge has received $50; Donaldsonville, $30; Morgan City, $50; Thibadux, $50, from the relief fund for their respective congregations.

The Christian Neighbor, of Columbia, S. C., says:

"Any form of the [illegible], "What business has the [illegible] Episcopal Church in th[illegible] and [illegible] any b[illegible] to [illegible] If th[illegible] in the [illegible] North. Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. James Hayward, Franklin, La.: We have unpromising debt of about $600. The third quarterly conference just closed showed the church to be in good condition.

Nashville Notes.

Students are filling the halls of of the Central Tennessee College. Dr. Braden and his assistants are doing a good work for the colored people. This is a christian college. Old, fashioned prayer and class-meetings are enjoyed.

Rev. W. S. Butler, P. E., of West Tennessee District, is able to travel again. Bro. Butler has had a discourageing year, owing to his sickness.

Rev. C. Pickett, P. E., of Nashville District, is doing a grand work for God and the Church. He is the right man in the right place.

Bro. Hayes, of Chattanooga, remains at his post, administering to the wants of his flock. God bless the noble men, who are thus showing the power of God at His religion. The SOUTHWESTERN sympathizes with its many readers at Chattanooga.

A very interesting meeting is in progress at Clark Chapel. The pastor, Rev. E. W. S. Woods, is assisted by Elders Pickett and Butler. On the night of the 3d Rev. P. Martin, of Spring Hill, preached a good sermon on "Have faith in God."

On the Nashville District of the Central Tennessee Conference, there has been 400 conversions the past six weeks.

At the District camp-meeting 300 persons took the sacrament, Sabbath, Sept. 29. The meeting was a success.

The Nashville District conference was a glorious success. On Sabbath morning over 300 persons partook of the sacrament. Baptists, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Southern Methodists, and one Catholic sister met with our people at the Lord's table. The love feast was a scene long to be remembered. God's presence was fully realized, and his blessings greatly enjoyed. Rev. Dr. West, of M. E. Church South, preached Saturday morning. The meetings were noted for their spirituality. Good order was had all through the meeting. At least twenty-five preachers were in attendance.

The Tullahoma College, I am glad to learn is meeting with success. The Board of Trustees contemplate improving the grounds shortly.

Through the earnest efforts of J. M. Carter, pastor, the tower of our church, in Shelbyville, has been finished. Bro. Carter shows his faith by his works.

Spruce street charge, Nashville, closes up the conference year successfully. The pastor's report to the quarterly conference shows an increase of 60 to the Sunday school; 14 to the church membership; all the collections lifted and increased 100 per cent and the pastor's salary overpaid; the Presiding Elder's claim met; the church debt, in the city, reduced one-half; and several hundred dollars spent in improvements.

Letter from Professor Collins.

Mr. Editor—My heart has been drawn towards my New Orleans friends many a time during these terrible times since the plague began. Here, in the quiet and peaceful gardens of health and plenty, we can only imagine what must be the feelings of our friends who are summoned by the shadow of death. I have not seen a funeral for over six weeks. You have scores of them under your eyes daily. The long weeks of dread yet to be endured, must present but a prophecy of sorrow.

And in these things the great heart of the North bleeds for the suffering South. Those who can, send money. We, who cannot send money, wait in our closets to pray. Does this encourage any? Does help come as from hence in billows of grace and fortitude? Does the great God of our salvation answer our prayers? "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High, shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." Have you found this ninety-first Psalm in the dark hour of shadow? And what men feel to be the shadow of this Angel of Death in the land, is it not "the shadow of the Almighty?" Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night, nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness, nor for the destruction that wasteth at noon-day. A thousand shall fall at thy side and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come near thee." Have the children of the Master still great faith in these promises? Do they stay the drooping spirit? Hear more of this Psalm: "He shall call upon me, and I will answer him; I will deliver him and honor him." What more? "With long life will I satisfy him, and show him my salvation." This is the everlasting arm that is underneath you who watch for the morning and the dead is in the house. Heaven is nearer in the valley of shadows. Heaven is full of help: "For He shall give His angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways." Can you, dear brother, say these things to the despairing ones through the SOUTHWESTERN? I have not forgotten them that remember me as their teacher, and I know they have not forgotten me. Say to all that I pray for them that they faint not, but keep trusting in the "resurrection and the life." Your brother in Christ, and in hope of immortality.

Letter From Pass Christian.

Dear Bro.:—I feel that you would be glad to hear from us in these times of trouble. Our little city, so nicely situated on the healthy water, has been for some weeks disturbed with fever. Many have been prostrated upon their beds, and some few have passed over never to return. The Lord has been blessing our church in this place. Many have been converted, and united with the church. One old gentleman was converted and joined the church aged 84 years and is now an active worker in it. Our church property was much improved this year, and we still desire to go forward in our work; but as many of our people are confined to beds of sickness, we must halt for a while. I have just recovered from several week's illness. My wife was taken just as I was getting up, and has suffered much. But we hope she is now out of danger. In these troubles I am favored by the help of my beloved Presiding Elder, who is loved by us all. He is kept from his work on account of the quarantine laws.

Death of an Aged Deacon.

Hazlehurst, Copiah Co., Miss., Oct. 1, 1878.

Dear Editor:—Allow me to announce the death of Brother Robert Amiker on Sept. 24. 1878. He was a local deacon, ordained at Jackson, Miss., by Bishop Janes, and ninety years old the 15th of last April. For seventy years he was a faithful minister of the M. E. Church. Just before he died, his wife asked if he was willing to die, he told her yes. Then she asked, if he was ready. "Not yet," he said. He told some one standing by to sing a hymn. After singing the hymn, he said now I am ready to cross Jordan, and quietly passed away. Brother Amiker was much beloved by all who knew him, and told his friends to meet him in heaven. Brother Amiker leaves a wife and two children a son and daughter.

REV. H. L. KENNEDY.

Telegraphic Summary.

Holly Springs, Oct. 7.—The number of new cases yesterday was 18, number to-day 8; number of deaths yesterday was 3, to-day 2. This shows a marked abatement in the disease, and the physicians say that at the close of the week the fever will be entirely under control. The Board of Health to-day decided that the services of several of its members might be dispensed with by Saturday.

Donaldsonville, La., Oct. 5.—The Young Men's Benevolent Association of Ascension parish make an earnest appeal, in which they say: Unless aid is immediately obtained they will be compelled to disband their organization and suspend their charitable work. We appeal to the public for pecuniary assistance, with the solemn assurance that whatever the amount thus obtained it shall be solely devoted to and disbursed for the alleviation and mitigation of the destitute and afflicted in our plague-stricken parish. Address

HENRY A. WINFREE,
Chairman Relief Committee.

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 7.—111 new cases and 11 deaths of yellow fever are officially reported, with one physician to hear from, for the 48 hours ending this morning.

The scourge is steadily and constantly doing its work now, and there is no prospect of an abatement as yet. The weather continues hot and oppressive. A great many cases are reported doing badly.

Official report of yellow fever for the 48 hours ending at nine o'clock this morning: New cases 121, deaths 10.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 7, Noon.—The steamer John M. Chambers, from St. Louis, loaded with supplies for infected points between this city and Vicksburg arrived early this morning. Dr. H. M. Keyes, of the U. S. Marine Service, and Dr. Frank W. Reilly, a representative of the Chicago Relief Committee, are on board. The steamer leaves this afternoon, and will take all mail for points below here which have accumulated since communication was cut off.

A telegram from Collierville, Tenn., brings intelligence of eight new cases in that town.

Five new cases of fever are reported at Galloway, Tenn.

Weather clear and warm. Since 6 o'clock last night twenty-two deaths have been reported by undertakers.

Chattanooga, Oct. 7.—one death, Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart. 17 new cases. The indications are that the disease is losing its malignant character.

Vicksburg, Oct. 7.—Four deaths in the city; six from the immediate neighborhood. Among the new cases to-day is Dr. H. Shannon.

The telegraph office at Greenville, Miss., is closed. Operators all down with the yellow fever.

OFFICE BOARD OF HEALTH, }
Oct. 9, 1878. }

The official statement of cases of yellow fever reported in New Orleans is as follows, viz:

Deaths from 12 m. yesterday to 12 m. to-day..43
New cases from 12m yest'day to 12m to-day..143
Total cases to date..........10,929
Total deaths to date..........3,308

Stanley on the African Race.

Concerning the African race in the interior, Mr. Stanley speaks very favorably: "To behold the full perfection of African manhood and beauty one must visit the regions of equatorial Africa, where one can view the people under the cool shade of plantains and amid the luxuriant plenty which those lands produce. The European traveler, after noting the great length and wondrous greenness of the banana fronds, the vastness of their stalks and the bulk and number of fruit, the fatness of the soil and its inexhaustible fertility, the perpetual spring-like verdure of the vegetation and dazzling sunshine, comes to notice that the inhabitants are in accord with these scenes, and as perfect of their kind as the bursting-ripe mellow bananas hanging over their heads." Of the negro he says: "To see him in the imagination, you must discard from your mind the inebriated, mandlin, filthy negro surrounded by fat wives and a family of abdominous brats. He may be indolent, if you please, but not so indolent as to be unmindful of his own interests. For his gardens are thriving, his plants are budding, and his fields are covered with grain. His house has just been built and needs no repairs, and the fenced courts around it are all in good condition. Roll the curtain up and regard him and his surroundings! He steps forth from his hut a dark-brown colored man in the prime and vigor of manhood, a cleanly decent creature, dressed after the custom of the country in a clay-colored robe of bark-cloth, knotted at the shoulder and depending to his feet—apparently a contented, nay, an extremely happy man, for a streak of sunshine having caught his face we have a better view of it and are assured it reflects a felicitious contentment."

"I Scrubs."

"What have my class done for Jesus since last we met?" asked a teacher of a large infant class one Sabbath morning.

One said, "I have earned some money for the heathen by doing errands;" another, "I attend our sick baby; another, "I fetch hunchback Billy to school, with all the boys a-laughing at me." One after another told, in a half-bashful, half-exultant way, of the little activities and self-denials of the week, so pleasing to the teacher, and still more to Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

At last a little four-year-old hand was stretched up, and moved hastily to and fro to attract the teacher's attention.

"Well, my dear, what are you doing to please Jesus?"

The little eager face flushed with excitement as the unexpected reply came, "I scrubs."

Some of the other children tittered; but the teacher sobered them at once by saying:

"Yes, little Molly's share in the work my class is doing for Jesus, is as important as any. If she tries to help her mother by scrubbing a bench or a table, even if it has to be done over after her, she earns the same smile of love as the older ones who can do errands and earn money for the missionary box."

"She hath done what she could," is the highest praise that can be spoken of any one; and little Molly has done that.

Dr. J. P. Newman, of the Central M. E. Church, this city, makes his pastoral visits in the evening. The plan may be in use by other pastors, but Dr. Newman's practice has first called it to our attention. It has one great advantage in cities—the husband and grown-up sons are at home; it is the restful part of the day; and this seizing upon the hour when all the family are at home, makes the pastor's visit more effective. It is a small gain, too, that this plan closes certain openings for the careless criticisms of the neighborhood gossips. We advise young pastors to try it.—N. Y. Methodist.

The civilized world is entering on a new era of enterprise, activity, development and progress, and in this new era—which will afford to Americans peculiar advantages, because of their peculiar fitness for an epoch of 'go-ahead-itiveness'—the United States will rapidly develop their matchless material resources, pay off their indebtedness, consolidate their empire, and permanently establish their superiority as a manufacturing, commercial and agricultural nation. The croakers will soon find their mission suspended; for a few years, at least.—N. Y. Mail.

We know that Dr. McCarty is in the line of his duty—doing what his superiors and advisers have recommended. Meanwhile, this claim on the general Church for $6,000 has been for at least two years well known in the North, and it is hard to explain why it is not paid. Whatever any one may think of our Southern work, all will agree that, having made the debt, we ought to pay it.—N. Y. Methodist.

The land of zenanas has already produced the latest outcome of the new era,—a native woman preacher. Her name is Monorama Mozoomdar. She is the wife of Baboo Grish Chunder Mozoomdar, minister of the Barisal Bahmo Somaj. Although she has never attended school in her life, she seems to preach the Brahmo doctrine with acceptability.—Heathen Woman's Friend.

The promises of Jesus are not to us like the legacies of one long dead; they are not the words of merely a great philosopher, like the Grecian sage, whom death has severed from personal contact with our modern life. They are the assurance of a living and present, though unseen, friend; and, when so accepted, they are full of power.—Wm. M. Taylor.

Beware of the boy or girl, man or woman, who "don't care." Do not chose them for associates. If they care not for their own character they will not care about you or yours. If self-respect is wanting there is very little besides that you can desire. Seek the society of those who value their own character.

The associations distributing the charities among yellow fever sufferers, are to-day fearful that their means will be insufficient to care for the thousands who are dependent upon them. Friends abroad, please take notice.

God demands an account of the past; that we must render hereafter. He demands an improvement of the present, and this we must render now.—W. Jay.

Great souls attract sorrows as mountains do storms. But the thunder clouds break upon them, and they thus form a shelter for the plains around.—Richter.

A GENTLE WORD IS NEVER LOST.

"A gentle word is never lost,
Oh, never then refuse one:
It cheers the heart when tempest-tossed
And lulls the cares that bruise one:
It scatters sunshine o'er our way,
And turns our thorns to roses:
It changes weary night to day,
And hope and love discloses.
A gentle word is never lost—
The fallen brother needs it:
How easy said, and how small the cost—
With peace and comfort speed it:
Then drive the shadow from thy cheeks,
A smile will well replace it;
Our voices are music when we speak,
With gentle words to grace it."

TWO NOTED GRAVE ROBBERS.

Our readers will remember the account given in these columns of the robbing of the grave of the Hon. Scott Harrison, in Ohio, last May, the body being found in the dissecting-room of the Ohio Medical College. Public indignation justly brands any man as a scoundrel who will rob the grave of the dead. But there are two noted grave robbers in the country, so far from being the subjects of the people's wrath, are universally lauded for their virtues. The reason is plain. While the former class steal the dead bodies of our loved ones to submit them to the dissecting knife, these only rob the graves to restore the living victims to our hearts and homes. Their names —Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets—are household words the world over. The Golden Medical Discovery cures consumption, in its early stages, and all bronchial, throat, and lung affections. Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the most valuable laxative and cathartic.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagra Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

ALCORN UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY:

REV. HIRAM R. REVELS, D.D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy.

GEORGE B. VASHON, A.M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages.

HENRY H. BAKER, Tutor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

HERBERT A. CLARK, Tutor in the English Language and Literature.

THIS UNIVERSITY, occupying the site of the institution formerly known as "Oakland College," is situated in Claiborne county, Miss., four and one half miles northeast from Rodney, on the Mississippi river. The location is high and healthful, and the surroundings agreeable and attractive in an eminent degree. The University buildings, consist of a chapel, in which, besides an auditorium capable of seating about 1200 persons, are contained a library, laboratory and five recitation rooms; three brick dormitories, and a like number of frame cottages devoted to the same purpose; two college literary society halls; a President's house; Professors' residences; and a refactory with all necessary out-buildings. These buildings, originally erected for academic purposes, are especially adapted thereto. They stand in a campus, a beautiful oak grove, gently undulating, and clothed in a dress of perennial verdue, pleasing to the eye and conducive to health and quietude. The University is far removed from the contaminating influences of city life. There are no haunts of dissipation to lead the unwary astray; but in the country, in the midst of a moral and highly cultivated community, the student is continually surrounded by all those influences which tend to develop his moral character during the period of his intellectual training.

The corps of instruction provided for Alcorn University is in perfect keeping with the material advantages already mentioned; and the educational advantages afforded by its curriculum are such as are usually held out by American preparatory schools and colleges; but in order to anticipate any special question in reference to this point, the following schedule of studies in the classics and scientific courses is here detailed, viz:

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Geography, History, Grammar, Arithmetic, Book-Keeping, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Conic Sections, Surveying, Mensuration, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, the Calculus, Latin, Greek, French, German, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Anatomy, Physiology, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, Geology and Chemistry. In addition to these studies, there are other branches of Mathematics and the Natural Sciences introduced into the special course, pertaining to the departments of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

The rules of the University forbid all that is objectionable in the deportment of students, and enjoin in their conduct and habits, all that is calculated to lead them to the love and the practice of the adorning virtues of life, and these rules will be rigidly enforced to an extent that will render it impossible for any to remain in the University who will not obey them.

The expenses of students here are less than they are at any other institution of the kind in the State. They are as follows, viz:

For Board and Washing, $1.62½ per week, until the number of boarding students amounts to forty, when this charge will be reduced to $1.25 per week. This covers all the expenses of students at this University; but each one of them is advised to bring with him, if possible, one sheet and one blanket as a part of his outfit.

In view of the facts hereinbefore detailed, it does not seem that there should be any hesitancy in making the assertion, that there is no other educational establishment within the limits of the United States, which offers to colored students so cheaply, or advantageously, the benefits of an education higher than that afforded in the common schools.

The Fall Term will begin on Wednesday, September 6th.

Young men coming to this University should endeavor to reach Vicksburg by the first train on on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, as a packet for Rodney leaves that city in the afternoon of each of those days. The University ambulance will meet each packet at Rodney, and convey students and their baggage to the University, free of charge. For full particulars address,

Rev. H. R. REVELS, Pres't,

Extracts from Letters.

A. A. Gibson, Barrytown, Duchess County, N. Y., writes, April 30, 1877, Dr. Swayne & Son, Phila., Gents—I enclose post-office order for eight dollars, please send me one dozen London Hair Color Restorer. It has stopped my hair from falling out, and restored it to its natural color. It has proved satisfactory in every respect.

Dr. Isaac H. Miller, West Breeknock, Pa., writes: As a restorer of grey hair and preventative of baldness, it is the best remedy I have ever sold, and gives entire satisfaction.

Wm. Schell, Germantown, Columbia co., N. Y., writes: April, 1877—The London Hair Color Restorer was received. I am delighted with it. You will find enclosed four dollars for a half dozen bottles by express.

U. S. Marshal's office, Harrisburg, Va.

Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth st. Philadelphia—Gentlemen, I have suffered for twenty years from that terrible disease itching piles, had consulted many physicians and used numerous applications and medicines, but found no permanent relief, until I procured your All-healing Ointment. After using one box in the space of three weeks' time, I found myself entirely cured, and for the last four months have not even felt a symptom of the disease. I also used the Ointment on a spot of dry tetter on my head, which had annoyed me for five years, and found the same happy result, a perfect cure in a short time. I deem it my duty to give you this well merited testimonial of so great a medicine. You may publish this if you see fit. Very respectfully,

A Remarkable Cure.

Dr. Swayne—Dear Sir—I feel it to be due to you and suffering humanity to give the following testimony respecting the wonderful curative powers of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla and Tar Pills. I was afflicted with a violent cough, pains in the side and breast, night sweats, sore throat, my bowels were costive, appetite nearly gone, and my stomach so very weak that my physician was at a loss to know what to do for me, as everything in the shape of medicine was rejected; spit at different times a pint of blood. I remained for months in this awful condition, and gave up all hopes of ever recovering. At this time you recommended the use of your syrup and pills, which immediately began to soothe, comfort and allay the violence of the cough, strengthened and healed my lungs; in short it has made a perfect cure of me, and I am now able to pursue my daily labor. Any person doubting the truth of the above statement will please call on or address me at the factory.

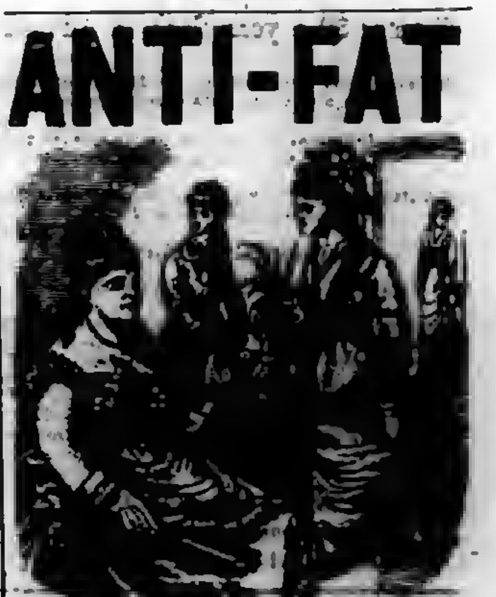
ANTI-FAT



ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT is the great remedy for Corpulency. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts upon the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Taken according to directions, it will reduce a fat person from 2 to 5 pounds a week.

In placing this remedy before the public as a positive cure for obesity, we do so knowing its ability to cure, as attested by hundreds of testimonials, of which the following from a lady in Columbus, Ohio, is a sample: "Gentlemen:—Your Anti-Fat was duly received. I took it according to directions and it reduced me five pounds. I was so elated over the result that I immediately sent to ACKERMAN'S drug-store for the second bottle." Another, a physician, writing for a patient from Providence, R. I., says, "Four bottles have reduced her weight from 192 pounds to 162 pounds, and there is a general improvement in health." A gentleman writing from Boston, says: "Without special change or attention to diet, two bottles of Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me four and one-quarter pounds." The well-known Wholesale Druggists, SMITH, DOOLITTLE & SMITH, of Boston, Mass., write as follows: "Allan's Anti-Fat has reduced a lady in our city seven pounds in three weeks." A gentleman in St. Louis writes: "Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me twelve pounds in three weeks, and altogether I have lost twenty-five pounds since commencing its use." Messrs. POWELL & PLIMPTON, Wholesale Druggists, of Buffalo, N. Y., write: "TO THE PROPRIETORS OF ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT: Gentlemen,—The following report is from the lady who used Allan's Anti-Fat. 'It (the Anti-Fat) had the desired effect, reducing the fat from two to five pounds a week until I had lost twenty-five pounds. I hope never to regain what I have lost.'" Anti-Fat is an unexcelled blood-purifier. It promotes digestion, curing dyspepsia, and is also a potent remedy for rheumatism. Sold by druggists. Pamphlet on Obesity sent on receipt of stamp.

BOTANIC MEDICINE CO., PROP'RS, Buffalo, N.Y.

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhea, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Favorite Prescription sold by Druggists.

God's Government.

People of other periods connected God immediately with all effects. The events in Nature and in Providence came at once from His hands. Earthquakes, storms and floods; war, disease and famine; pain, sorrow and death, were sent directly by Him.

The tendency in this age of the world is to put God [illegible] natural causes and to general laws. No fault can be found with Science in its endeavor to discover all the laws which control the world, to find out all causes, and to follow them to all their results. But because Science finds general laws operating everywhere, and because disease, sorrow, suffering and death are so largely due to the neglect or transgression of these laws, this surely is no reason for trying to eliminate God out of the world, or to put Him so far in the back-ground as to be overlooked altogether. These intermediate causes lead to the Intelligent First Cause. These general laws are but the expression of God's will, the exponents of His purposes in the government of the universe.

There is a disposition to regard suffering merely as the consequence of the violation or neglect of physical laws, or the laws of nature. Remove the causes, and the effects will disappear. Most true, and yet shall there be no recognition of the [illegible] both in the laws themselves and in the penalty arising [illegible] there [illegible] of His government; no [illegible] of His justice? Has God no moral laws, as [illegible] laws? And shall [illegible], misery and death not be [illegible] also for the disregard [illegible] of moral law? If we expose ourselves unduly to the hot rays of the sun, we are sunstruck, or to cold, we get pneumonia, or allow filth to accumulate until it poisons the air with foul gases, and we die of malaria; but shall [illegible] or commit adultery; or are proud, covetous and envious; or [illegible] character and life? Truly, this were to say there is no God, or, that He is not a moral governer.

There are [illegible] many [illegible] seeketh [illegible] Him be[illegible] and yet [illegible] always acting in perfect wisdom and love. [illegible] will always do right. [illegible] sunshine surround His throne, but [illegible] judgment [illegible] habitation thereof. There our faith must rest.

There is one truth that should never be forgotten, whether by individuals or communities; a truth that our Saviour has taught as most [illegible]

The Republican convention of the Third Congressional district met in convention at Bayou Goula on Saturday, all parishes except [illegible] and [illegible] being represented by [illegible] delegates. Mr. Robert O. Hebert, of Iberville, was nominated on the first ballot, receiving 29 votes against 11 for J. G. Parkerson, of St. Mary, and 3 for W. B. Merchant, of New Iberia. The nomination was then made unanimous. The nominee is the son of Gen. Paul O. Hebert, who was Governor of Louisiana in 1853, and is a young man of good character and fair talent. He had previously attained the National nomination, and especially since Mr. Acklen is involved in a terrible scandal so deeply that a committee selected by himself advised his withdrawl from the Democratic ticket, Mr. Hebert stands a good chance of election in this strong Republican district.

Mr. Wendell Phillips lately wrote to an inquirer in San Francisco: "The Chinese are a pains-taking, industrious and marvelously capable people. Statesmanship and political economy, as well as Christianity, welcome such help in subduing the continent—not violently to thrust them out. That we, who fled here only two centuries ago, should refuse the Chinese a place is monstrous, but that the Irish, who only 50 or 30 years ago came here and took shelter under institutions already established, should use the rights we have shared with them to oppress and torment the Chinese, is shameful inconsistency—another instance of how often the persecuted are themselves the first to persecute."

The St. Paul Pioneer Press in [illegible] defective summary of the remarks of Rev. J. C. PASS CHRISTIAN, MISS.,
October 11th, 1878.

I have received no reports from the following charges: Brookhaven, China Grove, Columbia, Union Church, Hamburgh and Fayette. Will the brethren please report at once, as I desire to know where the next quarterly conference is to be held before publishing the fourth round.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Rev. James Hayward, of Baton Rouge, in a letter to Rev. Emperor Williams says: "With hearts full of thankfullness for the aid you sent to our suffering people, we received the fifty dollars, and it came in the very time we needed it most. We are glad to know that our beloved church cares for the needy. Dear brother, the very next day after receiving the money, in one family mother and father both died, leaving behind a faithful old mother, who is down herself, and four little children. When both were lying dead, the children played around the bed where they laid. A thousand thanks for having remembered us in this distressing hour."

Rev. E. Provine, North Lebanon, Tennessee: "The [illegible] district conference met at Mo[illegible]ville [illegible] 31st, Rev. [illegible] presiding. Rev. [illegible] Provine was elected secretary, and [illegible] Pastors, local preachers and exhorters made [illegible] Sunday schools were prospering in towns, but poor in the country. Closed one week's meeting at each church around the North Lebanon circuit. At Smith Chapel 7 professed religion and 6 joined. The fourth quarterly conference convened at Linnwood church Sept 29 and 30. Rev. P. Martin was present and added much strength to the meeting. Here 5 professed and 4 joined the church."

The Bible In History.

[The Rev. Dr. [illegible] Taylor before the Washington City Bible Society.]

This book has a remarkable history which is thoroughly interwoven with that of the English-speaking race. Eleven hundred and forty-three years ago, the Venerable Bede, dying in his cell in a Northumbrian monastery, dictated the last verses of his translation of the Gospel of St. John into the Anglo-Saxon; and when told that it was finished, he repeated the words and replied, "Thou sayest well; it is finished!" Then he sang the doxology, "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost!" and as the last words fell from his lips, his spirit took its flight to sing the new song in heaven. Six hundred and forty-five years later, in 1380, John Wickliffe, whom Merle D'Aubigne calls "the greatest English reformer," [illegible] "the first reformer of Christendom," and in many respects "the Luther of England," published a complete translation of the Bible in the English language. It was made from the Latin Vulgate, and was copied and largely circulated in manuscript before the invention of printing. Indeed, it was never printed at all until 1731, or nearly 350 years after his death, and then only the New Testament. The Old Testament in Wickliffe's version was not printed until about thirty years ago. An hundred and forty-four years more elapsed [illegible] printed [illegible] of Matthew and Mark at Hamburg, in Germany, which were the first [illegible] from that imperfect translation out of the original Hebrew and Greek which is the basis of our Common Version, and is substantially the Bible of the English-speaking race in all the world. If this work had only fixed the standard of pure and noble English, as it has done it would be the glory of our literature. But it has done infinitely more for the character, civilization, and religion of that race. The eloquent author of "The History of the English People," Mr. Green, says: "England became the people of a book, and that book was the Bible. It was as yet the one English book which was familiar to every Englishman; it was read at churches and read at home; and everywhere its words, as they fell on ears which custom had not deadened to their force and beauty, kindled a startling enthusiasm." And after a splendid description of its literary influences in the Elizabethan age, this writer adds: "But far greater was the effect of the Bible on the character of the people at large. Elizabeth might silence or tune the pulpits, but it was impossible for her to silence or tune the great preachers of justice, and mercy, and truth, who spoke from the book which she had again opened to the people. The whole moral effect which is produced now-a-days by the religious newspaper, the tract, the essay, the lecture, the missionary report, the sermon, was then produced by the Bible alone. And its effect in this way, however dispassionately we examine it, was simply amazing. The whole temper of the nation was changed. A new conception of life and of man superseded the old. A new moral and religious impulse spread through every class. Literature reflected the general tendency of the time. 'Theology rules there,' said Grotius, of England only ten years after Elizabeth's death. The whole nation, in fact, became a church." These graphic utterances of England's latest, and in some respects her best historian, attest the intellectual, moral and religious power which this book of God swayed over a great nation in the golden age of its intellect, learning, and literature, and when its government was beginning to assume imperial proportions.

We hazard nothing in asserting that the Bible is as great a factor in American as it is in English history. It is here, by the fiat of Divine Providence, as an original and formative force in our national life. No church, no other organization or agency, has had such universal influence upon the public mind, and upon the education and moral character of the nation. It were as reasonable to ignore the historical influences of Plymouth Rock, and Jamestown, and the Colonies, of the Declaration of Independence, of George Washington, and the Constitution, as of this book, without which all these could never have been. But we cannot live in nor upon the past. It only furnishes a standpoint of observation into the future.

An Allegory.

A great king, desiring to teach his son a practical lesson, ordered a long table to be prepared in one of the galleries of his palaces set out with all manners of toys, fruits and other things which he thought would please the little boy. Taking him to a door at one end of the room, he said to him, "My son, pass down this hall, and whatever you are pleased with, you may take for your own, upon one condition—you are not to turn back. When you have gone the whole length of the table, and have made your decision, go out at the other door, and bring me what you have chosen." Joyfully the little boy started, enchanted with the prospect; he ate and drank, and gathered his arms full of treasures, and presently, tiring of what he had, he threw them away to make room for some more glittering toy which attracted him farther on; but which, when secured, somehow did not please nor satisfy him as much as he had expected, and he was constantly looking back regretfully to that which he had left behind him, or he saw some thing still farther on which he thought more desirable. Now, instead of being happy in having his choice of all these good things, the little boy grew irritable and dissatisfied. At length he appeared before the king with a sorrowful countenance, and in his hands were a few broken toys. "Is this all my son, that you have brought me out of all the infinite variety from which you have chosen! "Yes, father," sobbed the weeping boy, "that which pleased me at first seemed so poor and inferior, when I had them, to that which I saw farther on, that I could not be content, and always hoping to secure something to please me better, I could not make my choice, and now these are all I have. O, if I might go back once more!" "Not so, my son," said the king, "that cannot be; but let this lesson sink deep into your heart. As you go through life, each day, all there is in it of pleasure and happiness; do not look back with vain regrets, nor live in anticipation of future joys oblivious of those which are in your reach. Let each day bring you its measure of comfort and cheer. The present is all you are ever sure of, by wisely improving it your memories of the past will be pleasant and your future happiness will be assured."—Selected.

The Strength of Christianity.

The ark of God was never taken until abandoned by its earthly defenders. In captivity its sanctity was sufficient to save it from insult, and to lay the hostile fiend prostrate on the threshold of his own temple. The real security of Christianity is to be found in its benevolent morality, in its exquisite adaptation to the human heart, in the facility with which its scheme accommodates itself to the capacity of every human intellect, in the consolation which it bears to the house of mourning, in the light with which it brightens the great mystery of the grave.

To such a mystery it can bring no addition of dignity or of strength that it is part and parcel of the common law. It is now for the first time left to rely on the force of its own evidences, and the attraction of its own beauty. Its sublime theology confounded the Grecian schools in the fair conflict of reason with reason. The bravest and wisest of the Cæsars found their and their policy unavailing when opposed to the weapons that are not carnal, and the kingdom that was not of this world. The victory which Porphyry and Diocletian failed to gain, is not, to all appearance, reserved for any of those who in this age, have directed their attack against the last restraint of the powerful, and the last hope of the wretched.—Macaulay.

The death of Miss Anna S. De Wolf, by yellow fever, near New Orleans, Sept. 27th, will bring sadness to many hearts in Chicago. She was the daughter of Judge De Wolf of this city, and had for two years been employed as an instructress in our New Orleans university. In this institution colored young men and women are taught. She was a lady of culture and refinement. Her large circle of friends in this city will recall her many excellent qualities, and have heartfelt grief that she has gone. She enjoyed her work in the South. She did it from choice and did it well. She was to her students not simply an instructor, but she was a constant example of a pure and holy woman, each day and hour, by word and act, blessing those about her. She remained South expecting to enter upon her work again the present month, and was spending her summer at Bay St. Louis. She was of delicate constitution, and the Southern climate agreed with her. This accounts for her remaining South during the summer, and by going to the Gulf coast she supposed she would avoid the terrible plague. This heroic Christian woman died a martyr in our Southern mission field, and hers shall be a bright and glorious crown.—Northwestern Christian Advocate, Oct. 9th.

Important to Local Preachers.

The twentieth annual meeting of the National Local Preachers Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held in the Greene Street M. E. church, Trenton, N. J., commencing Saturday morning, Oct. 26, and closing on the following Tuesday night.

Delegates from all conference, district, or city local preachers' associations will be received, and where no regular organization exists, local preachers in good standing will be received as accredited delegates. Properly accredited local preachers of the M. E. Church South, Methodist Protestant, and other branches of Methodism will be received as fraternal delegates and invited to participate in its deliberations.

Essays on important topics will be read by able writers and discussed by the association, and will hereafter be announced, as also the arrangements for railroad excursion tickets.

List of delegates should be forwarded at the earliest day to the Rev. Wm. Wood, No. 115 East State street, Trenton, N. J., and homes will be provided. Also send duplicates to the Rev. W. H. Kincaid, secretary of the association, Lock Box 367, Pittsburg, Pa., to prepare roll.

There is not a little significance in the arrival of Chin Lan Pin in this country as a noble of the second rank, and as the first regular Minister Plenipotentiary from the Celestial Empire ever received in any country. Years ago he came to America, and made himself familiar with our language, customs, and resources. He, therefore, comes not as a stranger. He comes at a time when the unwarranted persecution of his race is with us the most active. His presence here must recall the sentiments of the Burlingame treaty, in which a free use of the terms "cordially recognize the inherent and inalienable right of man to change his home and allegiance," was made. It may recall America, or to be more specific, the inconsistent "immigrants" of America, from an advocacy of a doctrine of the dark ages. It may teach us that with our united millions of enlightened and Christian people, there is nothing to fear from a few thousand semi-civilized but industrious Chinese. It may make the absurdity more absurd of opening the gates to immigration on the Atlantic side of the continent and shutting them down on the Pacific.—Western Christian Advocate.

Social Converse.

I do not find that Jesus was ever bidden to any table and refused. If a Pharisee, if a publican, invited him, he did not hesitate to go, not for the pleasure of the dishes but to do good......If he sat with sinners, he converted them; if with converts, he confirmed them; if with the poor, he fed them; if with the rich in substance, he made them rich in grace. At whose board did he ever visit and left not his host a gainer? The poor bridegroom entertains him, and hath his waterpots filled with wine. Simon, the Pharisee entertains him and hath his table honored with the public pardon of a penitent sinner, and with the heavenly doctrine of remission. Zaccheus entertains him; salvation this day came to his house with the Author of it. That presence made the publican a son of Abraham. Matthew is recompensed for his feast with an apostleship. Martha and Mary entertain him, and, besides divine instruction, received their brother from the dead.

Motives to Holiness.

A man who has been redeemed by the blood of the Son of God should be pure. He who is an heir of life should be holy. He who is attended by celestial beings, and who is soon—he knows not how soon—to be translated to heaven should be holy. Are angels my attendants? Then I should walk worthy of their companionship. Am I soon to go and dwell with angels? Then I should be pure. Are these feet soon to tread the court of heaven? Is this tongue soon to unite with heavenly beings in praising God? Are these eyes of mine soon to look on the throne of eternal glory, and on the ascended Redeemer? Then these feet and eyes and lips should be pure and holy; and I should be dead to the world and live for heaven.—Albert Barnes.

The Purest Flower of Humanity.

Jesus the sanest, purest soul, the consumate flower of humanity, affirmed our personal immortality with undoubting, unqualified certainty. I believe Him, not chiefly because He rose from the dead, but because He was all alive, immortal, living on principles and for ends that were eternal; from the sermon on the mount to the words from the cross. I have the witness in myself that he was the Son of God. His words find my inmost heart. His affirmations evoke and clarify my own.—Bellows.

[illegible], BRAVE AND TRUE.

O heart, be strong !
There is so much for all to bear,
So much to do in life's short day,
Think not that thou shouldst read ; prepare,
To do thy part and take thy share,
And join the fray ;
Gird on thy sword of might, and battle wrong ;
Be strong, my heart, be strong !

O heart, be brave !
[illegible] in the thickest of the fight,
At times, thou mayest fail and shrink :
Remember thou art in God's sight,
And care not what—if thou art right—
The world may think ;
Bright victory's banner yet shall o'er thee wave,
Be brave, my heart, be brave !

O heart, be true !
True to thyself and to thy God,
Though all around thy path may change,
[illegible] the road that thou hast trod,
[illegible] that have no guiding word,
[illegible] hard and strange ;
[illegible] the whole wide world may do,
[illegible], my heart, be true !

What to do with your Wild Oats.

"A boy must sow his wild oats." In all the wide range of English maxims there is perhaps, not one, take it all in all, worse than this. Look at it on what side you will, it is a bad one. "Whatsoever a man soweth," be he young, or old, or middle-aged, "that shall he also reap." So says the Word of God. The one only thing to do with wild oats is to put them carefully in the hottest part of the fire, and get them burnt to ashes, every seed of them. If you sow them, no matter in what ground, up they will surely come, with long tough roots like couch grass, and luxuriant stalks and leaves—a crop which it turns one's heart to think of. The devil too, whose special crop they are will see that they thrive, and you will have to reap them. No common reaping will get them out of the soil; it will have to be dug down deep, again and again; and well for you, if with all your care, you can make the ground sweet again before your dying day.—Selected.

Good for a Man.

It is good for a man to be crossed, disappointed, made to feel his own ignorance, weakness, folly; made to feel his need of God; to feel that, in spite of all his cunning and self-confidence, he is no better off in this world than a lost child in a dark forest, unless he has a Father in heaven who loves him with an eternal love; and a Holy Spirit in heaven who will give him a right judgment in all things; and a Savior in heaven who can be touched with the feeling of his infirmities.—Charles Kingsley.

Abraham really thought that his beloved Isaac must suffer, and was obliged to consent to it; but God would only have Isaac offered, and the ram burnt. And thus the Lord knows how to preserve that which is His own in you; everything, however, must be offered up,—life and health, body and soul, enjoyments, relish, gifts and virtues, and even the darling image of holiness itself.—Gerhard Terstsegen, 1720.

The judgment of a child is a terrible tribunal. One can face the world and one's equals, knowing all that is in one's favor, and feeling the force of one's rights. But the secret verdict of a boy or girl, whom natural respect will prevent from expressing it or even defining it to themselves—what a thing that is to encounter!—Mrs Oliphant.

Send an ignorant man into the ministry, and you send one who can only be either an inflexible and unthinking bigot, or a simple and subtle victim prepared to fall prone before the newest and shallowest modes of thought. Of these it were hard to determine which is the more mischievous to religion and the churches.—Prof. Fairbairn.

To murmur against death in petulant defiance is never for the best ;
To will what God doth will, that is the only science
That gives us rest.

HELL. By S. M. Merrill, D. D., Bishop of the Methodist Church. Hitchcock & Walden, publishers, Cincinnati. This is a plain treatise, written for readers of the English Scriptures who have not access to the wide range of theological discussions found in ponderous works with which libraries are crowded. It is a valuable interpretation of terms employed, and ministers and general Christian readers can not fail to improve their store of knowledge on the subject treated, by a careful perusal. The general discussion on the subject of hell, which has been going on several months past in the pulpit and the press, made it timely to present this book to the public. The price is only one dollar.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF JOHN KNOX, THE SOUL OF THE SCOTTISH REFORMATION. By Charles K. True, D. D., Cincinnati; Hitchcock & Walden, publishers. The author is an experienced biographer, and handles his subjects with skill, and in an attractive way. The life of John Knox covers a period of great significance in the history of Christianity. It does the mind good to dwell upon the incidents when mens souls were sorely tried in defense of their faith. John Knox is a hero to be remembered for ages for his courage, fortitude and talents, and every member of the Church should read about him and his labors. Price of the book $1 25.

Fat Man Made Happy.—Loses 61 lbs.

PRATTVILLE Ala., July 20th., 1878.
BOTANIC MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Gentlemen—About three months ago I commenced using your "Anti-Fat," at which time my weight was 219 pounds. By following your directions carefully, I have succeeded in reducing my weight to 158 pounds. This is all very satisfactory and pleasant; but just previous to my commencing the use of your medicine, I had purchased two suits of fine clothes at a high price, and find, to my dismay, that they are entirely useless to me now. When I put one of my coats on, my friends tells me it looks like a coffee sack on a bean-pole, and when I put the pants on,—well, description fails. My object in writing is to ascertain whether you have not, in connection with your medicine business, an establishment where your patrons, similarly situated, could exchange these useless garments for others that would fit. I think you ought to have something of the kind, as it would be an inducement for many to use the Anti-Fat, who now object to using it, in consequence of the loss they would sustain in throwing aside valuable garments. Just turn this matter over in your mind. A "Clothing Exchange" is what you want in connection with your Anti-Fat business.

Yours truly,
GEORGE BOYD.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagara Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

Special Notices.

NOTICE.

The opening of the Fall Term of the New Orleans University is further postponed on account of the continuance of yellow fever in the city.

Due notice will be given of our opening, but the time must depend upon the movements of the epidemic. [oct10

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets
SIZE OF PELLETS.
O O O
O O O
THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. [illegible] [illegible] explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick [illegible] etc. [illegible]

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried HIGH UP and PERFECTLY APPLIED to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists.

NEW YORK OFFICE:
805 Broadway, New York,
WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

D. L. Moody will engage in evangelistic work in Baltimore the coming winter.

Rev. D. A. Williams, pastor of the M. E. Church at Grenada, has suffered the loss of an infant son, as we are informed by letter from G. G. Leonard, Steward.

Rev. Lesko Triest, pastor of the First German Presbyterian church, died in this city of yellow fever, on the 16th. He was highly esteemed as a scholar and pastor.

The Electric Light Company has been formed in New York, with a capital of three hundred thousand dollars, to produce light, heat, and power. Tracy R. Edison heads the list of incorporators.

Rev. Dr. Rust has left Cincinnati for New York to attend the anniversary of the Fredmen's Aid Society. Thence he goes South to visit the schools under the care of the Society, says the Western Christian Advocate.

The city school board designated Wednesday, November 6, as the date of the opening of the public schools. Teachers and pupils will rejoice at this welcome news, as the regular session has been delayed many weeks on account of the epidemic.

On Tuesday morning it was discovered that the SOUTHWESTERN office had been entered, evidently by a party or parties who had placed boxes in front of the door to stand on, then had climbed through an open space above. A box containing over $201 of silver coin, belonging to the Methodist Relief fund was stolen, together with a valuable pistol belonging to Mr. Elliott, the publisher. Some $37 in silver coin in another box, and $180 in Treasury notes were found untouched. A private desk of the editor had been overhauled, and a lock forced with some sharp instrument. No arrests have been made yet, or clue discovered of the burglars.

Rev. Jesse P. Price writes from Mason, Tennessee Conference under date of Oct. 23d. My health has been good most of the time during the prevalence of the yellow fever on my circuit. My only son died on the 14th inst., of typhoid pneumonia. He was a very interesting child and we feel his loss keenly. The fever is still at work in Mason. There has been twenty-five deaths reported up to the 22d inst. Three of the members of my church at Mason died with the fever. Bros. P. H. Bugg and Henry Smith were among the leading members of the charge and were called away. It will be several weeks yet before we can have meeting at Mason. The work of improving the church has been stopped and the whole charge [illegible] in collections and [illegible]. The Presiding Elder, Rev. W. S. Secret Religion.

There ought to be two sides to every religious life; the one secret, the other public. The public life of religion should be the outgrowth of that which flourishes in secret. But it is a sad fact that many have no secret religious life. All external duties are faithfully attended to. So far as church going, observance of the sacraments, attendance at prayer-meeting and other exercises and duties of a public character are concerned, they are faultless. But they have no "closet" for prayer, no meditation upon God's word in private, no communings with God in retirement. They have no liking for solitude. The tree grows up and spreads its branches in the sunlight and air, and bears its leaves and blossoms and fruits openly: but it flourishes in proportion as it is firmly rooted in the earth and draws its fatness from the soil. So with the Christian life. That it outwardly flourish, that it may blossom and bear fruit abundantly, it must grow and strengthen in private. Religious privacy gives life and vigor to that which is to manifest itself before the world. We are to confess Christ before men. We are to let our light shine so that they may see our good works. We are to be "living epistles, read and known of all men." But these epistles are written in the secret places. The lamps are filled and trimmed in the closet. No wonder depth and strength are so lacking in the piety of many. It cannot stand the time of trial, for it has no root. It lacks juiciness. Its public services are formal.

"But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly." Our Savior uttered these words in opposition to an ostentatious, hypocritical religion, a religion that is all outside. They are no less applicable where there is no effort at display, for they show the necessity of an interior life. It is the heart that God looks at. If it be right, all else goes right. Public worship and public benevolence are valued because they come as the expression of warm and earnest love working in the secret chambers of the soul. It is a piety that strikes its roots deep into the soil of God's word, and drinks in copiously of the dews of God's spirit, whose works as seen of men shall lead them to glorify our Father in Heaven.

Miss Anna S. DeWolt—The University Canvass.

DEAR SOUTHWESTERN.—In the New Orleans Times of the 23rd September, I read the following notice:

"DIED.—At Bay St. Louis, Miss., on the 27th inst., Miss Anna S. DeWolf, daughter of Judge Calvin DeWolf, of Chicago Ills."

The subject of this sketch was for a number of years afflicted with a painful disease caused by the severe climate peculiar to the great lake region on our north, in which was her native city. Her friends had exhausted all known remedies in vain; she had been sent to the far west, for the benefits of a drier atmosphere; the bracing breezes of the Atlantic coast had been tried; and the far north region of Minnesota—all in vain. Finally, two years ago, she thought to make an extended trial of the Gulf air, and being an earnest Christian woman, full of zeal and good works, she studied, while seeking benefits for herself, to do some good for others. In this spirit, she offered her services to the Freedman's Aid Society as a teacher, and the Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, appointed her to the New Orleans University. Since that time Miss DeWolf has been a faithful worker, beloved and most highly honored by all who have known her, either as connected with our work, or in the society in which she has moved. We shall greatly miss her.

There is one fact that renders her departure at this time and in this manner, peculiarly painful

She was far from home and among strangers. Her family and friends were expecting her to spend the summer months in their midst, but, hoping that, as our climate had agreed with all her other infirmities, it might take her safely past the "hay fever" season, she determined to spend one summer in the South. When the fever was first declared epidemic in our city, Mobile quarantined against New Orleans and stopped the passage of trains. This rendered it impossible for Miss DeWolf to go north after that, however much she might desire it. We suppose we ought not to complain, but we have to mourn the loss of our friend. Many others have been sacrificed we do not doubt, by the rigid quarantine, but perhaps this very loss may have prevented much greater loss. We do not know.

The students of the university will miss a kind and affectionate friend, a ready counsellor, a faithful guide.

In her name, the writer would invoke all those who were accustomed to her presence in the University hall, to be true to those principles which they so well know she approved.

Many of our friends have fallen during the weeks of scourge, and our city and State, and neighboring cities and States are bowed under the rod of affliction. It is a good time for self-examination and reflection. Shall we not most heartily repent our backslidings, turn to the Lord and renew our first vows?

And now, dear SOUTHWESTERN, I desire to say to the students and friends of the New Orleans University, that my hearty sympathy is with them in this hour of trial. I am pained to remember that I could not be of more direct benefit to them in their affliction.

Early in the spring, some members of the Board of Trustees advised me to spend the summer months in canvassing for the University in the Parishes. In July, Dr. Rust consented to the plan. With the view of carrying out this plan, I left New Orleans 31st August for the Orphan's Home in the Parish of St. Mary. My purpose was to spend just time enough to canvass the main points in the parish, then move to the river parishes and visit the most important points in half-a-dozen of them, and return to the city in season for the Fall term, which was advertised to begin on the 9th September.

But I had scarce reached my first stopping place before it was quarantined against New Orleans, and in a few days every city and parish in the State was quarantined so thoroughly, that several gentlemen born in Franklin, this parish, attempting to go North by way of Texas, were met by men armed with guns, and ordered to turn back or stay outside the line for twenty days. So my canvass at the very outset became circumscribed, and within quite narrow limits. But I have not been idle; what with preaching in our churches and soliciting among our people, I have received the pledges of over thirty students for the University this year, from this parish alone. We may therefore expect a very full school when we open. After sugar making, there promises to be the greatest influx of students from the country, that the New Orleans University has ever known. May the blessing of Heaven rest upon this Institution. I feel that the hand of Providence has led me this summer, for which I am very grateful. There has been no yellow fever on the Teche above Centreville this season.

J. S. BEAN.

Nashville Notes.

Nashville has been exempt from yellow fever, excepting cases brought from infected districts. We have had almost daily fright from reports circulated of cases in different parts of the city, and the most exaggerated rumors were current only a few miles from the city, of the desolation wrought by the fever in this city. The city has not been quarantined against any refugees that might come. A hospital for the sick with the yellow fever was established, and those affected were taken there and cared for.

The schools here, have been able to open at the appointed time, and to continue without interruption. With one exception, none of the schools have lost any students here. A young man from Mississippi, came to attend the Fisk University, and having come through Memphis, it is supposed imbibed the disease and died in the University a week after his arrival. The attendance at all the schools has been less than at the same time last year. Some of them were very much less. The Central Tennessee Conference has had a larger attendance of boarding students than at the same time last year; but the entire enrollment is not quite so large. The Medical Department opens most auspiciously. There are fourteen who entered already, and others are to enter soon. The utility of this department has been fully demonstrated by the service which the graduates have already rendered their people in the yellow fever. Dr. J. S. Bass volunteered and went to Chattanooga, doing service which received commendation from the citizens and medical fraternity. Dr. L. D. Key has had to battle with the pestilence in his own field of practice near Memphis, and has done good work. The demand for intelligent physicians among the colored people is great, and those who have gone out from this institution, have met with very kind treatment from the white physicians wherever they have located.

The Theological Department opens well; but instead of twenty-five, there should be fifty or a hundred young men preparing for the ministry.

Clark Chapel, in this city, has been favored with some revival influences lately, and several conversions and additions are reported. The pastor, Bro. Woods, is doing a good work, and is making a very favorable impression on the people as a preacher and pastor. Spruce St. M. E. church, Bro. Rudisill pastor, is coming up out of the wilderness. Several conversions, and real old-fashioned Methodist praying, singing and experiences are heard there, which wonderfully cheers the brethren and encourages those who have held on so steadily for years, believing that God had a work for them to do in Nashville. The work of the M. E. church in Tennessee, is in a hopeful, prosperous condition, and there are none of our own people who have any question as to our usefulness and the necessity of our remaining.

J. BRADEN.

From Our Mission Rooms.

On the coming 9th of November it is expected that three ladies will be going out to India, under the patronage of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church.

There is great want of money, and great stagnation of business too, in Norway writes one of our missionaries, "but still we have been able to collect $6032 81 and this I think is well done by the churches under such circumstances.

A most remarkable revival in the Norwegian District Conference. The Leland and Norway charge under the labor of Rev. J. O. Sanaker. Thirty-two were taken into full connection and fourteen persons admitted on probation. In all during the year, one hundred and twenty-seven have been taken into the church on this charge.

Rev. Thomas Harwood, of La Junta, Mexico writes us that Bishop Simpson had just made them a pleasant visit Oct. 12th. The Bishop spent Sabbath Sept. 29th at Cimmarron. His talk to the Mexican brethren was easy and simple. He also administered to them the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Interpreted the sermon but he read the Ritual in the service very well. The Mexican people were perfectly elated with his visit. The conference was held at Santa Fe. One Mexican brother had come from a distance of 200 miles; another 300 miles. These two having been elected at the Colorado Conference were ordained deacons. Another brother was licensed to preach.

Our latest letters from Foo Chow, China, August 29th., have an item forshadowing trouble which has come out in the secular papers. The paragraph in our letter is "No news except that the officers are trying hard to get the English mission out of the city. They are trying to get us to persuade the missionaries to accept a compromise before there is too much excitement among the people. I have seen the deeds which though rather faulty I would consider sufficiently clean to hold the ground. The officers claim to be hardly driven by the Literati."

Dr. Thoburn, of Calcutta, Sept. 10th., is beginning his twentieth year of missionary service and is in "pretty good health, and hope I may be spared to the close of the century. But life is held by a slight turn in this land."

A Basket Meeting in St. James.

Editor of SOUTHWESTERN:

Although not a member of any church, I believe in all things that tend to promote and carry out the Ten Commandments—God's holy law. Being a stranger in this place, and feeling somewhat lonesome yesterday, (Sunday) I sought the church to pass off the day. On hearing there was to be a basket meeting at the M. E. church, over which the Rev. Prince King presides, notwithstanding its being three miles or more from where I am stopping, I footed it. I got there some time before the congregation assembled, and amused myself by looking at the church and its surroundings. It is about 500 yards from the river; can seat about 300 people in case of an emergency; has a nice little choir just built, and has everything that goes to make a "nice little country church" except the ceiling and the paintings, and should Rev. King be allowed to remain in his present position, (Presiding Elder) those portions of the work will soon be accomplished. About 10 o'clock the ladies began pouring in, with baskets filled with all kinds of luxuries for the occasion. I took my seat where I could see and hear with ease. Eleven o'clock struck, and the services began by the choir singing a beautiful hymn, and prayer by one of the deacons. Some six or seven ministers preached, each taking up a collection. Although Rev. King came last, and about the time the audience began to feel hungry, still there were nickels enough left to enable him to carry off the prize as to collection. At 3.30 p. m., the meeting was dismissed, the baskets scattered promiscuously around, and nobody left dissatisfied. Your correspondent was invited to the table prepared for the ministers, and was accosted by the sisters during my sojourn at the table, as "brother." I felt a little awkward at being called brother, but the other part of the proceedings came as handy as taking a meal at home.

Good luck to Rev. Prince King and his congregation, may they live long and prosper, and not wait too long before giving another basket meeting. W.

St. James, Oct. 14th, 1878.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. H. W. Key, Murfreesboro, Tenn., Oct. 14th: "I am in the midst of a most glorious revival, and have been for the last four weeks; the church crowded every night. Fifteen converts during the last revival; 92 during the year; prospective outlook brighter and brighter. The whole church is revived spiritually, temporally and financially. Fifty-four adults and 18 children baptized, and 100 additions to the church during the year. This charge was assessed $1000 this year and the brethren are resolved to raise every cent of it. A new bible and hymn book for the pulpit, and carpeting for the pulpit floor have been secured by the energy of the sisters. All benevolent claims will be raised, and we shall get a clear receipt at conference. We have raised money to build a new church, and deposited it in a bank. We have run the church this year on a cash basis, and paid over $100 of old debts. We raised $30 for yellow fever sufferers, and forwarded it to Memphis."

Rev. John H. Cook, Pontotoc, Miss.: "We have held our protracted meetings at all of our appointments except in town; and we have had about 50 converts and reclaimed, and between 35 and 40 accessions to the church. The Board of Health requested us to postpone our meeting in the city until a killing frost, after which we hope to gain a few more converts. We have baptized about 12, and organized our Sabbath schools into a Missionary Society."

The Fever in Jackson.

DEAR BROTHER:—I ask your permission to say something in the ADVOCATE concerning our condition here in Jackson.

I have no doubt but what you have been informed of the yellow fever being here, but probably you would like to know whether it is increasing or not. Allow me to say in the first place, that as it was so late in the season before the fever made its appearance we indulged the hope that it would not get here. But alas! our hope was in vain.

In August, we had our first case. Sometime in September another case made its appearance. Since that time, the great plague has continued to spread. Now we have over three hundred cases. There has been about 40 or 50 deaths up to date, 4 deaths last night. We have had about 7 new cases in the last 24 hours. This is not as many as usually reported during the same length of time.

The Lord has blessed our church members. Only one has fallen during the fever plague. We have not met at the church for four weeks. This we thought was for our own interest and the city authorities advised us not to congregate together.

Many of us has been made to suffer by the scourge, for our daily bread. $1 85 is all that I have had to support my family with for four weeks. Though I do not complain, neither am I discouraged. The people would do better for me, but they are unable. I am witenessing the hardest time I have had during life. But allow me to ask this question.

Must I be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease;
While others fought to win the prize,
And sail'd through bloody seas?

My dear brother, I believe that we all will have to suffer as long as we are in this world. If we don't one way, we will the other. But thank God, "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to this purpose," I ask the prayers of the brethren.

Yours in Christ.

The Fever in Houma.

Rev. A. E. P. Albert writes from Houma, La. Oct. 25th, to Rev. E. Williams that on the 8th of this month a case of yellow fever was reported by the Board of Health, but the child recovered, and the judgment was criticized. Many who had ran away returned, but yesterday, when everybody felt secure because of recent frost, two cases were reported, one of which, a white woman, died last night, Five new cases broke out. If the scourge continues, a great amount of suffering is expected. The people have been quarantined so long without work, they are without means. The town is in a perfect panic. Many ran away, and those remaining are greatly frightened. It was several hours, before anybody, large sums of money money being offered, could be induced to bury the white woman. No one would wash or shroud her, and she was buried as she died. The once happy village is almost deserted; populated only by a few strong hearted souls and the sick and poor. Rev. Albert says: "I am here by God's grace, and I mean to stay here at my post and do my whole duty, the Lord being my helper."

METHODIST BOOK CONCERN, }
No. 805 Broadway, N. Y., Oct. 23. }

Emerson Bentley and Rev. Emperor Williams,
No. 39 Natchez street, New Orleans:

Dear Brethren:—It is our privilege to send you an additional remittance of Five hundred dollars ($500) for the relief of the suffering in the South by yellow fever which amount we enclose in our certified check payable to your order. While the contributions have materially lessened, we are still receiving small sums which we are glad to forward to you. By the letters which you will find enclosed you will see that other applications for aid are sent to us. We send these two to you for your consideration.

If you think the applicants should share in the amount we send to you, you can perhaps send them relief from your city more easily than we can. We trust to your good judgmement and discretion entirely. Please acknowledge receipt of the check endorsed.

Yours truly,
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
per D. DENHAM, JR.

Relief Acknowledged.

Dear Sir;—Please allow us space in the columns of your paper to tender our thanks to the following brethren for liberal contributions to yellow fever sufferers of Grenada: Rev. G. W. Barney, Macon, Miss., $51; Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of Holly Springs, $15 80 and provisions; Rev. J. Campbell, of Jackson, Miss., $16 20 and provisions to the amount of $20 20, given by the colored societies and churches of Jackson, Miss.; Rev. Peter Blue, of Oxford, Miss., provisions. We also received a check from Rev. J. W. Dunn, P. E. of Greenwood District, for $16 75, payable in New Orleans, which was forwarded there to be cashed, but has never been heard from. Mr. Editor, we tender our thanks to all for their contributions to the suffering people of Grenada. We pray that the Lord will bless the people who responded to our suffering call.

Respectfully yours in Christ,
D. A. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Freedmen's Aid Society.

The annual meeting of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at the Book Concern, on the 16th inst. Bishop Wiley presided, and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. F. C. Holliday, of Indianapolis. Rev. Dr. Rust the Corresponding Secretary, then submitted an abstract of his report, which was as follows:

Another year's labor in behalf of an unfortunate race in our midst is completed. Although our Society during the year has not been able to accomplish all that it anticipated, yet in spite of the financial embarassment of the country, its work, in importance and far-reaching results, has never been exceeded in any year of its history. It has erected more school edifices, more commodious and commanding; educated more teachers, prepared more ministers, led more souls to Christ, set in operation more streams of elevating influence, done more and better work for Christ and humanity than in any like period before. A society prosecuting a work of Christian philanthrophy of such vast magnitude, so imperatively demanded, and so essential to the weal of the nation and the Church, furnishing a record of so great usefulness and promise during a period of unprecedented monetary disasters, demands the heartiest recognition and the most generous support. The Society has aided in the establishment and support of the following schools, five of which have been legally chartered with full collegiate powers:

Chartered Institutions—Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn.; Clark University, Atlanta, Ga.; Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C.; New Orleans University, New Orleans, La.; Shaw University, Holly Springs, Miss.—6.

Theological Schools — Centenary Bibical Institute, Baltimore, Md.; Baker Institute, Orangeburg, S. C.; Thomson Biblical Institute, New Orleans, La.—3.

There are theological classes in all our schools.

Medical Colleges—Mcharry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn.; New Orleans Medical College, New Orleans, La.—2.

Institutions not chartered—Bennett Seminary, Greensboro, N. C.; Cookman Institute, Jacksonville, Florida; Haven Normal School, Waynesville, Ga.; La Grange Seminary, La Grange, Ga.; La Teche Seminary, and Orphans' Home, La Teche, La.; Meridian Academy, Meridian, Miss.; Normal School Huntsville, Ala.; Wiley University, Marshall, Texas; Walden Seminary, Little Rock, Ark.; West Tennessee Seminary, Mason, Tenn. —10.

In these institutions the number of pupils taught during the year is classified as follows: Biblical 400; Law, 25, Medical, 50; Collegiate, 75; Academic, 275; Normal, 1,000; Intermediate, 510; Primary, 605. Total, 2,940.

The financial statement for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1878, was then submitted as follows:

Cash assets in treasury July 1, 1877		$597 34
Contributions from July 1, 1877 to July 1, 1878		62,805 51

The following officers and Board of Managers elected, at the last General Conference, were re-elected by the Society to keep its action in harmony with the provisions of the Constitution of the Society:

President—I. W. Wiley.

Vice-Presidents — Hon. M. B. Hagans, F. S. Hoyt, D. D., F. C. Holliday, D. D., Amos Shinkle, Esq.

R. S. Rust, D. D., Corresponding Secretary; John M. Walden, D. D., Recording Secretary; Luke Hitchcock, D. D., Treasurer; Reuben Nelson, D. D., Assistant Treasurer.

Board of Managers—I. W. Wiley, J. F. Larkin, F. C. Holliday, H. De Camp, G. S. Hoyt, Wm. Runyan, M. W. Taylor, J. M. Walden, H. Liebhardt, M. B. Hagans, R. S. Rust, Amos Shinkle, C. O. Edwards, H. B. Ridgaway, W. F. Boyd, L. Hitchcock, W. W. Ramsay, D. W. Rowland, J. J. Hight.

Indian Problem.

Rev. J. H. Wilbur, who has labored as teacher, missionary or agent on the Yakama Indian Reservation since 1860, excepting a single year, has well defined ideas and positive convictions in regard to the management of our red brothers. He says:

"The solution of the whole Indian question rests with Congress. The Indian must be taught to labor. He can be taught successfully, as I have demonstrated. I have had no serious trouble with my Indians. Have never had to use a soldier. Don't want soldiers nearer than the Rocky Mountains. So long as you feed the Indians without labor, you will have to feed and fight him alternately. He must be made to earn his own living. This is practicable. He must have teachers who are imbued with truth from head to foot; men who can hold the plow handles or push a crosscut saw—men who know how to work themselves, and are not above setting a working example. Army officers cannot work. They are not taught to work. They can 'shoulder arms,' 'present arms,' 'trail arms,' but they cannot make rails and build houses. We can solve this problem in five years. Work! work! Send working, God-fearing men to teach the Indians how to work, and the thing can be settled. Transferring the Indian to the army prolongs the settlement, gives us blood and carnage, demoralization and ruin. God be merciful to the helpless Indian."

Chose ever the plainest road; it always answers best. For the same reason, choose ever to do and try what is most just and the most direct. This conduct will save a thousand blushes and a thousand struggles, and will deliver you from secret torments which are the never failing attendants of dissimulation.

In me, O Lord, abide,
Give daily grace,
Be still thy wounded side
My hiding-place.
Thou art mine only One!
Give me the secret stone.
In me, O Lord, abide,
And I in thee.

—Malherbe.

There would be less willingness to go to war if those who make money from it were converted into targets for the enemy to shoot at.—Christian at Work.

FOLLOW THOU ME.

Have ye looked for my sheep in the desert,
For those who have missed their way?
Have ye been in the wild, waste places
Where the lost and the wandering stray?
Have you trodden the lonely highway,
The foul and darksome street?
It may be you'd see in the gloaming,
The print of Christ's wounded feet.

Have you folded close to your bosom
The trembling neglected lamb,
And taught to the little lost one
The sound of the Shepherd's name?
Have ye searched for the poor and needy,
With no clothing, no home, no bread?
The Son of man was among them,
He had nowhere to lay his head.

Have you carried the living water
To the parched and thirsty soul?
Have you said to the sick and wounded,
"Christ Jesus makes thee whole?"
Have ye told my fainting children
Of the strength of the Father's hand?
Have guided the tottering footsteps
To the shores of the "golden land?"

Have ye stood by the sad and weary,
To smooth the pillow of death,
To comfort the sorrow-stricken,
And strengthen the feeble faith?
And have ye felt when the glory
Has streamed through the open door,
And flitted across the shadows,
That I had been there before?

Have ye wept with the broken hearted,
In their agony of woe?
Ye might hear me whispering beside you,
'Tis a path I often go.
My disciples, my brethren, my friends,
Can ye dare to follow me?
Then wherever the Master dwelleth,
There shall the servant be.

Telegraphic Summary.

Baton Rouge, Oct. 28.—Official yellow fever report for the forty-eight hours ending at nine o'clock this morning: New cases, 23; deaths, 2. Weather cloudy and cool.

Vicksburg, Oct. 28.—Weather cloudy and rainy all day; thermometer fell to 35 last night, Two deaths in the city and three in the country.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 28.—Eight new cases, six colored and two white. Since yesterday noon one death (colored.) Total cases, 381; total deaths, 61. Rainy weather; cold to-night.

The following points are gathered from the Howard dispatches:

At Mississippi City a physician is urgently needed; also, nurses.

At Baton Rogue only three or four cases of fever, and a good deal of malarial trouble.

At McComb City, three deaths since Saturday evening, and two patients not expected to live. Several new cases. A physician is wanted.

Mobile, Oct. 28.—From noon of the 26th to noon of the 27th, 12 new cases and four deaths. For the 24 hours ending at noon to-day, three new cases and one death.

Memphis, Oct. 28.—Last night was the coldest of the season. A heavy frost fell and ice lined the gutters throughout the city. The board of health will, to-morrow, officially announce the safety to refugees returning to the city, but will recommend that all dwellings be thoroughly ventilated before occupation.

Brookhaven, Miss., Oct. 28.—The quarantine regulations have been so modified as to permit trains to stop here again, and allow the shipment of cotton, and the receipt of groceries of all kinds; but no dry goods will be received from an infected place, and no passengers or baggage will be allowed to stop here, for the present, from any point.

New Publications

Young Folks History of Greece. By Charlotte M. Yonge. Cincinnati: Hitchcock & Walden, publishers. This volume, uniform with the History of Germany noticed a few days ago, is an admirable work, making its subject attractive to children. The narrative is plain, the illustrations numerous. It gives the history of Greece from the most ancient to modern times.

The November-December number of the International Review will devote forty of its pages to an exhaustive review of Social Democracy in Germany, by Dr. Huber, of the University of Munich, which will be found of unequaled interest. The subject forms the life-question of European Governments, as they now exist, and no man could treat it better than Dr. Huber. He combines two mental traits seldom found in conjunction. The power to perceive and state clearly the most minute distinctions of philosophy, [illegible] to draw graphic pictures for the popular mind. He employs both these powers in this paper. He traces the social democracy back to its source in the abstract speculations of philosophers. He indicates how the State religions have contributed to it, and suffered from it. He shows how governments have provoked it to the peril of their very [illegible]. He especially in his account of Lassalle's agitation furnishes one of the most moving of descriptive statements. The article has that unique character, which will make it of equal interest to all classes, whether their chief attention is directed to religion, politics or society, for all are equally concerned in the movements described.

The American who is the author of the interesting estimate of Gladstone's career and position as a statesman, in the September-October number of the International Review, has received a letter from Mr. Gladstone, from which we are permitted to make the following extract.

"It is not for me to express an opinion upon its substance, considering how far beyond my merits is the [illegible] it forms of my character [illegible]. But I was greatly [illegible] in reading it, with the success [illegible] achieved with a [illegible] substantial accuracy [illegible] to put a negative on the idea that he could be a foreigner. Any inadvertencies that I have discovered were altogether insignificant I sincerely hope that if the picture you have here drawn is too good, yet it may be an incentive to endeavor at approaching the high standard it exhibits."

Horace White, Geo. W. Julian, Albert Rhodes, A. R Spofford (Librarian of Congress), Rev. John Hall, Professor Johannes Von Huber, of the University of Munich, Germany, J. W Green, of St. Catherine's College, Cambridge, and G. P. Tait, Professor of Physics, College, Edinburgh, will contribute to the November-December number of the International Review.

The New England Journal of Education. Of the various periodicals devoted to the special work of education, there is none equal to the New England Journal of Education in the ability, variety and instructive character of its contents. All teachers should take it. They will find it very stimulating and helpful in their arduous profession. The subscription price is $2 50. It is published in Boston.

Wide Awake for November gives the pathetic old story of "The Babes in the Wood," versified by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, and illustrated charmingly by Mary A. Lathbury. It is safe to say that none of the modern rhyme-stories will ever win the immortality that belongs to these "Classics of Babyland." Another gem, with a beautiful illustration, is Margaret J. Preston's art-poem of "Giotto and his Sheep." Miss Plympton also has an amusing bit of illustrated verse, "The Grown-up Clock." Mrs. L. C. Whiton and Howard Glydon also have illustrated poems.

Among the stories is an amusing one by the editor, Ella Farman, entitled "Betty's Tramps," accompanied by a frontispiece. Laurie Loring has a good school story, "Down a Water-Spout." "Topsey's Thanksgiving" is a dainty little Thanksgiving story for the smaller children. Mrs. Lillie's English Literature paper treats entertainingly of "John Dryden and His Times." There is a bright instructive article by Mabel S. Emery entitled "In the Gas Works," and the Poet's Homes Series has a paper on Nora Perry. A very interesting paper in "The Child Toilers of Boston Streets" series about the "Chestnut Roasters," and the usual departments make up a useful number. $2 00 per year. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Publishers.

A novel industry has been developed in this country, and is being prosecuted with every reasonable chance of success. We refer to the dried egg industry. The eggs are carefully examined by artificial light, and their good quality determined, after which they are placed in a receptacle, where by means of a centrifugal force the shell and its contents are separated. The white and yolk are then carefully dried into a mass very much resembling sugar. Dried eggs have been tested under the burning rays of a tropical sun, and found as good as those freshly laid.

Epilepsy Fits.

A grand triumph in medicine. We have discovered a certain specific for that direful malady Epilepsy. It has cured cases given up by distinguished physicians, after bromide of potassium and all other remedies known to them has failed. So certain are we that it will give satisfaction, that we will send a trial box free, upon receipt of 9 cents to pay postage. Price, One Dollar per box. Address, stating age of person and frequency of fits, VERMONT ST. PHARMACY,
42-45] Buffalo, N. Y.

To Whom it May Concern.

This is to certify that the "Breeders' Manual" contains more useful information and practical hints on breeding and rearing of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry, and fancy stock, together with their diseases and remedies, than any other book. —Com. Adv.

The Fat Men's Convention.

We can see some pleasure, if no reason, in the convening of a baby show, but we confess we could never see the slightest cause, reasonable or otherwise, for a fat man's convention, unless it be the fact that misery loves company. For fifty or a hundred men, whose several weights range from two hundred to three hundred pounds to hold a convention simply because of so much surplus avoirdupois, is absurd to say the least. It becomes doubly so when we reflect that obesity is a disease. What would we think of as many persons emaciated by consumption holding a convention to compare their relative weights. There is but one ground upon which we would advocate another fat men's convention, and that is that they will meet to discuss the merits of Allan's Anti-Fat, the only known remedy for obesity. It is safe and reliable. Sold by druggists.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagra Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

45 Years Before the Public.
THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
CELEBRATED
FOR THE CURE OF
Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, in cases of Ague and Fever, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression Dr. McLane's Liver Pills.

The genuine McLane's Liver Pills bear the signatures of C. McLane and Fleming Bros. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

A Fine Head of Hair is such an indispensable adjunct to beauty, that one who prizes good looks should neglect to use "London Hair Color Restorer," the most delightful article ever introduced to the American people for increasing its growth, restoring its natural color, and at the same time a lovely hair dressing and beautifier. It is totally different from all others; not sticky and gummy, and free from all impure ingredients that render many articles obnoxious; in fact, it is exquisitely perfumed and so perfectly and elegantly prepared as to make it a lasting hair dressing and toilet luxury. Sold by all dealers in fine toilet articles, at 75 cents a bottle, or six bottles for $4. E. Hart & Co., wholesale agents, New Orleans.

HELP!
FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS
AND BANDS.

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions —Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle-aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS AND BANDS

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Pleasant
Purgative
Pellets
THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.
SIZE OF PELLETS. ○○○ ○○○

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucous, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists. R. V. Pierce, M. Secret Religion.

There ought to be two sides to every religious life; the one secret, the other public. The public life of religion should be the outgrowth of that which flourishes in secret. But it is a sad fact that many have no secret religious life. All external duties are faithfully attended to. So far as church going, observance of the sacraments, attendance at prayer-meeting and other exercises and duties of a public character are concerned, they are faultless. But they have no "closet" for prayer, no meditation upon God's word in private, no communings with God in retirement. They have no liking for solitude. The tree grows up and spreads its branches in the sunlight and air, and bears its leaves and blossoms and fruits openly; but it flourishes in proportion as it is firmly rooted in the earth and draws its fatness from the soil. So with the Christian life. That it outwardly flourish, that it may blossom and bear fruit abundantly, it must grow and strengthen in private. Religious privacy gives life and vigor to that which is to manifest itself before the world. We are to confess Christ before men. We are to let our light shine so that they may see our good works. We are to be "living epistles, read and known of all men." But these epistles are written in the secret places. The lamps are filled and trimmed in the closet. No wonder depth and strength are so lacking in the piety of many. It cannot stand the time of trial, for it has no root. It lacks juiciness. Its public services are formal.

"But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly." Our Savior uttered these words in opposition to an ostentatious, hypocritical religion, a religion that is all outside. They are no less applicable where there is no effort at display, for they show the necessity of an interior life. It is the heart that God looks at. If it be right, all else goes right. Public worship and public benevolence are valued because they come as the expression of warm and earnest love working in the secret chambers of the soul. It is a piety that strikes its roots deep into the [illegible] God's word, and [illegible] of the dews of God's spirit, whose works as seen of men shall lead them to glorify our Father in Heaven.

Miss Anna S. DeWolf—The University Canvass.

DEAR SOUTHWESTERN.—In the New Orleans Times of the 23rd September, I read the following notice:

"DIED.—At Bay St. Louis, Miss., on the 27th inst., Miss Anna S. DeWolf, daughter of Judge Calvin DeWolf, of Chicago Ills."

The subject of this sketch was for a number of years afflicted with a [illegible] disease caused by the severe climate peculiar to the great lake region or far north in which [illegible] native city. Her friends [illegible] in vain, she had been sent to the far West, for the benefit of a drier atmosphere. The bracing breezes of the Atlantic coast had been tried; and the far north region of Minnesota [illegible]. Finally, two years ago, she thought to make an extended trial of the Gulf [illegible], and being an earnest Christian [illegible] zeal [illegible] good works, she studied, while seeking benefits for herself, to do some good for others. In this spirit, she offered her services to the Freedman's Aid Society as a teacher, and the Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, appointed her to the New Orleans University. Since that time Miss DeWolf has been a faithful worker, beloved and most highly honored by all who have known her, either as connected with our work, or in the society in which she has moved. We shall greatly miss her.

There is one fact that renders her departure at this time and in this manner, peculiarly painful. She was far from home and among strangers. Her family and friends were expecting her to spend the summer months in their midst, [illegible] season, she [illegible] the summer [illegible] the fever was [illegible] in our city [illegible] against New [illegible] and stopped the passage of trains. This rendered it impossible for Miss DeWolf to go north after that, however much she might desire it. We suppose we ought not to complain, but we have to mourn the loss of our friend. Many others have been sacrificed we do not doubt, by the rigid quarantine, but perhaps this very loss may have prevented much greater loss. We do not know.

The students of the university will miss a kind and affectionate friend, a ready counsellor, a faithful guide.

In her name, the writer would invoke all those who were accustomed to her presence in the University hall, to be true to those principles which they so well know she approved.

Many of our friends have fallen during the weeks of scourge, and our city and State, and neighboring cities and States are bowed under the rod of affliction. It is a good time for self-examination and reflection. Shall we not most heartily repent our backslidings, turn to the Lord and renew our first vows?

And now, dear SOUTHWESTERN, I desire to say to the students and friends of the New Orleans University, that my hearty sympathy is with them in this hour of trial. I am pained to remember that I could not be of more direct benefit to them in their affliction.

Early in the spring, some members of the Board of Trustees advised me to spend the summer months in canvassing for the University in the Parishes. In July, Dr. Rust consented to the plan. With the view of carrying out this plan, I left New Orleans 31st August for the Orphan's Home in the Parish of St. Mary. My purpose was to spend just time enough to canvass the main points in the parish, then move to the river parishes and visit the most important points in half-a-dozen of them, and return to the city in season for the Fall term, which was advertised to begin on the 9th September.

But I had scarce reached my first stopping place before it was quarantined against New Orleans, and in a few days every city and parish in the State was quarantined so thoroughly, that several gentlemen born in Franklin, this parish, attempting to go North by way of Texas, were [illegible] men armed with guns, and [illegible] to turn back or stay on [illegible] line for twenty days. [illegible] at the very outset [illegible] circumscribed, and within [illegible] limits. But I have [illegible] what with preaching [illegible] and soliciting among [illegible] people, I have received the pledges of over [illegible] students for the [illegible] this year, from this parish alone. We may therefore expect a very full school when we open. After sugar making, there promises to be the greatest influx of students from the country, that the New Orleans University has ever known. May the blessing of Heaven rest upon this Institution [illegible] the hand of Providence [illegible] the [illegible]mer, for [illegible] there [illegible] power [illegible] the [illegible] above [illegible] treville this season.

J. S. BEAN.

Nashville Notes.

Nashville has been exempt from yellow fever, excepting cases brought from infected districts. We have had almost daily fright [illegible] reports circulated of cases in different parts of the city, and the most exaggerated rumors were current only a few miles from the city, of the desolation wrought by the fever in this city. The city has not been quarantined against any refugees that might come. A hospital for the sick with the yellow fever was established, and those affected were taken there and cared for.

The schools here, have been able to open at the appointed time, and to continue without interruption. With one exception, none of the schools have lost any students here. A young man from Mississippi, came to attend the Fisk University, and having come through Memphis, it is supposed imbibed the disease and died in the University a week after his arrival. The attendance at all the schools has been less than at the same time last year. Some of them were very much less. The Central Tennessee Conference has had a larger attendance of boarding students than at the same time last year; but the entire enrollment is not quite so large. The Medical Department opens most auspiciously. There are fourteen who entered already, and others are to enter soon. The utility of this department has been fully demonstrated by the service which the graduates have already rendered their people in the yellow fever. Dr. J. S. Bass volunteered and went to Chattanooga, doing services which received commendation from the citizens and medical fraternity. Dr. L. D. Key has had to battle with the pestilence in his own field of practice near Memphis, and has done good work. The demand for intelligent physicians among the colored people is great, and those who have gone out from this institution, have met with very kind treatment from the white physicians wherever they have located.

The Theological Department opens well; but instead of twenty-five, there should be fifty or a hundred young men preparing for the ministry.

Clark Chapel, in this city, has been favored with some revival influences lately, and several conversions and additions are reported. The pastor, Bro. Woods, is doing a good work, and is making a very favorable impression on the people as a preacher and pastor. Spruce St. M. E. church, Bro. Rudisill pastor, is coming up out of the wilderness. Several conversions, and real old-fashioned Methodist praying, singing and experiences are heard there, which wonderfully cheers the brethren and encourages those who have held on so steadily for years, believing that God had a work for them to do in Nashville. The work of the M. E. church in Tennessee, is in a hopeful, prosperous condition, and there are none of our own people who have any question as to our usefulness and the necessity of our remaining.

J. BRADEN.

From Our Mission Rooms.

On the coming 9th of November it is expected that three ladies will be going out to India, under the patronage of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church.

There is great want of money, and great stagnation of business too, in Norway writes one of our missionaries, "but still we have been able to collect $6032 81 and this I think is well done by the churches under such circumstances.

A most remarkable revival in the Norwegian District Conference. The Leland and Norway charge under the labor of Rev. J. O. Sanaker. Thirty-two were taken into full connection and fourteen persons admitted on probation. In all during the year, one hundred and twenty-seven have been taken into the church on this charge.

Ju[illegible] writes [illegible]: Bishop Simpson had just made them a pleasant visit Oct. 12th. The Bishop spent Sabbath Sept. 29th at Cimmarron. His talk to the Mexican brethren was easy and simple. He also administered to them the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Interpreted the sermon but he read the Ritual in the service very well. The Mexican people were perfectly elated with his visit. The conference was held at Santa Fe. One Mexican brother had come from a distance of 200 miles; another 300 miles. These two having been elected at the Colorado Conference were ordained deacons. Another brother was licensed to preach.

Our latest letters from Foo Chow, China, August 29th., have an item forshadowing trouble which has come out in the secular papers. The paragraph in our letter is "No news except that the officers are trying hard to get the English mission out of the city. They are trying to get us to persuade the missionaries to accept a compromise before there is too much excitement among the people. I have seen the deeds which though rather faulty I would consider sufficiently clean to hold the ground. The officers claim to be hardly driven by the Literati."

Dr. Thoburn, of Calcutta, Sept. 10th., is beginning his twentieth year of missionary service and is in "pretty good health, and hope I may be spared to the close of the century. But life is held by a slight turn in this land."

A Basket Meeting in St. James.

Editor of SOUTHWESTERN:

Although not a member of any church, I believe in all things that tend to promote and carry out the Ten Commandments—God's holy law. Being a stranger in this place, and feeling somewhat lonesome yesterday, (Sunday) I sought the church to pass off the day. On hearing there was to be a basket meeting at the M. E. church, over which the Rev. Prince King presides, notwithstanding its being three miles or more from where I am stopping. I footed it. I got there some time before the congregation assembled, and amused myself by looking at the church and its surroundings. It is about 500 yards from the river: can seat about 300 people in case of an emergency; has a nice little choir just built, and has everything that goes to make a "nice little country church" except the ceiling and the paintings, and should Rev. King be allowed to remain in his present position, (Presiding Elder) those portions of the work will soon be accomplished. About 10 o'clock the ladies began pouring in, with baskets filled with all kinds of luxuries for the occasion. I took my seat where I could see and hear with ease. Eleven o'clock struck, and the services began by the choir singing a beautiful hymn, and prayer by one of the deacons. Some six or seven ministers preached, each taking up a collection. Although Rev. King came last, and about the time the audience began to feel hungry, still there were nickels enough left to enable him to carry off the prize as to collection. At 3.30 p. m., the meeting was dismissed, the baskets scattered promiscuously around, and nobody left dissatisfied. Your correspondent was invited to the table prepared for the ministers, and was accosted by the sisters during my sojourn at the table, as "brother." I felt a little awkward at being called brother, but the other part of the proceedings came as handy as taking a meal at home.

Good luck to Rev. Prince King and his congregation, may they live long and prosper, and not wait too long before giving another basket meeting.

St. James, Oct. 14th. 1878.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. H. W. Key, Murfreesboro, Tenn., Oct. 14th: "I am in the midst of a most glorious revival, and have been for the last four weeks; the church crowded every night. Fifteen converts during the last revival; 92 during the year; prospective outlook brighter and brighter. The whole church is revived spiritually, temporally and financially. Fifty-four adults and 18 children baptized, and 100 additions to the church during the year. This charge was assessed $1000 this year and the brethren are resolved to raise every cent of it. A new bible and hymn book for the pulpit, and carpeting for the pulpit floor have been secured by the energy of the sisters. All benevolent claims will be raised, and we shall get a clear receipt at conference. We have raised money to build a new church, and deposited it in a bank. We have run the church this year on a cash basis, and paid over $100 of old debts. We raised $30 for yellow fever sufferers, and forwarded it to Memphis."

Rev. John H. Cook, Pontotoc, Miss.: "We have held our protracted meetings at all of our appointments except in town; and we have had about 50 converts and reclaimed, and between 35 and 40 accessions to the church. The Board of Health requested us to postpone our meeting in the city until a killing frost, after which we hope to gain a few more converts. We have baptized about 12, and organized our Sabbath schools into a Missionary Society."

The Fever in Jackson.

DEAR BROTHER:—I ask your permission to say something in the ADVOCATE concerning our condition here in Jackson.

I have no doubt but what you have been informed of the yellow fever being here, but probably you would like to know whether it is increasing or not. Allow me to say in the first place, that as it was so late in the season before the fever made its appearance we indulged the hope that it would not get here. But alas! our hope was in vain.

In August, we had our first case. Sometime in September another case made its appearance. Since that time, the great plague has continued to spread. Now we have over three hundred cases. There has been about 40 or 50 deaths up to date, 4 deaths last night. We have had about 7 new cases in the last 24 hours. This is not as many as usually reported during the same length of time.

The Lord has blessed our church members. Only one has fallen during the fever plague. We have not met at the church for four weeks. This we thought was for our own interest and the city authorities advised us not to congregate together.

Many of us has been made to suffer by the scourge, for our daily bread. $1 85 is all that I have had to support my family with for four weeks. Though I do not complain, neither am I discouraged. The people would do better for me, but they are unable. I am witnessing the hardest time I have had during life. But allow me to ask this question.

Must I be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease;
While others fought to win the prize,
And sail'd through bloody seas?

My dear brother, I believe that we all will have to suffer as long as we are in this world. If we don't one way, we will the other. But thank God, "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to this purpose," I ask the prayers of the brethren.

Yours in Christ.

The Fever in Houma.

Rev. A. E. P. Albert writes from Houma, La. Oct. 25th, to Rev. E. Williams that on the 8th of this month a case of yellow fever was reported by the Board of Health, but the child recovered, and the judgment was criticized. Many who had ran away returned, but yesterday, when everybody felt secure because of recent frost, two cases were reported, one of which, a white woman, died last night, Five new cases broke out. If the scourge continues, a great amount of suffering is expected. The people have been quarantined so long without work, they are without means. The town is in a perfect panic. Many ran away, and those remaining are greatly frightened. It was several hours, before anybody, large sums of money money being offered, could be induced to bury the white woman. No one would wash or shroud her, and she was buried as she died. The once happy village is almost deserted; populated only by a few strong hearted souls and the sick and poor. Rev. Albert says: "I am here by God's grace, and I mean to stay here at my post and do my whole duty, the Lord being my helper."

Emerson Bentley and Rev. Emperor Williams, No. 39 Natchez street, New Orleans:

Dear Brethren:—It is our privilege to send you an additional remittance of Five hundred dollars ($500) for the relief of the suffering in the South by yellow fever which amount we enclose in our certified check payable to your order. While the contributions have materially lessened, we are still reciving small sums which we are glad to forward to you. By the letters which you will find enclosed you will see that other applications for aid are sent to us. We send these two to you for your consideration.

If you think the applicants should share in the amount we send to you, you can perhaps send them relief from your city more easily than we can. We trust to your good judgmement and discretion entirely. Please acknowledge receipt of the check endorsed.

Yours truly,
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
per D. DENHAM, JR.

Relief Acknowledged.

Dear Sir;—Please allow us space in the columns of your paper to tender our thanks to the following brethren for liberal contributions to yellow fever sufferers of Grenada: Rev. G. W. Barney, Macon, Miss., $51; Rev. J. M. Shumpert, of Holly Springs, $15 80 and provisions; Rev. J. Campbell, of Jackson, Miss., $16 20 and provisions to the amount of $20 20, given by the colored societies and churches of Jackson, Miss.; Rev. Peter Blue, of Oxford, Miss., provisions. We also received a check from Rev. J. W. Dunn, P. E. of Greenwood District, for $16 75, payable in New Orleans, which was forwarded there to be cashed, but has never been heard from. Mr. Editor, we tender our thanks to all for their contributions to the suffering people of Grenada. We pray that the Lord will bless the people who responded to our suffering call.

Respectfully yours in Christ,
D. A. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Freedmen's Aid Society.

The annual meeting of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at the Book Concern, on the 16th inst. Bishop Wiley presided, and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. F. C. Holliday, of Indianapolis. Rev. Dr. Rust the Corresponding Secretary, then submitted an abstract of his report, which was as follows:

Another year's labor in behalf of an unfortunate race in our midst is completed. Although our Society during the year has not been able to accomplish all that it anticipated, yet in spite of the financial embarassment of the country, its work, in importance and far-reaching results, has never been exceeded in any year of its history. It has erected more school edifices, more commodious and commanding; educated more teachers, prepared more ministers, led more souls to Christ, set in operation more streams of elevating influence, done more and better work for Christ and humanity than in any like period before. A society prosecuting a work of Christian philanthrophy of such vast magnitude, so imperatively demanded, and so essential to the weal of the nation and the Church, furnishing a record of so great usefulness and promise during a period of unprecedented monetary disasters, demands the heartiest recognition and the most generous support. The Society has aided in the establishment and support of the following schools, five of which have been legally chartered with full collegiate powers:

Chartered Institutions—Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn.; Clark University, Atlanta, Ga.; Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C.; New Orleans University, New Orleans, La.; Shaw University, Holly Springs, Miss.—6.

Theological Schools—Centenary Biblical Institute, Baltimore, Md.; Baker Institute, Orangeburg, S. C.; Thomson Biblical Institute, New Orleans, La.—3.

There are theological classes in all our schools.

Medical Colleges—Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn.; New Orleans Medical College, New Orleans, La.—2.

Institutions not chartered—Bennett Seminary, Greensboro, N. C.; Cookman Institute, Jacksonville, Florida; Haven Normal School, Waynesville, Ga.; La Grange Seminary, La Grange, Ga.; La Teche Seminary, and Orphans' Home, La Teche, La.; Meridian Academy, Meridian, Miss.; Normal School Huntsville, Ala.; Wiley University, Marshall, Texas; Walden Seminary, Little Rock, Ark.; West Tennessee Seminary, Mason, Tenn.—10.

In these institutions the number of pupils taught during the year is classified as follows: Biblical 400; Law, 25, Medical, 50; Collegiate, 75; Academic, 275; Normal, 1,000; Intermediate, 510; Primary, 605. Total, 2,940.

The financial statement for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1878, was then submitted as follows:

Cash assets in treasury July 1, 1877		$597 33
Contributions from July 1, 1878 to July 1, 1878		62,806 52

The following officers and Board of Managers elected, at the last General Conference, were re-elected by the Society to keep its action in harmony with the provisions of the Constitution of the Society:

President—I. W. Wiley.

Vice-Presidents—Hon. M. B. Hagans, F. S. Hoyt, D. D., F. C. Holliday, D. D., Amos Shinkle, Esq.

R. S. Rust, D. D., Corresponding Secretary; John M. Walden, D. D., Recording Secretary; Luke Hitchcock, D. D., Treasurer; Reuben Nelson, D. D., Assistant Treasurer.

Board of Managers—I. W. Wiley, J. F. Larkin, F. C. Holliday, H. De Camp, G. S. Hoyt, Wm. Runyan, M. W. Taylor, J. M. Walden, H. Liebhardt, M. B. Hagans, R. S. Rust, Amos Shinkle, C. O. Edwards, H. B. Ridgaway, W. F. Boyd, L. Hitchcock, W. W. Ramsay, D. W. Rowland, J. J. Hight.

Indian Problem.

Rev. J. H. Wilbur, who has labored as teacher, missionary or agent on the Yakama Indian Reservation since 1860, excepting a single year, has well defined ideas and positive convictions in regard to the management of our red brothers. He says:

"The solution of the whole Indian question rests with Congress. The Indian must be taught to labor. He can be taught successfully, as I have demonstrated. I have had no serious trouble with my Indians. Have never had to use a soldier. Don't want soldiers nearer than the Rocky Mountains. So long as you feed the Indians without labor, you will have to feed and fight him alternately. He must be made to earn his own living. This is practicable. He must have teachers who are imbued with truth from head to foot; men who can hold the plow handles or push a cross-cut saw—men who know how to work themselves, and are not above setting a working example. Army officers cannot work. They are not taught to work. They can 'shoulder arms,' 'present arms,' 'trail arms,' but they cannot make rails and build houses. We can solve this problem in five years. Work! work! Send working, God-fearing men to teach the Indians how to work, and the thing can be settled. Transferring the Indian to the army prolongs the settlement, gives us blood and carnage, demoralization and ruin. God be merciful to the helpless Indian."

Chose ever the plainest road; it always answers best. For the same reason, choose ever to do and try what is most just and the most direct. This conduct will save a thousand blushes and a thousand struggles, and will deliver you from secret torments which are the never failing attendants of dissimulation.

In me, O Lord, abide.
Give daily grace,
Be still thy wounded side
My hiding-place.
Thou art mine only One!
Give me the secret stone.
In me, O Lord, abide,
And I in thee.
—Malherbe.

MERITS AND PARDON.

"Not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences."—Prayer-Book.

Not weighing our merits, most merciful Father,
Alas! lighter than air would the balance then be;
Only pardon we ask Thee for all our offences,
Which rise like a mountain between us and Thee.

Our manifold sins we bewail and acknowledge,
Offences in thought and in deed and in word,
Provoking most justly Thy wrathful displeasure,
Forgive us, O Father, through Jesus our Lord.

We truly repent and are heartily sorry
For these our misdoings, so great in Thy sight;
The remembrance is grievous, we cannot endure it,
We shrink in our sins from Thy glorious light.

But Thou hast said, "Come," to the weary and laden,
God so loved the world as to give His own Son;
And so with these comfortable words of our Savior
We draw near with faith in the Crucified One;

And trusting His merits and perfect forgiveness,
We kneel at His table in lowliest love,
Him praising with angels and highest archangels,
And raising our songs to His heaven above.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE FOREIGN WORK were then carefully considered. So faithfully was the expenditure for each department of the field abroad looked after, that no details were allowed to pass without thorough examination. During the debate on the apportionment to South America, Bishop Harris expressed the view of the Bishops in regard to the peculiar work of Rev. William Taylor in South America and elsewhere. They desired to encourage that work, and to ordain ministers who had a connection with the Annual Conferences, or of the local ministry, who had volunteered to go to that field. The restriction of the Discipline forbade their doing this except the parties were going to some mission field under the care of, or recognized by, this Board. Brother Taylor in behalf of some of his men, was offered congregational ordination, but this he declined, saying he was a Methodist. These brethren went at their own expense, and on reaching their destination had self-supporting work, and were therefore different from the other missionaries, but should be recognized. Bishop Peck said all that Brother Taylor asked was ordination for his men, but this the Bishops did not like to do, unless the Disciplinary disability were removed by the erection of this work where these brethren go into a missionary field under our supervision, which could be done by a slight appropriation. Bishop Haven moved that so much of South and Central America as was not now embraced in our mission field be constituted a mission, and that $500 be appropriated thereto, and the motion prevailed.

When the appropriations for China were under consideration, Dr. Dashiel stated that the amount allowed to our five American missionaries in Foochow was scarcely adequate to their support; besides these, there were seventy-nine native missionaries. In one of the districts in North China Mission boys' schools were supported at a total expense of $150! All the expenditures in that country were in keeping with this.

Dr. Clarke inquired if some portions of this work, which now had been connected with us for some little time, was somewhat self-helpful, and if so, to what degree? Bishop Wiley responded that upon one of the older districts there $1,000 had been raised for their own purposes, and that from men whose wages amounted to ten cents per day. He regarded this as equivalent to the raising of $20,000 here. When the Sub-committee reported favorably on the appropriation to Germany and Switzerland, it was stated from that Mission Conference $1,534 in gold had been paid into the treasury as missionary contribution.

Brother T. W. Price inquired whether the more especial work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in regard to Missions was not rather to heathen lands, where they are deprived of the Bible, than to enlightened Christian countries with Protestant governments, and an open Bible, which they can read if they are so disposed? If his view was correct, he would prefer an increased appropriation for China, and a corresponding reduction for Germany and Switzerland.

Bishop Andrews said that, forty years ago it did seem we had a definite call of providence to Germany. Our first missionaries thought they had a call to go there, and they went under the authority of this Board, and the circumstances and results seemed to warrant this action. The Lutheran Church was not only a [illegible] of South Europe against North Europe. The Lutheran Church [illegible] It was [illegible] the State. The theology [illegible]

[illegible] ticians and worldly-minded men often cannot comprehend the value and force of this doctrine. Luther said, "Believe and be saved," but he did say also, "Whosoever receives these elements of bread and wine at the sacrament of the Lord's Supper receives grace." He did not believe in the transformation of the bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ; but in the consecration of these elements there was some mysterious impartation of Christ thereto. The Bishop called attention to the fact that Wesley thought his mission was to a decayed Christianity, and in this particular our Missionary Society had imitated him. And with what result? Why, with 12,000 Church members. And an increase this year of 500. But the greater effect of the ministry of the M. E. Church, of the Wesleyan Church and of the Albright Brethren and Baptists there, is that that country awakens under them to a new enthusiasm. Wherever they stop and work the ministry of the Establishment becomes more emphasized than formerly. Immediately prayer-meetings and Sunday-schools spring up, and it comes to pass that all through the German and Scandinavian communities our work is a call to a higher and better religious life. At the town of Frederickshald, where Charles XII. met his death, you have a fair illustration of our work. It is a picturesque spot, having about 7,000 inhabitants. When our missionaries went there about 18 years ago there was but one service in the place, and that was held on Sabbath mornings in the very capacious State church, with an attendance averaging about 20 persons. He preached in the Methodist chapel there to about 400 people. The State church has now a crowded morning service, a Sunday-school, a Bible service evening preaching, besides other meetings around the town. That illustrates the power of Methodism there, that besides saving many, it infuses a new evangelical life into society. He thought we were accomplishing more for Christ's kingdom, in bringing the nations of highest intellectual culture into full sympathy with evangelical religion, than we should to continue to only help those who, when converted, would not possess marked ability to evangelize others.

Dr. Reid said, as in the providence of God we had entered Germany, we were not ready to go back and consider as to the propriety of appropriating money for that important work. Only last night he had been reading of an entire Church emigrating from thence to this country. Many of them coming here were received by us as members of our Church, having been converted at home, so that the 12,000 members will not represent those who have emigrated or gone to heaven during all these years. Our brethren there have endured persecution and hardship. Yet they have sent forth a thoroughly evangelical literature, built up by theological schools, reared chapels, and their works are the highest commendation.

Dr. Fowler said a very large percentage of the immigration to this country is German, and is to become a determining element in our American institutions. It would richly pay, as far as possible, to leaven this lump at home.

Dr. Curry thought we did right in taking care of the infant Methodist Churches in Germany. He appreciated the admirable statement of the case made by Bishop Andrews; yet he did not think it wise to subsidize these Churches forever. While in Germany our brethren are doing very considerably in their own support, yet what he pleaded for was, that we should cultivate among our older Missions the habit of self-support.

Bishop Harris said he had the facts and figures by which he believed he could unquestionably show that the preachers there did not receive above $300 on an average. There is no body of Methodist preachers in Europe or America, or anywhere else, who live on less than our German preachers subsist upon.

SATURDAY, NOV. 2.

After the usual discussion of details, the appropriation asked for Denmark was granted; this was also the case with Norway, which had returned in gold, as a contribution to the Missionary Treasury, [illegible]. When the appropriation for Sweden was under consideration Bishop Harris gave an illustration of the zeal of some of the lady members of our Church in Stockholm, whom he knew to have sold shawls from their shoulders to pay subscriptions to their Church. The grant recommended was allowed.

Sixty-thousand dollars was the amount desired for the North India Conference. This large amount was recommended because of the great prosperity and consequent extent of the work, and because also of the extreme poverty of the Hindu people among whom our work is extending. A thorough sifting was given to the items making up the aggregate sought. It was stated by Secetary Dashiell that of all those who were employed in that country there is not now a single missionary out of India who is under pay. A schedule of salaries was adopted by this Board two or three years ago, and according to this schedule over $30,000 were needed to pay the salaries of our American preachers there employed, over $9,000 were required to pay so much of the salaries of the native preachers as were not provided for by contributions from their respective congregations; nearly $60,000 were essential to sustain the schools, etc. On motion of Dr. Hitchcock, it was granted.

A small appropriation was allowed South India. This was because the work there, though very important and encouraging, was mainly among the English residents there, and hence self-sustaining. The Committee recommended same amount as last year, though that fell considerably below the amount desired by the Mission.

Dr. Crawford very efficently represented the necessities of our Mission there, and advocated the making of definite provision for a permanent base of operations in the city of Naples, which has a population of 700,000, and is the most important commercial center of that country.

Bishop Haven thought that field needed a reinforcement of American missionaries to give it a more thoroughly Methodistic character, though he highly appreciated the services of our superintendent there.

Dr. Newman deemed the argument of geographical responsibility of great importance. Therefore he thought prime attention should be given to Mexico, and South and Central America, because of the mutual relations existing between us, and because of geographical nearness. Following out this idea, he would next care for Japan, then China, then India, and lastly Africa because Africa was not ready for us. But few Italian immigrants came to this country, and the reflex influence was slight and he could not favor the additional demands at that point.

On the motion to appropriate a sum with which to more efficently push our work in Italy, Bishop Simpson spoke affirmatively. This he did because he had the strongest conviction that the desired outlay would enable Protestantism to make successful inroads on the Romish faith in Italy, and this accomplished, it would favorably react on Protestanism in its contact with Roman Catholicism here and elsewhere. Protestantism and Catholicism had never met, but Protantism has gained on Catholicism, except under the law of force or of emigration. The grant was then made.

Mexico was considered. At this point the former Consul-General of Mexico, Dr. Skelton, was introduced. Bishop Merrill, at some length, gave an encouraging account of the work in this Mission, and thought, with the possible exception of Japan, there was no other field so promising. The appropriation asked for was granted, which will enable an advance on the present work there to be made.

For Japan the Committee recommended $26,000. Bishop Wiley said our missions there were operated from four principal centers, and were established in 1873. We have sent one man to each of these centers, and the particular locations chosen for them has proven to be very wise, and now they are in great need of reinforcements. Every one of our brethren there are succeeding beyond our most sanguine expectations. We should send four additional men; but in view of other demands, three would be asked for. Japan, by authority of her principal officers, is being covered with public schools modeled greatly after our own. There is a perfect fever in every part of Japan for the highest forms of our civilization and education. Among a number of the promising converts there, God has awakened an intense desire to evangelize their own people. Thirty or forty educated young men of these will come to us. They must be trained and specially prepared for this evangelistic work. This preparation will be much more effectual if made in that country. There should be a school there particularly for this work, and $3,500 will meet its necessities at the present time. This school should rank in the grade of one of our efficient Conference Seminaries, though it would not require a large building. Hirosaki has been selected as its site. It is the capital city of that province, and is an old princely settlement. An old Daimio school has been carried on there for the last hundred years. Under the law the Daimio had to leave that city, and he had always been charged with the care of the school. A young man was sent out to find a teacher for the school, and, though he was unsuccessful in this, he found the great Teacher and was converted. He was again sent out, and secured the son of Dr. Maclay, our superintendent. Under the influence of this young man in that Daimio school of about 300 students, we have now 40 excellent young men and 30 young women converted to God. It was desired to introduce the study of moral philosophy in the school. "What is moral philosophy?" said the Daimio, (a heathen.) "It is the science of doing right and of doing wrong," said our native local preacher. "O, yes," said the Daimio, "we must have that." "Well, the best book of instruction on that is the Christian's Bible," it was said. "O well, then," replied the Daimio, "we must have that," and he went and purchased 40 Bibles to teach moral philosophy in his school. The Bishop did not know of anything like this in his reading of the history of the world. It is a nation of 35,000,000 of people breaking away at once from the history of two thousand years, and from the paganism of more than two thousand years, with the Emperor at their head and all the leading officers following on as fast as possible. It seemed to him that the Lord was placing on America, in regard to Japan, an immeasurable responsibility. He could find nothing so descriptive of the actual condition of things there as the prophetic saying that "a nation shall be born in a day." That prophecy has there been fulfilled. It is not a question of how we can send out a missionary, who might gather a little congregation here and there; but rather of how we can meet a great nation coming to us, and asking us how they can have civilization and Christianity. The Government itself is favorable to us. But a little while ago the present Mikado was opposed to Christianity. The old pagan edicts of 250 years ago were posted up; but in 1873 the policy was changed and they were quietly torn down. While these edicts prevailed the people were afraid to come to us. To show the rapid change of sentiment among the officials, he told of a young lady who wanted to become a Christian. Her father was an old judge. He was asked permission for her to join the Church. "Why do you ask me," he said, "for under our laws I must say no?" But I will waive this law of Japan, and if you will take her to your school, and into your Church, I will say nothing about it." In another instance a certain thing was desired of the Governor. He said, "Why do you ask me when you want a Protestant favor, because according to the law, I must say no? But if you want a thing, go and do it, that is all." And we did go and do it.

Bishop Harris said all this has come to pass within five years. When he was in Japan five years ago, there was no opportunity to do all these things. There was no land on the face of the globe which so presents such an inviting field for usefulness as Japan.

The Committee then adjourned to Monday morning, and Bishop Merrill pronounced the Benediction.

Dr. Dashiell, Missionary Secretary says: "The Methodist Church is doing for the negro what no other Church is doing. I, reared in the South, of a father and mother who owned slaves, fully acquainted with the workings of slavery, having no prejudice against the South, am prepared to judge what the Church is doing there. And I say that the best investment the Church has made for years, is the money she has spent for the colored men."

"Holiness to the Lord."

It breaths in the prophecy, thunders in the law, murmurs in the narratives, whisper in the promises, supplicates in the prayers, sparkles in the poetry, resounds in the songs, speaks in the types, glows in the imagery, voices in the language, and burns in the spirit of the whole scheme, from Alpha to Omega, from its begining to the end. Holiness! Holiness needed! Holiness required! Holiness attainable! Holiness a present duty, a present privilege, a present enjoyment, is the progress and completion of its wondrous theme! It is the truth glowing all over, webbing all through revelation; the glorious truth which sparkles, and whispers, and sings, and shouts in all its history, and biography, and poetry, and prophecy, and precepts, and promise, and prayer. The Wonder is, that all do not see, that any rise up to question, a truth so conspicious, so glorious, so full of comfort.—R. S. Foster.

"What does it mean?" inquired a brother about the election returns. It means that the practical, common sense people of the North who put down the rebellion, are tired of Wade Hampton's hypocrisy and lies and murders; tired of stupid and wicked proscripton in the South. They intend to make it as safe for a Republican, black or white, in South Carolina and Mississippi, as it is in Massachusetts and Ohio. It means that they are begining to understand who are called "carpet-baggers" and "scallawags" in the South, and how negro "insurrections" are caused. It means that they are slowly comprehending the situation and intend to have peace, and that the people may build school-houses and churches in Georgia without fear of the torch of the incendiary. It means quiet and safety in all the States, and obedience to the law, and the sooner ku-klux and moonshiners ascertain these facts and act accordingly the better. It means that bulldozing must cease, and that brains are to rule instead of blab and bludgeons. It means better times, prosperity, higher civilization, freedom and honest fraternity. It means more than this people have yet dreamed of.—Atlanta Advocate.

"He will draw nigh to you." What a sublime and beautiful conception—that of God and man approaching each other, coming near together; man the weak, the sinful, the unworthy, and God the Almighty, infinitely merciful and good. The man approaches by faith; God, with open and perfect vision. Man approaches penitently; God, forgivingly. Man comes in utter poverty; God approaches with hands filled with all good things. Man draws nigh sorrowfully; God comes bearing the balm of heavenly consolation. Man approaches diseased and helpless: God approaches with power and will to cleanse from all unrighteousness. It is a meeting, not with dread on the one hand, and wrath on the other, but a coming together within the atmosphere of infinite and eternal mercy.—Zion's Herald.

The "Eastern question" has been tor solution since the eleventh century, when the Crusaders began their efforts to rescue Palestine from the control of the Turk. At this hour the question has dimensions it never had before. It is now an affair involving the peace of Europe, of Great Britain, of Central Asia and of old Egypt. The Berlin Congress settled nothing, but simply gained time to organize vast movements that in one way or another threaten vast battle shocks. There is an unrest prevading the political world throughout the whole northern and central portions of the Eastern hemisphere, and which will never end while opposite or diverse civilizations confront one another there.—Christian Intelligencer.

The Sunday school is a grand institution and doing a work the importance of which no language can fully express. It is a blessed privilege to attend the Sunday-school and to engage in imparting religious instruction to children, many of whom are not taught the way of peace and truth at home. But the Sunday-school is not the Church of Christ, nor can parents be justified in accepting it as such for their little sons and daughters. The family ought to be in the sanctuary on the Lord's day to engage in public worship. The children should be seated with their parents in the house of God.—California Advocate.

Editorial Correspondence.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 11, 18[illegible]

Yesterday was a pleasant Sunday in more respects than one. The sky was clear, the air was cool and bracing, and I had three pleasant services with as many of our congregation in this goodly city. A is in progress in Spruce street church under the pastorate of Rev. L. A. Rudisill. This church has a good building worth $15,000, and a two story parsonage worth $5,000. The main audience room is not completed, and a debt of $3000 is on the property. It is hoped to complete the audience room the coming winter. Rev. J. Lansing has been laboring for sometime with moderate success in the North, raising money for the payment of the debt. Bro. Lansing, who was a former pastor, claims that he had the location of the church property pointed out to him in answer to prayer; and also, had faith to believe that in five years the house would be completed and filled with people. It is true that a better location could not be secured, and now in the fifth year the house will be completed and for the first time the church is taking its place as an aggressive saving power in Nashville, and the audience is rapidly increasing.

At the beginning of the present conference year, when Bro. Rudisill's pastorate began, the out-look was discouraging. The Sunday-school numbered eight adults and two children. At once all interested in the success of the school went to work, going into the streets and alleys hunting up scholars and inviting them to come. At the end of one month twenty-one were in attendance, and the increase has gone on until the school has reached a membership of ninety-one. In April and May children's prayer-meetings were held, and among the first blessed results was the conversion of one of the Sunday-school girls, who in a few weeks was instrumental in bringing her father and mother into the church. Nineteen of the Sunday-school scholars have been converted. The pastor is fortunate in having as co-laborers, Prof. T. H. Cockill, Sunday-school superintendent, Miss Mary Braden, organist and teacher, and others who are filled with the spirit of the Master, and labor principally and earnestly for success. The prayer meetings have steadily increased in attendance and interest for months. So with the congregation. The present membership is, probationers twenty-nine and full members forty-nine. All the benevolent collections have been taken, $1300 raised for church expenses. During the present revival thirty-five have been converted.

These gracious results are to be attributed to diligent and conscientious work as the discipline directs. Such work insures the saving presence of the Holy Spirit. In this presence all obstacles, including southern prejudice melt away, as is illustrated in the case of several southern brethren who labor side by side with Bro. Rudisill. Oh! may salvation spread to every church in Nashville!

CENTRAL TENNESSEE COLLEGE, begins the year with over one hundred students, and with a better organization of departments, and boarding hall than ever before. Dr. Hubbard has seventeen students in the Medical Department, and the success already achieved by graduates from this Department proves that the instructions are thorough. Dr. Hubbard has promised to give our readers an account of the heroic services done by our young graduate physicians who have gone out from the college during the epidemic. Dr. Braden is always the same quiet, strong man, thorough in instruction, firm in discipline, and undisturbed by perplexities. Those who have in charge our Freedmen's Aid Society schools in the South need especially to be remembered in the prayers of the church. They stand where currents of prejudice meet, which often, even among our friends, severely test their wisdom and courage. God bless Dr. Braden and [illegible] one of his associate teachers. [illegible] work has already been greatly [illegible] but may prosperity in[illegible] year by year. We are glad [illegible] J. W. E. Bowen, A. B., late [illegible] of our New Orleans School [illegible] a teacher at Nashville. He [illegible] be cordially greeted and may [illegible]

CLARK CHAPEL,

[illegible] church in Nashville, Rev. [illegible] [illegible]

d[illegible] good judgment and zeal for Christ, without which neither old nor young can do the [illegible] work well. Clark Chapel strikes the key note for the SOUTHWESTERN canvass for 1879. Nearly all the old subscribers renew and a goodly number subscribe for the first time. This church will have a cash list of fifty and get the splendid gifts offered by our publishers. During the day we met Rev. C. Pickett, Presiding Elder of Nashville District, and Rev. Bro. Butler, Presiding Elder of West Tennessee District, who has been very sick four months. All the preachers are preparing for conference which meets in few days.

FRATERNITY IN TENNESSEE.

Some quite significant incidents have occurred recently in Tennessee illustrating different phases of fraternity among Methodist churches on this Southern soil. The incidents illustrate the growing cordiality between the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the African Methodist Church. The Tennessee Conference of the latter church met at Fayettville recently, and the colored brethren, including Bishop Wayman and Rev. C. O. H. Thomas, the latter of Nashville, were welcomed to and preached in the pulpits of the M. E. Church South, during Sunday of the conference. This was right, and because it was right would need only to be mentioned, was it not for certain other things related to it.

One of these related things was the reception accorded the representatives of the African Church by the Southern Methodist General Conference at Atlanta last May. In that reception there was more than simply Christian cordiality; there was an exchange of expressions which indicated a well defined policy of special interest and co-operation between these churches. So far as that special interest and co-operation leads to a uniting of forces for Christ against sin, including of race cast, let the Lord be praised for it. But why this special cordiality between these brethren at Atlanta, operating in Southern soil side by side, when on the same platform, the representatives of our Church, which has 200,000 colored people and 200,000 white peope on this same Southern soil, and are so carefully and pointedly addressed as Northern brethren? Why one Methodism thus welcomed and the other thus politely reminded that its presence in the South is not desired by the Southern Methodist Church?

The second incident refered to, is the action of the Holston (Tenn.) Conference of the Methodist Church South in tabling a proposition to send fraternal delegates to the Holston Conference of the M. E. Church. Rev. Dr. E. E. Wiley, President of Emory and Henry College said:

> Wherever an effort for fraternity between the two bodies has been made, the other side has always got the best of it. He said there had been no offers of fraternity from that body to this, as far as any act is concerned, and he asks to be excused when it comes to fraternizing with men who attempt to build themselves up at this body's expense. He would take them one at a time when he wanted to fraternize and select his men. He said there were also some of their Bishops he would not meet fraternally. He then got in an attack on "Northern Methodism" as a whole, saying he knew it, and what it is, a collection of legislative acts against Southern Methodism. He thought if this feeling of fraternity came at all it should come spontaneously from the heart, but his judgment is that this whole fraternity thing is a grand piece of hypocrisy on the part of the "Northern Church." His plan is to just let the matter go—let them look out for themselves, and this body for themselves.

Rev. R. N. Price was a little less hostile but considerably more serpentine. He said:

> There are men in both the M. E. and M. E. Church, South, in whom he had no confidence. He believed a large majority of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church would make good ones, and he was so anxious to have only one Methodism, that he was willing to absorb and take them in as a body.

Bishop Kavanaugh, after saying some good things very graciously remarked that he was "disposed to forgive the Northern brethren."

The Knoxville Chronicle, which reports the debate quite fully, in referring to the refusal to send fraternal delegates very properly asks and remarks:

> If Christian ministers, laboring in a common cause of salvation to a sinful world, refuse to hold intercourse with each other, are men to blame who proscribe and refuse to trust each other because they belong to different political parties? But whether they are or not, don't let it be done. Let us set these ministers good examples. Let us cultivate fraternity, and though we may be unable to agree in all things, let us be candid and frank with each other and treat each other as men with common interest and a common destiny.
> We regret to believe that sectionalism [illegible] with its terrible destructive force, in the Christian churches. We regret that this sectionalism is still apparent, though, we hope and believe, becoming less marked and less malignant. There are still good men [illegible] whom we [illegible] the highest confidence, and who are [illegible] good work in their [illegible] who are [illegible] the influence of political prejudice, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]]

These [illegible] sentiments of the Chronicle will prevail in this great South. Bourbon Methodism in the South must die, and it is a part of the mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South to hasten its demise and perhaps to conduct its funeral ceremonies.

The Citizens' Protest.

A committee of the Citizens' Conservative Association submitted to the Governor, on Tuesday 12th, a document concerning the late city election from which we make the following extract;

The denial of proper representation to the Citizens' Association placed the management and manipulation of the election entirely in the hands of those politicians who control the primaries. Thus conducted, the election could not prove other than the result has shown it to be—a travesty upon fairness and a mockery of justice.

With scarcely a pretense at concealment, unsanctioned by any form of law, wrongs have been committed, and the boldest frauds perpetrated by the officers at many of the polls, in the following particulars:

1. In excluding from the polls citizens legally entitled to vote, and registered as the law requires.
2. In knowingly permitting and conniving at the voting of men under assumed names and upon false registration certificates.
3. In receiving ballots cast upon papers of persons notoriously absent from the city.
4. In excluding from the polling booths citizens who claimed the right guaranteed them by the law, of witnessing a proper count and compilation of the votes as cast.
5. In falsely changing vot[illegible] cast and the substitution of others.
6. In counting for candidates votes cast for their opponents.

These charges are based upon affidavits made voluntarily by numerous citizens and which will be duly produced to the proper tribunals.

The people are uneasy and dissatisfied. They feel that justice has been outraged and a wrong committed which threatens the purity and sanctity of the ballot.

These illegal acts, so much calculated to bring reproach upon the first popular administration vouchsafed to us after so many years of misrule, are the more heinous, because the perpetrators claim to be acting in the name of the great party of the people, the Democratic party, which has no more devoted adherents than those who compose the association which we represent.

The signers, Hon. Jules Aldige, C. G. Johnson, Jacob Hassinger, F. Lange, J. G. Parham, W. Flower and W. C. Raymond were subsequently informed by the Governor that his powers would be exhausted in the premises after a reference of the matter to the law officers of the State, as the offences mentioned in the protest were generally, but not particularly specified.

With such a formidable impeachment of the integrity of an election, it will be disgraceful to the city and State, if no power can be found to challenge every charge and apply a remedy for those proven, to the discomfiture of the guilty. Suits of contest have been instituted by several candidates, and the courts will pass upon the subject.

Southern Conferences.

In Texas, the Southern German begins its session at Giddings to-day; the West Texas meets at Columbus, November 28th, and the Texas Conference meets at Bryan, December 5th. Bishop Haven presides at all these. The proceedings of the Austin Conference, held last week at Austin, will appear next week.

In Tennessee, the Tennessee Conference meets to-day at Murfreesboro, and the Central Tennessee meets at Jackson, November 28th. Bishop Scott presides.

In Alabama, the Alabama Conference meets at Brewton to-day, and the Central Alabama meets at Marion, November 28th. Bishop Wiley presides.

In Georgia, the Georgia Conference met last week, and the Savannah Conference meets to-day at Newman, Bishop Wiley presiding.

In Mississippi, the Mississippi Conference meets at Yazoo City, January 15th, Bishop Andrews presiding.

In Louisiana, the Louisiana Conference meets at New Orleans, January 29th, Bishop Andrews presiding.

In Arkansas, the Arkansas Conference meets at Harrison, February 13th, and the Little Rock Conference meets at Van Buren. Bishop Andrews presides.

In Florida, the Florida Conference meets at Monticello, January 8th, Bishop Peck presiding.

In South Carolina, the Conference meets at Greenville, January 23d, Bishop Peck presiding.

In North Carolina, the Conference meets at Greensboro, January 30th, Bishop Peck presiding.

Fraternity in Kentucky.

We have a very pleasing illustration of the growth of Christian fraternity among the Methodists of Kentucky, thus reported in the Nashville Christian Advocate, official journal of the M. E. Church South:

"Rev. W. W. [illegible], Fraternal Delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church, was introduced, and addressed the Conference. His speech was a sensible and satisfactory expression of fraternity. He said that the time had come when all Christians must stand together against the powers of darkness, and that the bond between the two Methodisms in this country was close, as they had the same lineage, the same doctrines, the same memories, and the same sublime purpose. Bishop Pierce said in reply: Methodism is essentially one—one in history, one in purpose, though modified by local differences. Organic union might not be possible or even desirable, but essential unity was, or would be an accomplished fact. He cordially welcomed the Fraternal Representative of our sister Methodist Church and closed amid the applause of the Conference. Rev. George P. Browder and Dr. Lee followed in brief but felicitous remarks, breathing a glowing fraternity."

Col. Zacharie, who was requested by the Governor to investigate the Tensas parish troubles, has submitted his report. Twelve colored men were killed. The Tensas troubles, as is usual in this State and elsewhere, occurred in a Republican stronghold, for the purpose of annihilating majorities that in a fair election would be cast against Democratic candidates. As usual also, colored, and not white men were killed. Tensas, with a population of 11,019 blacks and 4,402 whites, always Republican heretofore, will be officered by Democrats hereafter. "All is quiet."

Here is a Democratic statement of an election incident;

A disturbance occurred at Caledonia, a colored settlement, twenty-five miles below Shreveport, on election day. The Sheriff, on receipt of the news, dispatched a posse to the spot. The affair resulted in the wounding of several white men. The disturbance was originated by the negroes who fired on a party of whites. At last accounts quiet was restored.

N. O. University.

To the Ministers and Brethren of the Louisiana Annual Conference:

I have been transfered by Bishop Harris to your conference and placed in charge of the Theological Department of the New Orleans University; and am now in the field ready for work.

We propose, by the assistance of Divine grace, to make our school a first class Theological Institute. We propose to take our students through a full course of theology and graduate them with the degree of Batchelor of Divinity; and thus enable our ministers to take responsible positions, as leading men in our Church.

A corps of teachers has been provided for the entire school. And what we want now is students. Our people must be educated, cultured, and refined. And our beloved Methodism makes full provision for her children. She opens wide her doors of learning to all regardless of race or color. Our motto is "We are one body in Christ.

Let us, dear brethren, avail ourselves of every opportunity of advancement, and prove ourselves to be worthy sons.

We want the sympathy, co-operation, and prayers of all our brethren; and we promise to be true to all the interests of our people. Let every pastor and Presiding Elder see that all our young men, who are preparing for the ministry, come to our Theological School. And see, too, that the University is filled with students, and all her interests are brought before our people.

A. A. JOHNSON, A. M.,
Prof. of Theology.

NEW ORLEANS UNIVERSITY,
188 RACE STREET.

To the Pastors in charge in the Louisiana Annual Conference:

Dear Brethren:—In this issue of the SOUTHWESTERN you will read an earnest appeal in behalf of our Theological Department from the pen of Rev. A. A. Johnson, who has been recently transfered from the South Eastern Indiana Conference to this field of labor. His special work is to build up the Theological Department of the New Orleans University, and he comes with cheer and gladness written on his countenance. He is personally known to the highest authorities of our Church and is fully endorsed by them. His heart in this work and his fitness for the [illegible] task in [illegible] tinued.

Let us have the hearty co-operation of all our brethren. Urge the young people to come to the New Orleans University, and we will do them good.

Read our advertisement in the SOUTHWESTERN from the pulpit to your people.

Central Tennessee Conference Letter.

The pastors are busily engaged preparing for conference, and are in good spirits. Rev. J. W. Reggister, pastor of St. John's Church, Memphis, has had a year of trouble and sorrow. He remained at his post during the terrible epidemic. His wife was numbered among the sick ones, but God spared her; at this writing she is rapidly recovering. Last week Bro. Reggister was summoned to the supposed death bed of his father. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth."

Bro. Knight, of Dickson, is having the parsonage plastered, ready for conference. He reports homes plenty for those who may attend. Dickson Seminary, under charge of Bro. Turner, is still holding its own.

Stewart circuit suffered no little from the effects of yellow fever. Our church lost valuable friends, among them Mrs. Geo. W. Simpson, a noble, true Christian woman; cultured and refined. Her home was always open to our preachers. Many happy hours have I had in her cheerful home. Bro. S. has lost a good wife, the child a loving mother, society a valuable member She died in the triumphs of the Gospel.

Rev. F. Deal, of Long Branch circuit, has had a glorious year. He reports 102 conversions; four new churches, and the collections advanced. His people earnestly desire his return. So it is earnest, working ministers are sought after and are always in demand.

Bro. S. Davis, who has supplied Bradford circuit the past year has so endeared himself to the people, that they demand his return next year. Bro. Davis is a consecrated man, full of religion, fond of children and makes friends wherever he goes. He has had a good year.

Shelbyville station has advanced. New life has taken hold of the church. Rev. J. M. Carter has proven himself the man for the place. The class and prayer meetings are spiritual. The tower of the church has been completed, and paid for. Now the brethren are looking for an old fashioned revival.

Old fashioned Methodism is revived and sinners are being saved; the church built up and God's people rejoicing in the privilege of working for Jesus. Our preachers are busy preaching "righteousness, temperance and judgment to come."

The Tullahoma College, under the presidency of Rev. T. C. Carter, is pushing its work forward. Plans for the future are being successfully carried out. SCRIBE.

Nashville Correspondence.

A movement is on foot among the revival churches of the city, looking to the enactment of a law, both in the city and State legislatures, which will more effectually control gambling, liquor selling and kindred vices. A convention, composed of five delegates from each church, in sympathy with the movement, will convene Sept. 21st, at 7 p. m., in McKendree church.

Spruce Street Church was the scene of quite a pleasant occurrence on Wednesday evening. The pastor united a happy couple in the bonds of matrimony. The church was filled with a fine audience, and everything passed off pleasantly.

Central Tennessee College is having a prosperous year. There are more "boarding students" than at any previous session. The President and faculty are successful educators, and are doing a grand work for time and eternity.

The different city churches are engaged in the revival work, and nightly, "souls are being borne into the kingdom." The Spruce Street Church is closing its fifth week of revival work. Nashville needs a baptism of the Holy Ghost—an old time revival, such as shall sweep out of existence the dens of iniquity, and thus remove temptation from our young men.

Clark Chapel gave Bro. Hartzell a list of subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1879, of 53 names. The colored people feel that that the SOUTHWESTERN has a special claim upon them and hence gladly subscribe for it. There will not be less than 100 copies taken here next year. A.

Rev. C. Rogers, Ripley, Miss.: "We are in a better condition than before in three years. Thank God we have the right man in the right place at last, Rev. J. M. Rev. Geo. W. Barney, Macon, Miss.: "We have just closed a protracted meeting which resulted in ten converts, thirty additions to the church, eleven baptized. This is a good three months work. We want a Young Men's Christian Association here."

TENNESSEE.

Rev. H. W. Key, Murfreesboro, Tenn.: "I entertain no doubt about providing homes for all in attendance at the Tennessee Conference, either as members or visitors. The generous people of Murfreesboro are determined to take care of all that may come. I have provided homes for our white brethren among the most influential of white citizens. Our church was honored last Sunday with the reception of a new bible, hymn-book and carpet on the pulpit floor, presented by Susan Green, on behalf of a committee, with an appropriate speech. The trustees are making general repairs on the church to give it as neat an appearance for conference as possible."

Christian Work Among the Freedwomen of the South.

(Chicago Inter-Ocean, Nov. 8.)

To the Methodist Women of Chicago and the Northwest.

Dear Sisters: For nine years I have lived in New Orleans, and have observed with constant joy the great work being done by the Methodist Episcopal Church in building up churches and schools among the freedmen. That work in all its departments has been a success, not only in the number of churches and schools established, but in its practical effects among the colored people.

But my heart has been moved by the great need of a more direct effort to save and elevate the freedwomen. Upon colored women the curse of slavery fell in its most degrading effects. Every womanly instinct of virtue and refinement was outraged, and their sex made simply the convenience of unbridled passion or considered of no higher value than to propagate their species for purposes of gain. There were exceptions, but I speak of the rule. And this terrible crime against humanity was not only perpetrated a single generation, but was kept up for many generations, until, alas! the disposition and habits born of slavery have, to an alarming extent, become engrafted upon their natures. This fact is spoken, not as a disgrace to them, but as a disgrace to our land of boasted Christian civilization which sanctioned slavery.

The colored people must have schools and churches, but there can be but little advance in virtue and real Christian civilization only as their women are inspired by womanly instinct and home-life is developed among them. Many among the freed people, since coming out of bondage, have settled into homes, and some of these are real homes; but among those that have made the attempt there is a sad lack in nearly every element of domestic comfort. Then among the great masses, who swarm in the rural districts or are huddled together in the quarters on plantations, there is scarcely a thought of the comforts, and but few ideas of the moralities belonging to a Christian home. O! think of these dusky sisters in their degradation, and remember that they are in our own land, at our very doors; and that their husbands and sons, among whom are 700,000 voters, will be as they are, in virtue and morality.

The plan is to send lady missionaries among this people and have them operate in connection with our churches and Freedman's Aid Society schools. The Chicago Methodist Prerchers' meeting on Oct. 28 passed unanimously the following resolutions:

Resolved. That we are profoundly impressed with the great necessity of organized Christian effort to elevate the freedwomen of the South, and that we believe this special department of missionary labor can be successfully inaugurated and carried forward in connection with our churches and Freedman's Aid Society schools in the Southern States.

Resolved. That we greet with pleasure in our midst Mrs. Hartzell, of New Orleans, who, with other ladies in the South, and in harmonious consultation with the Freedmen's Aid Society, is inaugurating this work in New Orleans and vicinity: and that we commend this work and its representatives to our ministers and people.

This work has for years occupied the thoughts and awakened the sympathies of many of our chief ladies in the North. At Cincinnati Mrs. Bishop Clark, Mrs. Dr. Rust, Mrs. Dr. Hoyt, and others, as well as not a few ladies in various cities, have had this work on their hearts. The expectation is that a permanent organization for this special labor will be effected. In the meantime the sympathies and prayers of these elect ladies are extended to us in our efforts to inaugurate the work in Louisiana. Dr. Rust partially supported one lady missionary in New Orleans the past year, but he is pressed for means to support his teachers and schools, and must not be asked to take the financial burden of this extra work.

Our plan is to begin in New Orleans the 1st of January with at least four lady missionaries. Their work will be among the young women connected with our New Orleans university, and the women, old and young, in as many of our colored churches as they can reach. From this begining we hope to extend the work throughout the State.

The duties of these missionaries will be:

1. To visit these people in their homes.
2. To arrange for and hold mothers' meetings.
3. To arrange for and hold meetings for young women.

These visits and meetings will have for their objects:

1. Religious and moral instruction.
2. Suggestions and advice on all matters relating to home life, and instructions as to personal habits and tastes.
3. Wherever possible, instruction in plain sewing and other useful home work.
4. To increase the attendance upon our schools and churches, and to labor always and everywhere to save the souls of these women, and help them into consistent and earnest Christian lives.

This work will require money. I have devoted this month of November to testing your real interest in this work. My address will be care of Hitchcock & Walden, Chicago, until Dec. 1. I have had printed some cards on which is a simple pledge to raise $10 to help us in 10 cent subscriptions. Send to me for a card and help us. Some may not care for the cards and will send help direct. Please do so. All moneys received and work accomplished will be reported in a published statement.

Your sister in Christ,
MRS. J. C. HARTZELL.

New Publications

We have received from Eben Shute publisher, Boston, a "Chronological Chart of the Life of Christ," prepared by Rev. R. R. Meredith, president of the Boston Sunday School Union, intended for Sabbath School use, and suitable for the review of the six months international lessons. Price 25 cents. It is ingenious and of value in imparting a connected outline of the life of Jesus.

The December Scribner contains fictions by four of the leading American novelists, viz: Mrs. Burnett's "Haworth's" (the second instalment, which is full of action and increased literary strength); "The Great Deadwood Mystery," by Bret Harte, a complete story in a semi-satirical vein and including one of the most interesting scenes in his writings; "An Irish Heart," a pathetic Oldport story by T. W. Higginson, and the fifth installment of Mr. Boyesen's "Falconberg." The illustrations of Dr. Brewer's fourth paper on "Bird Architecture" (The Humming Birds) are regarded by the managers of the Monthly as among the most exquisite cuts yet published by the Magazine. In public discussion there are some timely papers by experts; "Are Narrow-Gauge Railroads Economical?" by Lorenzo M. Johnson, an engineer who has built both broad and narrow gauges, and a painter's view of "Art at the Paris Exposition." Other papers are "Undergraduate Life at Oxford," by Ansley Wilcox, "My Look at the Queen," by Treadwell Walden, and "He Playing She," a light sketch of college theatricals in former days. Poems are contributed by "H. H.," L. Frank Tooker (a new poet), Anna Katherine Green, and Henry S. Cornwell. Dr. Holland discusses "[illegible]ent," "Litera[illegible]," "Social [illegible]ing." CHEAPEST BIBLE EVER SOLD.—See in another column an advertisement of Illustrated Family Bibles at astonishingly low prices. The American Family Bible Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, is fully able to do what they offer, and we understand that every one who has bought a Bible of them are more than pleased; their Bibles are self-explaining, and the amount of extra matter they bind with the Bible, if bought seperately, would cost more than they ask for the Bibles. The firm is first-class and the Bibles can be returned if purchasers are not satisfied.

MESSRS. MARCHAL & SMITH have perfected a plan for the sale of their Pianos and Organs, which has proved universally popular. They furnish Organs ranging in price from $40 to $500, or Pianos from $125 to $1,000, to every one who wishes to buy, and if, after thorough examination and trial by disinterested judges, it proves in any way unsatisfactory to their customer, they receive it back, paying freight both ways. This gives to every one an opportunity to examine and test their instruments free from risk or expense. Beautiful and perfect instruments are necessary to make their plan successful; and they have thousands of commendations from all parts of the world testifying to the excellence and beauty of their instruments. Their offers are worth the attention of every one who thinks of buying a Piano or an Organ. Full particulars, with illustrated lists, are mailed free on application to Marchal & Smith, 47 University Place, New York.

SPOOL COTTON AT PARIS.—The spool cotton manufacture were well represented at the great Paris Exhibition. Spool cotton in itself seems a comparatively small thing, yet its use is so universal that it enters into the female economy of every family in the world to whom clothes are a necessity. The manufacturers of spool cotton strain every nerve to attain such recognition from the judges at International Exhibitions, where people are brought together from all parts of the world, as will place them at the head of competitors. So simple a thing is it apparently, that but few people have any idea of the care taken, the skill shown, or the machinery employed in bringing the raw material to the perfect thread as used by the public. So much depends upon each individual process, from the selection of the raw material upto the final examination of the finished thread for the purpose of throwing aside what may be in any way defective, so that none may be put upon the market that is not absolutely perfect, that the slightest slip in any one point may be fatal to the reputation of a brand of thread. Hence the oldest and most experienced manufacturers, such as J. & P. Coats, who lead the markets of the world in spool cotton, are enabled to hold their own against all younger competitors. It is well known that J. & P. Coats have manufactured spool cotton, Paisley, at Scotland, for many years, but it is not so well known that they have at Pawtucket Rhode Island, the largest spool cotton mills in the United States, where they manufacture through every process, from the raw cotton to the [illegible] spool.

O[illegible] brought from the [illegible] for this purpose the best skilled labor from Scotland and the finest machinery for every process, so that the thread made at Pawtucket is of exactly the same quality as that which has made their name so famous in connection with Paisley, Scotland.

This firm have been awarded a gold medal at the Paris Exposition of 1878, that being as high as any given for six-cord spool cotton. The honors previously obtained by Messrs. J. & P. Coats were—first in London, in 1862; Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873 (Ribbon of Knighthood); Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, 1876, Diploma for "superior strength and excellent quality." It has been reported that there was a Grand Prize awarded for spool cotton, but Mr. Archibald Coats was in Paris October 21, when [illegible] awards were officially [illegible] telegraphed to Auchincloss Brothers the agents for [illegible] New York, that they [illegible] medal and also [illegible] by the judges [illegible]

ARE FAT PEOPLE HEALTHY.

Why are fat people always complaining? [illegible] some one who entertains the popular though erroneous notion that health is synonymous with fat. Fat people complain because they are deceased. Obesity is an abnormal condition of the system, in which the saccharine and oleaginous elements of the food are assimulated to the partial exclusion of the muscle-forming and brain-producing elements. In proof of this, it is only necessary to assert the well-known fact that excessively fat people are never strong, and seldom distinguished for mental powers or activity. Besides, they are the easy prey of accute and epidemic diseases, and they are the frequent victims of gout, heart disease, and apoplexy. Allan's Anti-Fat is the only known remedy for this disease. It contains no acid, is absolutely harmless, and is warranted to remedy the most confirmed case of obesity, or corpulency.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., the proprietor of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, and also the Invalids' and Tourists' Hotel, of that city, has recently been elected to Congress by the very flattering majority of nearly 3,000. He has already served his constituency as State Senator, and this renewed endorsement signifies that his services have been highly satisfactory. His extensive practice in the treatment of Chronic Diseases will not, we are informed, be neglected or suffer in the least when the time arrives for him to take his seat in Congress, it being trusted to his brother and other experienced medical gentlemen who have long been associated with the Doctor in the Medical Department of his celebrated World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel. Besides, as the Forty-sixth Congress does not convene until December, 1879, Dr. Pierce's patients will not lose his personal attention for some months yet.

Benson's Capcine POROUS PLASTER.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.

There is no comparison between it and the common slow acting porous plaster. It is in every way superior to all other external remedies including liniments and the so-called electrical appliances. It contains new medical elements which in combination with rubber, possess the most extraordinary pain relieving strengthening and curative properties. Any physician in your own locality will confirm the above statement. For Lame Back, Rheumatism, Female Weakness, Stubborn and Neglected Colds and Coughs, diseased Kidneys, Whooping cough, affections of the heart, and all ills for which porous plasters are used, it is simply the best known remedy. has been awarded at the Paris Exposition of 1878 to for their best Six-Cord Spool Cotton, confirming the estimate placed upon their goods at all the World's Expositions, from that at London, 1862, to the Centennial Exposition of 1876, where they took a Diploma for "SUPERIOR STRENGTH AND EXCELLENT QUALITY."

J. & P. COATS

A Second-class Prize of a Silver Medal was taken by the Willimantic Linen Company, which claims to be the special champion of American industry, and which has extensively advertised a Grand Prize at Paris.

NO GRAND PRIZES were awarded for Spool Cotton at Paris.

J. & P. Coats have established in Pawtucket, R. I., the largest Spool Cotton Mills in the United States. Every process of manufacture, from the raw cotton to the finished spool, is conducted there. Their American-made Spool Cotton took the award at the Centennial, and while they have never claimed special merit for their American-made Spool Cotton over that manufactured in their Scotch Mills, we have the satisfaction of announcing that they have so identified themselves with the country, that

Our Class Leaders.

We are often asked for the names of books suitable for class leaders. We recommend the following and ask the Presiding Elders and Pastors to do all they can to put these books in the hands of the leaders.

1. The Class-Leader: His Work, and How to do it. With illustrations of principles, needs, methods and results. By Rev. John Atkinson, A. M. 12mo., $1.50.
2. Address to Class-Leaders. By Bishop Janes. 12mo., 30c.
3. Seed-Thoughts; A Hand-Book of Doctrine and Devotion. By Rev. Geo. C. Robinson. Price $1.00.
4. Father Reeves, Methodist Class-Leader. By Edward Corderoy. 18mo., 35c.
5. All for Christ: How the Christian may Obtain, by a renewed Consecration of His Heart, the fullness of Joy Referred to by the Savior just Previous to His Crucifixion, with Illustrations from the lives of those who have make this consecration. By Thomas Carter, D.D. 16mo., 75c.

For any of these books address Nelson & Phillips, New Orleans.

The Class-Leader.

His Work, and How to Do It.
With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.
BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,
Author of "Garden of Sorrows."

12mo. $1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who means business. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest, and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

COURSE OF STUDY FOR Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, § 5 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I. Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. FIRST YEAR. The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

TO BE READ. Scripture History—Old Testament. Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. 1. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose license has to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

The Methodist Hymnal, AND Hymnal with Tunes.

We are now prepared to fill orders for the following editions of the "METHODIST HYMNAL:"

Pearl, Plain	$0 40
Pearl, Red Edge	0 50
24mo, Plain	0 50
24mo, Red Edge	0 65
24mo, Roan, Embossed	0 75
24mo, Roan, Gilt Edge	1 00
16mo, Plain	0 75
16mo, Red Edge	1 00
16mo, Roan, Embossed	1 20
16mo, Roan Gilt Edge	1 40
*Hymnal with Tunes, 12mo	1 00
Hymnal with Tunes, 8vo	1 75

Since the manuscript of the Hymnal was delivered by the Committee, October 26th, last, time has been required to prepare and perfect the indexes, to complete the arrangements of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts, and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal, and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

New Church Record.

We can now sell the "Record" at a price much less than we have ever been able to do. It is a large quarto, containg about 180 pages, divided into seven sections, namely:

- Record of Pastors.
- Record of Classes.
- Record of Official Members.
- Alphabetical Record of Full Members.
- Record of Probationers.
- Record of Baptisms.
- Record of Marriages.

We are confident that this record will meet the demand long felt, namely, a cheap book, suitable for a majority of our churches. Price, $2.50.

Laughter.

Laughter very often shows the bright side of a man. It brings out his happier nature and shows of what stuff he really is made. Somehow we feel as if we never thoroughly knew a man until we had heard him laugh. We do not feel 'at home' with him till then. We do not mean a mere snicker, but a good, hearty, round laugh. The solemn sober visage, like a Sunday's dress, tells nothing of the real man. He may be very silly or very profound, very cross or very jolly. Let us hear him laugh and we can decipher him at once, and tell how his heart beats.

Mary Stafla, of Traverse, Mich stepped on a loose floor board and fell through in the room below, where sat a young man who had not seen her before. He may have been sentimentally impressed by the fact that she came down to him from above, for before night he asked her to marry him and she assented; but evidently he judged too hastily, for within two months he applied for a divorce.—Exchange.

Be not disheartened, as if comfort would not come at all, because it comes not all at once; but patiently attend God's leisure: they are not styled the swift, but "the sure mercies of David." Be assured when grace patiently leads the front, glory at last will be in the rear.—Fuller.

Grace is free in all and for all. It does not depend upon any power or merit in man, neither in whole or in part; neither upon good works, nor good tempers, nor good desires, nor good intentions. These are the fruits of free grace, not the root.

PATENTS

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada, and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office, we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost, than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German-American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. [illegible]

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

Nelson & Phillips, Publishers. J. C. Hartzell, B.D., Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, NOVEMBER 1, 1878.

DEAR BROTHER:—The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is your official church paper, and is published by order of the General Conference, at New Orleans. Besides religious news, the SOUTHWESTERN will contain articles on education, agriculture and politics. The more your people read from a good paper the more intelligent and active will they be as Christians, and the better will they support you and help in all the work of the church.

To aid you in the good work of circulating the SOUTHWESTERN we make the following most liberal propositions:

I. Two Months Free.

Every New subscriber for 1879 will receive the paper Free for the remainder of 1878. For example: If a subscriber gives you his name and two dollars November 1, 1878, he will receive the paper the two months remaining in 1878 and the whole year of 1879, making in all fourteen months for one year's subscription.

II. Cash Commissions to Agents.

All traveling Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are our authorized agents. We pay our agents the following cash commissions:

1. We send them their own paper for one dollar a year, just half price. This is the same as paying one dollar cash on their subscription.

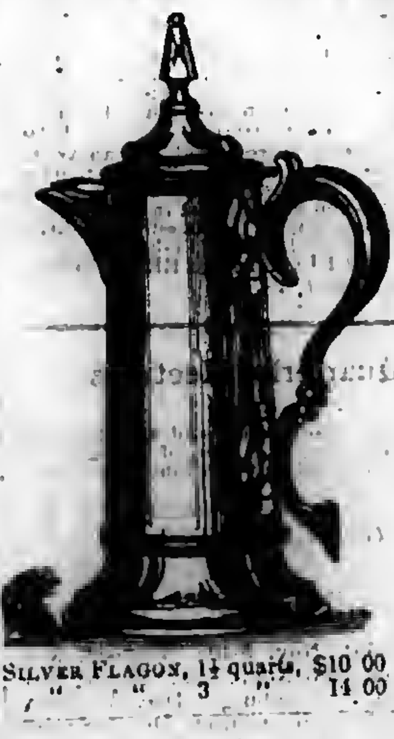
2. We pay twenty-five cents cash for every yearly subscriber. Whenever an agent collects two dollars for us he is authorized to keep twenty-five cents from the amount as his commission, and send us $1.75.

III. A Steel Engraving of John Wesley to Every Subscriber.

We give as a present to every yearly subscriber, a large and elegant steel engraving of John Wesley, the great founder of Methodism. This engraving retails at $1.50, but as we own the original plate and do our own publishing, we can afford to present one of these beautiful pictures to every subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN. The best judges pronounce the portrait a life-like picture of Wesley, and the engraving is first-class. The picture is 16x20 inches in size. Remember, we give this engraving as a present to every yearly subscriber as soon as the two dollars are paid.

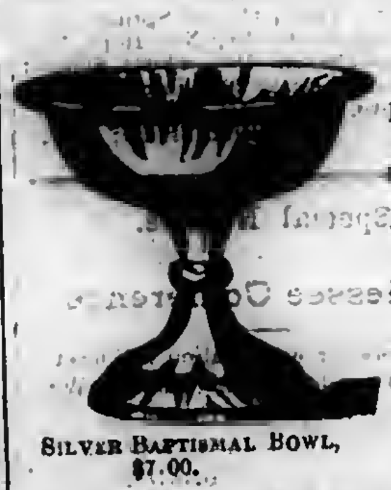
IV. Silver Communion Ware for the Churches.

All our Churches need Communion Service Sets and we want them to have the best. By a most fortunate combination of circumstances we are enabled to put it within the reach of almost any Church to receive as a Present some of the best triple-plated Silver Communion Ware that is made. Here are pictures of the different pieces:



SILVER FLAGON, 1½ quarts, $10 00
" " 3 " 14 00

SILVER PLATE,
10 inches wide $4 00



SILVER BAPTISMAL BOWL,
$7.00.

These prices are the Manufacturers lowest retail prices. This silver ware is such as is used in the best Churches throughout the country

SILVER GOBLET,
1 pint, $4.50.

REMEMBER this Silver Communion ware is given to the Churches in addition to the cash commissions to the Agent, and the steel engraved portrait of John Wesley to every subscriber. Our propositions to the Churches are as follows:

1. To any Church sending us Twenty Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon that will hold one and a half quarts, and worth $10 00.
2. To any Church sending us Twenty-five Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, and a Silver Plate worth $4. Total $14.
3. To any Church sending us Thirty-five cash subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, and a Silver Goblet worth $4 50. Total 18 50.
4. To any Church sending us Fifty cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, a Silver Goblet worth $4 50, and a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7. Total $25 50.
5. To any Church sending up Seventy-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon holding three quarts, worth $14, a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7, two Silver Goblets worth $9 and two Silver Plates worth $8. Total, $38.

☞ NOTICE.—These magnificent presents are sent to the Churches complying with these terms, as soon as the money is received by us. This offer stands good for the whole year of 1878, and the present will be sent whenever, during the year, the money is received.

Our Liberal Offer.

We claim that the offers we have made on the preceding pages are very liberal. It will be noticed that we propose helping—FIRST, the preacher, who acts as our agent in getting subscribers for us; SECOND, every subscriber who takes the paper and pays for it; THIRD, the congregation where twenty or more subscribers are obtained.

FOR EXAMPLE: Suppose a pastor and his people secure twenty yearly subscribers at two dollars apiece that would be forty dollars. As the preacher gets twenty-five cents for every subscriber, five dollars of the forty dollars will belong to him. As soon as the remaining thirty-five dollars are received by us, we will send as a present to the congregation an elegant silver flagon worth ten dollars. We will also send twenty steel engravings of John Wesley, one for each subscriber.

☞ Let it be understood that EVERY YEARLY SUBSCRIBER gets a steel engraving as soon as his subscription is paid, and for every two dollars collected the pastor will get twenty-five cents. The elegant Silver Communion Ware given to the Churches is IN ADDITION to what we give the pastor and each subscriber.

Our Terms.

1. The SOUTHWESTERN costs $2 a year, cash in advance. We pay the postage.
2. Where the preacher will be personally responsible for the money, we will send the papers; but no commissions will be paid the preachers, or steel engravings sent the subscribers, or silver ware sent to the churches, until the money is received at our office.
3. Cash in advance is the best rule for all parties. We get the money and are saved embarrassment: the preacher gets his commission: the subscriber gets his steel engraving at once, and the church gets its silver communion ware for immediate use.
4. Send the money by Postoffice Order whenever possible.

BEGIN THE CANVASS AT ONCE.

We need five thousand subscribers, and if all our Agents will take hold of the canvass at once, and push it for sixty days, we shall have them.

Let the canvass begin at once. We will send you a specimen copy of the steel engraving to show the people. Take this engraving and a copy of the paper and show them to your congregation, and explain the value of the paper and our liberal offers.

Has your Church a good Set of Communion Ware? If not, you need one, and now is your chance to get one as a gift. Explain our proposition to give Silver Communion Ware, to your official board, and get the brethren to unite in helping to secure twenty or more subscribers, and secure some of our magnificent presents.

We will furnish you all the specimen copies of the SOUTHWESTERN you want, free, whenever you ask for them.

We will pack securely and deliver, without extra charge, to the best freight line running to your station. The organ weighs 230 pounds boxed.

In order to introduce this new and beautiful Mirror Top Organ, we will sell the first hundred at the extremely low price of $85, for we know that the purity and power of their tone, their piano-like case and promptness of action and their exquisite beauty, will make every one of them an advertisement to bring us other sales. Over thirty thousand of our Organs and Pianos are in use in every part of the world, and in no case have we failed to please our customers. Jealous rivals and small agents have endeavored to sell their inferior wares by attempts to destroy confidence in our instruments. Their utter failure is shown by the thousands of voluntary testimonials which we have received and the rapid increase of our business. Our system of sales is so fair and reasonable that the jealousy of rivals and the slanders of agents cannot hurt its benefits. We make Organs and Pianos of every variety, ranging in price from $50 for a handsome five octave, double reed Organ to $500 for one with six sets of reeds. Pianos range in price from $125 for a good seven octave Rosewood and $150 for a seven octave Upright, to $1,000 for a Magnificent Square Grand. We send every instrument to be tested for fifteen days in the room where it is to be used, and ask no pay till it has been thoroughly tested and found satisfactory. Order at once if you wish to secure the benefit of the low price.

Meeting of the General Missionary Committee.

MONDAY MORNING, NOV. 4.

Bishop Harris called the Committee to order, and Brother Kelly led in the devotional services. Dr. Newman called attention to a paragraph in one of the daily papers, which seemed to reflect on the work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. On motion of A. K. Sanford the matter was referred to a Committee, consisting of Bishop Simpson, Dr. Newman, and Bro. Barnes. This Committee reported the following, which was adopted unanimously: "That this General Committee entertain the kindest feelings for the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and recognized it as a valuable auxiliary in the foreign field; but this Committee is not responsible either for the details of its management, or any criticisms which may be made on any part of its operations."

G. J. Ferry moved that before considering the appropriations for the several Domestic Missions the amounts allowed on be settled, and the motion prevailed. As a result, the appropriations for the contingent fund, incidental expenses, and the office expenses were discussed, and determined. A very earnest discussion ensued when the item of appropriation for the dissemination of Missionary intelligence was reached.

J. C. Ferry thought that more Missionary intelligence was the one thing especially needed. He believed the Treasury was suffering [illegible] loss of from one to two [illegible] because [illegible] of our Church [illegible] associated with the [illegible] Missions which [illegible] of our Secre[illegible] great [illegible] those who [illegible] Missionary [illegible] should be [illegible] of the [illegible] ted. We must [illegible] This [illegible] fixed, and have exceeded by about $5,000 the appropriations of last year. If a magazine publication were inaugurated, we must expect to appropriate more largely to it in another year. He thought they were shut up to an appropriation of about $3,000 for Missionary intelligence, or to enter upon a new era in this respect of an enlarged plan of publishing our Missionary intelligence. Having now the medium of so many weekly papers at the disposal of the Missionary Secretaries, or any brother who will give information of Missionary effort and success, thus the membership of the Church could be very generally reached, and in a more successful way than any magazine could reach them. A new magazine presupposes the extra amount necessary for editing, composition, stereotyping, etc.; and are we ready thus to launch out on a new enterprise, when at every other point we are practicing a judicious retrenchment? It is to take out $15,000 from the Domestic Missions to use on an experiment.

Dr. Fowler said this matter was now put before them in the wrong place and wrong time. He would move this item be postponed until after the appropriations to Domestic Missions were concluded. When the necessities of the Border and of the West have been presented and provided for, then it will be time enough to vote an appropriation for the contemplated monthly. A million people have crossed the Mississippi River during the last twelve months, and a large multitude have gone into the South; and it is about demonstrated that what evangelical work is to be done in large portions of the South must be done by the Methodist Episcopal Church. For the necessities of the white work in Texas not less than ten thousand dollars are demanded. A great field is open in Georgia, where the preachers are living on such starvation prices as to have compelled them in some instances to have sent their families to the homes of their parents. He thought The Christian Advocate had been given as much to the spreading of Missionary intelligence as could well be done. If we have not put this needed intelligence before the people in the best way, let us try every other method until we do succeed. He could but hope for the settlement, first, of the appropriations for the Domestic Missions.

Bishop Ames did not know that he was a convert to the idea of a new monthly magazine, even in the eleventh hour. We have given to the foreign work some $5,000 more than last year. We have provided for the office, etc., without diminution. Now, we have reached a point where we have to provide for our home Missions. He wished they could realize from personal observation what all this Border work means. The question is, whether we shall take from these brethren their subsistence, which now is very meager, living mainly on coarse food, and devote $10,000 in an experiment in publication? It was no time to curtail our appropriations to this Border work, yet this would be the result of an appropriation to a magazine.

Bishop Simpson supposed there was no difference of judgment about doing liberally for our home work. Neither was there any difference of opinion as to the importance of Missionary articles in the Church papers, and he hoped the editors would be as faithful in this particular in the future as in the past. But the question is, Can we not do something [illegible]. It was a shame that with [illegible] thousand members we were not doing as well in proportion as when we had twelve hundred [illegible]. He knew there was something to be ascribed to hard times, but he did not believe that the times were the sole cause of this declension. We had lost ground by ceasing to publish the Missionary Advocate, [illegible] yet that was not in the [illegible] for the highest efficiency [illegible] for the advocacy of a [illegible] was that more [illegible] into the Missionary [illegible] both for the home [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] they had ap[illegible] the maximum [illegible] publish a monthly of thirty-two pages.

J. M. Phillips gave some estimates, recently made, on exactly such a magazine as the one contemplated, and the estimates on composition, paper, press-work, binding and postage would amount to about $3,600 per year. Of course, there would be the expense of editing and illustrations extra, which would not carry it above $10,000 per year.

Bishop Haven thought every speech on this subject was about right, and that altogether they constituted a very happy family. He thought, also, that we should not neglect home work. He lived in the midst of a destitute people because he obeyed the powers of the Church. [Applause.] He had no objections to appropriations to the older Conferences, as well as to appropriate largely to the new Conferences. The way to get this money was to have a magazine. We ought not to lose the items and Missionary news now published in the weeklies, but we needed some deeper views on the philosophy of missions, and some illustrations. He had no doubt that the other Benevolent Societies of the Church would like to have five or ten pages each, and would pay for them out of their Society funds. He thought now was the time to do this thing, for if it was deferred until after the appropriations had been made to the Domestic Missions, it would be shot into the waste basket. Better appropriate $10,000 now for this purpose.

J. J. Manker was earnestly in favor of taking care of the Domestic Missions, and then considering the publication of a magazine upon its own merits.

The motion was then carried to postpone the consideration of the publication of a Missionary magazine until the appropriations to Domestic Missions had been completed.

The Committee then adjourned, Bishop Simpson pronouncing the Benediction.

MONDAY AFTERNOON.

Bishop Foster presided, and Rev. A. K. Sanford led in the devotional services.

APPROPRIATIONS TO MISSIONS IN UNITED STATES were first considered.

Arizona was granted the amount asked for by the Committee.

New Mexico was granted $8,500.

Appropriations to Foreign Speaking Domestic Missions were then carefully considered. Both the representative of the General Conference Districts and the Bishop who had attended the Conference represented the wishes and the necessities of the various Conferences as they were called. Quite generally they were allowed some increase over what was granted last year, because of the imperative necessity of newly developing work. In view of the peculiarities and surroundings of the Chinese work in California, it secured the special sympathies of the Committee. At 5 o'clock the Committe adjourned to 9 o'clock of the following day, Dr. Clarke pronouncing the Benediction.

TUESDAY MORNING.

Bishop Wylie presided and Rev. J. J. Manker led in the devotion. Appropriations for the English Speaking Domestic Missions were taken up. In behalf of Austin Conference a strong effort was made for a decided increase, Bishop Ames moving for $4,000 for the present, and as much more for the support of new work in that State.

Bishop Foster remarked that there were many growing and beautiful towns in Texas, and 80,000 white Methodist, and 4 Annual Conferences of whites. Austin, Dallas, Sherman, Dennison, and Foster are commanding positions where we are likely to succeed, and we have creditable and good ministers there, and others desiring to be itinerants with us. Our Bishops would be treated with very great respect, as he was, in any part of the State. There was a feeling that we would tone up other Christians there by our presence.

J. M. Phillips moved $4,000 for the regular work, and $2,000 for the development of new work.

Bishop Peck said the appointments there were widely separated, and railroad fares were about three times as much as on the Hudson River Railroad. The brethren were a hard-working, honest, careful set of men, who were [illegible], almost as the cattle do, [illegible] subsistence. We do not know [illegible] such work here as they have, and we should support them.

Dr. Trimble said that the people going West by tens of thousands were quite as needy and worthy of regard, and had as little margin of means to get started upon their farms as any people elsewhere experienced.

Bishop Haven was convinced that the Committee had reached the test-question in regard to our Southern Work. If we were to stand by former positions, and if we were going to foster and care for our Methodist people who are emigrating to Texas, we must give them surroundings which shall be attended with some measure of respect. There we have the whole field to ourselves, with a territory as extended as from Maine to Illinois. Many Nothern preachers, whose physical condition would not endure the rigor of this climate, could go there, and render excellent service.

J. J. Manker thought we should secure that territory to Methodism. The people were going in there at the rate of two or three hundred thousand per annum. They did not, however, go there as organized communities, but just as the pioneers of the West went to that section; the preachers followed them up, and from their endeavors had come the flourishing condition of Methodism of to-day. The Southern Methodist Episcopal Church is a great organization and a noble Church, and is doing an excellent work. But that Church was working on a different line, and upon essentially different ideas. They were born and educated with these differing views, and, as a consequence, were not in sympathy with the colored people, or even with the poorer portions of the whites. The people of Texas were very much more in sympathy with us than with the members and policy of that Church, and they look to us to help them; and for their sakes, and the cause of the Lord Jesus Christ, we should render them every assistance.

Bishop Foster moved, as a substitute for all that was before the Committee, that we appropriate $5,000 to the regular work, and $1,000 to be contingent for new work.

Bishop Harris believed there should be a greater equality observed as between the grants made for the Southern and Westren work and other needy points. It was scarcely the province of this Society to go to Texas and plant Churches all over the land with Missionary money, and do the like thing in other equally promising fields. We should need millions of money for such an undertaken.

Dr. Fowler was compelled to believe, notwithstanding the positive and forcible utterance of Bishop Harris, that there was one clear distinction between the work in Texas and sections elsewhere in the South. The work in Texas was more like the work in Kansas. It is said there were two or three hundred thousand persons who went there last year, and, but for the fever, there would have been as large an immigration this year. We should gather in such a population. The old opinions of the South are not in harmony with the spirit of the age. Born under aristocratic away, and so trained up, it remains in the blood of that people, so that they are pushing out on the old lines. We have an opportunity and a duty to antagonize and neutralize this in our Church work. With a soil of surpassing fertility, and a territory more than five times as large as the State of New York, and with rail roads pushing down from St. Louis by Northern capital, and now carrying thither each year tens of thousands of Northern minds, who are likely to give a formative character to a greater population than is now found in the State of New York, the conviction was forced upon him that this was the very ground where we should make a stand for God and our type of civilization and Methodism.

H. M. Forrester would not have the Committee ignore the maximum amount of appropriation heretofore agreed to, as they seemed likely to do on the present schedule of procedure.

Bishop Ames believed we had talked to the Church quite too much of the debt of the Society. He was not disposed to withhold any thing from Dakota, Nebraska, or Kansas; but after all, there was a great difference between them and Texas. Texas is in its vigorous youth, but we can aid her to reach a lusty manhood if we nourish her best interests, and this we can do without injury to other parts of the work.

Dr. Nelson expressed his solicitude lest brethren, in view of the pressing demands, should make appropriations in excess of the aggregate agreed upon.

Dr. Curry deemed that we ought to place about $8,000 at the disposal of the Bishop for work among the whites there, and do this, too, having reference to all views so properly expressed here of the commercial embarrassment of the community.

G. J. Ferry was of the opinion that having at the outset driven our stake of a maximum amount of appropriations, we should stick to it. There are men who have been millionaires who are beggars now, and must be aided privately. Some were formerly prominent for their benevolence. He did not doubt that members of this Committee were acting conscientiously in proposing to change the amount determined upon as the general aggregate, but as custodians of the interests of this Society we must consider where the means are coming from, as well as where they are going.

Dr. Crawford urged that they do not entertain the thought of going beyond $570,000, unless they first reconsider the vote to fix the maximum at that figure.

It was voted to allow Austin Conference $4,000 for the present work, and $2,000 for new work.

Bishop Simpson brought forward the appropriation for Colorado, Southern California, Utah, and Nevada, and they were severally determined upon.

The morning session concluded, Dr. Fowler pronouncing the Benediction.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Bishop Merrill in the chair.

On motion of H. M. Forrester the names of Conferences which received appropriations last year were first called. This was proceeded with, and when Central Tennessee was reached J. J. Manker said that as a general thing among Methodists it was a belief that where methods in themselves were innocent, and innocently employed, they were justified in using the presence of success. Our white work in the South had been established some twelve or thirteen years, yet we had more than 200,000 white members on Southern territory. We have besides, nearly or quite 200,000 colored members, making a total of over 400,000 members in that section. It is a fact that the colored members depend greatly upon having sympathy from, and being sustained by their white brethren in their midst of the same Church affinities with themselves. If we take care of the colored work in the South that is now providentially in our hands, we must have an affiliating white membership by their side. [Voices: "That is so."] We might as well compel our members in Pennsylvania to go to the Presbyterians, as to drive our members in the South, against their convictions, into the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The members who have there come to us did not wish to go anywhere else. They have come to us because of providential circumstances, and if we should withdraw all support from them, he doubted whether they would go into the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. These members, despite their poverty and humiliating condition, are well up in numerical strength to the Church South. Last year they raised $75,000 or $80,000 for benevolent purposes. The Holston Conference, occupying East Tennessee, has about 20,000 members, and after the deaths and removals were deducted there was in that Conference last year a net increase of more than 3,000 members. The Conference of the Church South in that region, and having two-fifths more territory than is in the Holston Conference, only had an increase of 2,000 members. Now if we can judge by results, or by the reception which is accorded to us and our ministers generally, and if these things can assure men of a Divine call anywhere, then we have had such a call there to extend our lines and strengthen our forces. [Applause.]

Bishop Harris affirmed that it was almost a unanimous opinion of those who had studied the work upon the spot, that the position taken by Brother Manker was entirely correct, and it was very important that this should be understood as exactly the state of the case.

Dr. Crawford thought a general discussion was hardly in order. The policy was settled that we should take care of our Southern work. We should proceed with the appropriations.

G. F. Kettell had conversed with intelligent gentlemen from the South who gave him a very different opinion from that here stated. These gentlemen had always been prominent in their support of the Missionary cause, and their view was that two Methodisms on the same ground were not necessary.

Dr. Curry said, if there was provision for all the whites of the South in another Methodism than our own, so was there provision for the colored people in a differing Methodism; and the logic would compel a withdrawal as much from the colored people as from the whites of the South. There is abundant reason why we are there. There is a wide field outside of the M. E. Church, South, to whom nobody can have access but ourselves, and where the ground is not now covered. Begin in West Virginia, and follow the crest of the mountains south, and the people are just as much with us as are those in New York or Ohio, and were all through the war. If it were true that where there is an evangelical Church we have no right to go, then we should never have gone to New England. Tennessee, east of the mountains, was ours just as much as is New Jersey. Two Methodisms cover that entire country, and a portion of the people there never would be with the Church South, and probably would go nowhere if not to us. There is a great difference between us and the Church South, and the people have a right to express a preference for us if they choose. We treated many of the friends of our Church in the South badly enough thirty years ago, when we left them, and now they have a stronger claim still upon us. We have just as good a right to ask them to go out of Tennessee, as they have to ask us to retire. By the claims of benevolence and Christianity, it is about time to settle the point that we are there, and mean to stay and take care of all the people who want to come to us.

Dr. Trimble said: Now let us vote. Brethren think; it would seem that we are all Sunday-school children and need instruction in detail.

T. W. Price: We are not all so bright as you, Dr. Trimble. [Dr. Fowler; "That's so."] [Laughter.] The Philadelphia Conference furnishes no small amount of the contributions which you are appropriating, as she has been the banner Conference. He supposed these brethren of New York would feel very sweet and amiable if the Southorners should send preachers here. [Voices: "Yes, sir; yes, sir."] Well, then, he had to say they had more religion or less sense that the Methodists of Philadelphia, [laughter,] for we would not hold a love feast to receive them there. He would like to know when this thing was to end. [Bishop Ames: "In the millennium."] Brother Price responded: "Hasten, Lord, the glorious time!" [Laughter.]

When the wants of Columbia River Conference were being stated by H. K. Hines, Gen. Fisk inquired if there were any Churches of the M. E. Church, South, there? and being responded to affirmatively, further inquired if they treated them kindly? which elicited a smile accompanying the declaration that they did. It was new territory.

Bishop Andrews thought this was the most promising Conference on the Pacific coast.

During the representation of the Michigan Conference, Bishop Ames remarked that when he was there he saw a man with a yoke on his neck, having a pail of butter suspended from each end of the yoke, and he was walking forty miles to sell his butter.

J. J. Manker stated that in the Holston Conference, though the preachers had labored most efficiently, their salaries for the last year had averaged less than $225, and they had an increase of 3,000 members.

Bishop Haven commended this Conference especially, for they stood by the old style and ignored the color line. White and colored presiding elders worked together very cordially. In all the United States he deemed it the best country to which to emigrate.

B. Mitchell, representing the Minnesota Conference, stated that he had been 24 years a preacher on the borders, and during that time he had not received more than an average of $450 a year, which covered house-rent, traveling expenses, and everything; and, as he had been a presiding elder for 16 years, he knew he had received more than many of his brethren. He knew of a preacher walking "fifty miles through the snow, with satchel in hand, to fill a preaching appointment, and get $3 from it towards his support!" Hundreds of these cases had occurred. He had preached three times a day, and fared on corn-bread and onions, and thanked God, and pursued his way to the next appointment with a brave heart. One man literally lived in his buggy, traveling over three or four counties in the extreme part of Dakota, and all he received was less than $200! They had vast prairies over which the people had to travel seventy-five or one hundred miles to obtain a stick of timber. They prepare their food and warm their homes with twisted hay, and that where the thermometer goes down 30 degrees below zero. It is not a country without hope, for it is well adapted to agriculture, and railroads are penetrating to the remotest parts.

Bishop Foster said this Conference was one of the newest and most growing portions of our entire work.

After the calling of the list of Conferences, T. W. Price read a communication he had received from a presiding elder of the Philadelphia Conference, asking for an appropriation for very needy places. The question was in a word, whether this Society was to be the grand distributing agency in Missionary enterprise? Philadelphia was compelled to consider it in that city, at least.

Bishop Merrill felt confident there were many Conferences that felt as Philadelphia did. Local societies were indispensable. He wondered why Philadelphia had so long dispensed with so important a help.

Bishop Ames thought local societies were not wholly evil. It was far better to have them, than to allow that which the entire absence of these might call into being, namely, a General Home Missionary Society, in distinction from the Foreign Missionary Society. The formation of a Home Missionary Society for the Church he deprecate as injurious, as it would double the amount of the running expenses. The present Secretary could not do more.

Dr. Newman alluded to one Conference where the amount raised for their Conference Missionary Society was about the sum of their decrease to the parent Society, and inquired if one might not explain the other?

Bishop Ames thought not, inasmuch as various other Conferences had fallen off in their contributions which had no Conference Missionary Society.

Bishop Haven was struck with the question as suggested by Bro. Price. New England Conference has felt compelled to create a Conference Society. Baltimore Conference also. Ohio supplemented, by contributions, what was not granted by this Society. Thirty-five Conferences were struck off from these appropriations at once, and now we see they are trying to remedy this by methods of their own. We could stop all that by a wise distribution of $20,000. He raised the question at the Michigan and Central German Conferences whether they had a right to appoint a special day for the raising of money for the very cases the appropriations of this Society intended to relieve?

Bro. Loeber: That was two years ago in the Central German, when they were cut down from $7,000 to $3,000.

Bishop Haven: Some of these Conferences want but a little, but this they do want—a few dollars at their disposal, not over 1,000 to some, and some $250; there is not a Conference that would want more than a small amount.

G. J. Ferry belived that it worked injuriously to appropriate money to the older and richer Conferences, and we should be careful how we retraced our steps. As to the call made upon us for work in the cities, there might be a need of a Home Missionary Society in the city of New York, which could not be looked after by any individual Church. But in most cities a Church could adopt some Mission Church as a child. Thus the work would be more efficiently done, and a greater revenue would come back to the Church from that Mission work. The Newark City Mission with an existence for years, have been trying to keep two or three missionaries in the field; but in that city there is such intense sympathy for the home Church, that there is but little sympathy for this mission. In Orange, the same Conference, there is a Church financially weak, and yet has three Missions, and is supporting three Mission Sunday-schools, has four preaching places every Sunday night, and a prayer and class meetings through the week. That was the true way to carry on home Mission work. That Church was running four Sunday-schools at the same hour, and with the exception of one lady, there was no officer of either but belongs to that Church. In Newark there were six or eight Churches that were stronger than Orange Church. The policy of the Church in Orange should be pursued everywhere. He thought this cry for Home Missionary Societies would generally cease if the authorities of the Church and the officers of the Missionary Society should recommend this course.

By general consent no action was taken on this subject.

THE CHINESE.

Bishop Ames said there was a great question with reference to the treatment of the Chinese who were coming to our country. The query in his mind was, whether it would not be practical for all the Churches having missionaries in China to devise a method by which these people could be better treated in our country?

Secretary Dashiell thought a proper expression from this Committee would have a salutary influence. He deemed this matter of the gravest importance. We should sustain Brother Gibson, of San Francisco, in the good fight he is making in behalf of the Chinese. He moved a Committee of three to draft resolutions.

Bishop Wylie liked this movement very much, yet he did not see that a report to this Committee would accomplish enough. A suggestion of Dr. Newman is important. If this Committee should appoint a Standing Committee to watch the operations of Government, and co-operate with other Christian bodies or Governments something very useful might be accomplished. We have [illegible] in many places in northern China who have no treaty rights to protect them, and if the Chinese should treat our people there [illegible] treat their people in our country, it would be likely to become a very serious matter.

On motion of Bishop Ames, Bishop Wylie, Dr. Curry, Bishop Harris, General Fisk, and G. J. Ferry were appointed a Committee to whom this matter should be referred. The following report of this Committee was adopted unanimously:

Whereas, under certain treaty regulations made with China and Japan, numbers of these people are coming to our country, and we are brought into very important and responsible relations to [illegible] Empires; and

Whereas, the coming of these people to us, and our in[illegible] with them here, and in their own countries, very seriously involve the efficiency and success of our Missionary labors in their behalf, both here and there; therefore

Resolved 1. That we deem it of the highest importance that our Government should carry out, in good faith, all treaty enactments with those countries, and secure to such of their citizens as come to our country the peaceful enjoyment of all rights and immunities guaranteed to them by the treaties.

2. That in view of the [illegible] now being made to have [illegible] treaties modified, and the fact that in a short time the treaties themselves will properly come before the various Governments for revision, this body appoint a Committee of seven, who shall co-operate in all possible ways with other Christian bodies, in efforts to secure to these people, in future treaties, all the rights of humanity when they come to us, and justice in our intercourse and trade with them in their own lands.

The Committee of seven was appointed as follows: Bishops Wylie, Ames, and Harris, Drs. Newman and Dashiell, General Fisk, and G. J. Ferry.

The item on The Dissemination of Missionary Intelligence was taken from the table, and after a full discussion of the proposition to appropriate $10,000 for the publication of a monthly magazine, the Committee adjourned at 12:30 without having reached a final vote.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

THURSDAY, NOV. 28, 1878.

FREE.

Every new subscriber for 1879, will receive the SOUTHWESTERN free for the balance of the year 1878, when the subscription is accompanied by the cash. This will give to those who subscribe in November a paper for fourteen months for one year's subscription. Read the prospectus in another column.

The Key Note in Texas.

Austin, Texas, strikes the key note for the canvass. Rev. C. L. Madison, pastor of Wesley Chapel, sends a list of seventy-five subscribers for 1879, and expects to have the cash all in by January 1st, so as to receive by New Year's day the full set of Silver Communion Ware.

This church had a cash list of forty last year.

What Texas church can do as well?

A daughter of Col. J. M. G. Parker, late postmaster of New Orleans, died in Lowell, Massachusetts, on the 21st.

The United States Government, true to treaty stipulations, paid the $5,500,000 awarded to Great Britain by the Halifax fishery commission.

Decision has been rendered in favor of Cardinal Antonelli's brothers, and against the woman who claimed to be his daughter and the inheritor of his great wealth.

An attempt to assassinate King Humbert failed, and the man was arrested—Passanante. A bomb was thrown into a Florence procession in honor of the King's escape and two men killed.

Gov. Nicholls, by proclamation, recommended that to-day be observed by the people of this State as a day of thanksgiving, to "unite with the people of the whole country in a solemn expression of gratitude to their Maker."

England opened the war against Afghanistan on the 21st, and the British troops have captured a fort and advanced many miles into the enemy's territory. Russia will have a voice in the peace settlement, and has advanced her troops to the frontier. [illegible]

BISHOP HAVEN.

Of Bishop Haven the Conference said, "Resolved, that we have heard with great pleasure the practical and appropriate address of Bishop Haven, on the work of the ministry, and tender him our hearty thanks, with the assurance that we will devote ourselves sacredly to our chosen work."

The Bishop was unable to preach, which was a very great disappointment to many, but in all the work of this Conference he fully measured up to the demand of the time and place. In addressing the class for admission he laid special stress on two points, first, the place where the members of the Conference were called to preach, and second that they were to preach the whole gospel from pulpits untrammelled by prejudice. Just before reading the appointments he read, "Fear not, little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom," and also, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, ... and lo I am with you always even unto the end of the world." Standing before the little company of ministers composing the Austin Conference, when about to send them into the vast State of Texas to labor in the midst of all the difficulties of the frontier life, made specially difficult by sectional Southern opposition—no Bishop could have chosen better words.

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION AND DESTITUTION.

Rev. Mr. Rankin, State Superintendent of American Bible Society, addressed the Conference, and gave some startling facts showing the great bible destitution in many portions of the State. During the past year 7000 families had been visited by colporteurs, and one fifth were found to be without any portion of the scripture. There are in Texas a million people who are without any portion of the bible. In the State there are 150,000 children of scholastic age in the State who are without the bible and without Sunday-schools. A whole village of Germans, in Kendall county, of twelve hundred people, was found without a single bible. To an appointment made by a colporteur not a single person came. The people did not want the bible. One lady told her servant to tell the gentleman that her family had no bible or religion, and did not care for either or to see any one who did. She was afterward, however, prevailed upon to buy a bible.

EDUCATIONAL.

The Conference spoke out grandly on the work of education. It called upon the Legislature of the State to so amend the school law, as to extend the scholastic age of children from eight to fourteen years, to from six to eighteen; and also to so amend the law as to compel each district to keep four months' school each year before public money can be drawn. An educational enterprise has been inaugurated at Clarendon, in Donnelly county, known as Allanton Seminary. Rev. W. A. Allan was appointed to the principalship, and the school made one of the conference institutions. A committee consisting of Revs. Wm. [illegible], L. H. Carhart, M. A. Daugherty, W. J. Grant, W. E. McCarty, T. C. Reade, was appointed to locate a Conference Seminary, [illegible] all necessary arrangements for its permanent organization [illegible] the next conference. [illegible] T. C. Reade was appointed [illegible]

THE SABBATH.

On the observance of the Sabbath [illegible] stated the [illegible] of the Christian Sabbath [illegible] against the [illegible] at pres- [illegible]. The Legis- [illegible] to amend the [illegible]

[illegible] most hearty endorsement and every preacher appointed to a charge, pledged an immediate and strong effort to secure a good list of subscribers. All the preachers took the paper.

FRATERNITY.

The Northern Presbyterian Church welcomed members of the Conference to its pulpit. Beyond this, no invitations were received from pastors to supply their pulpits. Rev. Dr. Shephard, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, visited the Conference room and was introduced, but expressed no desire to have his pulpit filled. Real fraternity between the Southern churches and our own, grows only under certain circumstances. Where we are strong, and have gained a commanding position in a community, there the churches recognize us. Very well; let it be so. Our work is to go forward and save the people who welcome us.

THE MEN.

Austin Conference has a splendid body of men. Not many in number, but mighty in faith and resources. Dr. Brush, Rev. M. A. Daugherty and Rev. L. H. Carhart preside over the Districts, and each is a host in his place. Nearly all the men are men of experience. Grant, Webb, McCarty, Armstrong, Otterman and Reade all came from Conferences where they had already made good records. Among the young men, Haney, Richardson, Bothkins and others give good promise for the future.

FORWARD!

In Austin, the foundations of a splendid church are laid, and the work goes forward. At Denison and Sherman good churches have been completed the past year, and at Fort Worth one is to be dedicated in a few days. At San Antonio a good lot has been bought, and the coming year Bro. Daugherty begins a large church building. Several smaller places are being occupied this year. So let the work go forward. This State is filling up with marvelous rapidity. When settled as thickly as Massachusetts it will contain 60,000,000 of people. That may never be; but in a comparatively few years it will have 10,000,000 of people.

APPOINTMENTS.

The following are the appointments for 1879:

The Louisiana Election.

The late election held in Louisiana was a crime against the laws which the executive officers of the State were solemnly pledged to enforce in good faith. It was a triumph of armed whites over peaceful majorities. The programme of violence and murder, which secured the election of Democratic officials in the strong Republican Feliciana parishes, was subsequently pursued in Point Coupee, Tensas, Ouachita, Caddo and other parishes. United States District Attorney A. H. Leonard was an eye-witness of disgraceful proceedings in Caddo, where he narrowly escaped personal assault from whites who came to break up a Republican meeting at Spring Ridge. United States Supervisors were not allowed to witness or scrutinize the election. Illegal and separate ballot boxes were placed to confuse voters, and many [illegible] peremptorily ordered [illegible]. Mr. Leonard, finding [illegible] unavailing, and refusing [illegible] to enact a farce, advised his friends to go to their homes. Two military companies organized in Shreveport the week before had thoroughly scoured the country. With a registered vote of 1,673 whites, and nearly 2,800 blacks, and at least 250 whites willing to vote the Republican ticket, the returned Democratic majority of Caddo was near 2,500!

Concordia parish, with 300 white and over 2000 colored voters registered, was added to the Democratic side by a heavy majority. In 1872 it gave Kellogg 1,600 majority; in 1874 it gave 1,500, and in 1876 1,700 majority for the Republican ticket.

Natchitoches' registered vote stands two colored to one white. In 1876 it gave a considerable Republican majority. It gave a larger Democratic majority than there are whites.

Red River Parish, the scene of the Coushatta massacre, is strongly Democratic. Heretofore it has never given less than 500 Republican majority—that is, since 1860. Practically, no Republican votes were cast.

The Fourth Congressional District is Republican at a fair election by over 6,000 majority; but is now Democratic by nearly that vote.

In Lincoln not a single vote was cast.

Ouachita, the scene of many murders, which gave Kellogg a majority of 1,000 in 1872, and never before less than 800, now under Democratic management casts exactly thirteen Republican votes.

Moorehouse, heretofore good for 400 to 500 Republican majority, polled only 50 Republican votes.

Tensas gave Kellogg, in 1872, 2,400 majority; in 1874, 2,600; and in 1876, 2,800. Last election it gave very few Republican votes. The large amount of murders judiciously committed a short time before election day, accomplished the purpose of the Democratic leaders, and gave them another member of Congress. Mr. Zacharie, Gov. Nicholls' commissioner, acknowledges the killing of twelve negroes.

In the Fifth Congressional District, formerly represented by J. E. Leonard, Republican, King, Democratic candidate, is returned by a heavy majority, the Republican candidate, though popular, having received very few votes.

As Mr. Leonard has truly said, in a fair and peaceable election Louisiana would have gone Republican by from 8,000 to 15,000 majority, and at least three, possibly four Republican Congressmen would have been elected.

The election in the city of New Orleans has been denounced in the strongest terms by the Citizens' Conservative Association, composed entirely of Democrats.

The U. S. District Attorney has received specific instructions to prosecute violators of the election law. The Democratic press has opened upon him a violent personal assault, evidently with the view of prejudicing the trial of alleged criminals, and to procure for them immunity for their acts. Not a single journal asserts the propriety of upholding the laws which have been openly defied. They even assume that the national authorities are about to exercise tyrannical powers over law-abiding citizens. Attorney Leonard, we are informed, will not flinch from a faithful discharge of his official duties, and at the next term of the U. S. District Court an effort will be made to punish the guilty.

Gov. Nicholls, with a portion of his staff, left the capital last week on a tour to the parishes where election disturbances have occurred. He pledged himself to this course on his inauguration. That he has not done so heretofore, is surprising to Republicans disposed to trust his word of honor; yet untoward circumstances, quarantine, sickness in family, etc., have been ascribed as reasons for delay. We trust that he will fully realize his position as Governor of Louisiana, not of a party, but of the whole people, and that he will have the moral courage to pursue an impartial course, and exhaust all the powers at his command for the punishment of those who have grievously wronged a large number of their fellow citizens. We believe that if a policy of repression of election-crimes were boldly commenced by the Governor, it would rally to his side thousands of Conservative as well as Republican citizens, who realize that the triumph of fraud will redound to the injury of the fair fame and prosperity of the commonwealth.

The Salvation of Man, the Delight of God.

There are some who imagine that God looks upon this world with indifference; that He folds Himself in His robe of light, and leaves the world that He made to get on as best it may. Certainly, indifference cannot belong to the Divine nature. On the contrary, it is the mark of a selfish, shallow, little nature. No rust of gold can ever witness against God. He does not keep His talent in a napkin. He does not stand all day idle.

Others again, with a conscience morbidly sensitive, imagine that God takes pleasure in the destruction of the sinner. Vengeance, blasting all presumptuous and rebellious lives, is a satisfaction that he takes out of the sinner. How different the God of the Bible! God is love; a love that we may say agonizes when those it loves take the course which it disapproves; triumphing over those it loves when they come back to their home and to their Father!

God's delight is in saving men. He yearns for us as for lost children. It is not wrong to say that when anyone leaves his Father in heaven there is an aching void in God's heart which heaven can never fill. Like the ocean that is never full though all the rivers run into it, so God's heart is never satisfied so long as the love of a single child that He has made is denied Him. He would not deem Himself profited if He gained the whole world and lost the love of a single soul. And so, not bent on revenge, and incapable of indifference, He comes with feet beautiful upon the mountains of heaven, and stoops to all this travail in order that He may have the satisfaction of saving men.

If we can, with the Divine help, save a little child or a perishing sinner, we swell the gladness of God's heart and make a flood-tide of delight in heaven. How that should animate us! We know that we are approved in every effort of piety; we know that we are helped; we know that God's providence is not working blindly; that all things are not working for bad, but for good, and that the discipline of life, and the influence of family love, and the results of common experience are preparing the way of the Kingdom, and helpful to every effort. Some may be despairing of their personal acceptance. Let them reflect that God delights in saving them. If they will give Him their heart, they give Him that which greatly enriches Him, which He deems a pearl of great price. They are accepted in the beloved who go to Him in faith and penitence. Let those too, who go forth to work for God be animated with the thought that God is always with them, and that He works with them to the same great end—the salvation of men. We cannot always see the results of our labors, but there can be no failure. If time does not show the success of our efforts, eternity will.

The Massacre of Atzala.

From a Guanajuato correspondent of the SOUTHWESTERN.

Recent events indicate that the era of bloody persecution because of religious belief has not entirely passed, and that the spirit of Rome remains unchanged even though at times she talks of toleration. What she did in the times of the Inquisition she would gladly do again were it not prejudicial to her interests. The central power that rules the Roman Church carefully watches the pulse of society in general, and feigns conformity with public opinion so far as is deemed absolutely necessary for the interests of the Church. But while the oath of Roman bishops remains what it has been for centuries past, all apparent tolerance and courtesy toward Protestantism is simple, base pretence. We had hoped that Mexico's redemption might be accomplished without further bloodshed, the cause of Christ having already had a goodly share of martyrs. But a horrible tragedy enacted on Sunday, Sept. 29th, in the State of Puebla dissipated these hopes and teaches us that it is not too late yet to look for a bloody grave. Although more than one month has passed since the massacre occurred the country is still in ignorance respecting the full particulars. However, believing that the matter will be of interest to the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN, I will give the facts substantially as reported to "El Abogado Cristiano," by Rev. C. W. Drees of Puebla. Atzala is a village belonging to the municipality of Chietla in the District of Chiautla, State of Puebla. It is situated about three miles from Chietla. About two years ago the place was visited by a Protestant minister and a congregation was formed. Persecution caused the preacher to retire but the work continued to grow until a considerable portion of the town was Protestant. Among the converts were the Alcalde or Mayor and several members of the council. In the recent municipal election the town divided into two parties whose principal differences were religious belief. As a result of the election the former Mayor and Council retained their positions, and it was considered a triumph of the Protestant party. The Catholic party then petitioned the State Government to declare the election null and void, but this question was still unsolved when the affair of Sept. 29th occurred.

On the evening previous to this date, Trinidad Cortes, the Mayor, returned from the city of Puebla, having been informed before his arrival, that the Catholic portion of the town was threatening violence. Upon his arrival he organized two bodies of patrols to maintain order during the night. About daybreak the guards found two companies of armed men preparing to disturb the peace. They were disarmed and taken to prison, not however without making resistance, in which one of the men was killed. Meanwhile the Mayor of Chietla having been informed of what was passing in Atzala arrived at the latter place about 5 a. m., accompanied by several members of the Municipal Council. He endeavored to mediate between the two parties, and finally demanded that the Mayor of Atzala should deliver up the prisoners to him This demand the Mayor of Atzala justly refused to concede to, stating that according to the requirements of the law, he should make the preliminary investigations, and if the prisoners were found guilty would transfer them to the higher authorities. Seeing that Cortes was firm in his resolution, the Mayor of Chietla returned home. About the same time, J. Garcia, Chief of the Police, of the District of Chiautla arrived at Chietla. Being already under indictment for a former crime, he was not in discharge of official duties. The Mayor related to him what had passed in Atzala, and about the same time some women came from Atzala saying that the Mayor had given orders to shoot all the prisoners. Credence was given to this news, although manifestly absurd and exaggerated. By direction of Garcia the church bell was rung and two hundred men assembled and started for Atzala under the command of Garcia and the Mayor, where they arrived at eleven o'clock.

The Protestants seeing the danger that threatened took refuge in the tower of the church, as the churches in Mexico have always served as forts in times of conflict. According to the version which the Catholics give of the affair, a demand was made upon the authorities of Atzala that they should surrender the prisoners, and that refusing to do it a fight began in which twenty-five Protestants and one Catholic were killed. This report was so evidently false that it gained little acceptance, for it was not probable that the party inside the strongly barricaded church would suffer such a terrible loss, while the attacking party in the open street should lose but one. The latest investigations, however, reveal the fact that the Protestants made no resistance whatever. Garcia the leader of the Catholics having promised the Protestants in the tower that they would suffer no injury, they surrendered to the overpowering force, and once in their hands, were most brutally cut to pieces. Twenty-five Protestants were killed on the spot and nineteen were taken to Chietla prisoners, of whom two have since died from their wounds. Not one Catholic was killed during the affray.

After killing so many of the non-resisting men, the mob went to the houses of the Protestants, and committed unnamed outrages upon the defenceless wives and daughters of those they had murdered, and satiated in every way their long-cherished hatred of their Protestant brethren. From other sources I learn that after all this, the leaders of the mob named other authorities in place of those they had killed, and then amid ringing of bells and shouts of jubilee returned to Chietla.

Upon such facts as these it is almost useless to offer reflections, for the horrible deed speaks louder than any human words, and the simple narration of the events paints a blacker picture than a painter's brush could put on canvass. It tells us that religious hate in this our day will perpetrate crimes that would make a savage blush. More, it reveals as we have said before, that Rome is unchanged in her spirit. The priesthood of Mexico is directly chargeable with all this blood and with all the persecution of every sort that Protestants suffer. The Romish hierarchy persistently refuses to recognise the fact, or at least the right of Protestantism to exist in Mexico. Instead of teaching their people to respect the rights and opinions of the thousands who no longer agree with them in belief, they teach them to hate them as "traitors," "dogs," and "ravenous wolves." I have watched with interest to see in some Catholic paper some word of condemnation of the terrible massacre I have described, but until now not one word of censure, not a word of sorrow for so much bloodshed, have I met with. On the contrary they cannot find language to express their indignation that one Catholic was killed, even though in resisting the police. With evident pleasure they refer to the fact that twenty-five Protestant were cut to pieces. The battle with Roman intolerance is not yet fought out in Mexico. It may have to be fought a little later in the United States. Brethren be watchful and vigilant there. Pray for us who are here in the conflict

LOUISIANA.

Woodlawn, Assumption Parish: The third quarterly conference was held at the church, Nov. 10th, Rev. G. Washington, pastor presiding, H. H. Armstrong, secretary. The pastor reported 3 received by experience, 2 expelled, 66 died, 8 infants baptized, and 4 probationers; preached and catechised the Sunday school 4 times during the quarter. Rev. Washington preached the quarterly sermon. Collection $1 55.

H. J. Wright, Pineville: "I desire to see our little church enrolled with those in service of the Lord. Bro. Julius F. Marshall is faithfully working for the salvation of souls. We have just closed a protracted meeting, gaining 4 converts and 15 on probation. We have a good, large Sabbath school, in which, as Superintendent, I take great interest. Bro. Marshall preaches to the school every fourth Sunday. A "Lutheran Benevolent Society" has been organized, numbering 30 members. It will take care of the destitute in adversity and affliction. Bro. Daniel Dickson died Nov. 11:"

MISSISSIPPI.

Asbury Chapel, Holly Springs, Rev. Morris Shumpert, pastor, lost fifteen members during the yellow fever epidemic.

J. C. Walker, writing from Moss Point, on 16th inst, says the pastor has been sick since July 12th. The want of a leader is sorely felt.

Rev. L. R. Brown, Kosciusko, Miss.: "Our elder could not be with us on account of fever. We have had 45 conversions, and 13 on probation added. A great revival."

Rev. A. Davis, Crystal Springs: "A five days' meeting just closed. Had a glorious time. Twelve converted and added to the church. Pray for the blessing of the Lord to continue with us."

Rev. A. J. Thompson, Union Church: "I closed my protracted meeting on the 17th of this month; and the Lord has been with us this far. We have added 117 to the church during our meeting. Our next quarterly meeting will be at Hickory Block."

R. M. Adams, Slaterville: "Quarantine impeded the work for months. The quarterly meeting was held here on the 16th and 17th inst., and was satisfactory. Several quarterly meetings will be held before annual conference, and stir up our people about collections. Let every preacher in the conference bring up a little, although we have been cut off in our expectations."

Macon, Mississippi, Nov. 18 1878: At a meeting held by the Sabbath-school, Nov. 10, after the usual exercises and on the eve of dismissial, the school was notified by the pastor, Rev. Geo. W. Barney, of the death of R. Q. Adams, son of Elder M. Adams, P. E., of our district. Whereupon J. B. Bryson offered a resolution that a committee of three be appointed, to draft suitable resolutions. It prevailed, and the following persons were appointed as said committee, Joseph W. Longstreet, Robert Stewart, and John B. Bryson. The committee's report was adopted on the following Sunday.

Rev. N. Cannon, Meridian, Nov. 16: I write to let you know that the Lord has kept me alive in the midst of the great struggle with the yellow fever that we have had in the town of Meridian. I have been going for the last ten weeks visiting the sick and dying. I went from bedside to bedside, and I thank God to-day none of my family have had the yellow fever. I only lost five members of my church, Brother Andrew Carr one of my exhorters, among the number."

Tullahoma College.

BY REV. S. L. CLARK.

The first term of the third session of this growing college will close December 20th, and the second term will begin January 6th. Thus far, this has been the most prosperous year in the history of the institution. More than a hundred students have been enrolled, and a handsomer increase is expected next term. Never have the students been more diligent and studious than in the past months of the present term, and a creditable examination and exhibition at its close is anticipated.

THE FACULTY.

Perhaps no college in the State has a faculty superior to the Tullahoma College. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. Ridpath, is temporarily, but efficiently filled by Prof. Hickman, of West Virginia.

The Primary Department is taught by Miss Ada Coldwell, a lady of unusual ability and rare attainments, who is succeeding admirably in the instruction of her department, teaching them vocal music in addition to the regular course of study. She also has a class of young ladies in instrumental music which she is rapidly advancing.

The President, Rev. I. C. Carter, A. M., needs no commendation from me; his toil and self-sacrifice in the interest of the institution speak louder than words from my pen. It was through his efforts that the institution was organized, and it is he that has fought its battles and won its victories. Prof. Carter is the right man in the right place, because of his superior abilities to teach, and his wonderful success as a disciplinarian.

WHY PARENTS SHOULD PATRONIZE THE COLLEGE.

The thorough instruction given in the branches taught, and the deep moral influence that characterizes the institution, should be an inducement to Christian parents to patronize this school. While sectarianism is not taught in any degree, the students are from time to time urged to live lives of virtue, sobriety and piety. In the past few months several of the students have been converted, and have united with the various churches of the town.

THE COLLEGE A NECESSITY.

The Tullahoma College fills a vacuum in our educational work long felt by our Church in Tennessee. She, years ago, recognized the fact that among the hills and valleys of our State many a bright and noble intellect lies hidden away in obscurity and ignorance for want of educational advantages. Hence the necessity for Tullahoma College. From her walls, influences already radiate that are blessing the surrounding country. Young men are being educated by her for the ministry that are carrying the bread of life to destitute places, and through their instrumentality precious souls are converted from the darkness of sin to the marvelous light and liberty of the Gospel.

THE NEEDS OF THE COLLEGE.

What we now need is a liberal endowment fund, so that the Professors may receive an ample support for their arduous work. Would that the heart of some wealthy person might be touched with the feelings of our poverty, and bestow a portion of his wealth on the Tullahoma College!

Tullahoma, Tenn., Nov. 20th, 1878.

IN MEMORIAM.

ROBERT QUINCY ADAMS.

Died,—At his residence at Holly Springs, Miss., on Monday, Nov. 4, 1878, Robert Q. Adams, aged [illegible] years.

Holly Springs has lost many bright and promising men by the dreadful epidemic of '78, but on the long roll of death's victims none will be more seriously regretted than young Robert Q Adams. In the strength of early manhood, buoyant and confident in spirits, with the long vista of a bright future before him, the saffron scourge found him. His family ties were silken, but strong as bands of steel, and to his loving father, mother and wife, to whom he was devoted with more than usual fervor, the heartfelt sympathies of his associates and friends go forth in earnest prayers that they may find [illegible] in Gilead, a consolation in [illegible] and courageous, Christ[illegible] their loved one. Many [illegible] to us from his grave. [illegible] be near—to see the green [illegible] where he is lain. He [illegible] specimen of his race, [illegible] numerous friendships [illegible] went—friendships that [illegible] as they were sin[illegible] character was pure, un[illegible] noble. His sentiments were manly and exalted, his virtues were many and prominent, his deportment decorous, amicable and [illegible]. He had attained [illegible] starting point in life which needs only the exercise of a reasonable energy to success—that [illegible] which hopes illusory [illegible] are transformed into tangible realities. But the Omnipotent decreed otherwise; at His mandate armed death severed the thread of existence, and so much [illegible] high hopes of a [illegible] future, such [illegible] of a useful, [illegible] are gone forever from [illegible]. Robert died loved and [illegible] by all who knew him. Who [illegible] realize the anguish that [illegible] hearts of his dear parents [illegible] loss of such a dear one. And [illegible] wife of his bosom, I know her [illegible] grief, she has lost an affectionate husband. But we together [illegible] what we love must pass away. [illegible] and what we love—bird or tree or flower—or dear friends may vanish from our midst like the morning's early dew. Truly [illegible] days are as grass—as a [illegible] of the field so he flourisheth, [illegible] passeth over it and it [illegible] places thereof [illegible]. He is now [illegible] the head not the [illegible] of those who mourn [illegible] "just [illegible] as we call [illegible] tion of our people. The addresses were earnest and to the point, and the people watched with interest the hiding away in brick and mortar of the mementos to be preserved for future generations. Among the things deposited in the corner was a list of all subscriptions paid up to date, and a list of amounts given at the corner laying. We have needed better accomodations for our school, and have long labored to secure that result. Disappointment has often mocked our best endeavors. Hope deferred had made the heart sick. Providence however, has not permitted us to labor without results, and the school has steadily widened its influence since its organization in 1873. The F. A. Society has also taken care that this, one of her fairest daughters, should not go unprovided for, and with what aid the people can give, has undertaken to erect new buildings. We have everything ready to proceed rapidly with the work, and expect to be ready to open school in the new building on the 2nd of January next. We need all the aid we can possibly get from the friends of education among our people. Who is ready to help us? We must have means to prosecute this important part of our church work. Money can be sent for this purpose to Rev. R. S. Rust, D. D., Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati, or, Wiley University, Marshall, Texas. We have hoped on almost against hope; but the Lord is on our side, and bringeth it to pass. Certain success follows where Christ leads. Nothing can hinder this work now in our judgment, but a gross indifference on the part of those for whom this work is done. We need much help, and ask again of the members of the Texas Annual Conference and all other friends of the cause to lend us your influence and means, that this work may be thoroughly and speedily accomplished.

Reception of a True Hero.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., Nov. 12th, 1878.

Dr. J. S. Bass, the colored physician of Murfreesboro, who went to Chattanooga as a volunteer physician to attend the yellow fever patients, returned on the 2nd inst. He was met at the depot by a large concourse of citizens, white and colored, and ushered out of the train to the hack by his Honor the Mayor and Hon. B. L. Ridley President of the Board of Aldermen. The procession formed at the depot, headed by a hack containing the Mayor, President of the Board, T. H. Butler and Recorder B. B. Smith. Next came the colored brass band of Murfreesboro, followed by a hack with the Doctor and two other citizens of Murfreesboro within. Then followed a long procession of citizens in carriages and on horseback. The procession was in charge of two leading colored citizens, W. Baskett and H. Waller, who led the procession through the principal streets, and back to the Square where the welcome address was delivered by Rev. H. W. Key, and was responded to by Dr. Bass. The demonstration was an imposing one. Dr. Bass is one of our self-made young men, and merited all the praise he received at the hands of the good citizens of Murfreesboro. He entered the Meharry medical department of Central Tennessee College almost without means; but he found in the persons of Drs. Braden and Hubbard true friends, who are always willing to aid those who are willing to help themselves. All honor to these two tried and true philanthrophists.

The Canvass.

The Subscription Lists.

The subscription lists of old subscribers have all been sent out. The preachers will please see every subscriber at once and ask a renewal for the next year. Note carefully, that all names of old subscribers who do not renew must be stricken from the list, as the preacher will be held responsible for all names returned on the lists. Get all the new subscribers possible, and fill out the letter on the blank and return as soon as possible.

Splendid!

Splendid, is the word that our agents use in speaking of the gifts offered by our publishers to subscribers of the SOUTHWESTERN. Every subscriber gets a steel engraving of John Wesley, and in addition to this, churches which take twenty or more subscribers, get silver communion ware worth from $10 to $38. Read the prospectus for 1879 in other columns.

Our Engraving.

Our engravings of John Wesley for gifts to subscribers, are being printed as rapidly as possible. Every preacher in charge will receive one by mail in a few days as a specimen to show the people, and canvass with. But do not wait; begin the canvass at once.

Church Extension.

The annual meeting of the General Committee of Church Extension was held in Wesley Hall, Philadelphia, on Friday, November 8, 1878. Bishop Simpson presided. The following abstract of the report of the Board of Church Extension, was read by Rev. A. J. Kynett, Corresponding Secretary.

Under the continued financial distress of the country our receipts have continued to decline. As our fiscal year does not close until December 31, the full results cannot be known until then; but enough is known to make it quite sure that the slight increase in our collections from a few Conferences where some improvement has been felt, will not overcome the decline in others.

The same causes which have reduced our receipts have increased the number and urgency of the calls for aid. This is especially true of Churches which have been struggling under debt. Many such have been deprived of the little financial strength they had by the failure in business of their members and friends, and their properties have been left to the mercy of creditors—creditors who, by their own misfortunes, have been unable to show mercy. Thus the crisis has this year come upon many, who without timely aid and encouragement must have lost all. Two important cases of this class—one in New England and one in Missouri—were specially laid upon us by the General Committee at the last annual meeting. Both have been saved this year, and have entered upon a new career of prosperity. Others requiring less aid have developed in the regular course of our work. A church in Texas, valued at $7,000, was saved—at a time when our members, after great sacrifices to secure it, were helpless—by the timely grant of $300. Another in Illinois, another in Utah, and others in the North-west, were saved in similar emergencies. Our work this year has been of more than usual value in saving churches in the last extremity.

Early in the year, assuming that our receipts would probably be, at least, equal to those of last year, we promised aid accordingly, on condition that the Churches interested should raise the remainder needed to accomplish their work. Thus encouraged, they have put forth increased effort, and have been complying with the conditions prescribed. For two months past, owing to diminished receipts, we have been compelled to borrow in bank in order to keep faith with them.

During this period we aided Churches as follows:

	1877.	1878.
By donations..............	158	172
By loans..............	25	18
By donations and loans..........	39	32
Total number of Churches...	222	222

The grants already made on conditions to be complied with will leave us still behind about $12,000.

Under these circumstances we have been compelled to hold all applications received during the last two months in abeyance, and we now have on file 56 applications asking for donations to the amount of......	$17,000

and for loans to the amount of......	15,000
Total........................	$32,000

Many of these are of urgent necessity, and should have immediate aid, but we must wait until the Church shall place in our hands the means of relieving them. Almost every mail brings additions to this list, and we deeply regret the injury that must result in many places from our inability to respond promptly.

We earnestly appeal to our members and friends to come promptly and generously to our aid, that we may go forward with the work which God and the Church has given us to do.

In behalf of the Board Extensions.

M. Simpson, President.
A. J. Kynett, Cor. Sec'y.

P. S.—The purchase of our new property was to save rent, and give additional fire-proof room. No part of our collections or other funds given for Church Extension is used for this.

The General Committee unanimously resolved that the amount which shall be called for by collections, and the distribution of the same for collection among the several Annual Conferences, be the same as last year, and that where new Conferences are organized the Corresponding Secretary be authorized to divide the amount asked between them. Dr. C. C. M'Cabe, Assistant Corresponding Secretary, presented a special report concerning the debt of the Church at Salt Lake City,

On motion of Dr. Kynett, Resolution No. 1 of the General Committee was amended to read as follows:

Resolved, That the Board be authorized to make appropriations within each Conference in proportion to the response of the Conference by its collections to the call made upon it.

Sunday School.

Dec 1, 1878.—THE LORD'S SUPPER.

SCRIPTURE.—Luke 22; 10-20

GOLDEN TEXT—"For as often as ye eat this bread, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.—1 Cor. 11-26.

TOPIC.—"This do in remembrance of me."—Luke 22. 19.

[Condensed from the Sunday School Journal.]

GENERAL STATEMENT—The years of Christ's teaching are now ended, and the day of his suffering is about to dawn. From the quiet home in Bethany he now goes to Jerusalem. On the evening of the day before the Jewish passover he reclines with his disciples at the feast. The bread is broken, the wine is poured, and the Lord's Supper is instituted, to commemorate the body and the blood freely given for all mankind.

EXPLANATORY.—The direction was given at Bethany, on the mount of Olives, a little less than two miles from Jerusalem. According to the law of Moses the passover could be eaten only at the capital, and though by the rabbinical construction Bethany was within the prescribed limits, yet he chose to fulfill the feast within the walls. There shall a man meet you. The man was there upon his own errands but the Lord, embraced in his royal plan this man's act for himself. How often some small event of our life enters into some great purpose of God! Follow him. Jesus knew whither this man, probably a servant, was going, and that the house wherein he would enter was one of the few in which himself and his disciples would be welcome. The disciples of Jesus must learn the lesson of literal, trustful, and unquestioning obedience, even where they cannot understand. The goodman. The householder: probably some stranger to the disciples, whose heart Jesus knew to be friendly. Christ knows every heart and home where his presence is gladly received. The Master saith. The word of Christ is sufficient authority for the obedience of those who know him. Guestchamber. As only at Jerusalem could the passover be eaten, almost every dweller in the city threw open his house for the observance of the feast by families from the country. Let us learn therefrom a lesson of cheerful, generous hospitality. Eat the passover. Though Christ be Lord of all, he will yet fulfill the laws given to men. With my disciples. Who were regarded as forming one family. The Church is one family, of which Christ is the head. Large upper room. Perhaps the same place where the little company met after the crucifix, and where the tongues of fire fell on the day of Pentecost. Furnished. With low tables, arranged on three sides of a square, outside of which were mats, cushions, or, perhaps, low couches, whereon the guest reclined. Found as he had said. The disciple never fails to find all true that the Master has said, an evidence of his divinity, and a ground for our confidence. Made ready. Obtained the lamb already slain from the priest in the temple, prepared the unleavened bread, the dish of herbs, and wine for the supper. The hour was come. On Tuesday afternoon he ceased from his teachings, and bade farewell to the temple. The next two days were passed in quiet at Bethany. On Thursday evening, when gathering shadows would prevent notice, he walked over the projecting spur of Olivet with his twelve disciples, entered the city, and passed through its streets to the house of the last supper. He sat down. In the earliest days the passover was partaken of in a standing position, but the Jews had long before this time ceased the ancient usage, and adopted the reclining posture The twelve. All were present, even Judas, already pledged to betray his Master; though, he left during the passover-meal, and before the institution of the Lord's Supper. At the table took place a contest for the precedence of position, (Luke 22. 24.) which was rebuked by Christ, who gave the twelve a significant lesson in humility by washing the disciples' feet. (John 13.). With desire. A Hebraism for "I have intensely desired." He longed to leave with them this memorial of his atoning sacrifice, for their order of exercises at the Jewish passover was as follows; A cup of wine was filled for each person present, and blessed by the head of the family. The supper of roasted lamb, unleavened bread, and bitter herbs was partaken of by all, with certain forms. During the drinking of another cup of wine the father related the origin and purpose of the passover. After a third cup of wine had been drank the family chanted Psa. 107 to 114. A fourth cup of wine was followed by the chanting of Psa. 115 to 128. Before I suffer. Our sufferings and trials come upon us unawares; his were known and realized long in advance of their time. Not any more. That is after the present eating. Fulfilled. Until his death, toward which the passover-sacrifice pointed, had been accomplished. He took the cup. Probably the first cup of wine at the passover, or preserved grape-juice mixed with water, as all fermented food and drink was forbidden at this feast. Gave thanks. For all the blessings of God, thanks should be rendered. Divide it. Each of you partake of it. I will not drink. Probably this means, "I will not drink after the present time," as this was his last meal on earth before his crucifixion. Until the kingdom of God. Until the new dispensation be consummation in heaven. He took bread. The last passover had been duly celebrated, and the ancient feast was now to be superseded by the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Brake it. He took into his hands some of the thin cakes of unleavened bread, broke them, and distributed the fragments to the eleven disciples. This is my body. That is, "This represents, or symbolizes, my body." As the bread, so the body, of Christ is broken for us. Given for you. From this they might learn that his death was to be no accidental circumstance, but possessing a redemptive power. Do in remembrance. Every celebration of the Lord's Supper proclaims. A remembrance of the fact of Christ's death. A recognition of the atoning element of his death. A personal faith in Christ on the part of the partaker. A pledge of consecration to the cause of Christ. The cup after supper. Either the third or fourth cup in the passover service. New Testament. Properly, the new covenant, an agreement or pledge of salvation, ratified in the blood of Christ.

WHO WROTE IT?—The question is who wrote "The Little Belle of Bloomingdale," the realistic story of New York Revolutionary life now running in the Christian Union, of New York? We are told it is by one of the most eminent of American writers, and that we have six months to guess it in.

THE NATIONAL SCOURGE.

It is estimated that the annual damages caused by the ravages of insects and worms exceeds $150,000,000 in the United States alone. Truly an enormous loss! Yet it sinks into insignificance when compared with the ravages of that more terrible scourge, Consumption, which annually sweeps hundreds of thousands of human souls into eternity. The cause of consumption are various, depending in every instance for the development of the disease upon the scrofulous diathesis, or temperament, of the victim. Thus the same cause which will produce in one person an attack of acute disease or a slight nervous prostration, will engender consumption in a person of scrofulous habit. That consumption can be cured by proper treatment will be readily perceived when the exact nature of the disease is understood, viz: the accumulation and deposition of scrofulous matter (tubercles) in the lungs Obviously, the principal remedies required are (1) a a powerful alterative, or blood-purifier, to arrest the accumulation and also cleanse the blood of the scrofulous matter, and (2) a mild cathartic to expel the diseased matter from the system. The course of treatment, in conjunction with a strict hygienic regime, has proved the most successful method of curing this disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the best alteratives and cathartic remedies before the public, and have been alone used in thousands of cases of consumption with the most marked efficacy. Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, at Buffalo, N. Y., affords special and unequaled advantages to consumptives, not only possessing the best medical and hygienic means of treatment, but having the essential advantage of being situated in a climate where the inhabitants are notably free from this disease.

When the discussion was concluded three sums were named as the amount to be appropriated for spreading Missionary intelligence: $2,500, $3,000, and $5,000. A motion to appropriate $3,000 then prevailed.

On motion of D. F. Barnes the following was adopted unanimously by a rising vote:

Resolved, That, as a Committee, we express our high appreciation of the valuable services rendered by the editors of our several Church papers for the hearty sympathy with the work of the Society and their co-operation in our efforts to furnish the Church with Missionary intelligence.

BISHOP PECK PRESIDING.

Dr. Fowler moved that $95,586 be appropriated to the liquidation of the debt; this to be in addition to the detailed appropriations already made, and the motion prevailed.

Bishop Harris from the Committee on the Personnel of the Board reported, and the Committee accepted the report; and adopted the several recommendations. The business being concluded, the Secretary read the minutes, and the General Missionary Committee adjourned sine die, Bishop Ames pronouncing the benediction.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

HELP!

FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S

ELECTRIC BELTS

AND BANDS,

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions—Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S ELECTRIC BELTS AND BANDS

cure these various diseased conditions, after all other means fail, and we offer the most convincing testimony direct from the afflicted themselves, who have been restored to

HEALTH, STRENGTH, AND ENERGY,

after drugging in vain for months and years. Send now for DESCRIPTIVE PAMPHLET and THE ELECTRIC QUARTERLY, a large Illustrated Journal, containing full particulars and INFORMATION WORTH THOUSANDS. Copies mailed free. Address,

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE of PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucous, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried HIGH UP and PERFECTLY APPLIED to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. SAGE'S Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists.

PATENTS

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada, and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office, we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost, than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German-American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims; to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

Nelson & Phillips, Publishers. J. C. Hartzell, B.D., Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, NOVEMBER 1, 1878.

DEAR BROTHER:—The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is your official church paper, and is published by order of the General Conference, at New Orleans. Besides religious news, the SOUTHWESTERN will contain articles on education, agriculture and politics. The more your people read from a good paper the more intelligent and active will they be as Christians, and the better will they support you and help in all the work of the church.

To aid you in the good work of circulating the SOUTHWESTERN we make the following most liberal propositions:

I. Two Months Free.

Every New subscriber for 1879 will receive the paper Free for the remainder of 1878. For example: If a subscriber gives you his name and two dollars November 1, 1878, he will receive the paper the two months remaining in 1878 and the whole year of 1879, making in all fourteen months for one year's subscription.

II. Cash Commissions to Agents.

All traveling Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are our authorized agents. We pay our agents the following cash commissions:

1. We send them their own paper for one dollar a year, just half price. This is the same as paying one dollar cash on their subscription.

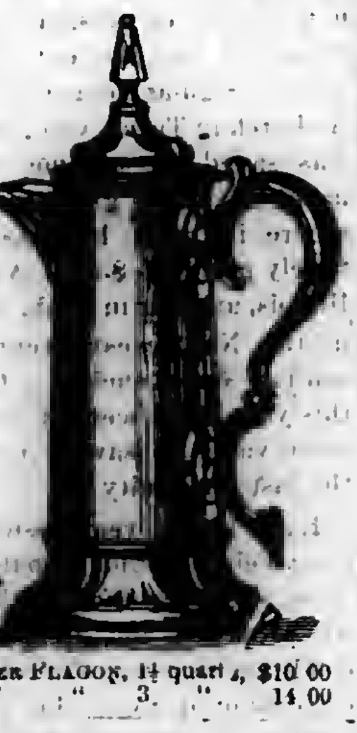
2. We pay twenty-five cents cash for every yearly subscriber. Whenever an agent collects two dollars for us he is authorized to keep twenty-five cents from the amount as his commission, and send us $1.75.

III. A Steel Engraving of John Wesley to Every Subscriber.

We give as a present to every yearly subscriber, a large and elegant steel engraving of John Wesley, the great founder of Methodism. This engraving retails at $1.50, but as we own the original plate and do our own publishing, we can afford to present one of those beautiful pictures to every subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN. The best judges pronounce the portrait a life-like picture of Wesley, and the engraving is first-class. The picture is 16x20 inches in size. Remember, we give this engraving as a present to every yearly subscriber as soon as the two dollars are paid.

IV. Silver Communion Ware for the Churches.

All our Churches need Communion Service Sets and we want them to have the best. By a most fortunate combination of circumstances we are enabled to put it within the reach of almost any Church to receive as a Present some of the best triple-plated Silver Communion Ware that is made. Here are pictures of the different pieces:



SILVER FLAGON, 1½ quarts, $10 00
" " 3 " 14 00

SILVER PLATE.
10 inches wide: $4 00

SILVER BAPTISMAL BOWL,
$7 00.

These prices are the Manufacturers lowest retail prices. This silver ware is such as is used in the best Churches throughout the country

SILVER GOBLET.
1 pint, $4 50.

REMEMBER this Silver Communion ware is given to the Churches in addition to the cash commissions to the Agent, and the steel engraved portrait of John Wesley to every subscriber. Our propositions to the Churches are as follows:

1. To any Church sending us Twenty Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon that will hold one and a half quarts, and worth $10 00.

2. To any Church sending us Twenty-five Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, and a Silver Plate worth $4. Total $14.

3. To any Church sending us Thirty-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, and a Silver Goblet worth $4 50. Total 18 50.

4. To any Church sending us Fifty cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, a Silver Goblet worth $4 50, and a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7. Total $25 50.

5. To any Church sending us Seventy-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon holding three quarts, worth $14, a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7, two Silver Goblets worth $9 and two Silver Plates worth $8. Total, $38.

NOTICE.—These magnificent presents are sent to the Churches complying with these terms, as soon as the money is received by us. This offer stands good for the whole year of 1878, and the present will be sent whenever, during the year, the money is received.

Our Liberal Offer.

We claim that the offers we have made on the preceding pages are very liberal. It will be noticed that we propose helping—FIRST, the preacher, who acts as our agent in getting subscribers for us; SECOND, every subscriber who takes the paper and pays for it: THIRD, the congregation where twenty or more subscribers are obtained.

FOR EXAMPLE: Suppose a pastor and his people secure twenty yearly subscribers. At two dollars apiece that would be forty dollars. As the preacher gets twenty-five cents for every subscriber, five dollars of the forty dollars will belong to him. As soon as the remaining thirty-five dollars are received by us, we will send as a present to the congregation an elegant silver flagon worth ten dollars. We will also send twenty steel engravings of John Wesley, one for each subscriber.

Let it be understood that EVERY YEARLY SUBSCRIBER gets a steel engraving as soon as his subscription is paid, and for every two dollars collected the pastor will get twenty-five cents. The elegant Silver Communion Ware given to the Churches is IN ADDITION to what we give the pastor and each subscriber.

Our Terms.

1. The SOUTHWESTERN costs $2 a year, cash in advance. We pay the postage.

2. Where the preacher will be personally responsible for the money, we will send the papers; but no commissions will be paid the preachers, or steel engravings sent the subscribers, or silver ware sent to the churches, until the money is received at our office.

3. Cash in advance is the best rule for all parties. We get the money and are saved embarrassment: the preacher gets his commission: the subscriber gets his steel engraving at once, and the church gets its silver communion ware for immediate use.

4. Send the money by Postoffice Order whenever possible.

BEGIN THE CANVASS AT ONCE.

We need five thousand subscribers, and if all our Agents will take hold of the canvass at once, and push it for sixty days, we shall have them.

Let the canvass begin at once. We will send you a specimen copy of the steel engraving to show the people. Take this engraving and a copy of the paper and show them to your congregation, and explain the value of the paper and our liberal offers.

Has your Church a good Set of Communion Ware? If not, you need one, and now is your chance to get one as a gift. Explain our proposition to give Silver Communion Ware, to your official board, and get the brethren to unite in helping to secure twenty or more subscribers, and secure some of our magnificent presents.

We will furnish you all the specimen copies of the SOUTHWESTERN you want, free, whenever you ask for them.

THE LOVED ONES.

BY MOSES ROSE.

How many bitter woes we meet,
As o'er the rough, uneven way,
With aching heart and weary feet,
We travel on from day to day.

[illegible] the loved ones, one by one,
White and cold, with the silent rower;
With folded hands—their work all done—
To their rest on the other shore.

[illegible], the bride—the bride of a day—
[illegible] paid heed to our bitter wail:
But fair and smiling passed away—
Passed with the boatman still and pale.

"Go, tell the children from their play;
I go on a journey strange and still."
The mother's face was ashen gray,
And her limbs were rigid and chill.

"My work is done, my race is run,"
And then the strong man bowed his head.
They bore him forth at set of sun
To the low, cold home of the dead.

Those gone before—how far away!
How deaf they are to every cry!
They come not from the realms of day,
Nor answer from their home on high.

For though I mourn both night and day,
My eyes are ever dim with tears;
They [illegible] not from work or play,
To soothe my grief or calm my fears.

Oh, let me meet them, God of love,
In their fair and radiant home:
Where [illegible] shadows never move,
And pain and sorrow never come.

SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT.

It is twelve years since this Society was organized by our Church, a period too brief for a complete development of its plans of usefulness, yet sufficient to demonstrate its efficiency in behalf of our mission work in the South, and in the elevation of this emancipated people. So rapid has been the progress in the cultivation of this field, that the reapers have followed, sickle in hand, closely upon the footsteps of those scattering the seed. History furnishes no illustration of a people, so ignorant and destitute, that in so brief a period has made such rapid advancement in Christian civilization and culture.

Their improvement has been great, 1st, in regard to Intelligence. It was criminal in the estimation of the laws of the South to teach a slave to read or write. It was deemed necessary in order to perpetuate slavery, to doom its subjects to perpetual ignorance. But with emancipation, came the abrogation of all laws enforcing ignorance and degradation. The blackness of the night passes away and the light of the day begins to dawn. The Alphabet, the spelling-book, the Bible, elementary branches, advanced science, Algebra, Geometry, Latin, Greek and Hebrew, each in turn, in the Seminaries and Colleges established through the liberality of Northern friends, are studied by enthusiastic pupils, aided and encouraged by faithful teachers. It is estimated by General Eaton, Commissioner of Education, that about thirty-seven (37) per cent. of the colored population of school-age in the South are enrolled in the schools. There being about 1,600,000 of age to attend school and about 600,000 in attendance. This grand result has been achieved through the agency of the Freedmen's Bureau, the American Missionary Association, the public schools, and the various [illegible] societies of the [illegible] may be mentioned the Freedmen's Aid Society of the M. E. Church, which, by general consent, has secured preeminence by the character and extent of its work in behalf of the freedmen.

Their improvement has been great, 2d, In Morality. Granting most that our friends in the South claim for the evangelizing influences of slavery, it is evident that it has inflicted fearful wrongs upon this people. It regarded the slave a chattel, and subjected him to all the incidents of chattelism. Slavery drove the ploughshare of ruin through the moral nature of the slave, and made sad havoc with all distinction between right and wrong. It would be strange if a race should come from such tutelage, without even a trace of deception, dishonesty or licentiousness. Emancipation did not relieve the race from the wrongs inflicted upon it in its bondage. Its degradation adhered to it, as it crosses over the Red Sea from slavery into freedom. It cannot in this sudden transition throw off all the effects of centuries of degradation and wrong.

But a new era, the era of freedom has dawned, and not a sun has set since emancipation without witnessing improvement on the part of the freedmen. With the Church and the school, and the privilege of attending them, comes a higher civilization. With intelligence and the truth as it is in Jesus, come clearer views of life, of duty, of obligation to God and to man. Our schools are bridging the great gulf between feeling and principle in [illegible] of this people, and are [illegible] emotion and [illegible], and by this combination there will be produced a class of [illegible] workers, imperatively demanded for the overthrow of the [illegible] and the estab[illegible] of Christian institutions [illegible] world. Our schools [illegible] schools, and our [illegible] morality and [illegible] equal emphasis and [illegible] in theology are [illegible] in all our schools, and four [illegible] of our pupils are pursuing [illegible] the ministry. [illegible] students may be found [illegible] Conferences in the [illegible] valiant service for [illegible] the Gospel with [illegible] inculcating morality and ad[illegible] [illegible] South. Our teachers and pupils also enter heartily into the Sunday-school work of our Church, and thus perpetuate their influence for good in these nurseries of piety. More than one thousand of our pupils for the past year were preparing to teach their people, and it is estimated that one hundred thousand have been under the instruction of those prepared for their work in the institutions established and sustained by the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The improvement of the freedmen is seen 3d, In their increase in wealth. When this people came out of bondage into freedom, they came in poverty and wretchedness, utterly destitute of all the comforts and conveniences of life. Their scanty wardrobe only embraced the tattered garments which they wore, or at most only a few articles of clothing which they carried with them, and guarded with the greatest care. They had no houses, nor homes, nor lands, nor beasts of burden, nor implements of labor; neither capital nor credit, with which to begin for themselves the race of life. Helpless ones bound to them by the ties of nature and affection, also looked to them for succor and support. Under the most disheartening circumstances of ignorance and want, without habits of economy, business management, or self-reliance, they commenced life anew, and the results of the past few years are full of encouragement.

The colored people are becoming industrious as they begin to realize that they may reap the fruit of their own labor for themselves and families, and that the quantity and the quality of the harvest depend largely upon the toil and care expended in its culture. The vicissitudes of their new life teach them that sickness and adversity follow closely health and prosperity, and they begin to learn in propitious times to save their earnings, practice economy, and make provision cheap so that they shall not be in want when their health and strength fail. Not a few are [illegible] habits of industry, of careful expenditure, of judicious foresight in the management of business affairs, and their condition in life begins to brighten, as they accumulate houses, lands and property, and thus become able to educate their children, and to adorn their homes with the comforts and refinements of life.

This position may be sustained by authenticated statistics, but I have only space for a specimen or two. "The Comptroller of Georgia reports that there are 84,164 colored voters in the State, who own 457,635 acres of land, the valuation of which in the tax list is $1,244,104, and also own city property, valued at $1,790,725, besides about $1,000,000 worth of horses, mules, hogs and cattle, and $2,100,000 in other property not enumerated, making an aggregate of $6,134,829." Col. Preston of Va., says, "In my tax district, in the county of Rockbridge, Va., there are about six thousand inhabitants, two thousand of them blacks. The latter are assessed for about $50,000 of real estate and 10,000 of personal property, and are rated for about $1,800 tax, of which they pay $1,500, not more than $300 being returned insolvent." Official records of Montgomery, Ala., state that "in that city and suburb, there are 457 colored persons holding real estate. The aggregate assessed value is $110,146; personal property, $19,281; total, 129,427. The largest amount assessed to any one person is $3,720."

The colored people are aiding in the erection of churches and school-houses, and large numbers of them have secured for themselves comfortable homes.

As an illustration of the industry of the people, it is stated upon reliable authority, that the crop of cotton this year will be nearly five and a half millions of bales, the largest crop ever known.

Wonderfully has God blessed the efforts of his people in giving so great encouragement thus early in this good work, and while we rejoice in what has already been accomplished, we must not forget that it is but just commenced; a deeper interest must be awakened, greater enthusiasm aroused, an increased number of teachers sent into the field, and larger amounts of money raised. Humanity demands it, the safety of the nation demands it, [illegible] membership among the people demands it, [illegible] holy Christianity demands it, and He who holds the balances of justice in his hands demands it, and will be satisfied with nothing less.

THE DIVINE GUARANTEE.

A synopsis of a sermon preached by Rev. A. A. Johnson, A. M., at Ames M. E. Church, at New Orleans, La., Sabbath, Nov. 24.

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."—I Cor. XV—58.

This passage of scripture is the conclusion of Paul's great argument on the doctrine of the resurrection of the body. It was an exhortation to duty, and comes with all its original force to us as a church to-day. The Apostle had conclusively proven the doctrine of the body's resurrection—a doctrine upon which hangs all the future success and glory of man. The resurrection of the body is a a fundamental truth, and a cardinal doctrine of Christianity.

If there be no resurrection, then there can be no future reward for virtuous actions, and philanthropic efforts. But there is to be a resurrection. Man will rise from the tomb, and leave the whited sepulcher of death for the bright plains of immortality.

If this is true, (and Paul has conclusively proven it) then there will be a glorious harvest in eternity for well doing in this life. Zealous, devoted Christian labor will meet with approbation and divine reward in eternity. And the reward will be in proportion to the steadfastness of our faith and the devotedness of our efforts for extension of Christ's Kingdom. Therefore, says the Apostle; and Paul's therefores always mean something. They are the heralds of great truths. "Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as ye know your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

The text suggests and inculcates three cardinal facts of revelation; which may be classed as follows.

I. The Christians duty.

II. The Christians work.

III. The Divine guarantee of success in religious work.

I. The most essential Christian duty arises from the great truth suggested by the text; namely, the Christian doctrines are great motive forces for a Christian life, impelling a man to steadfastness of purpose, and purity of life. If the New Testament doctrines be fully understood, appreciated, and believed, our lives are correspondingly pure and devoted. This is true, because a man's life, as exhibited to the world by actions, is always an index of his knowledge and faith. Look at the man who is idle, worthless, and vicious in his habits, and you will always find him to be ignorant, superstitious, and without any knowledge of Christ, and the great doctrines of the New Testament. Without any faith in the doctrine of future rewards and punishments. Such a man is not under any moral restraint whatever, and accordingly plunges into sin.

On the other hand turn your attention to the industrious, cultured, and truly religious gentleman; and you will find that the motive force impelling him to a life of morality, to a life of purity, to a life of dignified culture and religious bearing lies in his knowledge of, and belief in the great truths of God's revelations. He believes in the depravity of man; believes in the atonement; he believes in the resurrection of the dead; he believes in a judgment to come; and he believes in future rewards and punishments. Accordingly his belief moulds his character, and shapes his destiny. He is steadfast and unmoveable, because he's abiding in Christ, and resting upon the fundamental doctrines of Christianity.

This truth is a basal fact in regard to Christian character. And out of this fact arises the Christians first duty. Namely a full knowledge and understanding of the doctrines of the Bible. It is a mistaken idea that only ministers are to study theology. All Christians ought to be conversant with sytematic divinity, and make a practical application of it to their own hearts. To do this requires a constant and careful study of the Holy Scriptures.

There is great advantage in thus knowing the doctrines of the Bible. They, with the reward they bring in this life, are motives to purity. We cannot be steadfast unmoveable Christians without a firm belief in the cardinal truths of revelation. These great truths are startling admonitions to steadfast solemn duty, and devoted labor for Christ.

Then, my brethren, if you want to be firm Christians, endowed with the power of God's grace, read your Bibles, study the doctrines, pray for the enlightenment of the Holy Spirit, and endeavor to shape your destiny by the truths of God's revealed word.

2. The second duty of the Christian is fully stated by the text; "Be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the word of the Lord."

This duty is the outgrowth of the former. For it is the only steadfastness of faith that brings to bear upon our lives the influence of the truths we believe, and enables us to exemplify the Christian graces. "Steadfast, unmoveable, abounding," says Dr. Whedon, "form a beautiful climax of Christian duties, steadfast means positive intrinsic firmness; unmoveable implies resistance to the mightiest pressures and fiercest onsets; and abounding means energetic action, and devoted labor for the Master."

These three characteristics make the true disciple of Christ. They are the embodiments of the ideal Christian. They are necessary elements in the character of him who is to reap eternal reward and infinite glory.

What is it that makes the true Christian? It is the positive hatred of sin, positive love for God, and positive devotion to man in direst afflictions and deepest degredation. It is firmness of faith, integrity of character, resolute in action, and established in purpose.

Nor is this all. The Christian is surrounded by enemies, and persecutors. He is in the midst of sin and temptation. There are fierce attacks upon character, and fiercer onsets from the tempter. A conflict rages around him, and often in his own bosom. O how shall he conquer in this terrible carnage? Where is the secret of his victory? It is resting in Christ, resisting all these fierce onsets in His name. It is standing on the "Rock of Ages," upon whose base is inscribed in emblazoned letters Immoveable.

We have reached the climax of Christian duties. The true disciple of Christ is a worker, an energetic laborer in the extension of the Master's Kingdom. The highest duty of the Christian is "always abounding in the work of the Lord."

If you want to know what kind of a Christian you are, ask yourself this question, How much do I work for Christ; this is a sure test. "By their fruit ye shall know them."

II. This leads me to speak more fully of the Christian's work.

What is the "work of the Lord?" I answer, the conversion of sinners, the upbuilding of the Church, and all the countless forms of Christian activity.

The first object of the Christian is the conversion of souls. This should be the pivot around which all his actions should turn, the center of his thoughts, and the converging point of all his efforts.

The second object of the Christian should be the upbuilding of the Church, by increasing the membership and the attendance upon the means of grace, and by increasing the financial strength of the Church. In addition to these two special works, there are numerous forms of Christian activity. Such as visiting the sick, relieving the distressed, and giving alms to the poor.

III. But the chief reason for "abounding in the work of the work of the Lord," is the Divine guarantee of success. "For as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." Our labor is not in vain as it would be if there was no resurrection and no future life of eternal reward.

But there being a resurrection, every deed in faith, every deed done for Christ shall brighten the lustre of the resurrection body. The brighter our earthly Christian character; the more transcendant our heavenly glory, and richer our eternal reward.

Success, then, in religious work depends upon the spirit and motive with which the work is done; and the reward, upon the magnitude of our labors. The Divine decree has gone forth, and reads on the pages of inspiration as follows: "Every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor." There is nothing arbitrary about that. It is plain, and easily understood.

Small labor, small reward. True devotion and great labor for Christ entitles us to great and glorious reward. Our labors shall attain their highest reward in Christ, who is all riches. For this is the Divine guarantee, "Not in vain in the Lord."

The reward that sweetens my labor, as I toil with aching head and enfeebled nervous system for the poor, ignorant and degraded, is, "It shall not be in vain in the Lord."

I may not see any immediate result. The effect of my labor may not be seen until I am dead. But I have the assurance that if I am faithful I shall abide on the bright plains of immortality, amid the continual bloom and fruitage of my labor.

And there is the transcendency of the reward, the certainty of glory, and the Divine guarantee of success.

Our labor is finite. It does not last long. It has an end. But the reward is infinite. There is no more proportion between a Christian's labor and reward, than there is between time and eternity. O, the infinite glory, the enraptured delight, the unspeakable happiness; all the reward of our poor labor for Christ!

Bishop Janes once said: "I intend, by the grace of God, to get as near the throne as St. Paul." That was a bold declaration; but it was holy aspiration, his soul longing for the infinite glory that surrounds the throne of God. And it is right to have such aspirations.

But if St. Paul is any nearer the throne than Bishop Janes, any nearer than you and I, when we reach that beautiful city, it will be because of his heart-purity, and his arduous, devoted labors for Christ.

Let us earnestly and zealously do the "work of the Lord;" yes, labor diligently, for labor is rest—rest from the sorrows that greet us:

Rest from all petty vexations that meet us,
Rest from sin-promptings that ever entreat us,
Rest from world syrens who lure us to ill.

And as you labor, God will fill your soul with bright anticipations.

Such a life of labor will plead for us at the judgment.

It will procure for us at the hands of a merciful God, through the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ, a glorious recompense at the resurrection. As we rise glorified in form, fit for the society of heaven and the redeemed, will we not deem that sufficient reward? Ought we not to live after the spirit of the poet who says:

"Give joy or grief, give ease or pain,
Take life or friends away;
But let me find them all again
In that eternal day."

The time of action with us will soon be over, and we shall lie down in the grave to wait for the resurrection.

"Then let us be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

South Carolina Disgraced.

There seems to be no doubt that during the late campaign in South Carolina, Republicans and their friends were treated to every sort of indignity wherever they attempted to hold meetings or vote, in those counties in which there was any possible chance of their having a majority. Governor Hampton and his administration have failed to keep their pledges to protect all alike. The following is from a private letter from a gentleman who was in the Union army, as a surgeon, and who married and settled in South Carolina. The Dr. Webster referred to is a very worthy minister of our Church. This letter says:

We are not allowed to hold any meetings. Even our conventions are broken up by the red shirt Democracy. Republicans can no longer exercise their political and party rights in South Carolina any more than they could in Russia or China. Freedom in the South is a shame and reproach to the American nation. You say appeal to the courts. Bosh, you might as well appeal to the devil to protect you in your religious rights. They openly declare that no Republican meeting shall be held and whenever it has been attempted, it has been violently broken up.

Full particulars have arrived here of the application of the South Carolina law abiding plan to silence the Republicans, as exemplified in the case of State Senator Duncan. The Democrats tried various threats to induce him to abandon Republican meetings, but without avail. Finally, to prevent him from attending one deemed important, a citizen swore that in the last canvass Duncan had promised to have him appointed County Auditor if he was elected. Upon this a warrant for bribery was sworn out, and Duncan was arrested as he appeared at the meeting, and taken to jail. A white citizen named Webster, of high standing, at once offered the $1,500 bail demanded. Another witness then swore that Webster had promised him the office of County Treasurer. Upon this Webster was arrested and put in jail. This rendered him ineligible as bondsman for Duncan, and so both were locked up in default of $3,000. Mr. Webster is a Northern Methodist clergyman of standing, and is presiding elder in that church. He has also been President of Orangeburg University, in South Carolina.

The following, from the New York Times gives the facts respecting the breaking up of a meeting near Sumpter, S. C. Judge Lee and his Republican friends had called a meeting, and the friends of Hampton demanded half the time, which, through fear of worse trouble, was granted. The result was this:

"The speaker, having mounted on a wagon on which Mr. Lee was sitting, which served as a platform, commenced a bitter harangue againt the Republican party as a whole, and against Lee in particular, frequently turning around and shaking his forefinger so near to Mr. Lee's face as almost to bring it in contact with it. Mr. Lee objected to such discourtesy in the mildest language and rose to go down; but was instantly answered by Mr. Dargan with a blow, which sent him reeling to the ground. Then this leader of the Democrats and another of his friends seized and choked him, and at once there followed an excitement which baffles description The Democrats, who all came well armed with pistols, commenced brandishing them in threatening attitudes.

A single movement on the part of the handful of Republicans to rescue their leader would have precipitated them into a bloody conflict such a conflict as would have reminded the country that the spirit which two years ago perpetrated the Hamburg and Ellentown massacres is still active in South Carolina to-day Col. Earle now executed his threat. He and others having seized Judge Lee, forcibly threw him into his buggy and hurried him off, amid over a hundred horsemen, utterly disregarding his remonstrance and his intention to go to Camden on business. Along the road he and Mr. Walker were treated with every species of indignity. They were at times threatened to be whipped or shot if they spoke. At other times they were forced to answer every question that was put to them. They were repeatedly told, if they ever 'go out in the country again to speak to the colored people they should be killed.'

It was the announced purpose of the Democrats to carry Mr. Lee to the court-house steps. On his refusing to go so far, he was seized by several of them—Mr. Dargan among others — who dragged him some distance through the streets, till the police came to his rescue, who alleged that it was necessary that he should go there in order to satisfy the anger of the mob. He was carried to the court-house steps, where Messrs. Dargan and Earle publicly announced that Lee had been brought back alive this time; but if he ever dared to call or attend a Republican meeting in this county he would be killed."

Still another case was at Georgetown, S. C.

The details of an attack upon a Republican meeting at Georgetown, S. C., have reached Washington. The Republicans had called a mass meeting at that place, and were quietly conducting it, and at the same time, in another part of the town, a large Democratic meeting was organized, attended by two cavalry companies and one of infantry, dressed in uniform and armed with pistols, rifles and sabers. These almost immediately set themselves to work to break up the Republican meeting, and some of them went over to the stand and made a demonstration against one of the speakers, and immediately produced a general confusion, when armed men made a combined attack upon the meeting, drove off the Republicans, tore down the speaker's stand, cut down the flagstaff, pulled off the national colors, tore the flag to pieces, and trampled it under foot. Such is "conciliation."

Civilization of North American is no longer problematical. The "passing away" theory is effectually exploded. With those who cherish it, the wish is father to the thought. Humanity is essentially the same all redeemed, all teachable, all capable of the highest degree of culture and refinement. It is our work to lift up the degraded. Will we do it?—California Advocate

"The girls of our day are very badly educated," said one of the members of a committee on education to the Bishop of Gloucester. "That cannot be denied," retorted his lordship. "However, there is one consolation—the boys will never find it out."

Our Engraving.

Our engravings of John Wesley for gifts to subscribers, are being printed as rapidly as possible. Every preacher in charge will receive one by mail in a few days as a specimen to show the people, and canvass with. But do not wait; begin the canvass at once.

That Old Bottle.

Among many of our churches a bottle is used to contain the wine at communion table. It does not look well. Better use an ordinary pitcher. But how much nicer to have a silver pitcher. Any church sending twenty cash subscribers can have as a gift a silver pitcher worth $10. Throw away that old bottle.

Splendid!

Splendid, is the word that our agents use in speaking of the gifts offered by our publishers to subscribers of the SOUTHWESTERN. Every subscriber gets a steel engraving of John Wesley, and in addition to this, churches which take twenty or more subscribers, get silver communion ware worth from $10 to $38. Read the prospectus for 1879 in other columns.

The Subscription Lists.

The President's Message.

The annual message of President Hayes, submitted to both houses of Congress on Monday, is an admirable statement of the general condition of the country. Our heartfelt gratitude, says the President, is due to the Divine Being for the continued bestowal of countless blessings during the last year. In view of the fatal pestilence of the past season, he recommends that Congress consider the subject of national quarantine regulations.

Next, (and this is of exceeding interest to the people of the South,) he alludes to the popularity of every effort made in the direction of the permanent pacification of the country. The recent congressional elections afforded a test of the advance thus far made in the practical establishment of the right of suffrage, secured by the constitution to the liberated race in the South. All disturbing influences, real or imaginary had been removed. The former slave-holding States, were pledged to the acceptance of the three amendments conferring the equality of civil and political rights on colored people. By these amendments a large increase of power was conferred on these States; but in some of them the colored people have been unable to make their opinions felt in elections. This result is mainly due to influences not easily remedied by legal protection. In the States of Louisiana and South Carolina, and in particular districts of other States, the records of the election compel the conclusion "that the colored voters have been over-ridden, and their participation in the elections not permitted to be either general or free." Congress will examine and determine as to the validity of the election of its members; but it is also the duty of the executive and judiciary, each in its province, to inquire into, and punish violations of the laws of the United States which have occurred. The appropriation to the department of justice for this purpose is inadequate, and he asks for a sufficient appropriation to enable the executive to enforce the laws. He says:

"I respectfully urge upon your attention that the congressional elections, in every district, in a very important sense, are justly a matter of political interest and concern throughout the whole country. Each State, every political party, is entitled to the share of power which is conferred by the legal and constitutional suffrage. It is the right of every citizen, possessing the qualifications prescribed by law, to cast one untimidated ballot, and to have his ballot honestly counted. So long as the exercise of this power and the enjoyment of this right are common and equal, practically as well as formally, submission to the results of the suffrage will be accorded loyally and cheerfully, and all the departments of government will feel the true vigor of the of the popular will thus expressed. No temporary or administrative interests of government, however urgent or weighty, will ever displace the zeal of our people in defence of our primary rights of citizenship. They understand that the protection of liberty requires the maintenance, in full vigor, of the manly methods of free speech, free press, and free suffrage, and will sustain the full authority of government to enforce the laws which are framed to preserve these inestimable rights. The material progress and welfare of the States depend on the protection afforded to their citizens. There can be no peace without such protection, no prosperity without peace, and the whole country is deeply interested in the growth and prosperity of all its parts.

"While the country has not yet reached complete unity of feeling and reciprocal confidence between the communities so lately and so seriously estranged, I feel an absolute assurance that the tendencies are in that direction, and with increasing [illegible]. The power of public opinion will override all political prejudices, and all sectional or race animosities, in demanding that all over our wide territory the name and character of citizen of the United States shall mean one and the same thing, and carry with them unchallenged security and respect."

The relations with other countries continue peaceful. Abstinence from radical changes in financial legislation will result to the prosperity of the country. The public debt has been reduced during the year ending No. 1, $23,150,617 38. Department reports are [illegible].

[illegible] message is vigorously assailed by the bull dozing Democrats who are about to wield their [illegible] in Congress, because [illegible] President has [illegible] to their heads, which [illegible] in the wearing. [illegible] at once, on the [illegible] the message to [illegible] whole, when Mr. [illegible] New York at[illegible] [illegible] the President [illegible] the cry of "bloody shirt" will not drown their proper indignation at great crimes against the laws of the land.

Tennessee Conference.

This conference convened for its 13th annual session at Murfreesboro, Nov. 21st. Bishop Scott conducted the opening services. C. W. S. Woods was elected Secretary. The usual standing committees were appointed. Bishop Scott addressed the conference very affectingly. This is the third time he has held this conference. He has passed his seventy-sixth year, yet his health and strength enable him to travel and perform the duties of his office. He expressed a strong desire to die at his post. He urged members of conference to attend faithfully the opening religious exercises of the daily sessions, as they needed means of grace for the spiritual advantage of the conference session. He had known members of other conferences to take very little interest in the devotional exercises of the daily sessions. The address indicated strength and vigor of thought, and more of physical strength than some of us expected.

Dr. Savage, agent of the A. B. Society, addressed the conference in the interests of the Bible work in the bounds of the conference. He spoke of what the Bible had done, in making it possible for this conference to be held, and the colored people of the South to enjoy their present educational advantages. He said in 30 counties of Tennessee and Kentucky, thirty-five thousand families were found destitute of the Bible. He urged the preachers to teach the Bible, and scatter it in all their charges.

The committees of examination then reported a decided improvement in the studies of the various years. The six candidates for graduation into full connection, passed a fair examination and were admitted. Of the elders, six were admitted into the travelling ministry on trial. The anniversary of the Sunday School Union was held on Friday night. Rev. J. B. Ford, Sunday School Secretary for the South, C. W. S. Woods and S. J. Harris made very fine addresses. Bro. Ford also addressed the conference on the need of the S. S. Union, the necessity of increased collections in order to carry on efficiently the work of the Union. The Educational Anniversary was addressed by Dr. Mitchell, P. E., of the Atlanta, Ga., District Conference, J. W. Hay, J. Braden, and C. W. Woods. The Missionary sermon was preached by C. W. Woods on Saturday afternoon, and the anniversary held at night, when addresses were delivered by Revs. McFerrin and Adams of the Church South, and by S. J. Harris and D. W. Hays. The standing committees reported on their various topics.

The report on education reported the prosperity of the West Tennessee preparatory school, and also recommended to the trustees to continue the present effective principal, Rev. C. E. Alexander. The yellow fever has somewhat interfered with the opening of the school, but the prospects are very fair for the future. The Central Tennessee College was reported as in excellent condition. The attendance equal to former years, and an increase in the number of students in the boarding hall. The Theological Department was specially recommended to the attention of the preachers, and candidates for the ministry were urged to attend the school. The past year was one of great prosperity. The enrollment in all departments was nearly three hundred. There were many conversions among the students, and the spiritual as well as the intellectual welfare is carefully guarded by the Faculty. The report on temperance endorsed the action of the General Conference, and recommended abstinence from tobacco, and all intoxicating liquors, and pledged the preachers of the Conference to be examples of temperance the students and teachers, is evidence that while the Faculty labor to cultivate the intellect, they do not neglect the spiritual interests of those committed to their care. The present school year opens with an increased number of boarders and the promise is of a large attendance than usual.

Resolved, That we hereby commend the Central Tennessee College to our people and the public as affording excellent facilities for securing a thorough Christian education.

Resolved, That we commend the teachers for their fidelity to their interest in the spiritual welfare of the students.

Resolved, That as far as is consistent with the interests of the work, the members of this conference are recommended to attend the college for three months during the conference year, and that our probationers and young men preparing for the ministry are specially urged to avail themselves of the advantages of this school.

Resolved, That Thos. Ward, P. Martin, and P. Gregg be appointed a visiting committee.

Resolved, That the presiding Bishop is hereby requested to reappoint J. Braden to the presidency of this institution.

Shabby.

In the New Orleans Democrat, the official journal of the city of New Orleans, appears an advertisement of Administrator Isaacson, of the department of finance, City Hall, relative to unpaid school salaries of 1873 and 1874. It is prefaced: "The following sums remain unpaid and will be paid to the persons named by the Treasurer of the Public Schools at this office, less proportionate charge for this advertisement." Following are 54 names of superannuaries, portresses and others, with amounts due opposite for the year 1873, and 12 for 1874, representing a total amount of $719,80. One person is entitled to fifteen cents, others to thirty and forty-five. The highest sum is $83,35, only five of $50 and upwards appear on the list, while the majority are less than $5.

These amounts are due to poor and needy persons, who have served the city, and waited four and five years for payment. Now the city's financial agent announces that he is ready to pay them, and charges them for the announcement. This act is thoroughly in keeping with the public spirit of the city administration for years past, and is shabby in the extreme. Teachers of the public schools are treated with almost utter neglect, turned over to the mercy of warrant brokers, and allowed to work for months without consideration sufficient to maintain a livelihood. Starved and ill-treated teachers can not be expected to have that zeal for their profession which will make itself manifest in the highest order of public schools; and, therefore, the people are being deprived of a creditable and efficient system of education by the policy now in vogue. If the city was too poor to pay for the advertisement alluded to, it was possible to find newspapers that would have made no charge against the claimants in this case. But we claim that it was not, and hence the discrimination was odious.

Bible Work in Texas.

The superintendent of the American Bible Society, for Texas, with headquarters at Austin, furnishes us with the following summary of the colportage work in this State for the year ending October 1, 1878: Number of families visited by colporter, 39,321; families found without the Scriptures, 7970; destitute families supplied, 6016; destitute individuals supplied, in addition, 2118; number of books sold, 20,500 value of books sold, $6682,79; number of books donated to the needy, 5106; value of books donated, $1340,32; contributions received from churches and individuals, $1364,36; days of service rendered, 3908; number of miles traveled, 39,900. Thus, 25,606 volumes of the Holy Scriptures have been put into circulation, in thirteen different languages, by sale and donation, in thirty-two counties of the State. An effort is being made to carry out a systematic and thorough canvass and supply of the State with the Bible. By this means, the Word of God, which is the light of the world, will find its way to the cellars and garrets of our cities, into the obscure portions of our land, and the solitary cabins of the frontier.

The City.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association honored its dead with memorial services, held Sunday evening at 203 Canal Street.

Gen. McMillian, pension agent, returned to his headquarters last week, after a visit to his plantation in Carroll parish. The chief pension agency was located for a time at Montgomery, Alabama.

Henry Coleman, a colored roustaer on the steamer Mary Houston, Sunday morning woke up and rolled into the river. A policeman came to his assistance, and held him above water until he could be pulled out.

The Homeopathic Fever Commission commenced its session on Monday. A circular letter was addressed some days ago to the medical fraternity, with a view of collecting data for subsequent action by this commission. The members are: Drs. W. H. Holcombe, New Orleans; T. S. Verdi, Washington; J. P. Dake, Nashville; M. D. Morse, Memphis; L. A. Falligant, Savannah; B. W. James, Philadelphia; Wm. L. Breyfogle, Louisville; E. H. Price, Chattanooga; F. H Orme, Atlanta; E. F. De Derkey, Mobile.

A series of riots occurred in Jackson, Ky., caused by the friends of a prisoner endeavoring to release him from a sheriff and posse.

REPORT ON EDUCATION.

The M. E. Church has always recognized the importance of education to all her people, has encouraged schools, public and private, established colleges and universities, and has furnished a literature that for extent, variety, high literary and religious character, has never been excelled.

This literature whether in the form of periodicals, or books, is a mighty educational force. In proportion as it is circulated among the people will it do its work as an educator. While the Church has thus provided for the wants of all her membership, she has made special efforts to provide for the education of those who, for generations, have been deprived to a great extent, of all educational advantages. Schools and colleges have been erected for them by the Church, through the agency of the Freedman's Aid Society, in nearly every Southern State, and efficiently equipped with teachers and other appliances. We rejoice in the work already done and realize that great good has been accomplished. This work on behalf of our people, demands gratitude to our friends and to God, the giver of all good. It also demands our hearty cooperation in sustaining these schools, and in increasing their usefulness by all laudable means. We rejoice in the prosperity of the schools located in our bounds, viz: the West Tennessee Preparatory School at Mason and the Central Tennessee College at Nashville. The West Tennessee Preparatory School has been under the efficent management of Rev. C. E. Alexander, and his talented wife, and has had a prosperous year. The enrollment has been 130. The building has been repaired during the year, and effort made to pay the debt and secure the deed of the prosperity to the Board of Trustees. It is hoped that the indebteness may soon be removed.

Resolved, That we recommended this school to the patronage of the church and the public and request our preachers, as far as practicable, to labor to secure a still larger attendance of students and otherwise to promote all its interests.

Resolved, That we recommend to the Board of Trustees the continuance of Rev. C. E. Alexande in charge of this school.

Resolved, That we urge the Trustees to use all diligence to pay the the debt and secure the title to the property.

Resolved, That H. W. Key, W. S. Butler and the pastors at Mason and Memphis, be appointed a visiting committee.

Central Tennessee College. We rejoice to report the continued prosperity of this institution. During the year 285 students were enrolled. Of these 5 were in the College classes, 12 in the Repository, 38 in the Theological, 18 in the Medical, and 83 in the Normal. The report of the visiting committee speaks in high terms of the management of the school, and the progress of the students in their studies. During the year a number of the students were converted, and the spirituality of the religious exercises of the school, and the regular weekly class and prayer meetings, which are generally attended by ance. Only three members of the Conference, including probationers, use tobacco, and these are old men. M. C. Young, C. S. Smith and C. W. Woods withdrew from the Church during the year, the latter by personal request at the close of the Conference session. Huston Bowers was expelled. The statistics are as follows:

Members, 5,603; probationers, 956; local preachers, 108; churches, 96; probable value, $77,645; parsonages, 4; probable value, $900; collections for Missions, $308,23; for Church Extension, $46,65; for Tract Society, $11,75; for S. S. Union, $16,50; for Freedmen's Aid, $65,00; for Education, $13,20; for American B. Society, $7,50; for Conference claimants, $——.

New York Letter.

The portal on the floor of the stately Methodist building, over which is the inscription "Mission Rooms, is seldom on Monday forenoon, a "yarrow unvisited" to the majority of the Methodist preachers of New York and vicinity. The attendance of ministers runs from fifty to one hundred and fifty. A rule adopted a year or so since, excludes all but pastors actually in charge. The fondness of certain sensational newspapers in this city to caricature the speeches made, led to the passage of this restriction, which Dr. Tiffany the other day called "a cast iron" rule.

Soon after the appearance of the hymnal, a discussion of the merits of that book began, which ran on through several Mondays. The meeting enjoyed peculiar facilities for learning full particulars about the new publication, as one of the members of the meeting was also a member of the committee which prepared the hymnal—the keen, versatile, argumentative Dr. Buckley, of Brooklyn. A pastor from a neighboring city somewhat hastily arraigned the poetic worth of such hymns as: "All People that on Earth do Dwell;" Luther's "A Strong Castle is our God," and "Jerusalem the Golden," which, of course, gave the aforesaid Doctor of distinguished forensic ability, a fine opportunity for a polished, and crushing reply. There is not a preacher within the influence of the meeting who does not believe more devoutly in the worth of the new collection of hymns than before the discussion began.

The meeting was addressed recently by Chancellor Haven, who has just returned from a visit to the British Isles, and the Continent. He spoke in an interesting way of the work of Irish Methodism, and the difficulties encountered in that work; of the religious condition and social standing of the Wesleyans of England, and of the signs of promise in the mission field of Italy.

The succeeding Monday was assigned to an address from Francis Murphy, who has begun a very auspicious temperance work in our Seventh St. Church.

These Mission Rooms are an Athenian market-place, an oriental city gate for Methodist preachers. Many a new thing do they hear from the travellers they arrest and demand a song from. It was through the agency of this organization that the Methodists of the metropolis had the opportunity of hearing, and all Methodists, the opportunity of reading, the historical utterances of one of the nation's most distinguished visitors, Dean Stanley, at the brilliant reception at St. Paul's, in Fourth avenue, Tribute of Respect.

At a called meeting of the Hesperian Literary Society, held on this date, at the New Orleans University, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty Providence, in His all-wise judgment, to remove from our midst during the recent scourge, Miss Anna S. DeWolf, our beloved and esteemed tutoress; and James A. Hall, our late member and fellow student. While we bow in humble subjection to Him who rules the universe, and shapes our destinies, we cannot but express our sincere regret at their death.

Resolved, That in the death of Miss Anna S. DeWolf, the Hesperian Literary Society has lost an honorable and respected member; the New Orleans University an efficient teacher, and the students an instructress whom they loved and revered—one who did honor to the chair which she filled.

Resolved, That we extend our sympathies to her bereaved parents, whom she was separated from by many miles, at the time of her death.

Resolved, That in the death of James A. Hall, the University has lost a faithful and obedient student, and the Society an active and zealous member.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the parents of the deceased, and published in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The price of The New York Weekly Times has been reduced to One dollar per annum, postage paid. At no period in its history has the future of the party of equal rights and national honor depended so much on the dissemination of sound political information among the people. No better public educator and no more complete newspaper can be found than the New York Weekly Times, and every new subscriber added to its list is a gain to the Republican Party.

Religious Items.

Bishop Foster lectures in Pittsburg on the 9th.

Two American freedmen were sent by the Spurgeon's tabernacle as missionaries to Africa.

Since the Bonn Synod abolished celibacy, "Old Catholic" clergy are marrying at a great rate.

The newly-remodeled building, 1020 Arch Street, Philadelphia, for the use of the Church Extension Board, is nearly completed.

Mrs. Van Cott has been holding meetings at the Franklin St. M. E. Church, Baltimore. Services twice daily, and hundreds obliged to go away.

The Bishops of England have, it is understood, come to the resolution that in the future licenses shall not be granted for the re-marriage according to the rites of the Church of England of divorced persons.

Rev. Joseph P. B. Wilmer, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Louisiana, died suddenly at the St. Charles Hotel, of appoplexy, on Monday evening. He resigned his parish in Philadelphia in 1860 to espouse the cause of secession. He was, at his decease, in his sixty-seventh year.

Says a lay worker in Copake Charge, New York Conference: "During the past year the pastor has organized his Sabbath-schools on this charge into Missionary Societies, and last Sabbath the children who had collecting cards made their returns. We were greatly surprised at the results, they having collected $82, which is nearly 400 per cent more than the average returns for many years past. This cheering success, coupled with a pleasant introduction of the new Hymnal, and with our pastor's statement that all his collections are taken and forwarded, save that for Conference Claimants, makes us feel desirous to let it be known."

General News Items.

Gambetta is firmly opposed to executing any more Communists, or prosecuting them in any shape or form on account of their past deeds and the sentence outstanding against them.

Count Andrassy in a speech said that the occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina would continue until Turkey reimbursed the outlay incurred, and could guarantee the future orderly government of those provinces.

The co-operative associations of Germany have made steady progress during the past year, notwithstanding the stagnation in business. There number has reached 3,300, with more than 1,000,000 members, and the business transacted exceeded $6,000,000. Their capital in stock, buildings, and other property, and in cash resources, is estimated at $40,000,000.

A meeting of public school teachers was held on Saturday at the Central High School, on Burgundy street, to consider their financial condition. Committees were appointed to confer with the press, and to wait upon the Legislature. Their situation is deplorable and disgraceful to the city. The remuneration received for services is not sufficient to maintain a livelihood, and their wrongs for years have gone unredressed.

"The Women's Suffrage Society," says the London Atheneum "are calling on such women as have distinguished themselves as authors artists, doctors, school-mistresses' to express in a few lines their conviction that the suffrage ought to be extended to all unmarried women who are rate-payers. The society is publishing these in the form of leaflets, and it has already obtained answers from a large number of women whose names are honorably before the world."

December 8, 1878.—THE CROSS.
SCRIPTURE.—Luke, 23: 33-46.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Gal. 6: 14.
TOPIC.—"A Dying Savior."

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

The following is the order of events: Thursday Evening, April 5th, A. D. 30: The agony in Gethsemane; The betrayal; Examination before Annas; Peters' denial; Trial before Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin. Friday morning: — Trial before Pilate; Trial before Herod; Trial resumed before Pilate; The scourging, etc.; Remorse and suicide of Judas; Bearing the Cross.

It is evident that the trial of Jesus was hurried forward with shameful haste. The arrest must have taken place on Thursday evening. Immediately he was taken before Annas, the still potent ex-high priest. Here he was subjected to a preliminary examination as to doctrine. But, in the meantime, the members of the Sanhedrin were summoned, and, by early cock-crowing, they were all together, and Jesus was brought bound before them. Technically they obeyed the law, which forbade the assembling of the Sanhedrin during the night time, but, as any one can see, actually they broke the spirit and the intention of the prohibition. Two other rules were disregarded by them in their eager thirst for blood. The first was that no one could be condemned except upon the testimony of two witnesses—and to the very last no two witnesses agreed together. The second was that no one should be condemed upon his own confession alone—and yet their final judgment of condemnation was rendered upon the extorted confession that their prisoner was the son of God. Then the high priest rent his clothes, saying: "What further need have we of witnesses!" On Friday morning, early, he was taken bound before Pilate. The trial before him, the change of venue to Herod, the return to Pilate, the efforts of Pilate to save him, the scourging, and the final delivery of Jesus to the soldiers for crucifixion—all these events together—did not consume a half dozen hours. Before 9 o'clock the farce of a trial was over, and the Savior was on his way to the cross. How literally that fulfilled Isaiah 55: 8, "He was taken from prison and from judgment; and who shall declare his generation?"

Crucified (33, 35).—Before he was nailed to the cross, a stupefying drink of wine mingled with myrrh, or gall, was offered to the Savior. It was probably offered by the pitiful women who followed him to the place of crucifixion, bewailing his approaching death, and to whom he addressed the compassionate and sad prophetic words recorded in verses 27-31. Doubtless the two malefactors who were with him partook of it without hesitation, but he refused the draught. He would not take refuge in insensibility from the pangs which he had left heaven to endure for the sake of a sinful world.

Mark tells the hour at which the cruel deed was done. It was the third hour—the very hour when the smoke of the morning sacrifice began to ascend from the courts of the temple. His death occurred at the ninth hour—the hour of the evening sacrifice. Were these two incidents merely accidental?

The method of punishment by crucifixion was not of Jewish origin or adoption; so repugnant to the people was it, that national sentiment would not have permitted a Jew to be crucified by Jews. How low, theretherefore, stooped the priests and their fellow conspirators, and how bitter must have been their hatred, when they conspired with the Romans to inflict upon one of their own countrymen a death which always aroused their ire when meted but to a Jew, no matter how vile or how worthy of punishment he may be! The shame of the cross was aggravated by his being crucified between two robbers —as though he were the worst of the three. That would seem to have been an unnecessary humiliation, but it causes the words of Isaiah 53: 12 to stand out in letters which gleam upon the sacred page: "And he was numbered with the transgressors."

There were seven words spoken by the Savior upon the cross. The first of these utterances occurred while the nails were being driven through his hands and his feet. Then, in the midst of that exquisite torture, when one might have expected to hear a wail of anguish, instead there came forth a prayer: "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

The prayer of the Savior upon the cross was answered upon the day of

Pentecost, and upon the day following, when many of those who urged on his crucifixion, and who took a cruel delight in his sufferings, were pricked to the heart at what they had done, and, through repentance, found the forgiveness which Christ had besought for them.

But this sublime utterance upon the cross had no effect upon the soldiers underneath. They were dividing the clothing which they had taken from him just previous to nailing him to the cross. There were four soldiers, and there was a garment for each soldier, and one left over. That one was the tunic, an undergarment, which in our version is improperly called a coat, and as this was without seam, it was impossible to divide it, and so, for it, they "cast lots." Now, in this matter, there was no interference either of the friends or the foes of Christ. The soldiers evidently followed out their own inclinations. And yet, as both Matthew and John recite, they fulfilled that Messianic prophecy, "They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture." Ps. 22: 18.

Mocked (35-39).—There were four classes of those who mocked him. 1. The people. 2. The rulers. 3. The soldiers. 4. The thief.

The people, apparently, as they went by, said, "Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself." The chief-priests with the rulers mockingly said: "He saved others; let him save himself if he be the Christ, the chosen of God." The soldiers offered their mockery in a rude form. One of the tortures of crucifixion was an intense thirst. They pretended to offer him some of the light wine which they drank, probably quaffing it off in aggravation of the thirst which they knew he was experiencing. Pilate, also, took his share in this derision by placing above the head of the victim the superscription: "This is Jesus of Nazareth, the king of the Jews." He meant, however, to do something more than deride the occupant of the cross. The chief priests were restive under that inscription, and said to him, "Write not, The king of the Jews, but that he said, I am the king of the Jews." But Pilate was not to be moved any more, and curtly replied, "What I have written, I have written." It was a small revenge which he took upon them for having [illegible] to an act which his [illegible] did not sanction.

[illegible] was [illegible] the same pangs, at the [illegible] same men, with a reckless bravado, put on, doubtless, to [illegible] admiration of the [illegible] with the rest, jeer[illegible], "If thou be Christ, save thyself and us."

The other malefactor, strangely [illegible] the di[illegible] qualities shown by [illegible] the central cross, [illegible] associate in crime, saying, "[illegible] thou fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation?"

The promise which the Saviour immediately gives to the suppliant in "the second word" from the cross. [illegible] "When thou comest into thy kingdom." The Saviour's reply to that was—"to-day."

[illegible]

[illegible] as the mediator of a better covenant.

His last word from the cross, after he had cried with a loud voice, was one which showed that he had passed out from darkness into light again. "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." "And having said this he gave up the ghost."

New Publications

The Students Journal of the Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, for December is at hand with interesting contents.

Littell's Living Age for 1879. The extra offer to new subscribers for 1879, and the reduced clubbing rates, are worthy of note in the prospectus of this standard periodical published in another column. The remarkable success of The Living Age is well attested by the fact that on the 1st of January next it begins its one hundred and fortieth volume. It affords the only satisfactorily complete compendium of a current literature which is now richer than ever before in the work of the ablest writers upon all topics of interest. It merits careful attention in making a selection of reading matter for the new year. The more numerous the periodicals, indeed, the more valuable becomes [illegible] which in convenient form and at small expense, gives the best of all. Its importance to American readers can hardly be over-estimated, as no other single periodical enables one, as does this, to keep well informed in the best thought and literature of the time, and fairly abreast with the work of the most eminent living writers.

THIS WILL PAY. Many times the small cost will be returned to every person, in the country, or village, or city, who supplies himself and family with the plain, practical, reliable, useful, paying information given in the American Agriculturist. It was so named because started 37 years ago as a rural journal, but is now greatly enlarged in size and scope, and profusely illustrated, so that it meets the wants of all classes—of cultivators of the smallest plots, or the largest farms—of Housekeepers and Children—of [illegible] of Cattle, Horses, Sheep, [illegible]—of Fruit Growers, Florists, Builders, Mechanics, etc. From 600 to 800 original Engravings in every Volume, bring right to the eye and undestanding, many useful, labor-helping and labor-saving contrivances, largely home-made, and for out-door and in-door work; also plants, animals, construction of dwellings, etc., etc. These numerous Engravings make this Journal greatly superior to every other one treating on the same subjects. The persistent, caustic exposures of Humbugs and Swindles are of great value to all its readers.—Over $25,000 a year are expended in collecting useful and interesting information and engravings, the benefit of all which [illegible] enjoyed at the reduced price of only $1.50 a year, post-free; or four copies at $1.25 each, or ten copies at $1 each. A specimen copy, 10 cents. [illegible] It will pay. [illegible] Judd Co. [illegible] Broadway, New York.

THE SUDDEN DEATH.

There is something terrible in the thought of having our friends stricken down at our side, without a parting word of endearment or consolation—one moment [illegible] in the flush of vigorous life, [illegible] the next at [illegible] death, deaf to our cries and heedless of our tears. Every excessively fat person is in instant danger of such a death. Seven-tenths of the victims of obesity die of heart disease or apoplexy. Allan's Anti-Fat is the only remedy for obesity, reduces the weight by regulating the digestion and assimilation of the food. It is perfectly harmless, and its use will insure, in every instance, a reduction of weight from two to five pounds a week.

The Quickest Time East.

The Great Jackson Route is now making the quickest time to New York ever known, leaving New Orleans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:35 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagra Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line, and only one change of cars.

Benson's Capcine POROUS PLASTER.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.

There is no comparison between it and the common slow acting porous plaster. It is in every way superior to all other external remedies including liniments and the so-called electrical appliances. It contains new medical elements which in combination with rubber, possess the most extraordinary pain relieving, strengthening and curative properties. Any physician in your own locality will confirm the above statement. For Lame Back, Rheumatism, Female [illegible] stubborn and Neglected Colds and Coughs, [illegible] Whooping cough, affections of the heart, and all ills for which porous plasters are used, it is simply the best known remedy. Ask for Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster and take no other. Sold by all Druggists. Price [illegible] cts. [illegible] on receipt of price by [illegible] 21 Platt Street, New York. [illegible]

The New York Times.

FOR 1879.

Established 1851.

The position of the foremost Republican newspaper in the United States will be sustained by The New-York Times by the same policy in virtue of which that position has been attained.

The Times will continue to place fidelity to the interests of the Republican Party above the pursuit of personal aims or private ambition, and will steadfastly insist that the usefulness of any party must be measured by the extent of its devotion to the honor and welfare of the country. In the future as in the past, the attitude of The Times will be that of independence within the Republican Party. The maintenance of the national credit, the purification of the public service, the advocacy of all reasonable projects of fiscal reform; rigid economy in public expenditures; opposition to [illegible] jobbery [illegible] preservation of equal rights for all citizens, North and South, will be salient points of the policy of The Times.

[illegible] will [illegible] distin[illegible] as [illegible] accurate, and [illegible] edited newspaper. The acknowledged excellence and fullness of its correspondence by mail and telegraph from all parts of the world will be adequately maintained, and its facilities for collecting domestic and foreign news will be expanded to meet the increasing demands of our time.

In the sphere of literary and artistic criticism, of scientific, social, and general discussion, The Times will address itself, as heretofore, to the appreciation of the educated and intelligent classes of the American people. It will be lively without being sensational, aggressive without being coarse; at all times it will strive to be fearless and independent in the championship of right. No theories subversive of the principles on which the sacredness of family ties, and the existence of society alike repose will be promulgated in its columns.

The Times rejects all advertisements of lotteries, of quacks and medical pretenders, and of all other agencies by which the insidious poison of vice is disseminated throughout society. It will be in the future, as in the past, a newspaper especially adapted for family reading.

The Weekly Times, containing select editorials on topics of national and general interest from the columns of the daily issue, as well as a concise summary of political, social, and foreign news, besides other features which recommend it to all classes of readers, is a paper admirably fitted to c[illegible] every [illegible] of the United S[illegible] will [illegible] its conductors to [illegible] not only to [illegible] its [illegible] but to make its popularity still more decided.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

1879.

Nelson & Phillips, Publishers. J. C. Hartzell, B.D., Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, NOVEMBER 1, 1878.

DEAR BROTHER:—The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is your official church paper, and is published by order of the General Conference, at New Orleans. Besides religious news, the SOUTHWESTERN will contain articles on education, agriculture and politics. The more your people read from a good paper the more intelligent and active will they be as Christians, and the better will they support you and help in all the work of the church.

To aid you in the good work of circulating the SOUTHWESTERN we make the following most liberal propositions:

I. Two Months Free.

Every New subscriber for 1879 will receive the paper Free for the remainder of 1878. For example: If a subscriber gives you his name and two dollars November 1, 1878, he will receive the paper the two months remaining in 1878 and the whole year of 1879, making in all fourteen months for one year's subscription.

II. Cash Commissions to Agents.

All traveling Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are our authorized agents. We pay our agents the following cash commissions:

1. We send them their own paper for one dollar a year, just half price. This is the same as paying one dollar cash on their subscription.
2. We pay twenty-five cents cash for every yearly subscriber. Whenever an agent collects two dollars for us he is authorized to keep twenty-five cents from the amount as his commission, and send us $1.75.

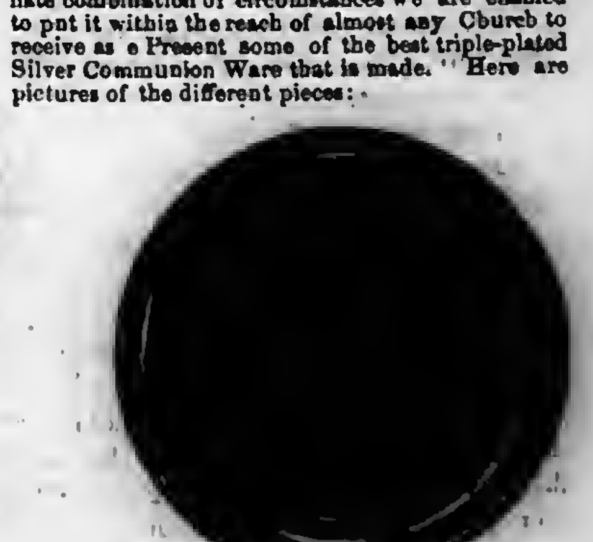
III. A Steel Engraving of John Wesley to Every Subscriber.

We give as a present to every yearly subscriber, a large and elegant steel engraving of John Wesley, the great founder of Methodism. This engraving retails at $1.50, but as we own the original plate and do our own publishing, we can afford to present one of these beautiful pictures to every subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN. The best judges pronounce the portrait a life-like picture of Wesley, and the engraving is first-class. The picture is 16x20 inches in size. Remember, we give this engraving as a present to every yearly subscriber as soon as the two dollars are paid.

IV. Silver Communion Ware for the Churches.

All our Churches need Communion Service Sets and we want them to have the best. By a most fortunate combination of circumstances we are enabled to put it within the reach of almost any Church to receive as a Present some of the best triple-plated Silver Communion Ware that is made. Here are pictures of the different pieces:

SILVER FLAGON, 1½ quarts, $10 00
" " 3 " 14 00



SILVER PLATE.
10 inches wide, $4 00

SILVER BAPTISMAL BOWL,
$7 00.

These prices are the Manufacturers lowest retail prices. This silver ware is such as is used in the best Churches throughout the country

SILVER GOBLET.
1 pint, $4 50.

REMEMBER this Silver Communion ware is given to the Churches in addition to the cash commissions to the Agent, and the steel engraved portrait of John Wesley to every subscriber. Our propositions to the Churches are as follows:

1. To any Church sending us Twenty Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon that will hold one and a half quarts, and worth $10 00.
2. To any Church sending us Twenty-five Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, and a Silver Plate worth $4. Total $14.
3. To any Church sending us Thirty-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, and a Silver Goblet worth $4 50. Total 18 50.
4. To any Church sending us Fifty cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, a Silver Goblet worth $4 50, and a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7. Total $25 50.
5. To any Church sending up Seventy-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon holding three quarts, worth $14, a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7, two Silver Goblets worth $9 and two Silver Plates worth $8. Total, $38.

☞ NOTICE.—These magnificent presents are sent to the Churches complying with these terms, as soon as the money is received by us. This offer stands good for the whole year of 1878, and the present will be sent whenever, during the year, the money is received.

Our Liberal Offer.

We claim that the offers we have made on the preceding pages are very liberal. It will be noticed that we propose helping—FIRST, the preacher, who acts as our agent in getting subscribers for us; SECOND, every subscriber who takes the paper and pays for it; THIRD, the congregation where twenty or more subscribers are obtained.

FOR EXAMPLE: Suppose a pastor and his people secure twenty yearly subscribers. At two dollars apiece that would be forty dollars. As the preacher gets twenty-five cents for every subscriber, five dollars of the forty dollars will belong to him. As soon as the remaining thirty-five dollars are received by us, we will send as a present to the congregation an elegant silver flagon worth ten dollars. We will also send twenty steel engravings of John Wesley, one for each subscriber.

☞ Let it be understood that EVERY YEARLY SUBSCRIBER gets a steel engraving as soon as his subscription is paid, and for every two dollars collected the pastor will get twenty-five cents. The elegant Silver Communion Ware given to the Churches is IN ADDITION to what we give the pastor and each subscriber.

Our Terms.

1. The SOUTHWESTERN costs $2 a year, cash in advance. We pay the postage.
2. Where the preacher will be personally responsible for the money, we will send the papers; but no commissions will be paid the preachers, or steel engravings sent the subscribers, or silver ware sent to the churches, until the money is received at our office.
3. Cash in advance is the best rule for all parties. We get the money and are saved embarrassment: the preacher gets his commission: the subscriber gets his steel engraving at once, and the church gets its silver communion ware for immediate use.
4. Send the money by Postoffice Order whenever possible.

BEGIN THE CANVASS AT ONCE.

We need five thousand subscribers, and if all our Agents will take hold of the canvass at once, and push it for sixty days, we shall have them.

Let the canvass begin at once. We will send you a specimen copy of the steel engraving to show the people. Take this engraving and a copy of the paper and show them to your congregation, and explain the value of the paper and our liberal offers.

Has your Church a good Set of Communion Ware? If not, you need one, and now is your chance to get one as a gift. Explain our proposition to give Silver Communion Ware, to your official board, and get the brethren to unite in helping to secure twenty or more subscribers, and secure some of our magnificent presents.

We will furnish you all the specimen copies of the SOUTHWESTERN you want, free, whenever you ask for them.

THE GLEANER.

[illegible] gleaner
Among the harvest sheaves;
I follow in the reaping
For what the reaper leaves;
For haply by the wayside
Some handfuls may be tossed,
As said the careful Master,
That nothing may be lost.

Drops fill the boundless ocean,
Sands pile the mountain high:
So all the bounteous garner
Must single grains supply,
And when, to feed the hungry,
The richer offering comes,
The full loaf on the table
May not disdain the crumbs.

I hear the cry of hunger,
I see the tears they shed,
Of souls that waste and perish
For lack of living bread;
And so I am a gleaner.
Although my gains are small:
For they must share His bounty
Whose harvest is for all.

I'm sorry 'tis so little
My little hands can do:
But Jesus will accept it,
If but my heart is true;
And sometime—'tis the promise
My heart in hope believes—
I'll bring the blessed Master
The full and joyful sheaves.

THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated American WORM SPECIFIC OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

COURSE OF STUDY
FOR Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, § 5 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I. Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. FIRST YEAR.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

TO BE READ. Scripture History—Old Testament. Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. I. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study, and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the District Conference, the District Conference, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

The Methodist Hymnal,

"Hymnal with Tunes, 12mo	1 00
Hymnal with Tunes, 8vo	1 75

Since the manuscript of the Hymnal was delivered by the Committee, October 26th, last, time has been required to prepare and perfect the indexes, to complete the arrangements of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts, and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has [illegible] moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal, and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

ANTI-FAT

ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT is the great remedy for Corpulency. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts on the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Taken according to directions, it will reduce a fat person from 2 to 5 pounds a week.

In placing this remedy before the public as a positive cure for obesity, we do so knowing its ability to cure, as attested by hundreds of testimonials, of which the following from a lady in Columbus, Ohio, is a sample: "Gentlemen:—Your Anti-Fat was duly received. I took it according to directions and it reduced me five pounds. I was so elated over the result that I immediately sent to ACKERMAN'S drug store for the second bottle." Another, a physician, writing for a patient from Providence, R. I., says, "Four bottles have reduced her weight from [illegible] pounds to 192 pounds, and there is a general improvement in health." A gentleman writing from Boston, says: "Without special change or attention to diet, two bottles of Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me four and one-quarter pounds." The well-known Wholesale Druggists, SMITH, DOOLITTLE & SMITH, of Boston, Mass., write as follows: "Allan's Anti-Fat has reduced a lady in our city seven pounds in three weeks." A gentleman in St. Louis writes: "Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me twelve pounds in three weeks, and altogether I have lost twenty-five pounds since commencing its use." Messrs. POWELL & PLIMPTON, Wholesale Druggists, of Buffalo, N. Y., write: "TO THE PROPRIETORS OF ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT: Gentlemen,—The following report is from the lady who used Allan's Anti-Fat. 'It (the Anti-Fat) had the desired effect, reducing the fat from two to five pounds a week until I had lost twenty-five pounds. I hope never to regain what I have lost.'" Anti-Fat is an unexcelled blood-purifier. It promotes digestion, curing dyspepsia, and is also a potent remedy for rheumatism. Sold by druggists. Pamphlet on Obesity sent on receipt of stamp.

BOTANIC MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, N.Y.

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhea, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

(Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Favorite Prescription sold by Druggists.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

The following beautiful paraphrase is credited to M. Pierre Bernard.

Our Father—
By right of creation,
By bountiful provision,
By gracious adoption;
Who art in heaven—
The throne of thy glory,
The portion of thy children,
The temple of thy angels.
Hallowed be thy name—
By the thoughts of our hearts,
By the words of our lips,
By the works of our hands.
Thy Kingdom come—
Of Providence to defend us,
Of grace to refine us,
Of glory to crown us.
Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven—
Toward us without resistance,
By us without compulsion,
Universally without exception,
Eternally without declension.
Give us this day our daily bread—
Of necessity for our bodies,
Of eternal life for our souls.
And forgive us our trespasses—
Against the commands of Thy law,
Against the graces of Thy gospel;
As we forgive those that trespass against us—
By defaming our characters,
By embezzling our property,
By abusing our persons;
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil—
Of overwhelming afflictions,
Of worldly enticements,
Of Satan's devices,
Of error's seduction,

[illegible] Commis- [illegible] of [illegible] the Brooklyn [illegible] a larger [illegible]

shell of arousal into every city hall, meeting-house and cathedral on this continent. The factories at Fall River and Lowell have sometimes stopped for lack of demand or lack of workmen, but the great million-roomed factory goes on by day and night, year after year, without slackening a band or arresting a spindle. Its great wheel is turned by a flood not like that of the Merrimac or the Connecticut, but by a crimson flood poured forth from the groggeries and the wine cellars of the land, and the faster these floods roll the faster the wheel turns; and the band of the wheel is woven out of broken heart-strings, and at every turn thereof there pours out of the mouth of the iron mill crushed fortunes, desolate homes, squalor and mendicancy and crime—domestic and municipal—and national woe; and the creaking and rumbling of the wheels are the shrieks and groans of men and women lost for two worlds; and the cry is "bring on more reputations, more homes, more fortunes, more cities for the grist of this stupendous mill."

"But," you say, "these mills of death will after awhile cease from lack of material." No! See by the police-lantern into the future! In this cluster of cities, 15,000 barefooted, homeless children of the streets. They are the reserve corps of those that are to come up and take the ranks of those who drop into the Morgue, the potter's field and the East river. Some one has estimated that if these children were placed in double file, three feet apart, they would make a procession eight miles long. But what a pale, coughing, hunger-bitten, sin-cursed, ophthalmic throng—the tigers and scorpions and adders that were waiting to bite and sting and destroy society, which they take to be their natural enemy. Howard Mission is saving many; Children's Aid Society, many; Newsboys' lodging-houses, many; industrial schools, many. One society has transplanted from the filthy pavement of our cities to Western farms 30,000 of these children by matchless stratagem of charity, changing that multitude from vagrancy into industrious and useful citizenship. Out of 21,000 thus transported only twelve children turned out badly. But still the battalion of juvenile vagrancy marches on.

One regiment is made up of boot-blacks. They seem jolly, but they have known sorrows greater than many an old man. Amid the vilest of temptations and kicked and cuffed up garrets and down cellars, they make their two or three dollars a week, and by fifteen years of natural life are fifty years old in sin. Pitching pennies in their leisure and smoking the stumps of cigars thrown into the ditch, they are the prey of gamblers, and destroyed by the top gallery of the low play-house. Blacking shoes is their business, the interregnum of their work is swallowed up with the blackening of their morals. "Shine your boots, sir!" they sing out with affected gayety of mind, but there is a sad tremor in their accentuation. No [illegible] for them. You thoughtlessly put up your foot on their stand and whistle or smoke while, God knows, it would not have hurt you to have said a kind word of counsel or of good cheer. Who prayed for a boot-black? Who, finding one wronged out of his [illegible] has demanded for him justice? Who, finding the wind blowing up under his short jacket and [illegible] his bare neck, has invited him into warm? God have mercy on the regiment of boot-blacks.

Another regiment of this great [illegible] of suffering is made up [illegible] the sharpest, [illegible] wittiest lads of the town [illegible] the morning, [illegible] waiting at [illegible] themselves, or [illegible] hour, [illegible] of the fold- [illegible] their arm [illegible] already [illegible] the black [illegible]

[illegible] in the savings bank about $3,000. But for the great multitude there remains hunger and cold and nakedness and early graves or dream as he supposed that some quick prisons. There is nothing on the street that so moves me as when on a wintry morning I see a newsboy with papers he can't sell, about one-fourth clothed, crying with the cold, his face or hands bleeding from a fall, or rubbing a knee that has been hit on the side of the car, selling newspapers that tell of railroad accidents and boiler explosions and the foundering of ships in the last storm, while he says nothing about that which was to himself greater than all other misfortunes and disasters—the fact that he was ever born at all. By the red eye of the police lantern see them coiled up in the deep slumber of the night, for a few hours forgetful of want and pain and storm and darkness. But one of them struggling in his one was stealing his papers away from him, I stopped and thought whether it would be right to wish that they might never wake up again. God pity and save the newsboys of the city.

But there are other regiments marching on; regiments of rag-pickers, regiments of match-sellers, regiments of juvenile thieves—great reserve corps of darkness and death. What will become of society if they are unarrested and unsaved? But I said to the detectives: "Enough for one night of the misery of New York." We had gone up and down stairways and into cellars and turned this way and that, until I knew not where we were, except that we were bounded on the north by want, on the south by suffering, on the east by anguish, and on the west by despair.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The South and our Work.

Past events, as well as Revelation, plainly indicate to us that the Infinite rules in the affairs of men. Every revolution of the sun marks the onward march of political and religious liberty, and the emergency of millions from heathenish darkness. Where moral and natural means fail, agencies of force and mighty political and social revolutions produce the same result. Romanism would trample upon the liberties of the people, and great political convulsions shake her to the centre, openly rebuking her for her vain assumptions of the right of government and infallibility. And, notwithstanding the efforts made by the votaries of error all over the world, the iron grip of ignorance is giving way to the genial warmth of a free Christian thought; and where vice, made strong by darkness, stubbornly resists the advance of free thought there comes a force more than persuasive, a mandate that cannot be escaped, to right the wrongs and prepare the way to a higher and broader Christian freedom. Providence evidently means to loose the fetters and break every yoke. Slavery was supposed by many to be a divinely appointed institution, and no means of light were opened to the enslaved sons of Ham. Then broke over our country a great storm of devastation, and there seemed no beginning of the solution of the difficulties until all the people were given the rights of freemen. Some mistakes were perhaps made in the manner of freeing and enfranchising those held in slavery, but the great central idea was a righteous one, and from that date every pealing bugle note and booming of cannon were only echoes of the eternal fiat that had gone forth, that all men were men and should have rights and privileges as such. Anger and punishment have brought to our land freedom and prosperity. "Surely the wrath of man shall praise Him," and "the remainder of wrath shall He restrain." One after another of Christian nations have thrown off the fetters of the slave; and not only so, but every land and every isle of the sea is opened to the Christian missionary. The command, "Go ye into all the world," is being fulfilled in a sense in which it never was before. From the North, from the South, from the East, from the West, comes up the cry, "Come over and help us." Prominent, we may say foremost, in the field, is the Methodist Episcopal Church with her many agencies of good. [illegible] result of her zeal and fidelity. She nestles under her protecting wings representatives from every people. While her success has been so general, her work has been obstructed in the Southern half of our country. But during the short years of a modified peace since the extermination of slavery, she has secured a good footing in every Southern State. She is already, in this field, third in point of numbers. Strange as it may seem, some have thought, or professed to at least, that the Methodist Episcopal Church has no business in the South. We fail to perceive any reason why all churches should not use all power possible in all places to proclaim the "Word whose entrance giveth life," and help turn back the mighty tide of ignorance and vice. Some of our own brethren tremble before stern duty, but under God we cannot fail. Every year witnesses new conquests; schools and colleges spring up in her path; the pulsations of her great heart put life and warmth into all the members of the common body. And after all has been done, many golden sheaves are lost for want of some to gather them in. Stagnation in business and our unsettled state of political affairs have kept many from emigrating to the South. It is probable that at no distant day the South will be open to immigration as the North and West have been; and, in that case, the South will teem with population. There will be no North and South, with the distinctive significance attached to [illegible] names, but one grand country. With other churches, the Methodist Episcopal Church is held accountable for her share in the preservation of our common country and the evangelization of her people: [illegible] we may safely expect her church spires to tower from every village in the South as well as in the North and West. This is no idle f[illegible], but a judgment warranted by [illegible] present vigorous pushing of [illegible] work in the South, and by her success in the past wherever she has operated. Sacrifices and hardships will have to be undergone, but the time never was yet in the history of Methodism when men were wanting for such places where they were really needed. Those who would hinder our work need to counsel from the wisdom of Gamaliel, "lest haply they be found even to fight against God."

Political Morals.

A partisan goes with his party, right or wrong. He is devoted to persons, not principles. He seeks his own advantage quite regardless of the public good. He joins in plots, intrigues, combinations and rings, all of which aim to use some great party for the benefit of a very few astute knaves. It is because of the conduct of such unscrupulous partisans that many honest and patriotic citizens have come to the conclusion that they are released from all political obligations. They think the post of honor is the private station, and decline to concern themselves about public affairs. They have seen stupendous frauds enormous robberies committed under forms of law. They have deplored the corruptions which have festered within the two historic national parties, and with a species of indolent despair confine themselves to private pursuits and allow the traders and gamblers in politics to keep the field unchallenged.

Herein lies the great peril of our institutions. Under every form of government from the beginning until now there have been great wrongs and prodigious abuses. But the wrongs and abuses under our republican system can be reached and checked. This has been shown in recent years, when public opinion has turned with the wrath of Nemesis against men once idolized by their respective parties and it has shrouded them with thick folds of infamy from which they can find no escape. It is to the credit of the American people that sooner or later they will put the seal of their condemnation upon men who have sacrificed the morals of politics for their own sordid advantage. The truth is that no great political party can exist without a moral basis. No matter what may be the issue joined, no matter how narrow the views of large classes of voters, still there is a public conscience that makes it necessary to appeal to the moral sense in support of the asserted morality of measures proposed. If there be a cry against monopolies, or land grants, or high tariffs, though all these relate to material interests, still the argument against them is always based on some principle of legal or civic ethics. So now when the main question before the people relates to money, the whole battle turns on the honesty or dishonesty involved in the schemes of antagonizing parties. Everybody knows that in every canvass political tactics require that efforts be made to convince "honest voters," and so it may be laid down as a settled rule that politics divorced from morality are pernicious and pestilential, encouraging to demagogues and alarming to patriots.

But while the greed for office has grown with the increase of patronage and the large interests to be handled, we have a very definite conviction that the best men of all parties are intent upon effecting reforms in administration. In other words, politics have been in a measure purified, corrupt leaders have been exposed, and their influence destroyed. Now who shall help these men who are aiming at a better and either standard of political morality? Who shall preserve the ballot-box for its legitimate uses? Who shall drag up our drowned honor by the locks and cloth it with official dignity and authority? Honest men, Christian men, lovers of their country, cannot afford in any sense to be indifferent to the claims of the present and of the future upon their courage, their intelligence, and their zeal. They ought to vote and to make their ballots contain the veridicts of their consciences. The independent voter who refuses to be led like a chained galley slave, who takes care to vote for the right cause and the right men may be a real benefactor now when there is still room for large and various political reforms.—Intelligence.

The Next Best Thing.

"Mr. Moncton," said my grandmother. "I have no wood to burn to-day. What shall I do?"

"O, send Louisa round to pick up some," said the good man, making a stride toward the door.

"But she has picked up all she can find."

"Then let her break up some old stuff."

"But she has broken up everything already."

"Oh! well, then, do the next best thing—I must be off," said the farmer; and off he was, whistling as he went, and no doubt wondering in his heart what the next best thing would turn out to be.

Noon came, and with it came my grandfather and four hungry laborers. My grandmother stood in the kitchen, spinning on her great wheel, and singing a pleasant little ditty; Louisa was scouring in the back room, and the cat purring on the hearth before a black and fireless chimney, while the table sat in the middle of the room, ready for dinner, with empty dishes.

"Well, wife, here we are," said my grandfather, cheerily.

"So I see," said she placidly. "Have you had a good morning in the corn field?"

"Why, yes, so so. But where is the dinner?"

"In the pot on the doorstep. Won't you see if it is done?"

And on the doorstep, to be sure, sat the great iron pot, nicely covered, but not looking prticularly steamy. My grandfather raised the cover, and there lay all the ingredients of a nice boiled dinner—every thing prepared in the nicest manner, and all the vegetables as raw as they had ever been. My grandfather started, and my grandmother joined another roll to the yard upon her distaff, and began another verse of her song.

"Why, woman, what does this mean?" began my grandfather, indignantly. "This dinner isn't cooked at all!"

"Dear me, is it not? Why, it has set in the sun this four hours.

"Set in the sun!"

"Yes, you told me to try the next best thing to having a fire, and I thought setting my dinner in the sun was about that."

My grandfather stood doubtful for a moment, but finally his sense of humor overcame his sense of injury, and he laughed aloud. Then picking up his hat, he said: "Come, boys, we might as well start for the woods. We shall have no dinner till we have earned it, I perceive."

"Wont you have some bread and cheese before you go?" asked my grandmother, generous in her voice as women always are. And so she won the day.—Christian Statesman.

It is difficult to estimate the power for good of a soul thoroughly endued with energy from on high. Its influence, though it may be quiet, is yet like a silent, mighty current. And when a body of Christians, when a whole church is thus baptized, nothing can withstand its might.—Independent.

When I hear a person who has broken the laws of the land railed at, and hear people cry, "Oh, he is a vile wretch; he deserves his sentence;" for my part I can't throw a stone at him, but I see that if God were to leave me to myself I should commit as foul crimes, and a thousand times worse.—W. Romaine.

It is pleasant to believe that the world is gradually growing whiter. It is a joy to feel that, as the years pass, the mission of Jesus fulfils itself, and the world is becoming purer. There is a basis of fact for this belief, and abundant cause for such a joy. Two thousand years ago the word was foul, both in its thought, its practices, and its expression. Even the literature of our own language, three centuries ago, was too impure for the present time to read. In our age, on every hand,—in what it says and does, in what it writes and sings, paints and chisels,—we behold proof that the cleansing work of Christianity has triumphed. The world is progressing. It moves on and it moves up. The hearts of men are becoming chaste, the affections of men pure. God is coming nearer and nearer to the race, not in outward and visible splendor of actual appearance, but in the interior improvement and development of human nature. Again is his likeness being born on the earth. Not now, as at Bethlehem, by the birth of the flesh, but by the birth of the spirit. He is not taking to himself the nature of angels, but the nature of man, and man beholds him in his own nature. And through the increasing purity of his affections he sees his God. By and by they will see him more clearly. By and by they will see him wholly. By and by they will realize the truth of the saying of Jesus, when he exclaimed to his disciples, "The kingdom of heaven is within you." Then will they indeed be near God. Then shall they see him, as it were, face to face.—Murray.

The North and the South.

The North is growing much faster than the South. The Electoral College is now composed of two hundred and thirty-one members from the North and one-hundred and thirty-eight from the South. Under the new appointment which will be made on the census of 1880 the North will be, if not quite, twice as strong as the South in the Electoral College. Under these circumstances, is it not foolish for the South to pursue a course which tends to array a solid North against a solid South? And is it not equally foolish for the Democratic Party, which extends through North and South, to wink at a policy that is as sure to drive it out of power at the North as water is to run down-hill? The more progressive of the Southern statesmen recognize the injury which force and fraud against the negro are doing to their cause. They know well enough that a great majority of the people of the North demand, and will have, equal rights under the law and a pure ballot for all.—Boston Herald.

Be Strong in the Grace that is in Christ Jesus—Tim. ii. 1.

We want to be strong in ourselves, or if we may not have confidence in ourselves, to have some fellow-creature on whom we can rely. But God will have us confide only in Jesus. God would trust no one but Jesus, and we should not even wish to do so. There is grace in Jesus, All grace is in Jesus. He says, "All things are to be delivered unto me of my Father." And the apostle says, "It pleased the Father, that in him should all fullness dwell." He is the fountain of grace, and we are to look to him at all times, and for all the grace we need. He giveth liberally and upbraideth not. Let us fancy ourselves strong for any grace we have received, or on account of the grace possessed by any one we love; but let us exercise confidence in Jesus alone, who giveth more grace. We are as our faith is; if therefore our faith is fixed on Jesus, if we exercise steady confidence on his veracity, word and love, we are strong. But it is only as we feel weak in ourselves that we shall do so.

The Law of Salvation.

It is a law in nature that if you let go a stone it will fall to the earth: it is equally a law in grace that the soul that trusts Jesus will be saved and peaceful. God's spiritual laws are surely not less certain than his physical laws. He says to the thirsty, "Drink, or you will die." He says just as clearly to the dying sinner, "Receive my salvation and live." Isaiah understood this law when he said to Him, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee; because he trusteth in Thee." (Isa., xxvi. 3). Let go everything; all your fears and all your false confidence, and simply fall into His everlasting arms of love that are underneath you, and waiting to receive you into sweet embrace (Deut., xxxiii. 27). He will carry the child-like believer in his very bosom.—From "Joy and Peace in Believing."

Method in Work.

Do instantly whatever is to be done; take the hours of reflection and recreation after business and never before it. When a regiment is under march, the rear is often thrown into confusion because the front does not move steadily and without interruption. If that which is first in is not instantly, steadily and readily despatched other things accumulate behind, until affairs begin to press all at once, and no human brain can stand the confusion. Pray mind this—it is one of your weak points, a habit of mind that is very apt to beset men of intellect and talents, especially when their time is not filled up regularly, but is left to their own arrangement. But it is like the ivy round the oak, and ends by limiting, if it does not destroy, the power of manly and necessary exertion.

Mexico.

Rev. J. W. Butler writes from the city of Mexico under date of November 18:

"I am glad to be able to add that my Church is just now enjoying a most excellent religious time. The work is the nearest to a genuine spiritual revival that I have seen in the country. We have had four conversions from Romanism since my return. We are praying and working for a gracious time. My work among the Indians is also making good progress. A delegation from an Indian town twenty miles from the capital came in Saturday, and we had a sort of 'all-day meeting.' The children of the orphanage were a great help with their singing and prayers."

A few weeks since a camp meeting was held in the Creek Nation, Indian Territory, lasting several days. The meeting was attended by many Choctaws. At the close of the meeting the Indians placed themselves in two lines facing each other, and the Choctaws in their own language sang some of their sweetest hymns. Then each passed down the opposite line, and earnestly shook the hands of the Creeks. Then the Creeks repeated the graceful ceremony, singing in their Muskogee language, and shaking the hands of the Choctaw worshippers, wished them God speed, and then filed off to their respective nations and homes. This would indicate that the Indians conduct a camp meeting on the right principle.

Editorial Correspondence.

[illegible]

Twenty [illegible] a company of United States troops camped on the spot where now stands Fort Worth. Thence forward that spot became a center of population. At first only a family or two in the vast extended plains three hundred miles west from the head of navigation on the Red River, and four hundred miles north of the Gulf. Six years ago the population numbered a few hundred. Then began the railroad excitement, and the line of the Southern Pacific running directly west from Shreveport, was fixed to pass through Fort Worth. Two years ago the road was completed that far, and has as yet been extended no farther. These few years have changed the little prairie frontier settlement unto a city of ten thousand people. It is well named the "Queen city of the Plains." It is on the clear fork of Trinity river, and is a hundred feet above the water mark of that little stream, so that good drainage can be easily had. The churches are most of them new and temporary. The Christian Church (Campbellite) having the best thus far. The court house is one of the finest buildings in the State, and is built in the form of a Maltese cross. The town has street railroads, gas works and many hotels. There are two papers, Democrat and Standard, published each daily and weekly, and also the Tribune and Journal, evening papers. The place has all the characteristics of a new place in society and buildings and ways of doing. The sound of a pistol means either a fire or a fight, generally the latter. Monday morning we were startled by a rapid firing of pistols under our hotel window. Springing out of bed and looking down into the darkness, we saw by the periodical flashes of fire a man standing, loading his pistol as rapidly as possible. Soon other pistols were heard in other parts of town, then a bell began to ring, and soon the light of a fire flashed heavenward a block or two off. We did what everybody does in a new place—went to the fire. It proved to be quite a blaze, several buildings burned. The remains of a man were found in the ruins of one, and circumstances indicated that he had been killed and the murderer set fire to the building to escape detection.

The country about Fort Worth is a high rolling prairie with a fair supply of timber and water. The soil is rich and good crops are [illegible]. The railroad inspires [illegible]ation. BEWLEY'S MARTYRDOM.

[illegible] Bishop Janes met the [illegible] Kansas Conferences [illegible] On Sunday [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]ate, which gave birth to and [illegible] slavery.

In the arrangement of the work at that memorable Conference, Bishop Janes formed a Texas District, and appointed to it as presiding elder Anthony Bewley. We know nothing of the personal history of this man previous to this; but this is of no consequence. This was his last appointment, and from it he was translated, crowned with a martyr's crown. He died for the right as truly as did Latimer or Cranmer. When questioned by the mob, he said: "I believe slavery is wrong!" He resided near Fort Worth, and owned his own residence, and had settled there to make the South his permanent home. Some months after his return from Conference, a meeting of the citizens was held in Fort Worth and resolutions passed warning abolitionists to leave the country. Hearing of this, Bewley started for the North. His son-in-law, who resided with him, was taken and tried by a mob, but no positive evidence being brought against him, he was released. Bewley reached Missouri in his journey northward, and feeling that he was safe, tarried with a view of perhaps settling. After his departure, reports were circulated that he had been party to the burning of Dallas, then a village, and letters were written and dropped in the public highways addressed to him, and which spoke of insurrectionary meetings among the colored people, and of plots to burn property. These base lies were enough with which to arouse and organize a company to pursue Bewley. He was captured and brought back five hundred miles. On the journey up, arrangements were made to bring him back in closed carriages, driven rapidly from station to station, so that no excitement would be awakened along the route, and the journey made as soon as possible. On the evening before his execution he was brought into Fort Worth closely concealed in a carriage and carefully guarded. A report was circulated that on that night there would be a "show." The knowing ones understood what it all meant. After dark, that company of murderers took their victim and went westward from the town over a hill and down into a little valley scarcely a mile distant. We know not whether even the form of a trial was gone through. We only learn that when questioned he replied: "I believe slavery is wrong." That was enough. When the end came and he knew he must die, he said to his murderers: "For every hair of my head you harm, a hundred of your friends shall die." He was hung to the limb of a pecan tree. On last Sunday evening with Bishop Haven and Dr. Brush, we stood on the spot where that tree had grown and been destroyed. A brick-yard covers the place. The exact spot is smooth and is used as the place on which to sun dry the brick before they are tested and completed by fire. The murderers of Bewley who wrought on the same spot their hellish deed, had their work at first commended in the sunlight of a wicked and depraved public sentiment. In that light that work was pronounced good, but the real test, that of fire, hastens, yea is here, and the judgment of mankind is that every hand that took a part in that awful crime, and every sentiment that inspired or approved it, was the hand and sentiment of a murderer, and that only the infinite mercy of God can save their possessors from the eternal fires of the murderer's hell. The body was left hanging until the next day, when it was identified by the man who had offered the warning resolution in the citizen's meeting referred to above. Burial was refused in the white people's cemetery, and the body was buried in the "nigger grave yard," which in that day was practically the potter's field. In digging the grave the sexton dug it north and south, instead of east and west. When remonstrated with by the one through whom we get these facts, [illegible] he it was who offered the reso[illegible] in the citizen's meeting, the [illegible] said, "he has gone south, [illegible] hell, and we will help him [illegible]." The grave was changed [illegible] buried east and west. [illegible] that the body was dug [illegible] to a physician of [illegible] the bones lay ex[illegible] gaze and derision [illegible] building in the public [illegible]. Of this we could not [illegible] [illegible] story of Bewley's [illegible] first heard of it [illegible] a boy we visited [illegible] Illinois Conference, and [illegible] Haney make an [illegible] educate [illegible] more [illegible]

The Soul's Food.

If it be true that God has made no independent animal life, we shall find it equally true that He has given no independent spiritual life. If God has made all creatures to renew life through food and nourishment, we shall find He has also arranged to provide bread for the souls of men, nourishment for the higher life. We know well that as Christians we cannot live without the bread of God. Born again to a new life and a new sphere, the new creature in Christ Jesus will need ever new nourishment as truly as the new born babe.

This is constantly impressed upon us in the Word of God. The new born sons of God are enjoined to watch and to pray; to search the scriptures; to assemble together for worship, communion and instruction; to talk together of the things of God: to keep in mind the promises; and above all, to remember the human life of their great example, the Lord Jesus Christ; and to maintain an uninterrupted fellowship with Him as their loving Master and Savior, so they may "grow in grace," "be built up a holy temple in the Lord;" be nourished into a noble strength for Godly labors; rise up into the image of Christ and reach the fullness of the measure of the stature of Christ; the perfect manhood in Christ.

God is ever setting before men a most wealthy, spiritual banquet and with His Divinely gracious persuasions He is saying, "Eat, O Friends, drink, yea, drink abundantly, O beloved."

We know that we must eat to live. Then how strange must appear our neglect of the practical applications of the truth. A Christian man is as his food, according to food which he can receive and turn into vital force within him. In presence of this truth let us try to estimate the Christian living of our past years; the Christian working, the Christian character. Do they all indicate that we have been ill fed or that we have been well fed? Do they tell of our preference for danties, sweetmeats and religious excitements over the solid life renewing food of the living bread and water of sound scriptural instruction?

There are perhaps none of us to whom the review of the past is not humbling. What we might have been, what God would have had us be, what He prepared as the means of enabling us to be, are so different, so far away from what we are. It may be that for some of us, in such a review, there is just a hiding of face, and blinding tears of penitence, and a hastening to the mercy seat for a new forgivness and the cleansing of the blood of sprinkling.

We have neglected God's gracious provisions for our soul. Instead of strong hearty Christians we are poor and weakly. We have but little spiritual life and activity. The soul must be fed, constantly and richly fed to be lively, juicy and vigorous.

Speaking of the late election in South Carolina, the Southern Christian Advocate (Southern Methodist) says:

"The election is over. Our last week's estimate of the result has been fully verified. The State has gone overwhelmingly Democratic. Every county, with the exception of Beaufort, gave a Democratic majority. We send five Democrats to Congress—a full delegation. We have illustrated the power of wealth, intelligence and Anglo-Saxon blood over an irresponsible majority of the colored rabble of South Carolina. The white man has shown his capacity to control the negro. There is another question before him, how to control himself We have learned very little to this end the past few years. We need to unlearn what we have learned amiss."

Here, then, is deliberate commendation by a religious journal of the intimidations and outrages perpetrated upon the "majority" of the voters of South Carolina. If such sentiments are publicly avowed by men supposed to represent the best moral tone of the South, what are we to expect from the conscienceless politicians? Commend us to the latter class, for they make no professions to godliness.

A Good Leader.

Rev. W. B. Rippetoe, of the Central Tennessee Conference, upon entering upon the work of another year, gives these words to his preachers. They have the ring of a good leader.

"Like Nehemiah, we can say: 'The work is great and large, and we are separated upon the wall, one far from another.' But all this unoccupied territory must be possessed for God and the Methodist Episcopal Church. The successes of last year show what can be done by the help of the Lord and hard work. We must raise two hundred dollars for missions this year. Prayer needs to be made for young men to help work up this vast field."

The Denison (Texas) Herold says: "Rev. M. A. Daugherty was appointed by the bishop at the Austin conference, presiding elder of the San Antonio district and pastor at San Antonio. A very important and difficult work is committed to him. His district embraces Southwest Texas, with San Antonio as headquarters, the Rio Grande on the west and the gulf on the south as its limits, a territory out of which two or three great States could be made, and in which ten millions of people will live when Texas is as well setlled as New York."

Rev. J. M. Nevil, Ripley: "Mr. Philip Gray was married to Miss Nannie Kelly on the 10th.

C. H. Linzy, Leaf River, Greene, county: "The churches are doing well. Many new members have been added."

Rev. D. Moore, White Field Circuit: "Since the 13th of June there have been sixty-six added to the church, thirty-five conversions, and thirty-eight baptized."

Rev. J. B. Griffin, Holly Springs circuit: "God has called away one of our members, Fannie Hubbard. We have had 38 converts this year. and 40 accessions to the church. Pray for us."

Rev. J. W. Parks, Forest: "Miss L. B. Smith died October 11, aged 19 years. She was a faithful member of the church for two years. My meeting closed with 65 converts and additions to the church."

Rev. C. Frierson, Louisville: "The Lord blessed my labor, and it resulted in 300 converts, 400 additions to the Church, and a collection of $265 benevolent money for the annual conference."

B. L. Crump, Greenwood: "I have just closed a week's meeting, and was rejoiced with six converts. We have had 26 converts this year and 21 accessions to the church. We have a nice Sabbath School and the children have been very liberal contributing $22.50."

Rev. L. Echles: "When the country was quarantined, N. Toole, a local preacher, and myself, in one of my churches, in October, held a two week's meeting, winning 16 converts and 13 probationers. I am glad to say my whole circuit is prospering."

J. M. Shumpert, Holly Springs: The following marriages have taken place here in this city, Dec, 11, 1878, by myself: "Mr. Dock Spencer to Miss Entha Patterson; John Jeffery to Miss Doughery; John Roberts to Miss Tempor Bradford; Matthew Lea to Miss Elizabeth Newsom, all of Holly Springs."

Rev. John H. Cook, Pontotoc: "Rev. Thomas E. Miller, of the Grenada Circuit, to which he was appointed by Bishop Wiley and reappointed by Bishop Harris, died some weeks ago. He leaves kinsfolk and relatives at Pontotoc. George Reed, formerly a resident of New Orleans, came to Pontotoc in 1869, and was one of the first to join the M. E. Church, in which he remained faithful until his death."

Rev. M. Adams, State Line, Dec 14:—"The ministers in the Meridian District will not hold a District Conference this winter, on account of embarrassment in a financial sense. Our business is being carried out by the Quarterly Conferences. The ministers are taking up collections for all the benevolent causes of our church. Missionary meetings are being held in all of our congregations.

The Meridian Academy School opened its second term Monday, December 2. We are glad to learn that the prospects are very bright for a much better school than last year, notwithstanding the sickness has hindered us, very much in this part of the State. Sister M. O. Kewer has about 30 pupils enrolled and about as many more are to be about the first of January."

Rev. Frank Golden, Holly Grove circuit, Yazoo River: "In a protracted meeting held August last, and up to this time, I have received 16 accessions and 8 conversions to the church, baptized 3 adults and 17 children, and preached twice to the children at both churches, and taken up collections in both Sunday-schools, at Wesley Chapel $4 30, at Holly Grove $2 00. I have one exhorter to leave for Nashville, Tenn., to study for the ministry, J. C. Houston.

Rev. L. O. Crowder, Mt. Pisgah Circuit, Calhoun county: "The Lord has blessed us this year. We have forty-four full members and eight probationers. We commenced here three years ago with but one member. Now we have a good house and a church alive to the Lord. We have a prosperous Sabbath-school. The children are searching the Scriptures and storing their minds with its precious truths. There is one little girl of whom I wish to speak. Little Aunie Huffman, aged eleven years, who has since June commited to memory 365 verses of the Old and New Testaments, and obtained as a prize a beautiful hymn-book. With the rest she subscribes for the SOUTHWESTERN and the steel engraving. She will not stop short of a thousand verses next year. May the Lord bless and prosper her in her undertaking for the new year. We are looking up at Shady Grove and Hogan's Chapel. Pray for us.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. S. E. H. Morant: "Sister Clarissa Ross, wife of Rev. David Ross, one of our Local Deacons, died after a two weeks illness. She was born Sept. 28, 1858, converted at the age of 18 years, and remained a faithful member of the M. E. Church to the day of her death.

H. J. Wright, Alexandria 16: The Fourth Quarterly Conference of Alexandria and Pineville churches was held Dec. 12th. Rev. Samuel Davage, Presiding Elder, presiding, Bro. W. J. Wright, Secretary. Rev. J. F. Marshall, the pastor reported: number of Sabbath-schools 2, scholars attending 2, officers 12, average attendance 72. I have preached 6 times, catechised 7 times this quarter. Received in full membership 13, excluded 7, received by letter 7, dismissed by letter none, recovered during the year 7, withdrawn none.

General News Items.

The Chinese of San Francisco have asked for the establishment of a school in which their children can be taught.

The California Advocate of the 14th ultimo says: "On Sunday, Rev. O. Gibson, of the M. E. Church, baptized nine Chinese converts in Oakland, and a Chinese woman and her children at the mission in this city. The attendance at the chapel on Jackson street and at the mission-house is increasing.

Wheat has not been as low before, according to an article in the Public, in twenty-seven years as it was the first of November. Cotton has not been as low in twenty-three years, nor corn since 1845, except in 1851, nor mess pork since 1844. It says prices generally are thirteen per cent. lower than in May last, and eighteen per cent. lower than before the war.

A case under the civil rights bill has just been decided in Virginia. Two negroes were indicted for murder of a white boy. The venire of the jury was entirely composed of white men. The defendants demanded a venire of one-third negroes which was refused. The negroes were found guilty. They sued out a writ of habeas corpus from the United States Court, and the jury decided that a negro had a right to demand to be tried by his peers, and that therefore, Judge Treadway, circuit judge, violated the law of the United States in refusing to award a summons for a special venire, to be composed in part of negroes, although there was no proof offered in either court that white jurymen were at all prejudiced or incompetent.

Religious Items.

The new Roman Catholic cathedral in New York is soon be occupied. It will be without a rival in splendor and cost on the Western continent.

A Japanese publishing house, which two years and a half ago published a native translation of the Gospel of Matthew, is now about to publish a pocket New Testament, with references, chapter headings, etc, in fine style. A China-Japanese New Testament, with notes by Japanese scholars, has already gone to press.

The City.

Canal street presents a lively appearance as the holidays approach.

Ex-Gov. Henry S. Foote, of Mississippi, has qualified as Superintendent of the Mint, and it is to be put in running order without any unnecessary delay.

Mississippi Conference.

GREENWOOD, Leflore Co., Miss.

Editor SOUTHWESTERN:—I wish you to notify the brethren of the Mississippi Conference, which convenes at Yazoo City, January 15th, that those who come by railroad will stop at Vaughn's Station. Mr. Birmingham, the stage agent, will take them to the city and hack for $3.50, or half fare. Preachers who can reach Vicksburg in time to meet one of the Yazoo packets, Parisot's line, will be carried at a reduced price, and find it much to their advantage. All preachers coming to the Conference will report to Rev. G. Brooks.

Yours truly,
JOHN WESLEY DUNN,
P. E., Greenwood Dist, M. E. Miss. Conference.

ANNUAL REVIEW OUTLINE.

MAIN THEME.—Salvation.

GOLDEN TEXT.—John 3: 16.

1. A NATION TRIED.

The Nation's Deliverers:

Rehoboam.—Forsook law; reproved; humbled; delivered.

Asa.—Faithful; took away idols; made people covenant with God.

Jehosaphat.—Taught people out of law; his song victory.

Joash.—Repaired temple.

Hezekiah.—Did right; cleansed the temple.

Josiah.—Early sought the Lord; purged land of idols; repaired temple; found the law.

The Nation's Destroyers:

Uzziah.—Dedicated temple; smitten with leprosy.

Ahaz.—Brought Judah low; trespassed more and more; "This is that king Ahaz."

Manasseh.—Made Judah worse than heathen; his warning; capture; repentance; restoration.

Zedekiah.—Did evil; Jerusalem taken by Nebuchadnezzar; Zedekiah's sons slain; his eyes put out; Judah captive.

2. A NATION RESTORED.

God's Captive Witnesses:

Jeremiah.—In prison; the Lord's second visit; the Lord's promise.

Daniel.—The kings meat; Nebuchadnezzar's dream; Belshazzar's feast; in the den; vision.

Shadrach, Meshach, etc.—Fiery furnace.

God's Chosen Shepherd:

Cyrus (Is. 44: 28).—His proclamation; by whom stirred up; what charged to do.

3. SALVATION OFFERED.

Christ's Divinity Proved.

At his Birth.—By the angels; by the shepherds.

In his Childhood.—By his wisdom; in the temple.

In the Wilderness.—By John the Baptist; voice from heaven.

At his Home.—By the Scriptures read, and by his Word.

At Sea of Galilee.—By wonderful draught of fishes.

Over Disease.—By healing centurion's servant lad.

Over death.—By restoring son of widow of Nain.

Christ's Divine Instructions;

To Simon, the Pharisee.—Parable of the two debtors.

To the Seventy.—Revealed to babes; "All things delivered to me."

To a Lawyer.—Parable of the Good Samaritan.

To his Disciples.—Parable concerning importunity in prayer.

To the Covetous Man.—Parable of the rich fool.

4. SALVATION REJECTED.

Salvation Accepted:

By Many.—"Shall come from the east," etc. "Strive to enter in."

By the Poor, etc.—"None of those bidden shall taste," etc.

By the Prodigal.—"I will arise, and go to my father."

By the Ten Lepers.—"Ten cleansed; but where are the nine?"

By the Publican.—Not. by the Pharisee.

By Zaccheus.—"This day is salvation come to thine house."

Salvation Rejected:

The doomed City.—"Desolation thereof is nigh."

The Lord's Supper.—"Ye do show the Lord's death."

The Cross.—"Father forgive them."

The Risen Christ.—"Did not our heart burn?"

The Ascending Saviour.—"While he blessed them."

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—At his residence in Holly Springs, September 26, 1878, James Wells, in his fortieth year.

Holly Spring has lost many prominent men during the dreadful epidemic of '78, but among the most seriously regretted is James Wells. He was stricken with yellow fever on Sunday the 20th of September. His illness continued five days. On the morning of the 26th the weary wheels of life stood still, the spirit soared away to its world of bliss. Twenty-four hours elapsed and his companion joined him in his home in glory. His character was pure, unsullied and noble, his learning was not in books, but of wisdom. He left a host of friends both far and near. ants." "Lady Betty's Cooking The community at large lost a devoted friend, the Lodge a faithful member, the children an indulgent and devoted father.

It is foolishly said that religion was invented by hypocritical priests and knavish kings. It might as well be said that food and comfort are not necessities of our nature, but only cunning devices of butchers mechanics, and artists, to gain wealth and power. It is not given to hypocrites under the mitre, nor over the throne, to lay hold on the world and move it. Religion like society, friendship, and marriage, comes out of a principle deep and permanent in the constitution of man.—Theodore Parker.

New Publications

The Christmas Holiday Number of St. Nicholas is superb in all its contributions and illustrations. It contains strongly characteristic contributions from John G. Whittier, Charles Dudley Warner, Julian Hawthorne, Theodore Winthrop, Francis Hodgson Burnett (author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's) Mary Mapes Dodge, Celia Thaxter, Susan Coolidge, Hezekiah Butterworth (editor of "Youth's Companion.") Frank R. Stockton and Olive Thorne. Among [illegible] who contribute the [illegible] and more pictures to the number are Frederick Dielman, Alfred Fredericks, James E. Kelly, Alfred Kappes, Addie Ledyard, Fidelia Bridges, Granville Perkins, Jessie Curtis, Sol Eytinge, Jr., Kate Greenaway, of London, F. S. Church, and R. Sayre.

Harper's Magazine for January offers an unusual variety of interesting reading matter, with over ninety illustrations. The number opens with an effectively illustrated paper, by W. H. Rideing, on Liverpool—"England's Great Seaport." S. G. W. Benjamin contributes the first of two profusely illustrated papers, entitled "Rambles in the South of France." Besides these articles descriptive of places, there is, for readers interested in the curiosities of animal life, Mrs. Treat's illustrated paper, "A Chapter in the History of Ants"—a narrative of her own observations. Those interested in ceramic art will be especially pleased with Jennie J. Young's "Cloisonne Enamel," with eight beautiful engravings. Colonel Waring's illustrated paper on the last meeting of the "Royal Agricultural" show is full of curious and instructive information. An almost forgotten poetess—Mrs. Maria Brooks, or "Maria del Occidente" is recalled from oblivion by Mrs. Gustafson's delightful paper giving, through a variety of letters (from Col. Brooks, a son of the poetess, the Southeys, R. H. Horne, and others,) reminiscences of this remarkable author's brief career. Mrs. Brooks, the author of "Zophiel," a poem from which Mrs. Gustafson quotes largely, was pronounced by Southey "the most impassioned and most imaginative of all poetesses." Curious information is given in the paper on Rossean respecting his musical achievements. Porte Crayon contributes a characteristic article, entitled "Home," with illustrations. Edward Everet Hale's fine poem, "The Harvest Year," closes the Number. The Easy Chair discusses Choate, the magazine of to-day, the true story of Paul Revere's Ride, etc. The Little Record is a comprehensive and critical summary of the important books of the month. The other editorial departments are well sustained.

Mr. John Whittier opens the January number of St. Nicholas with a beautiful poem, "The Voyage of the 'Jettie,'" which describes a charming incident of his late days, Mrs. Dodge contributes a fairy story, "Wondering Tom," set forth by Fredrick Deilemae's lovely pictures, and to the Very Little Folk she gives a story of "The Little Girl who Wanted to Go to the Moon," illustrated with novel silhouettes. Besides these stories, Mrs. Dodge give a Christmas page, made up with old-time carols, and pictures by Addie Ledyard. Charles Dudley Warner asks the youngsters "What he shall do with Her?"—a tail-less cat whose queer ways, as he narrates them, must keep her human neighbors in fits of laughter. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's," contributes a Christmas tale, "Behind the White Bricks." The fairy story by Julian Hawthorne, "Rumpty-Dudget's Tower," begun in this number; and six pictures, by Alfred Fredricks, second its enchantments. Sarah J. Pritchard tells "How Wilster Kleespeet's Ship went into the Church,"—a graphic tale of child fishers life upon the romantic island of Heligoland in the German Ocean. "Pete's Christmas Tree," describes the woes of a boy who wanted to have Santa Claus come more than once a year. "Children's Day at St. Paul's" by N. D'Anvers describes the anniversary of the Charity school children in the great church of London; accompanied with ten admirable illustrations; by Kate Greenaway. The departments, this month, are extra good, and there is a capital acting-play, "Ten Dollars," by Oliver Thorne, and a sweet little piece of music, "Nocturne for Little Hands," by William K. Bassford. The Holiday Wide Awake, of which one hundred and twenty thousand copies are being read and enjoyed, is delightful, while its "star" articles make it a publication worthy to be preserved in the family library. It opens with a Christmas poem entitled "The Ch[illegible]st-Candle," by Margaret J. Preston, followed by "My Mother Put It On," by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitneys. "Boston Rosebuds" is a rose-article with five illustrations by Miss. Humphry. A funny drawing, "A Christmas Tragedy," in three School," gives an entertaining account of one of the many schools which are springing up all over England, off-shoots of the South Kensington school, whose object is to teach the children of the poorer classes how to prepare common articles of food more wholesomely and palatably. The Poets' Homes paper on "Ralph Waldo Emerson," is prepared by his young townsman, G. B. Bartlett, with portrait and six beautiful Concord views drawn by Miss Humphrey. The two jolly stories of the number are "Queen Church" by Rev. S. W. Duffield, and "Tressy's Christmas" by Margret Sidney, while jolliest of all is the rhyme of "The Mince Pie Prince" by Kirk Monroe, with two full-page illustrations by Hopkins. Ten fairy-like snow-pictures by "Bos," illustrate S. C. Stone's poem "Snowflakes." This number gives the opening chapters of two new serials. A funny serial, "Don Quixote Jr.," for the Little Boys of America, is to begin in the February number. Only $2.00 a year. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrope & Co., Publishers, Boston.

This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Scribner's Monthly.

Increase in Popularity.

So great have been the attractions of recent issues of SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY, that the edition in England has almost doubled within the few months, and its circulation at home is increasing with unexampled rapidity.

Among the features of 1879 specially worthy of notice, we may mention:

The portraits and illustrated life-sketches of EMERSON, HOLMES and WHITTIER, continuing the familiar series of Frontispiece Potraits, begun with Bryant and Longfellow.

THE EMPIRE OF BRAZIL, a series of illustrated papers, showing not only the general resources, cities and romantic aspects of the region, but also treating in a practical way the commercial and industrial relations between this country and the whole southern half of this continent. No expense has been spared in the preparation of these papers, which will be full, accurate and richely illustrated. The first two will be "The Metropolis of the Amazons," and "The Mediterranean of America."

STUDIES IN THE SIERRAS, by John Muir, the California naturalist; graphic and picturesque studies of the California Alps.

"THE TILE CLUB AT WORK," and "AT PLAY," descriptions of the origin and life of one of the New-York outgrowths of decorative art, will be found unique and entertaining. The illustrations are by members of "The Club,"—Abbey, O'Donovan, Weir, Homer, and others.

"THE OLD MASTERS," a series by CLARENCE COOK, begins with "Leonardo do Vinci." Among the masterpieces reproduced are the "Last Supper," "Head of Christ," and the "Mona Lisa."

The three last papers are in the Jan'y number.

"OLD MARYLAND MANNERS," portraying the quaintness of Maryland 150 years ago, illustrated by the author, is also in January.

SIDNEY LANIER contributes a series, "The New South;" ALLEN C. REDWOOD, of Baltimore, a lighter series, "The Johnny Reb' Papers," illustrated by the author, begun in November. BOYESEN will have articles on "The Universities of Europe," including sketches of leading men in the noted Universities of Great Britian and the Continent. Among other papers may be mentioned American and Canadian Sports, Farm Life, "Caves and Cave Scenery," "Lawn Planting for Small Places," American Art and Artists, American Archæology, Modern Inventors (begun with Edison), etc., etc.

"HAWORTH'S,"

by Mrs. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT is the leading serial, to run through the year.

The Springfield Republican says that "Haworth's promises to be a greater novel than 'That Lass o' Lowrie's;' that a large number of strongly individualized characters are already indicated; and the author's power in painting scenes, in dramatic motion, and in the picturesque humor, is perfectly sustained. Mrs. Burnett is advancing vigorously to the fulfillment of our recognition as a new original force in literature."

The London Academy says that for vigor, humor and rendering (dialect and all) of the scenes of manufacturing life in North Lancashire, the open chapters deserve to be put very high indeed.

Boyesen's Novel, "Falconberg," a tale of Norse life, begun in August to end in April, will be followed by a story of "Life in New Orleans," by GEORGE W CABLE, author of the original and striking Creole sketches published in SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY.

The Class-Leader.

His Work, and How to Do It.

With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.

BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.,

Author of "Garden of Sorrows."

12mo. $1.50

It is a sociable, pracucal, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subject in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting at one [illegible] business. He is [illegible] practical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly.

We have read it with great interest and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

COURSE OF STUDY

For

Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, 46 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I. Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. FIRST YEAR.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—Old Testament. Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Kurtz's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. 1. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876 [illegible] course [illegible] of local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conference; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to institute a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose license are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops.

W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

Our Class Leaders.

We are often asked for the names of [illegible] Class-Leaders [illegible]

We recommend the following and ask the Presiding Elders and Pastors to do all they can to put these books in the hands of the leaders.

1. The Class-Leader: His Work and How to do it. With illustrations of principles, needs, methods and results. By Rev. John Atkinson, A. M. 12mo., $1.50.

2. Address to Class-Leaders. By Bishop Janes. 12mo., 20c.

3. Seed-Thoughts; A Hand-Book of Doctrine and Devotion. By Rev. Geo. C. Robinson. Price $1.00.

4. Father Reeves, Methodist Class-Leader. By Edward Corderoy. 18mo., 45c.

5. All for Christ: How the Christian may Obtain, by a renewed Consecration of His Heart, the fullness of Joy Referred to by the Savior just Previous to His Crucifixion, with illustrations from the lives of those who have made this consecration. By Thomas Carter, D.D. 16mo., 75c.

For any of these books address Nelson & Phillips, New Orleans.

The Methodist Hymnal,

Hymnal with Tunes.

We are now prepared to fill orders for the following editions of the "METHODIST HYMNAL:"

Pearl, Plain	$0 40
Pearl, Red Edge	0 50
24mo, Plain	0 50
24mo, Red Edge	0 65
24mo, Roan, Embossed	0 75
24mo, Roan, Gilt Edge	1 00
16mo, Plain	0 75
16mo, Red Edge	1 00
16mo, Roan, Embossed	1 20
16mo, Roan Gilt Edge	1 40
Hymnal with Tunes, 12mo	1 00
Hymnal with Tunes, 8vo	1 75

Since the manuscript of the Hymnal was delivered by the Committee, October 26th, last, time has been required to prepare and perfect the indexes, to complete the arrangements of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all, to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts, and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

1879.

Nelson & Phillips, Publishers. J. C. Hartzell, B.D., Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, NOVEMBER 1, 1878.

DEAR BROTHER:—The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADNOCATE is your official church paper, and is published by order of the General Conference, at New Orleans. Besides religious news, the SOUTHWESTERN will contain articles on education, agriculture and politics. The more your people read from a good paper the more intelligent and active will they be as Christians, and the better will they support you and help in all the work of the church.

To aid you in the good work of circulating the SOUTHWESTERN we make the following most liberal propositions:

I. Two Months Free.

Every New subscriber for 1879 will receive the paper Free for the remainder of 1878. For example: If a subscriber gives you his name and two dollars November 1, 1878, he will receive the paper the two months remaining in 1878 and the whole year of 1879, making in all fourteen months for one year's subscription.

II. Cash Commissions to Agents.

All traveling Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are our authorized agents. We pay our agents the following cash commissions:

1. We send them their own paper for one dollar a year, just half price. This is the same as paying one dollar cash on their subscription.

2. We pay twenty-five cents cash for every yearly subscriber. Whenever an agent collects two dollars for us he is authorized to keep twenty-five cents from the amount as his commission, and send us $1.75.

III. A Steel Engraving of John Wesley to Every Subscriber.

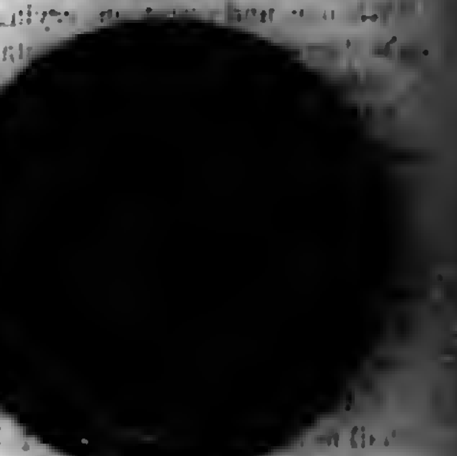
We give as a present to every yearly subscriber, a large and elegant steel engraving of John Wesley, the great founder of Methodism. This engraving retails at $1.50, but as we own the original plate and do our own publishing, we can afford to present one of these beautiful pictures to every subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN. The best judges pronounce the portrait a life-like picture of Wesley, and the engraving is first-class. The picture is 16x20 inches in size. Remember, we give this engraving as a present to every yearly subscriber as soon as the two dollars are paid.

IV. Silver Communion Ware for the Churches.

All our Churches need Communion Service Sets and we want them to have the best. By a most fortunate combination of circumstances we are enabled to put it within the reach of almost any Church to receive as a Present some of the best triple-plated Silver Communion Ware that is made. Here are pictures of the different pieces:

SILVER FLAGON, 1½ quarts, $10 00

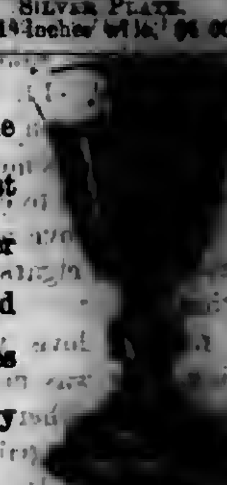
" 3 " 14 00



SILVER PLATE, 10 inches wide, $4 00

SILVER BAPTISMAL BOWL, $7 00.

These prices are the Manufacturers lowest retail prices. This silver ware is such as is used in the best Churches throughout the country.



SILVER GOBLET, 1 pint, $4 50.

REMEMBER this Silver Communion ware is given to the Churches in addition to the cash commissions to the Agent, and the steel engraved portrait of John Wesley to every subscriber. Our propositions to the Churches are as follows:

1. To any Church sending us Twenty Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon that will hold one and a half quarts, and worth $10 00.

2. To any Church sending us Twenty-five Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, and a Silver Plate worth $4. Total $14.

3. To any Church sending us Thirty-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, and a Silver Goblet worth $4 50. Total 18 50.

4. To any Church sending us Fifty cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, a Silver Goblet worth $4 50, and a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7. Total $25 50.

5. To any Church [illegible] five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon holding three quarts, [illegible] a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7, two Silver Goblets [illegible] and two [illegible] worth $8. Total, $38.

NOTICE.—Th[illegible] are sent to the Churches complying with these terms, as soon as [illegible] by us. This offer stands good for the whole year of 1879, and the [illegible] during the year, the money is received.

Our [illegible] Offer.

We claim that the offers [illegible] the preceding papers are very liberal. It will be noticed that we [illegible] the preacher, who acts as our agent in getting subscribers for [illegible] subscriber who takes the paper and pays for it; THIRD, the congregation [illegible] or more subscribers are obtained.

FOR EXAMPLE: Suppose a pastor and his people secure twenty yearly subscribers. At two dollars apiece that would be forty dollars. As the preacher gets twenty-five cents for every subscriber, five dollars of the forty dollars will belong to him. As soon as the remaining thirty-five dollars are received by us, we will send as a present to the congregation an elegant silver flagon worth ten dollars. We will also send twenty steel engravings of John Wesley, one for each subscriber.

Let it be understood that EVERY YEARLY SUBSCRIBER gets a steel engraving as soon as his subscription is paid, and for every two dollars collected the pastor will get twenty-five cents. The elegant Silver Communion Ware given to the Churches is IN ADDITION to what we give the pastor and each subscriber.

Our Terms.

1. The SOUTHWESTERN costs $2 a year, cash in advance. We pay the postage.

2. Where the preacher will be personally responsible for the money, we will send the paper, but no commissions will be paid the preachers, or steel engravings sent the subscribers, or [illegible] to the churches until the money is received at our office.

3. Cash in advance is the best rule for all parties. We get the money and avoid embarrassment: the preacher gets his commission; the subscriber gets his steel engraving at once, and the church gets its silver communion ware for immediate use.

4. Send the money by Postoffice Order whenever possible.

BEGIN THE CANVASS AT ONCE.

We need five [illegible] and if all our Agents will take hold of the canvass at once, and p[illegible] we shall have them.

Let the [illegible] we will send you a specimen copy of the steel engraving to sh[illegible] engraving and a copy of the paper and show them to your co[illegible] of the paper and our liberal offers.

Has [illegible] Communion Ware? If not, you need one, and now is your chance to get one as a gift. Explain our proposition to give Silver Communion Ware, to your official board, and get the brethren to unite in helping to secure twenty [illegible] more subscribers and secure some of our magnificent presents.

[illegible] copies of the SOUTHWESTERN you want, and whenever you ask for them.

THE BURDEN OF THE DAY.

Father! take not away
The burden of the day,
But help me that I bear it
As Christ his burden bore.
When cross and thorn he wore,
And none with him could share it—
In his name, help! I pray.

I only ask for grace
To see that patient face,
And my impatient one:
Ask that mine grow like his—
Sign of an inward peace
From trust in Thee alone,
Unchanged by time or place.

Why He Gave Them Up.

Little folks generally like to run and meet father at night when he returns from his day's work either at the office, store, or shop, don't they? The father likes to have them as well.

Roger Oreagh did anyway, and when his little "Polly" (as he called her) ran out to the gate he would catch her up, give her a kiss and toss her up in the air, and then run in the house with her on his back. And oh! what a good time they had after tea—she on his lap prattling in childish fashion, and he listening or telling his famous stories.

One night she met him as usual, but when tea was over did not climb up on his lap, but ran off after her mother into the kitchen.

"Where's my 'Polly'" cried he. "Come, Polly, I've a nice new story to-night." But no Polly came.

"Go to your father, child," said the mother.

"No, I don't want to, said the little one, and burst out crying, for the "new story" was a temptation.

"But why?" urged the mother. "I thought you liked papa's lap so well."

"Yes," said the child; but to-night his breaf don't smell good."

"Did you hear that, Roger?" said the wife, whose glance at his flushed face told her the true reason of "Polly's" dislike.

"Yes, Mary, said he, "and it shall never be said again. I only stopped with John Moore, who begged me to have a glass of something for old times' sake, and then a cigar afterward. I'll give them up forever rather than lose Polly's kisses. If she shuns me now, what will she do in years to come? No, no! I want her love and respect more than all the cigars and liquor in creation."

That father's love was worth something. He was not afraid to give his reasons, either, for declining drink when urged by others, replying: "No, no; Iv'e got a little girl at home who would know it, and, mates, I don't think it's good for us anyway. We're better off without it. I say 'a clean mouth and pure breath for kisses of wife and babies.'" I am glad to say he won some over to his way of thinking.—O. M., in Youth's Temperance Banner.

Two Pairs of Fetters.

Eighty years ago a fierce war raged in India between the English and Tippoo Saib. On one occasion several English officers were taken prisoners; among them was one named Baird. One day a native officer brought in fetters to be put upon each of the prisoners, the wounded not excepted. Baird had been severely wounded, and was suffering from pain and weakness.

A gray-haired officer said to the native official "you do not think of putting chains upon that wounded man?"

"There are just as many pairs of fetters as there are captives," was the answer, "and every pair must be worn."

"Then," said the noble officer, "put two pairs on me. I will wear his as well as my own." This was [illegible] to say, Baird lived [illegible] his freedom—lived to [illegible] day; but his noble friend [illegible] prison.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; somtimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

☞ HELP!

FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S

ELECTRIC BELTS

AND BANDS,

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions —Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS AND BANDS

cure these various diseased conditions, after all other means fail, and we offer the most convincing testimony direct from the afflicted themselves, who have been restored to

HEALTH, STRENGTH, AND ENERGY,

after drugging in vain for months and years. Send now for DESCRIPTIVE PAMPHLET and THE ELECTRIC QUARTERLY, a large Illustrated Journal, containing full particulars and INFORMATION WORTH THOUSANDS. Copies mailed free. Address,

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucous, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. PIERCE'S Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried HIGH UP and PERFECTLY APPLIED to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. SAGE'S Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists. R. V. PIERCE, M. THE LORD'S PRAYER.

The following beautiful paraphrase is credited to M. Pierre Bernard.

Our Father—
By right of creation,
By bountiful provision,
By gracious adoption;
Who art in heaven—
The throne of thy glory,
The portion of thy children,
The temple of thy angels.
Hallowed be thy name—
By the thoughts of our hearts,
By the words of our lips,
By the works of our hands.
Thy Kingdom come—
Of Providence to defend us,
Of grace to refine us,
Of glory to crown us.
Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven—
Toward us without resistance,
By us without compulsion,
Universally without exception,
Eternally without declension.
Give us this day our daily bread—
Of necessity for our bodies,
Of eternal life for our souls.
And forgive us our trespasses—
Against the commands of Thy law,
Against the graces of Thy gospel;
As we forgive those that trespass against us—
By defaming our characters,
By embezzling our property,
By abusing our person;
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil—
Of overwhelming afflictions,
Of worldly enticements,
Of Satan's devices,
Of error's seduction,
Of sinful affections.
For thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory forever—
Thy kingdom governs all,
Thy power subdues all,
Thy glory is above all.
Amen—
As it is in Thy purpose,
So it is in Thy promises,
So be it in our prayers,
So it shall be to Thy praise.

[illegible] the kingdom of God until the [illegible] can ever weave the robe

[illegible] Brooklyn Paup[illegible]

[illegible] TALMAGE.

[illegible] Charity Commis- [illegible] the [illegible] Brooklyn [illegible] a larger [illegible] shell of arousal into every city hall, meeting-house and cathedral on this continent. The factories at Fall River and Lowell have sometimes stopped for lack of demand or lack of workmen, but the great million-roomed factory goes on by day and night, year after year, without slackening a band or arresting a spindle. Its great wheel is turned by a flood not like that of the Merrimac or the Connecticut, but by a crimson flood poured forth from the groggeries and the wine cellars of the land, and the faster these floods roll the faster the wheel turns; and the band of the wheel is woven out of broken heart-strings, and at every turn thereof there pours out of the mouth of the iron mill crushed fortunes, desolate homes, squalor and mendicancy and crime—domestic and municipal—and national woe; and the creaking and rumbling of the wheels are the shrieks and groans of men and women lost for two worlds; and the cry is "bring on more reputations, more homes, more fortunes, more cities for the grist of this stupendous mill."

"But," you say, "these mills of death will after awhile cease from lack of material." No! See by the police-lantern into the future! In this cluster of cities, 15,000 barefooted, homeless children of the streets. They are the reserve corps of those that are to come up and take the ranks of those who drop into the Morgue, the potter's field and the East river. Some one has estimated that if these children were placed in double file, three feet apart, they would make a procession eight miles long. But what a pale, coughing, hunger-bitten, sin-cursed, ophthalmic throng—the tigers and scorpions and adders that were waiting to bite and sting and destroy society, which they take to be their natural enemy. Howard Mission is saving many; Children's Aid Society, many; Newsboys' lodging-houses, many; industrial schools, many. One society has transplanted from the filthy pavement of our cities to Western farms 30,000 of these children by matchless stratagem of charity, changing that multitude from vagrancy into industrious and useful citizenship. Out of 21,000 thus transported only twelve children turned out badly. But still the battalion of juvenile vagrancy marches on.

One regiment is made up of boot-blacks. They seem jolly, but they have known sorrows greater than many an old man. Amid the vilest of temptations and kicked and cuffed up garrets and down cellars, they make their two or three dollars a week, and by fifteen years of natural life are sixty years old in sin. Pitching pennies in their leisure and smoking the stumps of cigars thrown into the ditch, they are the prey of gamblers, and destroyed by the top gallery of the low play-house. Blacking shoes is their business, the interregnum of their work is swallowed up with the blackening of their morals. "Shine your boots, sir!" they sing out with affected gayety of voice, but there is a sad tremor in their accentuation. No one cares for them. You thoughtlessly put up your foot on their stand and whistle or smoke, while, God knows, it would not have hurt you to have said a kind word of counsel or of good cheer. Who prayed for a boot-black? Who, finding one wronged out of his ten cents, has demanded for him justice? Who, finding the wind blowing up under his short jacket and reddening his bare neck, has invited him into warm? God have mercy on the regiment of boot-blacks.

Another regiment of this great battalion of suffering is made up of the newsboys, the sharpest, [illegible] lads of the town, [illegible] in the morning, [illegible] vigilance waiting [illegible] themselves, or [illegible] hour, [illegible] sheets of the fold- [illegible] over their arm [illegible] their chest, already [illegible] the bleak [illegible] on the slippery pave- [illegible] singing [illegible] they were chant- [illegible] Her- [illegible] the [illegible] the air with [illegible] in the savings bank about $3,000. But for the great multitude there remains hunger and cold and nakedness and early graves or dream as he supposed that some quick prisons. There is nothing on the street that so moves me as when on a wintry morning I see a newsboy with papers he can't sell, about one-fourth clothed, crying with the cold, his face or hands bleeding from a fall, or rubbing a knee that has been hit on the side of the car, selling newspapers that tell of railroad accidents and boiler explosions and the foundering of ships in the last storm, while he says nothing about that which was to himself greater than all other misfortunes and disasters—the fact that he was ever born at all. By the red eye of the police lantern see them coiled up in the deep slumber of the night, for a few hours forgetful of want and pain and storm and darkness. But one of them struggling in his one was stealing his papers away from him, I stopped and thought whether it would be right to wish that they might never wake up again. God pity and save the newsboys of the city.

But there are other regiments marching on; regiments of rag-pickers, regiments of match-sellers, regiments of juvenile thieves—great reserve corps of darkness and death. What will become of society if they are unarrested and unsaved? But I said to the detectives: "Enough for one night of the misery of New York." We had gone up and down stairways and into cellars and turned this way and that, until I knew not where we were, except that we were bounded on the north by want, on the south by suffering, on the east by anguish, and on the west by despair.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The South and our Work.

Past events, as well as Revelation, plainly indicate to us that the Infinite rules in the affairs of men. Every revolution of the sun marks the onward march of political and religious liberty, and the emergency of millions from heathenish darkness. Where moral and natural means fail, agencies of force and mighty political and social revolutions produce the same result. Romanism would trample upon the liberties of the people, and great political convulsions shake her to the centre, openly rebuking her for her vain assumptions of the right of government and infalibility. And, notwithstanding the efforts made by the votaries of error all over the world, the iron grip of ignorance is giving way to the genial warmth of a free Christian thought; and where vice, made strong by darkness, stubbornly resists the advance of free thought there comes a force more than persuasive, a mandate that cannot be escaped, to right the wrongs and prepare the way to a higher and broader Christian freedom. Providence evidently means to loose the fetters and break every yoke. Slavery was supposed by many to be a divinely appointed institution, and no means of light were opened to the enslaved sons of Ham. Then broke over our country a great storm of devastation, and there seemed no beginning of the solution of the difficulties until all the people were given the rights of freemen. Some mistakes were perhaps made in the manner of freeing and enfranchising those held in slavery; but the great central idea was a righteous one, and from that date every pealing bugle note and booming of cannon were only echoes of the eternal fiat that had gone forth, that all men were men and should have rights and privileges as such. Anger and punishment have brought to our land freedom and prosperity. "Surely the wrath of man shall praise Him," and "the remainder of wrath shall He restrain." One after another of Christian nations have thrown off the fetters of the slave; and not only so, but every land and every isle of the sea is opened to the Christian missionary. The command, "Go ye into all the world," is being fulfilled in a sense in which it never was before. From the North, from the South, from the East, from the West, comes up the cry, "Come over and help us!" Prominent, we may say foremost, in the field, is the Methodist Episcopal Church with her many agencies of good. She has [illegible] sea and land, not to make proselytes [illegible], but to seek out the lost and bring them again to the fold; and very great success in [illegible] and building up a [illegible] Christianity has been the result of her zeal and fidelity. She nestles under her protecting wings representatives from every people. While her success has been so general, her work has been obstructed in the Southern half of our country. But during the short years of a modified peace since the extermination of slavery, she has secured a good footing in every Southern State. She is already, in this field, third in point of numbers. Strange as it may seem, some have thought, or professed to at least, that the Methodist Episcopal Church has no business in the South. We fail to perceive any reason why all churches should not use all power possible in all places to proclaim the "Word whose entrance giveth life," and help turn back the mighty tide of ignorance and vice. Some of our own brethren tremble before stern duty, but under God we cannot fail. Every year witnesses new conquests; schools and colleges spring up in her path; the pulsations of her great heart put life and warmth into all the members of the common body. And after all has been done, many golden sheaves are lost for want of some to gather them in. Stagnation in business and our unsettled state of political affairs have kept many from emigrating to the South. It is probable that at no distant day the South will be open to immigration as the North and West have been; and, in that case, the South will teem with population. There will be no North and South, with the distinctive significance attached to these names, but one grand country. With other churches, the Methodist Episcopal Church is held accountable for her share in the preservation of our common country and the evangelization of her people: and we may safely expect her church spires to tower from every village in the South as well as in the North and West. This is no idle fancy, but a judgment warranted by her present vigorous pushing of her work in the South, and by her success in the past wherever she has operated. Sacrifices and hardships will have to be undergone, but the time never was yet in the history of Methodism when men were wanting for such places where they were really needed. Those who would hinder our work need to counsel from the wisdom of Gamaliel, "lest haply they be found even to fight against God."

Political Morals.

A partisan goes with his party, right or wrong. He is devoted to persons, not principles. He seeks his own advantage quite regardless of the public good. He joins in plots, intrigues, combinations and rings, all of which aim to use some great party for the benefit of a very few astute knaves. It is because of the conduct of such unscrupulous partisians that many honest and patriotic citizens have come to the conclusion that they are released from all political obligations. They think the post of honor is the private station, and decline to concern themselves about public affairs. They have seen stupendous frauds enormous robberies committed under forms of law. They have deplored the coruptions which have festered within the two historic national parties, and with a species of indolent despair confine themselves to private pursuits and allow the traders and gamblers in politics to keep the field unchallenged.

Herein lies the great peril of our institutions. Under every form of government from the beginning until now there have been great wrongs and prodigious abuses. But the wrongs and abuses under our republican system can be reached and checked. This has been shown in recent years, when public opinion has turned with the wrath of Nemesis against men once idolized by their respective parties and it has shrouded them with thick folds of infamy from which they can find no escape. It is to the credit of the American people that sooner or later they will put the seal of their condemnation upon men who have sacrificed the morals of politics for their own sordid advantage. The truth is that no great political party can exist without a moral basis. No matter what may be the issue joined, no matter how narrow the views of large classes of voters, still there is a public conscience that makes it necessary to appeal to the moral sense in support of the asserted morality of measures proposed. If there be a cry against monopolies, or land grants, or high tariffs, though all these relate to material interests, still the argument against them is always based on some principle of legal or civic ethics. So now when the main question before the people relates to money, the whole battle turns on the honesty or dishonesty involved in the schemes of antagonizing parties. Everybody knows that in every canvass political tactics require that efforts be made to convince "honest voters," and so it may be laid down as a settled rule that politics divorced from morality are pernicious and pestilential, encouraging to demagogues and alarming to patriots.

But while the greed for office has grown with the increase of patronage and the large interests to be handled, we have a very definite conviction that the best men of all parties are intent upon effecting reforms in administration. In other words, politics have been in a measure purified, corrupt leaders have been exposed, and their influence destroyed. Now who shall help these men who are aiming at a better and either standard of political morality? Who shall preserve the ballot-box for its legitimate uses? Who shall drag up our drowned honor by the locks and cloth it with official dignity and authority? Honest men, Christian men, lovers of their country, cannot afford in any sense to be indifferent to the claims of the present and of the future upon their courage, their intelligence, and their zeal. They ought to vote and to make their ballots contain the veridicts of their consciences. The independent voter who refuses to be led like a chained galley slave, who takes care to vote for the right cause and the right men may be a real benefactor now when there is still room for large and various political reforms.—Intelligence.

The Next Best Thing.

"Mr. Moncton," said my grandmother. "I have no wood to burn to-day. What shall I do?"

"O, send Louisa round to pick up some," said the good man, making a stride toward the door.

"But she has picked up all she can find."

"Then let her break up some old stuff."

"But she has broken up everything already."

"Oh! well, then, do the next best thing—I must be off," said the farmer; and off he was, whistling as he went, and no doubt wondering in his heart what the next best thing would turn out to be.

Noon came, and with it came my grandfather and four hungry laborers. My grandmother stood in the kitchen, spinning on her great wheel, and singing a pleasant little ditty; Louisa was scouring in the back room, and the cat purring on the hearth before a black and fireless chimney, while the table sat in the middle of the room, ready for dinner, with empty dishes.

"Well, wife, here we are," said my grandfather, cheerily.

"So I see," said she placidly. "Have you had a good morning in the corn-field?"

"Why, yes, so so. But where is the dinner?"

"In the pot on the doorstep. Won't you see if it is done?"

And on the doorstep, to be sure, sat the great iron pot, nicely covered, but not looking prticularly steamy. My grandfather raised the cover, and there lay all the ingredients of a nice boiled dinner—every thing prepared in the nicest manner, and all the vegetables as raw as they had ever been. My grandfather started, and my grandmother joined another roll to the yard upon her distaff, and began another verse of her song.

"Why, woman, what does this mean?" began my grandfather, indignantly. "This dinner isn't cooked at all!"

"Dear me, is it not? Why, it has set in the sun this four hours.

"Set in the sun!"

"Yes, you told me to try the next best thing to having a fire, and I thought setting my dinner in the sun was about that."

My grandfather stood doubtful for a moment, but finally his sense of humor overcame his sense of injury, and he laughed aloud. Then picking up his hat, he said: "Come, boys, we might as well start for the woods. We shall have no dinner till we have earned it, I perceive."

"Wont you have some bread and cheese before you go?" asked my grandmother, generous in her voice as women always are. And so she won the day.—Christian Statesman.

Gems.

Every good deed is a grain of seed for eternal life.

Presumption first blinds a man, and then sets him running.

Let nothing satisfy you but a Scriptural, heartfelt assurance of interest in the love of God.

True prayer strikes at the root of sin; where there is much real prayer, sin cannot be loved or indulged.

Study the Holy Scriptures. It has God for its author, salvation for its end, and truth, without any mixture of error, for its matter.—Locke.

Once read a wrong, bad book, and the mischief it will do you can never be repaired. God has given us the choice of learning both good and evil, but he has not given us the choice of forgetting.

It cannot be denied that Christ everywhere speaks as if he was willing all men should be saved. Therefore to say he was not willing all men should be saved is to represent him as a gross deceiver of the people.—Wesley.

It is difficult, to estimate the power for good of a soul thoroughly endued with energy from on high. Its influence, though it may be quiet, is yet like a silent, mighty current. And when a body of Christians, when a whole church is thus baptized, nothing can withstand its might.—Independent.

When I hear a person who has broken the laws of the land railed at, and hear people cry, "Oh, he is a vile wretch; he deserves his sentence;" for my part I can't throw a stone at him, but I see that if God were to leave me to myself I should commit as foul crimes, and a thousand times worse.—W. Romaine.

It is pleasant to believe that the world is gradually growing whiter. It is a joy to feel that, as the years pass, the mission of Jesus fulfils itself, and the world is becoming purer. There is a basis of fact for this belief, and abundant cause for such a joy. Two thousand years ago the word was foul, both in its thought, its practices, and its expression. Even the literature of our own language, three centuries ago, was too impure for the present time to read. In our age, on every hand,—in what it says and does, in what it writes and sings, paints and chisels,—we behold proof that the cleansing work of Christianity has triumphed. The world is progressing. It moves on and it moves up. The hearts of men are becoming chaste, the affections of men pure. God is coming nearer and nearer to the race, not in outward and visible splendor of actual appearance, but in the interior improvement and development of human nature. Again is his likeness being born on the earth. Not now, as at Bethlehem, by the birth of the flesh, but by the birth of the spirit. He is not taking to himself the nature of angels, but the nature of man, and man beholds him in his own nature. And through the increasing purity of his affections he sees his God. By and by they will see him more clearly. By and by they will see him wholly. By and by they will realize the truth of the saying of Jesus, when he exclaimed to his disciples, "The kingdom of heaven is within you." Then will they indeed be near God. Then shall they see him, as it were, face to face.—Murray.

The North and the South.

The North is growing much faster than the South. The Electoral College is now, composed of two hundred and thirty-one members from the North and one-hundred and thirty-eight from the South. Under the new appointment which will be made on the census of 1880 the North will be, if not quite, twice as strong as the South in the Electoral College. Under these circumstances, is it not foolish for the South to pursue a course which tends to array a solid North against a solid South? And is it not equally foolish for the Democratic Party, which extends through North and South, to wink at a policy that is as sure to drive it out of power at the North as water is to run down-hill? The more progressive of the Southern statesmen recognize the injury which force and fraud against the negro are doing to their cause. They know well enough that a great majority of the people of the North demand, and will have, equal rights under the law and a pure ballot for all.—Boston Herald.

Be Strong in the Grace that is in Christ Jesus---Tim. ii. I.

We want to be strong in ourselves, or if we may not have confidence in ourselves, to have some fellow-creature on whom we can rely. But God will have us confide only in Jesus. God would trust no one but Jesus, and we should not even wish to do so. There is grace in Jesus, All grace is in Jesus. He says, "All things are to be delivered unto me of my Father." And the apostle says, "It pleased the Father, that in him should all fullness dwell." He is the fountain of grace, and we are to look to him at all times, and for all the grace we need. He giveth liberally and upbraideth not. Let us fancy ourselves strong for any grace we have received, or on account of the grace possessed by any one we love; but let us exercise confidence in Jesus alone, who giveth more grace. We are as our faith is; if therefore our faith is fixed on Jesus, if we exercise steady confidence on his veracity, word and love, we are strong. But it is only as we feel weak in ourselves that we shall do so.

The Law of Salvation.

It is a law in nature that if you let go a stone it will fall to the earth: it is equally a law in grace that the soul that trusts Jesus will be saved and peaceful. God's spiritual laws are surely not less certain than his physical laws. He says to the thirsty, "Drink, or you will die." He says just as clearly to the dying sinner, "Receive my salvation and live." Isaiah understood this law when he said to Him, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee; because he trusteth in Thee." (Isa., xxvi. 3). Let go everything; all your fears and all your false confidence, and simply fall into His everlasting arms of love that are underneath you, and waiting to receive you into sweet embrace (Deut., xxxiii. 27). He will carry the child-like believer in his very bosom.—From "Joy and Peace in Believing."

Method in Work.

Do instantly whatever is to be done; take the hours of reflection and recreation after business and never before it. When a regiment is under march, the rear is often thrown into confusion because the front does not move steadily and without interruption. If that which is first in is not instantly, steadily and readly despatched other things accumulate behind, until affairs begin to press all at once, and no human brain can stand the confusion. Pray mind this—it is one of your weak points, a habit of mind that is very apt to beset men of intellect and talents, especially when their time is not filled up regularly, but is left to their own arrangement. But it is like the ivy round the oak, and ends by limiting, if it does not destroy, the power of manly and necessary exertion.

Mexico.

Rev. J. W. Butler writes from the city of Mexico under date of November 18:

"I am glad to be able to add that my Church is just now enjoying a most excellent religious time. The work is the nearest to a genuine spiritual revival that I have seen in the country. We have had four conversions from Romanism since my return. We are praying and working for a gracious time. My work among the Indians is also making good progress. A delegation from an Indian town twenty miles from the capital came in Saturday, and we had a sort of 'all-day meeting.' The children of the orphanage were a great help with their singing and prayers."

A few weeks since a camp meeting was held in the Creek Nation, Indian Teritory, lasting several days. The meeting was attended by many Choctaws. At the close of the meeting the Indians placed themselves in two lines facing each other, and the Choctaws in their own language sang some of their sweetest hymns. Then each passed down the opposite line, and earnestly shook the hands of the Creeks. Then the Creeks repeated the graceful ceremony, singing in their Muskogee language, and shaking the hands of the Choctaw worshippers, wished them God speed, and then filed off to their respective nations and homes. This would indicate that the Indians conduct a camp meeting on the right principle.

Editorial Correspondence.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS.

Twenty years or more ago a company of United States troops camped on the spot where now stands Fort Worth. Thence forward that spot became a center of population. At first only a family or two in the vast extended plains three hundred miles west from the head of navigation on the Red River, and four hundred miles north of the Gulf. Six years ago the population numbered a few hundred. Then began the railroad excitement, and the line of the Southern Pacific running directly west from Shreveport, was fixed to pass through Fort Worth. Two years ago the road was completed that far, and has as yet been extended no farther. These few years have changed the little prairie frontier settlement unto a city of ten thousand people. It is well named the "Queen city of the Plains." It is on the clear fork of Trinity river, and is a hundred feet above the water mark of that little stream, so that good drainage can be easily had. The churches are most of them new and temporary. The Christian Church (Campbelite) having the best thus far. The court house is one of the finest buildings in the State, and is built in the form of a Maltese cross. The town has street rail-roads, gas works and many hotels. There are two papers, Democrat and Standard, published each daily and weekly, and also the Tribune and Journal, evening papers. The place has all the characteristics of a new place in society and buildings and ways of doing. The sound of a pistol means either a fire or a fight, generally the latter. Monday morning we were startled by a rapid firing of pistols under our hotel window. Springing out of bed and looking down into the darkness, we saw by the periodical flashes of fire a man standing, loading his pistol as rapidly as possible. Soon other pistols were heard in other parts of town, then a bell began to ring, and soon the light of a fire flashed heavenward a block or two off. We did what everybody does in a new place—went to the fire. It proved to be quite a blaze, several buildings burned. The remains of a man were found in the ruins of one, and circumstances indicated that he had been killed and the murderer set fire to the building to escape detection.

The country about Fort Worth is a high rolling prairie with a fair supply of timber and water. The soil is rich and good crops are made. The railroad insures good transportation. Pullman cars run from Fort Worth to St. Louis, seven hundred and ten miles. Unimproved land in the vicinity is worth two to nine dollars, and improved farms command from ten to twenty-five dollars per acre. Immigration is flowing into all northern and western Texas with marvelous rapidity. We met three large trains filled with people during a twelve hours run from Marshall to Little Rock. We know of no new country more desirable to go to than northern and western Texas. Lands are cheap, soil good, productions varied, the climate a most happy medium between extremes.

Our readers will want to have the story of

ANTHONY BEWLEY'S MARTYRDOM.

In 1859 Bishop Janes met the Missouri and Kansas Conferences in [illegible] Texas. On Sunday [illegible] Judge O. M. Roberts, the present Democratic Governor-elect [illegible] caste, which gave birth to and maintained slavery.

In the arrangement of the work at that memorable Conference, Bishop Janes formed a Texas District, and appointed to it as presiding elder Anthony Bewley. We know nothing of the personal history of this man previous to this; but this is of no consequence. This was his last appointment, and from it he was translated, crowned with a martyr's crown. He died for the right as truly as did Latimer or Cranmer. When questioned by the mob, he said: "I believe slavery is wrong!" He resided near Fort Worth, and owned his own residence, and had settled there to make the South his permanent home. Some months after his return from Conference, a meeting of the citizens was held in Fort Worth and resolutions passed warning abolitionists to leave the country. Hearing of this, Bewley started for the North. His son-in-law, who resided with him, was taken and tried by a mob, but no positive evidence being brought against him, he was released. Bewley reached Missouri in his journey northward, and feeling that he was safe, tarried with a view of perhaps settling. After his departure, reports were circulated that he had been party to the burning of Dallas, then a village, and letters were written and dropped in the public highways addressed to him, and which spoke of insurrectionary meetings among the colored people, and of plots to burn property. These base lies were enough with which to arouse and organize a company to pursue Bewley. He was captured and brought back five hundred miles. On the journey up, arrangements were made to bring him back in closed carriages, driven rapidly from station to station, so that no excitement would be awakened along the route, and the journey made as soon as possible. On the evening before his execution he was brought into Fort Worth closely concealed in a carriage and carefully guarded. A report was circulated that on that night there would be a "show." The knowing ones understood what it all meant. After dark, that company of murderers took their victim and went westward from the town over a hill and down into a little valley scarcely a mile distant. We know not whether even the form of a trial was gone through. We only learn that when questioned he replied: "I believe slavery is wrong." That was enough. When the end came and he knew he must die, he said to his murderers: "For every hair of my head you harm, a hundred of your friends shall die." He was hung to the limb of a pecan tree. On last Sunday evening with Bishop Haven and Dr. Brush, we stood on the spot where that tree had grown and been destroyed. A brick-yard covers the place. The exact spot is smooth and is used as the place on which to sun dry the brick before they are tested and completed by fire. The murderers of Bewley who wrought on the same spot their hellish deed, had their work at first commended in the sunlight of a wicked and depraved public sentiment. In that light that work was pronounced good, but the real test, that of fire, hastens, yea is here, and the judgment of mankind is that every hand that took a part in that awful crime, and every sentiment that inspired or approved it, was the hand and sentiment of a murderer, and that only the infinite mercy of God can save their possessors from the eternal fires of the murderer's hell. The body was left hanging until the next day, when it was identified by the man who had offered the warning resolution in the citizen's meeting referred to above. Burial was refused in the white people's cemetery, and the body was buried in the "nigger grave-yard," which in that day was practically the potter's field. In digging the grave the sexton dug it north and south, instead of east and west. When remonstrated with by the one through whom we get these facts, and he it was who offered the resolution in the citizen's meeting, the sexton said, "he has gone south—went to hell, and we will help him along." The grave was changed and he was buried east and west. Report says that the body was dug up, and was given to a physician of the place, and the bones lay exposed to public gaze and derision on top of a building in the public square. Of this we could not definitely learn.

Such is the story of Bewley's martyrdom. We first heard of it [illegible] years ago. When a boy we visited the Central Illinois Conference, and heard Richard Haney make an [illegible] to help educate [illegible] of Bewley's [illegible] have two more [illegible]

The Soul's Food.

If it be true that God has made no independent animal life, we shall find it equally true that He has given no independent spiritual life. If God has made all creatures to renew life through food and nourishment, we shall find He has also arranged to provide bread for the souls of men, nourishment for the higher life. We know well that as Christians we cannot live without the bread of God. Born again to a new life and a new sphere, the new creature in Christ Jesus will need ever new nourishment as truly as the new born babe.

This is constantly impressed upon us in the Word of God. The new born sons of God are enjoined to watch and to pray; to search the scriptures; to assemble together for worship, communion and instruction; to talk together of the things of God: to keep in mind the promises; and above all, to remember the human life of their great example, the Lord Jesus Christ; and to maintain an uninterrupted fellowship with Him as their loving Master and Savior, so they may "grow in grace," "be built up a holy temple in the Lord;" be nourished into a noble strength for Godly labors; rise up into the image of Christ and reach the fullness of the measure of the stature of Christ; the perfect manhood in Christ.

God is ever setting before men a most wealthy, spiritual banquet and with His Divinely gracious persuasions He is saying, "Eat, O Friends, drink, yea, drink abundantly, O beloved."

We know that we must eat to live. Then how strange must appear our neglect of the practical applications of the truth. A Christian man is as his food, according to food which he can receive and turn into vital force within him. In presence of this truth let us try to estimate the Christian living of our past years; the Christian working, the Christian character. Do they all indicate that we have been ill fed or that we have been well fed? Do they tell of our preference for danties, sweetmeats and religious excitements over the solid life renewing food of the living bread and water of sound scriptural instruction?

There are perhaps none of us to whom the review of the past is not humbling. What we might have been, what God would have had us be, what He prepared as the means of enabling us to be, are so different, so far away from what we are. It may be that for some of us, in such a review, there is just a hiding of face, and blinding tears of penitence, and a hastening to the mercy seat for a new forgivness and the cleansing of the blood of sprinkling.

We have neglected God's gracious provisions for our soul. Instead of strong hearty Christians we are poor and weakly. We have but little spiritual life and activity. The soul must be fed, constantly and richly fed to be lively, juicy and vigorous.

Speaking of the late election in South Carolina, the Southern Christian Advocate (Southern Methodist) says:

"The election is over. Our last week's estimate of the result has been fully verified. The State has gone overwhelmingly Democratic. Every county, with the exception of Beaufort, gave a Democratic majority. We send five Democrats to Congress—a full delegation. We have illustrated the power of wealth, intelligence and Anglo-Saxon blood over an irresponsible majority of the colored rabble of South Carolina. The white man has shown his capacity to control the negro. There is another question before him, how to control himself We have learned very little to this end the past few years. We need to unlearn what we have learned amiss."

"Here, then, is deliberate commendation by a religious journal of the intimidations and outrages perpetrated upon the "majority" of the voters of South Carolina. If such sentiments are publicly avowed by men supposed to represent the best moral tone of the South, what are we to expect from the conscienceless politicians? Commend us to the latter class, for they make no professions to godliness.

We clip the following from the Western. We sympathize profoundly and sincerely with our dear friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Phillips, in this sad affliction.

"Mr. Frank W. Phillips, son of John M. Phillips, of the New York Book Concern, died at the residence of his parents in Brooklyn, on the 5th inst., aged thirty-three and a half years. His death resulted from a fall. When descending the stairs he caught his foot, and falling to the bottom his head struck an ice-chest. He was able to return up stairs, but soon became unconscious, and died in a few hours. His remains were brought to Cincinnati for interment, the funeral taking place from St. Paul's Church on last Monday morning."

A Good Leader.

Rev. W. B. Rippetoe, of the Central Tennessee Conference, upon entering upon the work of another year, gives these words to his preachers. They have the ring of agood leader.

"Like Nehemiah, we can say: 'The work is great and large, and we are separated upon the wall, one far from another.' But all this unoccupied territory must be possessed for God and the Methodist Episcopal Church. The successes of last year show what can be done by the help of the Lord and hard work. We must raise two hundred dollars for missions this year. Prayer needs to be made for young men to help work up this vast field."

The Denison (Texas) Herald says: "Rev. M. A. Daugherty was appointed by the bishop at the Austin conference, presiding elder of the San Antonio district and pastor at San Antonio. A very important and difficult work is committed to him. His district embraces South-west Texas, with San Antonio as headquarters, the Rio Grande on the west and the gulf on the south as its limits, a territory out of which two or three great States could be made, and in which ten millions of people will live when Texas is as well settled as New York."

Southern Methodism.

MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. J. M. Nevil, Ripley: "Mr. Philip Gray was married to Miss Nannie Kelly on the 10th.

C. H. Linzy, Leaf River, Greene, county: "The churches are doing well. Many new members have been added."

Rev. D. Moore, White Field Circuit: "Since the 13th of June there have been sixty-six added to the church, thirty-five conversions, and thirty-eight baptized."

Rev. J. B. Griffin, Holly Springs circuit: "God has called away one of our members, Fannie Hubbard. We have had 38 converts this year. and 40 accessions to the church. Pray for us."

Rev. J. W. Parks, Forest: "Miss L. B. Smith died October 11, aged 19 years. She was a faithful member of the church for two years. My meeting closed with 65 converts and additions to the church."

Rev. C. Frierson, Louisville: "The Lord blessed my labor, and it resulted in 390 converts, 400 additions to the Church, and a collection of $265 benevolent money for the annual conference."

B. L. Crump, Greenwood: "I have just closed a week's meeting, and was rejoiced with six converts. We have had 26 converts this year and 21 accessions to the church. We have a nice Sabbath School and the children have been very liberal. contributing $22.50."

Rev. L. Echles: "When the country was quarantined, N. Toole, a local preacher, and myself, in one of my churches, in October, held a two week's meeting, winning 16 converts and 13 probationers. I am glad to say my whole circuit is prospering."

J, M. Shumpert, Holly Springs: The following marriages have taken place here in this city, Dec, 11, 1878, by myself: "Mr. Dock Spencer to Miss Rutha Patterson: John Jeffery to Miss Doughery; John Roberts to Miss Tempor Bradford; Matthew Lea to Miss Elizabeth Newsom, all of Holly Springs."

Rev. John H. Cook, Pontotoc: "Rev. Thomas E. Miller, of the Grenada Circuit, to which he was appointed by Bishop Wiley and reappointed by Bishop Harris, died some weeks ago. He leaves kinsfolk and relatives at Pontotoc. George Reed, formerly a resident of New Orleans, came to Pontotoc in 1869, and was one of the first to join the M. E. Church, in which he remained faithful until his death."

Rev. M. Adams, State Line, Dec 14:—"The ministers in the Meridian District will not hold a District Conference this winter, on account of embarrassment in a financial sense. Our business is being carried out by the Quarterly Conferences. The ministers are taking up collections for all the benevolent causes of our church. Missionary meetings are being held in all of our congregations.

The Meridian Academy School opened its second term Monday, December 2. We are glad to learn that the prospects are very bright for a much better school than last year, notwithstanding the sickness has hindered us, very much in this part of the State. Sister M. O. Kewer has about 30 pupils enrolled and about as many more are to be about the first of Jauuary."

Rev. Frank Golden, Holly Grove circuit, Yazoo River: "In a protracted meeting held August last, and up to this time, I have received 16 accessions and 8 conversions to the chruch, baptized 3 adults and 17 children, and preached twice to the children at both churches, and taken up ccollections in both Sunday-schools, at Wesley Chapel $4 30, at Holly Grove $2 00. I have one exhorter to leave for Nashville, Tenn., to study for the ministry, J. C. Houston.

Rev. L. O. Crowder, Mt. Pisgah Circuit, Calhoun county: "The Lord has blessed us this year. We have forty-four full members and eight probationers. We commenced here three years ago with but one member. Now we have a good house and a church alive to the Lord. We have a prosperous Sabbath-school. The children are searching the Scriptures and storing their minds with its precious truths. There is one little girl of whom I wish to speak. Little Annie Huffman, aged eleven years, who has since June commited to memory 365 verses of the Old and New Testaments, and obtained as a prize a beautiful hymn-book. With the rest she subscribes for the SOUTHWESTERN and the steel engraving. She will not stop short of a thousand verses next year. May the Lord bless and prosper her in her undertaking for the new year. We are looking up at Shady Grove and Hogan's Chapel. Pray for us.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. S. E. H. Morant: "Sister Clarissa Ross, wife of Rev. David Ross, one of our Local Deacons, died after a two weeks illness. She was born Sept. 28, 1858, converted at the age of 18 years, and remained a faithful member of the M. E. Church to the day of her death.

H. J. Wright, Alexandria 16: The Fourth Quarterly Conference of Alevandria and Pineville churches was held Dec. 12th. Rev. Samuel Davage, Presiding Elder, presiding, Bro. W. J. Wright, Secretary. Rev. J. F. Marshall, the pastor reported: number of Sabbath-schools 2, scholars attending 2, officers 12, average attendance 72. I have preached 6 times, catechised 7 times this quarter. Received in full membership 13, excluded 7, received by letter 7, dismissed by letter none, recovered during the year 7, withdrawn none.

General News Items.

The Chinese of San Francisco have asked for the establishment of a school in which their children can be taught.

The California Advocate of the 14th ultimo says: "On Sunday, Rev. O. Gibson, of the M. E. Church, baptized nine Chinese converts in Oakland, and a Chinese woman and her children at the mission in this city. The attendance at the chapel on Jackson street and at the mission-house is increasing.

Wheat has not been as low before, according to an article in the Public, in twenty-seven years as it was the first of November. Cotton has not been as low in twenty-three years, nor corn since 1845, except in 1851, nor mess pork since 1844. It says prices generally are thirteen per cent. lower than in May last, and eighteen per cent. lower than before the war.

A case under the civil rights bill has just been decided in Virginia. Two negeoes were indicted for murder of a white boy. The venire of the jury was entirely composed of white men. The defendants demanded a venire of one-third negroes which was refused. The negroes were found guilty. They sued out a writ of habeas corpus from the United States Court, and the jury decided that a negro had a right to demand to be tried by his peers, and that therefore, Judge Treadway, circuit judge, violated the law of the United States in refusing to award a summons for a special venire, to be composed in part of negroes, although there was no proof offered in either court that white jurymen were at all prejudiced or incompetent.

Religious Items.

The new Roman Catholic cathedral in New York is soon be occupied. It will be without a rival in splendor and cost on the Western continent.

A Japanese publishing house, which two years and a half ago published a native translation of the Gospel of Matthew, is now about to publish a pocket New Testament, with references, chapter headings, etc, in fine style. A China-Japanese New Testament, with notes by Japanese scholars, has already gone to press.

The City.

Canal street presents a lively appearance as the holidays approach.

Ex-Gov. Henry S. Foote, of Mississippi, has qualified as Superintendent of the Mint, and it is to be put in running order without any unnecessary delay.

Mississippi Conference.

GREENWOOD, Leflore Co., Miss.

Editor SOUTHWESTERN:—I wish you to notify the brethren of the Mississippi Conference, which convenes at Yazoo City, January 15th, that those who come by railroad will stop at Vaughn's Station. Mr. Birmingham, the stage agent, will take them to the city and back for $3.50, or half fare. Preachers who can reach Vicksburg in time to meet one of the Yazoo packets, Parisot's line, will be carried at a reduced price, and find it much to their advantage. All preachers coming to the Conference will report to Rev. G. Brooks.

Yours truly,

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—At his residence in Holly Springs, September 26, 1878, James Wells, in his fortieth year.

Holly Spring has lost many prominent men during the dreadful epidemic of '78, but among the most seriously regretted is James Wells. He was stricken with yellow fever on Sunday the 20th of September. His illness continued five days. On the morning of the 26th the weary wheels of life stood still, the spirit soared away to its world of bliss. Twenty-four hours elapsed and his companion joined him in his home in glory. His character was pure, unsullied and noble, his learning was not in books, but of wisdom. He left a host of friends both far and near. The community at large lost a devoted friend, the Lodge a faithful member, the children an indulgent and devoted father.

It is foolishly said that religion was invented by hypocritical prieste and knavish kings. It might as well be said that food and comfort are not necessities of our nature, but only cunning devices of butchers mechanics, and artists, to gain wealth and power. It is not given to hypocrites under the mitre, nor over the throne, to lay hold on the world and move it. Religion like society, friendship, and marriage, comes out of a principle deep and permanent in the constitution of man.—Theodore Parker.

New Publications

The Christmas Holiday Number of St. Nicholas is superb in all its contributions and illustrations. It contains strongly characteristic contributions from John G. Whittier, Charles Dudley Warner, Julian Hawthorne, Theodore Winthrop, Francis Hodgson Burnett (author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's) Mary Mapes Dodge, Celia Thaxter, Susan Coolidge, Hezekiah Butterworth (editor of "Youth's Companion,") Frank R. Stock[illegible] and Olive Thorne. Among [illegible] who contribute the [illegible] and more pictures [illegible] number are Frederick Dielman, Alfred Fredericks, James E. Kelly, Alfred Kappes, Addie Ledyard, Fidelia Bridges, Granville Perkins, Jessie Curtis, Sol Eytinge, Jr., Kate Greenaway, of Loddon, F. S. Church, and R. Sayre.

Harper's Magazine for January offers an unusual variety of interesting reading matter, with over ninety illustrations. The number opens with an effectively illustrated paper, by W. H. Rideing, on Liverpool—"England's Great Seaport." S. G. W. Benjamin contributes the first of two profusely illustrated papers, entitled "Rambles in the South of France." Besides these articles descriptive of places, there is, for readers interested in the curiosities of animal life, Mrs. Treat's illustrated paper, "A Chapter in the History of Ants"—a narrative of her own observations. Those interested in ceramic art will be especially pleased with Jennie J. Young's "Cloisonne Enamel," with eight beautiful engravings. Colonel Waring's illustrated paper on the last meeting of the "Royal Agricultural" show is full of curious and instructive information. An almost forgotten poetess—Mrs. Maria Brooks, or "Maria del Occidente" is recalled from oblivion by Mrs. Gustafson's delightful paper giving, through a variety of letters (from Col. Brooks, a son of the poetess, the Southeys, R. H. Horne, and others,) reminiscences of this remarkable author's briet career. Mrs. Brooks, the author of "Zophiel," a poem from which Mrs. Gustafson quotes largely, was pronounced by Southey "the most impassioned and most imaginative of all poetesses." Curious information is given in the paper on Rosseau respecting his musical achievements. Porte Crayon contributes a characteristic article, entitled "Home," with illustrations. Edward Everet Hale's fine poem, "The Harvest Year," closes the Number. The Easy Chair discusses Choate, the magazine of to-day, the true story of Paul Revere's Ride, etc. The Little Record is a comprehensive and critical summary of the important books of the month. The other editorial departments are well sustained.

Mr. John Whittier opens the January number of St. Nicholas with a beautiful poem. "The Voyage of the 'Jettie,'" which describes a charming incident of his late days. Mrs. Dodge contributes a fairy story, "Wondering Tom," set forth by Fredrick Deilemae's lovely pictures; and to the Very Little Folk she gives a story of "The Little Girl who Wanted to Go to the Moon," illustrated with novel silhouettes. Besides these stories, Mrs. Donge give a Christmas page, made up with old-time carols, and pictures by Addie Ledyard. Charles Dudley Warner asks the youngsters "What he shall do with Her?"—a tail-less cat whose queer ways, as he narrates them, must keep her human neighbors in fits of laughter. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's," contributes a Christmas tale, "Behind the White Bricks." The fairy story by Julian Hawthorn, "Rumpty-Dudget's Tower," begun in this number; and six pictures, by Alfred Fredricks, beyond its enchantments. Sarah J. Pritchard tells "How Wilster Kleespeet's Ship went into the Church,"—a graphic tale of child fisher life upon the romantic island of Helligoland in the German Ocean. "Pete's Christmas Tree," describes the woes of a boy who wanted to have Santa Claus come more than once a year. "Children's Day at St. Pauls's" by N. D'Anvers describes the anniversary of the Charity school children in the great church of London; accompanied with ten admirable illustrations; by Kate Greenaway. The departments, this month, are extra good, and there is a capital acting-play, "Ten Dollars," by Oliver Thorne, and a sweet little piece of music, "Nocturne for Little Hands," by William K. Bassford. The Holiday Wide Awake, of which one hundred and twenty thousand copies are being read and enjoyed, is delightful, while its "star" articles make it a publication worthy to be preserved in the family library. It opens with a Christmas poem entitled "The Ch ist-Candle," by Margaret J. Preston, followed by "My Mother Put It On," by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitneys. "Boston Rosebuds" is a rose-article with five illustrations by Miss. Humphry. A funny drawing, "A Christmas Tragedy: In three School," gives an entertaining account of one of the many schools which are springing up all over England, off-shoots of the South Kensington school, whose object is to teach the children of the poorer classes how to prepare common articles of food more wholesomely and palatably. The Poets' Homes paper on "Ralph Waldo Emerson," is prepared by his young townsman, G. B. Bartlett, with portrait and six beautiful Concord views drawn by Miss. Humphrey. The two jolly stories of the number are "Queen Church" by Rev. S. W. Duffield, and "Tressy's Christmas" by Margret Sidney, while jolliest of all is the rhyme of "The Mince Pie Prince" by Kirk Monroe, with two full-page illustrations by Hopkins. Ten fairy-like snow-pictures by "Bos," illustrate S. C. Stone's poem "Snowflakes." This number gives the opening chapters of two new serials. A funny serial, "Don Quixote Jr.," for the Little Boys of America, is to begin in the February number. Only $2.00 a year. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrope & Co., Publishers, Boston.

The January Scribner has a decided flavor of good cheer. The paper on "Old Maryland Manners," by F. B. Mayer, of Annapolis, is an interesting reproduction of the quaint and stately times of the "Maryland Palatine" [illegible] the celebrated "Tuesday Club," to the whims and oddities of which considerable space is devoted. A new artist, [illegible] makes his own drawings, [illegible] [illegible] itself in the illustrations, which include drawings [illegible] A. leans daily at 5:45 p. m., and arriving at New York at 6:30 a. m. Allowing for the difference in time between the two cities, the run is made in the unprecedented time of fifty-nine and three-quarter hours. This quick time is made only by the Great Jackson Route, and is the result of its enterprise in rebuilding its track with steel rails and new ties, at heavy expense, and the thorough system of ballasting that has been undertaken. This fast train will be of great advantage to the people of this city, which it is hoped they will show their appreciation of by their patronage. Only one change of cars, which is made at Columbus, O., where breakfast is taken in the splendid dining hall at that place at 8 a. m.

This route also makes the quickest time to Boston, arriving at 2:40 p. m. Actual running time, sixty-seven and one-half hours. This the most desirable route for all New England points. The time to all intermediate points is correspondingly less, thus making this the quickest and best route to all the Northern and Eastern cities.

Excursion tickets to Waukesha, Oconomowoc and all the Northwestern summer resorts, to Niagra Falls, Put-in-Bay, etc., are on sale at the lowest rates with the quickest time made by any line and only one change of cars.

Scribner's Monthly.

Increase in Popularity.

So great have been the attractions of recent issues of SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY that the edition in England has almost doubled within a few months, and its circulation at home is increasing with unexampled rapidity.

Among the features of 1879 specially worthy of note, we may mention:

The portraits and illustrated life-sketches of EMERSON, HOLMES and WHITTIER, continuing the familiar series of Frontispiece Potraits, begun with Bryant and Longfellow.

THE EMPIRE OF BRAZIL, a series of illustrated papers, showing not only the general resources, cities and romantic aspects of the region, but also treating in a practical way the commercial and industrial relations between this country and the whole southern half of this continent. No expense has been spared in the preparation of these papers, which will be full, accurate and richely illustrated. The first two will be "The Metropolis of the Amazons," and "The Mediterranean of America."

STUDIES IN THE SIERRAS, by John Muir, the California naturalist; graphic and picturesque studies of the California Alps.

"THE TILE CLUB AT WORK," and "AT PLAY,", descriptions of the origin and life of one of the New-York outgrowths of decorative art, will be found unique and entertaining. The illustrations are by members of "The Club,"—Abbey, O'Donovan, Weir, Homer, and others.

"THE OLD MASTERS," a series by CLARENCE COOK, begins with "Leonardo do Vinci." Among the masterpieces reproduced are the "Last Supper," "Head of Christ," and the "Mona Lisa."

The three last papers are in the Jan'y nunmber.

"OLD MARYLAND MANNERS," portraying the quaintness of Maryland 150 y ars ago, illustrated by the author, is also in January.

SIDNEY LANIER contributes a series, "The New South;" ALLEN C. REDWOOD, of Baltimore, a lighter series, "The 'Johnny Reb' Papers," illustrated by the author, begun in November. BOYESEN will have articles on "The Universities of Europe," including sketches of leading men in the noted Universities of Great Britian and the Continent. Among other papers may be mentioned American and Canadian Sports, Farm Life, "Caves and Cave Scenery," "Lawn Planting for Small Places," American Art and Artists, American Archæology, Modern Inventors (begun with Edison), etc., etc.,

"HAWORTH'S,"

by MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT is the leading serial, to run through the year.

The Springfield Republican says that "Haworth's promises to be a greater novel than "That Lass o' Lowrie's;" that a large number of strongly individualized characters are already indicated; and the author's power in painting scenes, in dramatic motion, and in the picturesque humor, is perfectly sustained. "Mrs. Burnett is advancing vigorously to the fulfillment of our recognition as a new origional force in literature."

The London Academy says that for vigor, humor and rendering (dialect and all) of the scenes of manufacturing life in North Lancashire, the open chapters deserve to be put very high indeed.

Boyesen's Novel, "Falconberg," a tale of Norse life, begun in August to end in April, will be followed by a story of "Life in New Orleans," by GEORGE W CABLE, author of the original and striking Creole sketches publisheed in SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY.

Pre-eminent among magazines as the representative of the best American literature, and, at the same time, the highest [illegible] pictorial illustration, SCRIBNER [illegible] will present during the coming year, even broader claims to public [illegible]

The Children's Art Magazine.

The London Literary World says of it; "There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of Scribner's press."

Good Things for 1879.

Frank R. Stockton's new serial for boys, "A Jolly Fellowship," began in November will run through the year. "Eyebright," by Susan Coolidge, commences soon, and a fairy tale by Julian Hawthorne, begins in the Christmas issue. Each number is a "holiday number" full of the best stories and illustrations for boys and girls.

The Class-Leader.

His Work, and How to Do It.

With Illustrations of Principles, Needs, Methods, and Results.

BY REV. JOHN ATKINSON, A. M.

Author of "Garden of Sorrows."

12mo........................$1.50

It is a sociable, practical, pertinent book. It calls upon Class-Leaders to tell their experience. It draws out suggestions and stirring thoughts from practical hands. The Leadership is called into council. And Mr. Atkinson, as leader of the leaders expounds the subiect in such a way as to make far the best book written on the subject. He speaks out in meeting as one who means business. He is hortatory, critical and suggestive, all in a free, flowing style that carries the reader upon its rapid current to his journey's end quite as quick as he wishes to stop. Few will begin it without finishing it, and many will find a re-reading at once pleasant.

Here is a book that we would be glad to have go into the hands of every class-leader in the church, because it is just such a book as by its illustrations and suggestions will help them very greatly

We have read it with great interest and are delighted with it. It is a very suggestive volume.

COURSE OF STUDY

Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provisions found in ¶ 89, § 6 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a Course of Study for Local Preachers:

I. Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

II. FIRST YEAR. The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend. Steele's Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

TO BE READ. Scripture History—Old Testament. Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred Years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III. SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8 vo.

IV. THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons.—Vol. 1. Introduction to the Gospel Records.—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8 vo.

V. FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole Course. Written Sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and have adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which have been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, [illegible] course of study for local preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the District Conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the District Conference; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course of study for all local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to local preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the General Conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does apply to all local preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the District or Quarterly Conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the Annual Conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops. W. L. HARRIS, Secretary.

Our Class Leaders.

We are often asked for the names of [illegible] books [illegible]

We recommend the following and ask the Presiding Elders and Pastors to do all they can to put these books in the hands of the leaders.

1. The Class-Leader: His Work, and How to do it. With illustrations of principles, needs, methods and results. By Rev. John Atkinson, A. M. 12mo., $1.50.

2. Address to Class-Leaders. By Bishop Janes. 12mo., 20c.

3. Seed-Thoughts, A Hand-Book of Doctrine and Devotion. By Rev. Geo. C. Robinson. Price $1.00.

4. Father Reeves, Methodist Class-Leader. By Edward Corderoy. 18mo., 65c.

5. All for Christ: How the Christian may Obtain, by a renewed Consecration of His Heart, the fullness of Joy Referred to by the Savior just Previous to His Crucifixion, with illustrations from the lives of those who have make this consecration. By Thomas Carter, D.D. 16mo., 75c.

For any of these books address Nelson & Phillips, New Orleans.

The Methodist Hymnal,

AND

Hymnal with Tunes.

We are now prepared to fill orders for the following editions of the "METHODIST HYMNAL:"

Pearl, Plain	$0 40
Pearl, Red Edge	0 50
24mo, Plain	0 50
24mo, Red Edge	0 65
24mo, Roan, Embossed	0 75
24mo, Roan, Gilt Edge	1 00
16mo, Plain	0 75
16mo, Red Edge	1 00
16mo, Roan, Embossed	1 20
16mo, Roan Gilt Edge	1 40
"Hymnal with Tunes, 12mo	1 00
Hymnal with Tunes, 8vo	1 75

Since the manuscript of the Hymnal was delivered by the Committee, October 26th, last, time has been required to prepare and perfect the indexes, to complete the arrangements of the Hymns and Tunes, and to adjust all to a system of uniform numbering. Time has also been consumed in the transmission of proofs to and from the members of the Committee, but there has been no unnecessary delay. In view of these facts, and the amount of work involved in issuing so many editions in good style, we think that it has been completed at the earliest moment practicable.

The new book contains a great variety of the best spiritual songs, adapting it both to public and social worship. It should be used in social meetings and Sunday-schools, and thus be the means of familiarizing our children with the living hymns of the church. The cheaper editions will cost little more than the ordinary Sunday-school song books that last but a season. The Hymnal with Tunes is a rich and varied treasury of sacred music, and the 12mo edition is the cheapest complete Hymn and Tune Book in the land.

We ask all pastors to aid in the general and immediate introduction of the Hymnal, and Hymnal with Tunes. Let it be the occasion of an effort to intensify the true spirit of worship where it flourishes, and to revive it where it languishes, that the Methodist Episcopal Church may soon become, as aforetime, mighty in song.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

1879.

Nelson & Phillips, Publishers. J. C. Hartzell, B.D., Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, NOVEMBER 1, 1878.

DEAR BROTHER:—The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADNOCATE is your official church paper, and is published by order of the General Conference, at New Orleans. Besides religious news, the SOUTHWESTERN will contain articles on education, agriculture and politics. The more your people read from a good paper the more intelligent and active will they be as Christians, and the better will they support you and help in all the work of the church.

To aid you in the good work of circulating the SOUTHWESTERN we make the following most liberal propositions:

I. Two Months Free.

Every New subscriber for 1879 will receive the paper Free for the remainder of 1878. For example: If a subscriber gives you his name and two dollars November 1, 1878, he will receive the paper the two months remaining in 1878 and the whole year of 1879, making in all fourteen months for one year's subscription.

II. Cash Commissions to Agents.

All traveling Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are our authorized agents. We pay our agents the following cash commissions:

1. We send them their own paper for one dollar a year, just half price. This is the same as paying one dollar cash on their subscription.

2. We pay twenty-five cents cash for every yearly subscriber. Whenever an agent collects two dollars for us he is authorized to keep twenty-five cents from the amount as his commission, and send us $1.75.

III. A Steel Engraving of John Wesley to Every Subscriber.

We give as a present to every yearly subscriber, a large and elegant steel engraving of John Wesley, the great founder of Methodism. This engraving retails at $1.50, but as we own the original plate and do our own publishing, we can afford to present one of these beautiful pictures to every subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN. The best judges pronounce the portrait a life-like picture of Wesley, and the engraving is first-class. The picture is 16x20 inches in size. Remember, we give this engraving as a present to every yearly subscriber as soon as the two dollars are paid.

IV. Silver Communion Ware for the Churches.

All our Churches need Communion Service Sets and we want them to have the best. By a most fortunate combination of circumstances we are enabled to put it within the reach of almost any Church to receive as a Present some of the best triple-plated Silver Communion Ware that is made. Here are pictures of the different pieces:

SILVER FLAGON, 1½ quarts, $10 00
" " 3 " 14 00

SILVER PLATE,
1[illegible] inches wide, $4 00

SILVER BAPTISMAL BOWL,
$7 00.

These prices are the Manufacturers lowest retail prices. This silver ware is such as is used in the best Churches throughout the country

SILVER GOBLET,
1 pint, $4 50.

REMEMBER this Silver Communion ware is given to the Churches in addition to the cash commissions to the Agent, and the steel engraved portrait of John Wesley to every subscriber. Our propositions to the Churches are as follows:

1. To any Church sending us Twenty Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon that will hold one and a half quarts, and worth $10 00.

2. To any Church sending us Twenty-five Cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, and a Silver Plate worth $4. Total $14.

3. To any Church sending us Thirty-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, and a Silver Goblet worth $4 50. Total 18 50.

4. To any Church sending us Fifty cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon worth $10, a Silver Plate worth $4, a Silver Goblet worth $4 50, and a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7. Total $25 50.

5. To any Church sending [illegible]-five cash Subscribers we will present a Silver Flagon holding three quarts [illegible] a Silver Baptismal Bowl worth $7, two Silver Goblets [illegible] and two [illegible] worth $8. Total, $38.

☞ NOTICE.—These [illegible] presents are sent to the Churches complying with these terms, as soon as [illegible] by us. This offer stands good for the whole year of 1879, and the [illegible] whenever, during the year, the money is received.

Our [illegible]eral Offer.

We claim that the offers [illegible] the preceding pages are very liberal. It will be noticed that we [illegible] FIRST, the preacher, who acts as our agent in getting subscribers for [illegible] subscriber who takes the paper and pays for it; THIRD, the congregation [illegible] or more subscribers are obtained.

FOR EXAMPLE: Suppose a pastor and his people secure twenty yearly subscribers. At two dollars apiece that would be forty dollars. As the preacher gets twenty-five cents for every subscriber, five dollars of the forty dollars will belong to him. As soon as the remaining thirty-five dollars are received by us, we will send as a present to the congregation an elegant silver flagon worth ten dollars. We will also send twenty steel engravings of John Wesley, one for each subscriber.

☞ Let it be understood that EVERY YEARLY SUBSCRIBER gets a steel engraving as soon as his subscription is paid, and for every two dollars collected the pastor will get twenty-five cents. The elegant Silver Communion Ware given to the Churches is IN ADDITION to what we give the pastor and each subscriber.

Our Terms.

1. The SOUTHWESTERN costs $2 a year, cash in advance. We pay the postage.

2. Where the preacher will be personally responsible for the money, we will send the paper, but no commissions will be paid, the preachers, or steel engravings sent the subscribers, or silver communion ware to the churches, until the money is received at our office.

3. Cash in advance is the best rule for all parties. We get the money and are saved embarrassment: the preacher gets his commission; the subscriber gets his steel engraving at once, and the church gets its silver communion ware for immediate use.

4. Send the money by Postoffice Order whenever possible.

BEGIN THE CANVASS AT ONCE.

We need five thousand subscribers, and if all our Agents will take hold of the canvass at once, and push [illegible] we shall have them.

Let the [illegible] We will send you a specimen copy of the steel engraving to show [illegible] engraving and a copy of the paper and show them to your con[illegible] value of the paper and our liberal offers.

Has your Church a good Set of Communion Ware? If not, you need one, and now is your chance to get one as a gift. Explain our proposition to give Silver Communion Ware, to your official board, and get the brethren to unite in helping to secure twenty or more subscribers and secure some of our magnificent presents.

[illegible] specimen copies of the SOUTHWESTERN you want, free, whenever you ask for them.

THE BURDEN OF THE DAY.

Father! take not away
The burden of the day,
But help me that I bear it
As Christ his burden bore,
When cross and thorn he wore,
And none with him could share it—
In his name, help! I pray.

I only ask for grace
To see that patient face,
And my impatient one:
Ask that mine grow like his—
Sign of an inward peace
From trust in Thee alone,
Unchanged by time or place.

Why He Gave Them Up.

Little folks generally like to run and meet father at night when he returns from his day's work either at the office, store, or shop, don't they? The father likes to have them as well.

Roger Creagh did anyway, and when his little "Polly" (as he called her) ran out to the gate he would catch her up, give her a kiss and toss her up in the air, and then run in the house with her on his back. And oh! what a good time they had after tea—she on his lap prattling in childish fashion, and he listening or telling his famous stories.

One night she met him as usual, but when tea was over did not climb up on his lap, but ran off after her mother into the kitchen.

"Where's my 'Polly'" cried he. "Come, Polly, I've a nice new story to-night." But no Polly came.

"Go to your father, child," said the mother.

"No, I don't want to, said the little one, and burst out crying, for the "new story" was a temptation.

"But why?" urged the mother. "I thought you liked papa's lap so well."

"Yes," said the child; but to-night his breaf don't smell good."

"Did you hear that, Roger?" said the wife, whose glance at his flushed face told her the true reason of "Polly's" dislike.

"Yes, Mary, said he, "and it shall never be said again. I only stopped with John Moore, who begged me to have a glass of something for old times' sake, and then a cigar afterward. I'll give them up forever rather than lose Polly's kisses. If she shuns me now, what will she do in years to come? No, no! I want her love and respect more than all the cigars and liquor in creation."

That father's love was worth something. He was not afraid to give his reasons, either, for declining to drink when urged by others, replying: "No, no; Iv'e got a little girl at home who would know it, and, mates, I don't think it's good for us anyway. We're better off without it. I say 'a clean mouth and pure breath for kisses of wife and babies.'" I am glad to say he won some over to his way of thinking.—O. M., in Youth's Temperance Banner.

Two Pairs of Fetters.

Eighty years ago a fierce war raged in India between the English and Tippoo Sahib. On one occasion several English officers were taken prisoners; among them was one named Baird. One day a native officer brought in fetters to be put upon each of the prisoners, the wounded not excepted. Baird had been severely wounded, and was suffering from pain and weakness.

A gray-haired officer said to the native official "you do not think of putting chains upon that wounded man?"

"There are just as many pairs of fetters as there are captives," was the answer, "and every pair must be worn."

"Then," said the noble officer, "put two pairs on me. I will wear his as well as my own." This was done. Strange to say, Baird lived to regain his freedom—lived to [illegible] city; but his noble friend [illegible] prison.

[illegible] death he wore two [illegible] fetters. But what if he [illegible] the fetters of all in the [illegible] what if, instead of being [illegible] had quitted a [illegible] to live in their [illegible], to wear their [illegible] their stripes, to [illegible] them, that they [illegible] ever?

[illegible] a thing has been [illegible] one God, and one [illegible] God and man, [illegible] Jesus, who gave [illegible] ransom for all."

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

☞ HELP!

FOR THE WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED!

The afflicted can now be restored to perfect health and bodily energy, at home, without the use of medicine of any kind.

PULVERMACHER'S

ELECTRIC BELTS

AND BANDS,

For self-application to any part of the body, meet every requirement.

The most learned physicians and scientific men of Europe and this country indorse them.

These noted Curative appliances have now stood the test for upward of thirty years, and are protected by Letters-Patent in all the principal countries of the world. They were decreed the only Award of Merit for Electric Appliances at the great World's Exhibitions—Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere—and have been found the most valuable, safe, simple, and efficient known treatment for the cure of disease.

READER, ARE YOU AFFLICTED?

and wish to recover the same degree of health, strength, and energy as experienced in former years? Do any of the following symptoms or class of symptoms meet your diseased condition? Are you suffering from ill-health in any of its many and multifarious forms, consequent upon a lingering, nervous, chronic or functional disease? Do you feel nervous, debilitated, fretful, timid, and lack the power of will and action? Are you subject to loss of memory, have spells of fainting, fullness of blood in the head, feel listless, moping, unfit for business or pleasure, and subject to fits of melancholy? Are your kidneys, stomach, or blood, in a disordered condition? Do you suffer from rheumatism, neuralgia or aches and pains? Have you been indiscreet in early years and find yourself harassed with a multitude of gloomy symptoms? Are you timid, nervous, and forgetful, and your mind continually dwelling on the subject? Have you lost confidence in yourself and energy for business pursuits? Are you subject to any of the following symptoms: Restless nights, broken sleep, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, bashfulness, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, dizziness in the head, dimness of sight, pimples and blotches on the face and back, and other despondent symptoms? Thousands of young men, the middle aged, and even the old, suffer from nervous and physical debility. Thousands of females, too, are broken down in health and spirits from disorders peculiar to their sex, and who, from false modesty or neglect prolong their sufferings. Why, then, further neglect a subject so productive of health and happiness when there is at hand a means of restoration?

PULVERMACHER'S
ELECTRIC BELTS AND BANDS

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Prop'r, World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucous, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. PIERCE'S Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried HIGH UP and PERFECTLY APPLIED to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. SAGE'S Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists. R. V. PIERCE, M. PATENTS obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada, and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office, we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost, than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German-American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims; to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.
